The British Have Been Pressed Back South of the Somme

Great Battle Now Raging Over Seventy Mile Front

Germans Claim To Have Taken 70,000 Prisoners And Over Thousand Guns

British Were Pressed Back in a Fierce Battle South of the Somme River—There is Increased Confidence in Paris—Ground Covered With Corpses.

ENEMY SUFFERS HEAVY LOSSES

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, March 30. — Heavy fighting has taken place south of the Somme in which the British have been pressed back to a line running west of Marcel Cave and Demum, a War Office despatch said last night.

THURSDAY NIGHT REPORT.

Field Marshal Haig's report on Thursday night says after an all-day battle north and south of the Somme with Arras as its centre, the British forces have beaten off the Germans with heavy losses to the enemy.

The great battle is now raging over a front of more than seventy miles. There is increased confidence here, however.

POLITICAL GAMBLE.

LONDON, March 30.—There is no reason yet to believe that Quartermaster-General Ludendorff has increased his prospects of winning the great political gamble which is the real character of the German super-offensive.

COVERED WITH CORPSES.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FRANCE, March 30.—Telegraph Hill is covered with corpses uniformed in grey green as the enemy desperately attempts to reach Arras. Telegraph Hill is about midway between Lens and Arras. On is north is the famous Vimy Ridge. To the south is the Labyrinth.

MAINTAINED GROUND.

LONDON, March 30.—The British have maintained their ground in some places by successful counter attacks. British aeroplanes bombed Bapaume, Bray and Perrone Thursday night with good effect. Four British machines are missing.

ANOTHER THREAT.

AMSTERDAM, March 30.—The German supreme command is about to deliver a new and mighty blow on another part of the front which will tear a hole in the already pierced enemy ring, declares advices from Berlin. Since the beginning of the great battle the Germans have taken 70,000 prisoners and 1,100 guns, says another Berlin report.

PARIS, March 30.—General Pershing has placed at the disposal of France all the resources of the American army for the battle now in progress.

INDIANS GIVE LOYAL SERVICE

About Two Thousand Overseas, Out of 15,000 Male Population

OTTAWA, March 30.—According to Mr. D. C. Scott, Deputy Minister of Indian Affairs, approximately two thousand Canadian Expeditionary Forces and are now serving overseas. The "untutored minds" of Canada's wards have responded to the call to arms in defence of liberty even more readily than their tutored white guardians. For the enlistment of two thousand is out of a total male population of military age not exceeding 15,000, many of whom are in remote parts of Canada where recruiting has never actually been carried on. In the more settled parts of the Dominion from 10 to 20 per cent. of the Indians fit for miltary service have voluntarily enlisted.

Canadians Are In The Big Fight Near Arras

OTTAWA, March 30.—That at least a portion of the Canadian forces in France are now engaged in the great battle on the Western Front is the statement made in a cable received by Sir Robert Borden last night from Sir Edward Kemp. It has been known in Government circles for the past three days that the Canadians would be drawn into the fight before the end of the week, but for obvious military reasons the press, although informed of the situation, was requested not to mention it. The announcement that the Canadians are now engaging the enemy in the vicinity of Arras is received without surprise. No details as to the size of the Canadian force thrown into the fight up to the present time, or the progress of the fighting, have yet been received. Sir Edward Kemp's message describes the situation at the front as being obscure.

Germans Have Been Halted

Later Despatch Received This Morning Indicates More Favourable News

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, March 30.—The Germans have been halted at all but one sector of the front, and the enemy is just creeping along at that point. The Allies stubbornly hold the line. The Grmans are fighting desperately on the northern and southern wings to prevent the British and French reserves from strengthening the British centre.

The above despatch was received at ten o'clock this morning. It constitutes the latest report of the western front offensive, appearing in this issue.

What Physicians Prescribe For Nerves

THE USE OF ORGANIC PHOSPHORUS

Something over sixty years ago Pelouz, a French scientist, discovered a form of organic phosphorus which when taken into the human system, was quickly converted into nerve tissue.

To-day it is an admitted fact that in the treatment of those ailments, directly or indirectly due to depleted nervous vitality, such as neurasthenia, nervous weakness, premature old age, insomnia, lack of energy, fatigue, nervous debility, thinness, etc., it is unequalled.

Physicians and hospitals everywhere now recognize its merits by its use in ever increasing quantities, and it is therefore a matter of more than ordinary interest to all such sufferers to learn that this organic nerve building phosphorus is now obtainable from McDermid & Jury and good druggists everywhere in the form of 5-grain tablets of pure bitro-phosphate, at a cost so low as to be within the reach of everyone. There are a great variety of so-called phosphates, but the genuine standard bitro-phosphate is composed wholly of the original nerve building substance as discovered by Pelouz.

One of these tablets should be taken with each meal, and the results in many instances are little short of marvellous. Dull eyes become bright, sleep is restored to the sleepless, the nerves regain their strength, thin people put on flesh and the whole system becomes charged with that strength, vitality and energy which makes life so truly worth while.

Crown Offered To German Prince

VIENNA, March 30.—A report that the Russians have retaken Odessa is denied here.

THE LONG RANGE BOMBARDMENT OF PARIS RESUMED YESTERDAY

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, March 30.—The long-range bombardment of Paris was resumed shortly after three o'clock yesterday afternoon.

THE DEATH OF MR. GEORGE MATHER

WELL-KNOWN LOCAL GRAIN MERCHANT PASSED AWAY SUDDENLY

Yesterday morning the death occured suddenly in Peterborough of Mr. George Mather, the well-known grain merchant. The deceased, who was fifty-eight years of age, had been in his usual good health when he was seized at his Charlotte street office with a sudden illness. He managed to walk home where he passed away shortly after nine o'clock in the morning. A wife and three daughters survive. The daughters are Miss Louise Mather, who is nursing in France; Miss Nellie Mather, nurse-in-training at Clifton Springs, and Miss Bessie Mather at home.

An Appalling Condition.

Invariably results when you use a cheap corn salve. Be judicious, use "Putnam's," for fifty years it has cured corns and warts that nothing else can touch. Ask for Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor only, 25c. at all dealers.

TEN THOUSAND RIOTERS DESTROY MILITARY PROPERTY IN QUEBEC

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

QUEBEC, March 30.—Shortly after eleven o'clock last night mobs started in Quebec and held sway for three hours. The Chronicle and Levenement newspaper offices were smashed, and the Auditorium Building set on fire. Some military papers were destroyed. Firemen were unable to check the flames until the military arrived and held the ten thousand rioters in check.

DETAINED SIR SAM AS ALIEN SUSPECT

Incident Aroused Righteous Ire of Former Minister of Militia.

TORONTO, March 28. — Sir Sam Hughes was accosted as an alien by a member of the Dominion Police at the Union Station yesterday morning and held up for several minutes by an insistent demand that he produce his registration card. Sir Sam carried the argument, and the policeman, the length of rotunda and down through the arcade, before the hapless plain-clothesman realized that he had been made the victim of an ill-conceived joke.

As a result of the incident Constable W. Cook, who was in charge of the station squad sent there to detect defaulters and round up aliens, was summarily dismissed from the service, and Constable Kerr, who was the one to accost Sir Sam, is under reprimand. Cook is a first contingent man.

MONTREAL AVIATOR KILLED.

FORT WORTH, Texas, March 27.—H. Hooten, a cadet of the Royal Flying Corps, whose home was in Montreal, was killed to-day when his aeroplane crashed to the ground at Everman Field, a British camp here. His was the forty-fourth fatality in the combined British and American camps in Fort Worth since they were established last fall.

Norwood Correspondence

NORWOOD, March 27.—On Wednesday [illegible] Board of Directors of the East Peterborough Agricultural Association met to revise the prize list for the fiftieth annual exhibition of the Society to be held in October. Those present were Messrs. E. Hawthorne, President; Jas. Adams, 2nd Vice President; J. E. Roxburgh, Sec.-Treasurer; Andrew Knox, Col. Birdsall, Wm. Brackenridge, Gilbert Elmhirst, P. M. Grover, Thos. Dunham, G. A. Brethen, W. Barrie, W. Thompson, A. Humphries, D. Barrie, directors, C. O'Keilly and J. B. Pearce, Honorary Directors. In order to encourage the breeding of horses, which are in such demand, the directors decided to increase the prizes in all classes.

PERSONAL.

Miss Muriel Searight is in Toronto visiting her sister, Mrs. Cookson.

Mrs. (Dr.) Thompson of Toronto has been visiting her sister, Mrs. C. I. Puffer.

Mrs. M. Minore was in Toronto last week.

The young men of town are arranging to give a dance in the town hall on Easter Monday night, the proceeds to be used for patriotic purposes.

Mrs. J. S. Fry is offering her household furniture and effects to be sold by public auction on Saturday.

The Canadian Order of Foresters held an 'At Home' in their lodge-room on Friday evening.

Mr. Malcolm Sloane went to Kingston last week to report.

Mr. P. Drain of Clarina has been exempted until June.

Pte. Wesley Andrews, who was honorably discharged since returning from overseas, has returned to Hazenmore, Sask., where he was at the time he enlisted.

Miss Wood of Havelock was in town on Friday.

Mrs. C. J. Searight has been visiting in Peterborough for a few days.

On Thursday evening the ladies of the Presbyterian Church gave a measuring social in the basement of the church. A most enjoyable time was spent in games, etc. A programme was also provided. The proceeds amounted to about thirty-five dollars.

Mr. and Mrs. John Thompson of Hastings were in town last Thursday.

Miss Iva Hudgins of Peterborough is visiting Norwood friends.

Mr. Theodore Burgess will go to Toronto on Thursday to report for the Royal Flying Corps.

Union prayer meeting will be held in the Methodist Church on Wednesday evening.

Mrs. H. G. Buck was in Toronto last week.

Mrs. Kennedy of Bobcaygeon is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Minore.

SOLDIERS WELCOMED.

A large number of citizens and many from the surrounding country assembled in the Town hall on Thursday evening to show honour to one of our esteemed heroes, Corporal Arthur McHenty, who arrived home on the noon train. Corporal McHenty had been in the hospital for several months, suffering from a head wound. His many friends are delighted to see him looking so well and to know that he is on the highway to recovery.

Lieut. Walter Thompson was also present and both were the recipients of a gold signet ring presented by Mrs. B. W. Squire, Regent, on behalf of the local Chapter of the I. O. D. E. Addresses were given by Dr. Ford, Rev. Wolland, Rev. Irwin, and an address of welcome read by Reeve Squire, who occupied the chair.

Mrs. F. Garlick favoured the audience with a piano solo, and Master Kenneth Montgomery recited. The people were delighted with the solos rendered by Mr. J. Stan. Weir.

Miss Arnold of the H. S. staff also sang, and a chorus by the P. S. children of the third book was greatly appreciated. One of the most interesting parts of the programme was a short talk by the returned hero.

Miss Grace Reynolds spent a short time in Toronto last week.

LADIES' AID.

The Ladies' Aid of the Methodist Church held a fifteen cent tea on Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. H. G. Buck and received over $7.00.

Mrs. R. Carton of Peterborough has been a guest of Mrs. E. P. Cuffe.

Miss Belle Thompson of Hastings was in town last Thursday.

SEEKS EASTER LIBERTY FOR DRAFTED FARMERS.

Ottawa, March 27.—S. F. Glass, of Middlesex, Conservative Unionist, has come to the conclusion that the leave of absence boards are not liberating conscripted agriculturists fast enough. He has therefore put a resolution on the order paper which contends that "any further call to military service of this class of men cannot result other than in diminution in the production of food stuffs vitally essential to the sustenance of our fighting forces." It goes on to say:

"Therefore, having in view the near approach of the season for spring work and seeding, without which the insistent world demand for production cannot be achieved, and further, in view of the fact that farmers to a large extent will necessarily regulate their plans for production in proportion to the labor available, it is of the utmost importance that all leave of absence boards under the direction of the Department of Militia should promptly dispose of and give favorable notice to appeals of men experienced in agriculture."

Mr. Glass has already succeeded in securing daily sittings of the leave of absence boards in his own military district.

CHILL STARTS COLD

WAS SICK FOUR WEEKS

JUST ABLE TO CRAWL ABOUT

Mr. Weldon T. Hawkes, Curryville, N.B., writes: "Last spring I was taken very ill with a severe cold. I got wet and it started with a chill. I was sick four weeks, and was just able to crawl about. People all said I had inflammation of the lungs, and I think I did. I told a friend to get me two bottles of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and before the first one was taken my cold and cough were broken up, and the second did its work completely. I am raising a family and I find that it is a good medicine for the children."

There is no remedy that will cure stubborn colds or coughs, the kind that won't let go, like Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup.

It allays the inflammation, soothes the irritation, heals the diseased mucous lining of the lungs and bronchial tubes, and rids the system completely of all the bad effects of lingering coughs and colds.

There are so many spurious "Pine" preparations on the market that you should see you get "Dr. Woods" when you ask for it.

Put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price 25c. and 50c.; manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

SHORTAGE OF WHEAT IN FRANCE SERIOUS

WASHINGTON, March 28.—Shortage of wheat in France has become so serious that the bread ration of the French soldier has been reduced, according to official advices received here. The food administration is endeavouring to collect wheat to rush abroad.

Machine Opens Letters.

With the whole tendency of modern business toward centralization, to say nothing of the enormous growth of the mail order houses, the daily mail problem is a gigantic one to the efficiency experts. A new machine has been put on the market to open letters which is said to break all previous records. It does the work by shaving off an exceedingly thin slice of the edge of each envelope, hardly thicker than the paper itself. It is impossible to cut an inclosure by this method. The chief feature of the machine is its speed. In a recent test run it opened nine thousand letters an hour for an eight-hour stretch.—Emporia Gazette.

A Few Figures.

Col. John S. Dennis, of the British-Canadian recruiting mission, in a speech at the University Club, Chicago, declared that when the United States has entered the war as fully as Canada, we shall have had a casualty list of 2,000,000 and will have enlisted 10,000,000 men. In the three and one-half years Canada has been in the war, he said, her casualties total 115,000, although her population is only 8,000,000.

Remarkable River Postwoman.

A SAVING OF MILLIONS.

Scheme to Salvage War Material and Work It Up for Army Use.

A huge scheme of salvage, which will save the country millions a year, and probably as much as £100,000,000 by the time the war is ended, is about to be put into operation. It crowns the work of Mr. Andrew Weir, the able Director-General of Supply. To carry out the scheme a board of twelve experts, at the head of which is Lieut.-Gen. Sir John Cowans, has been appointed; the actual Director of Salvage is Brig.-Gen. L. W. Archerley, who is well spoken of.

The idea is to collect and bring back from France the whole of the war material that has been lying there unused or half-used for some time, and to work it up again for the army. In this fashion enormous quantities of copper, steel, and such-like commodities, which otherwise would need to be brought from overseas, will be available, thus effecting a most valuable saving in tonnage, not to speak of money.

There are dumps in France so extensive that it will take 1,000 men weeks to remove the stuff, but, presumably, the task will be tackled systematically, and spread over a period sufficiently long to avoid any strain on the labor at the front.

A modest salvage scheme, by means of which empty shell-cases and worn-out clothing for remanufacture have been returned to England, has been in operation for a number of months, but its results are modest compared with those aimed at in the new scheme which brings into being an organization that will deal with the raw material from the collecting stage to its re-issue and on a commercial basis.—Tit-Bits.

A Wonderful Island.

White Island, thirty miles distant from New Zealand, is probably the most extraordinary island in the world. It is an enormous mass of rock nearly three miles in circumference, rising 900 feet above the sea, and is perpetually enveloped in dark clouds, which are visible for nearly 100 miles.

The island consists almost entirely of sulphur, with a small percentage of gypsum. Some years ago an attempt was made to float a company to work the sulphur, which is of high quality; but, strange to say, sufficient capital was not subscribed. Therefore, the export of sulphur from White Island is still very small.

In the interior is a lake fully fifty acres in extent, the water of which has a temperature of 110 degrees Fahrenheit, and is strongly impregnated with acids. On one side of this lake are craters from which steam escapes with great force and noise. This steam and the vapor from the lake form the dark cloud which envelopes the island.—Tit-Bits.

Hastings News Of Interest

Hastings, March 27.—In a recent picture which appeared in the press where a group of British prisoners is shown in Holland, is to be plainly seen the portraits of two of our boys, Colin Baker, brother of Messrs. Wm. and Malcolm Baker, and Roy Richardson, son of Mrs. J. Richardson, of town. The friends are pleased to see even this as they had not been heard of for some time: it was feared that they had been missing or had been killed while on active service.

SCHOOL REPORT.

The report of the senior classes of the Hastings Public School for Feb., is as follows:

The Quality Goes Clear Through

A Sane Selection

CONSIDER the Gray-Dort, and the 65 years old institution behind it.

Continued growth for 65 years has a reason. The public is a critical and competent judge, and will award its patronage only to worth, in the long run.

Believing this Wm. Gray before confederation laid down the cardinal principal of his business—to give his customers brimming value in every product he made.

The aims and ideals of this institution have not changed with a changing market. The value in Gray buggies has become the value in the Gray-Dort car.

The Gray-Dort is a good car at a low price. Except in size, it equals cars selling hundreds of dollars higher. It is just as staunch, just as reliable, as the costly cars. It has ample power for its load. It is fast enough for anywhere off the race-track. It yields to no car for appearance.

Yet it is economical to run—going far on a gallon of gasoline, and easy on tires. It is within the reach of every motorist's purse.

The new Gray-Dort embodies all the good features that won instant success for former models. The 4-cylinder motor is a triumph of smooth, economical speed and power. The chassis is sturdy and quiet. The springs are long. The upholstery is deep. The equipment is absolutely complete from electric starting and lighting to the tools. New lines of beauty have been given this model. The five-passenger touring car is $1,125; the three-passenger fleur-de-lys roadster is $995; the Gray-Dort Special, beautifully finished and with extra details of equipment is $125 above the list. All prices are f.o.b. Chatham.

Doctors Stand Amazed at Power of Bon-Opto to Make Weak Eyes Strong---According to Dr. Lewis

Guaranteed to Strengthen Eyesight 50% In One Week's Time in Many Instances

A Free Prescription You Can Have Filled and Use at Home

Victims of eye strain and other eye weaknesses, and those who wear glasses, will be glad to know that according to Dr. Lewis there is real hope and help for them. Many whose eyes were failing say they have had their eyes restored by this remarkable prescription and many who once wore glasses say they have thrown them away. One man says, after using it: "I was almost blind. Could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without my glasses and my eyes do not hurt any more. At night they would pain dreadfully. Now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me.' A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy with or without glasses, but after using this prescription for 15 days everything seems clear. I can read even fine print without glasses." Another who used it says: "I was bothered with eye strain caused by overworked, tired eyes which induced fierce headaches. I have worn glasses for several years both for distance and work, and without them I could not read my own name on an envelope or the typewriting on the machine before me. I can do both now and have discarded my long distance glasses altogether. I can count the fluttering leaves on the trees across the street now, which for several years have looked like a dim green blur to me. I cannot express my joy at what it has done for me."

It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time and multitudes more will be able to strengthen their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and expense of ever getting glasses. Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited by the use of this prescription. Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Drop one Bon-Opto tablet in a fourth of a glass of water and let it dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eyes two to four times daily. You should notice your eyes clear up perceptibly right from the start and inflammation and redness will quickly disappear. If your eyes bother you even a little it is your duty to take steps to save them now before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have saved their sight if they had cared for their eyes in time.

Note: Another prominent Physician to whom the above article was submitted, said: "Yes the Bon-Opto prescription is truly a wonderful eye remedy. Its constituent ingredients are well known to eminent eye specialists and widely prescribed by them. I have used it very successfully in my own practice on patients whose eyes were strained through overwork or misfit glasses. I can highly recommend it in case of weak, watery, aching, smarting, itching-burning eyes, red lids, blurred vision or for eyes inflamed from exposure to smoke, sun, dust or wind. It is one of the very few preparations I feel should be kept on hand for regular use in almost every family." Bon-Opto, referred to above, is not a patent medicine or a secret remedy. It is an ethical preparation, the formula being printed on the package. The manufacturers guarantee it to strengthen eyesight 50 per cent in one week's time in many instances or refund the money. It can be obtained from any good druggist and is sold in this city by The Warne Drug Company.

Faith In the Trenches.

Harry Lauder tells in the American Magazine of his experience in France, and he says:

"I spent many days in the trenches, the rest camps, the hospitals, and in the surrounding towns, and the most definite impression I carried away was one concerning the spiritual atmosphere which surrounds the French and British soldiers in France. I talked with some of the men for hours at a time about their experiences in battle, about their feeling toward the enemy, but the one thing I came away with, above all other impressions, was the conviction that every single one of these men, no matter what manner of lives they had lived before, now possess a calm, clear conviction that if they fall in the thick of the fight, they will pass into the life beyond.

"'That's why we take such chances,' one man told me simply. 'Do you thing for a moment that if we thought that life held nothing for us than the earthly body we possess, we would fight with such a confidence able to, because we would be doing able to, because we would be doing everything in our power to preserve this life of ours. But seeing men die as I have seen them, I know better than to disbelieve in a future life. And because we have no fear of death, everyone of us fling ourselves over the bags and on to the Huns with a fierce, almost savage joy. We are almost Japanese in our fatalism, and because that spirit is sweeping among our men we are going to win this war. We don't believe it possible that men who go into battle, knowing that they are fighting for a righteous cause, and unafraid of death, can be beaten back forever. Some day, at some point, the enemy must weaken, and then we will sweep over the top and nothing will hold us back. We know it just as surely as we know the sun will rise to-morrow.'"

Hard on Hairdressers.

The Defence of the Realm Act, which has been nicknamed "Dora," has come in for more abuse from hair dressers owing to an embargo put on the use of the spirits for general use. The measure has become necessary in consequence of the enormously increased demand for munition and Red Cross needs. Dry shampoos and hair lotions are all threatened by the latest order of "Dora," and as the use of methylated spirit for burning purposes is also forbidden, thousands of forced-draught oil-stoves which cannot be lighted except by the aid of spirit, are made useless.

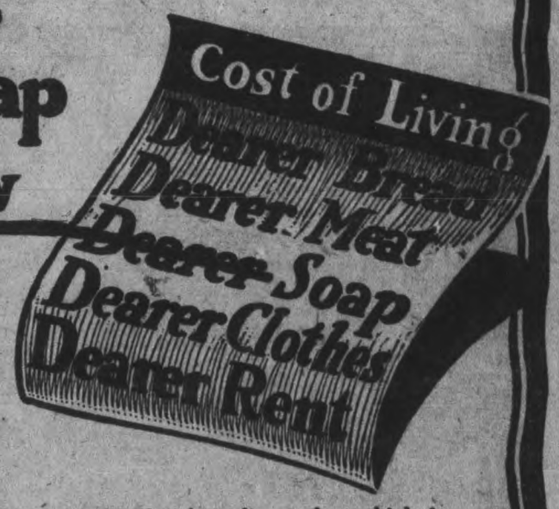
COMFORT SOAP

The new big bar makes soap cheaper now



The bigger Comfort Soap bar for the same money is pretty good news these days of high prices isn't it? What does it mean? Simply that our tremendous buying power in the Soap-materials market can give you infinitely better value in Soap than it can in premiums.

Owing to the war hundreds of factories are now making more essential goods than premiums and those still offered are too far under Comfort Standards of quality and too high in price to be good value for you.

No Premiums now— we give you more Comfort soap instead

So we will discontinue Premiums until after the War, anyhow.

All premium-bearing Comfort Soap wrappers and coupons now out can still be redeemed from our present ample Premium stock.

Comfort Soap is a welcome clothes saver and work saver in thousands upon thousands of homes in Canada. The bigger, new bar at the same price will be a boon to them.

No premiums—but every fraction of every cent you pay is returned to you in splendid Comfort Soap—the best way in war time.

Too Little Exercise

THE necessity of using medicine to regulate the action of the liver, kidneys and bowels is largely due to the changed conditions of life during recent years.

Our fathers lived a life of activity in the open air. If they ate heartily they had sufficient exercise to keep the liver and bowels active and to thereby remove the poisonous waste from the body.

To-day we get too little exercise and too little fresh air. The food we eat is more concentrated and artificial. The result is much discomfort and the development of serious disease from constipation of the bowels and torpid condition of the liver. Kidney disease, rheumatism, lumbago, backache—all have their beginning in the inactivity of the liver and bowels.

The great secret of keeping in health is to look to the regularity of these filtering and eliminating organs, and Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills is the most satisfactory medicine obtainable for this purpose.

If you read the reports appearing in this paper, from time to time, from persons who have used this treatment with good results, you will find that Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are effective where ordinary medicines fail. This success is due to their combined action on the liver, kidneys and bowels. One pill a dose at bedtime as often as is necessary to keep the bowels in healthful action, will also ensure the regularity of the liver and kidneys and thereby keep the blood pure and the system free from the accumulating poisons which cause disease and suffering.

WOULD STOP FAIRS.

Ottawa, March 27.—W. F. Kay, member for Mississquoi, Quebec, has given notice of the following proposed resolution:

"That it is of the greatest importance that all measures tending to increase agricultural production or for conserving agricultural labor, should be taken by the Government in the interest of the Allies and of Canada's wholehearted participation in the winning of the war, and that as a means to this end, all exhibitions and fairs throughout the country should be prohibited for the present year."

GREAT FIGURES REPORTED BY THE SUN LIFE

THE TOTAL INSURANCE IN FORCE IS NOW $311,870,000.

The Sun Life, amongst Canadian companies, is in a class by itself. Its business in force increases every year by a greater amount than the total new business of most other companies, and its new business itself is more than 50 per cent. greater than that of any other Canadian company. Last year its new business paid for was $47,811,567, and the addition to the business in force was $30,436,245, or well over 60 per cent. of the new issue. The Company adds to its assets every year more than the total amount of the assets of most individual Canadian companies. Last year the addition to the assets was $7,211,178, bringing them up to a total of $90,160,174, and the end of the year will thus see them near the $100,000,000 mark, even if they do not pass it. The company's increase in annual income was greater than the total income of most native competitors, the increase being $789,866, and the total income $19,288,998.

It is astonishing to read that the Sun has already paid to its policy holders $69,094,316, and that last year alone it paid them $8,840,245.

The Company's new Head Office building which adorns Dominion Square, Montreal, is now in occupation, and is unquestionably one of the finest insurance buildings in North America. It will no doubt materially assist the efficient handling of the Company's vast affairs.

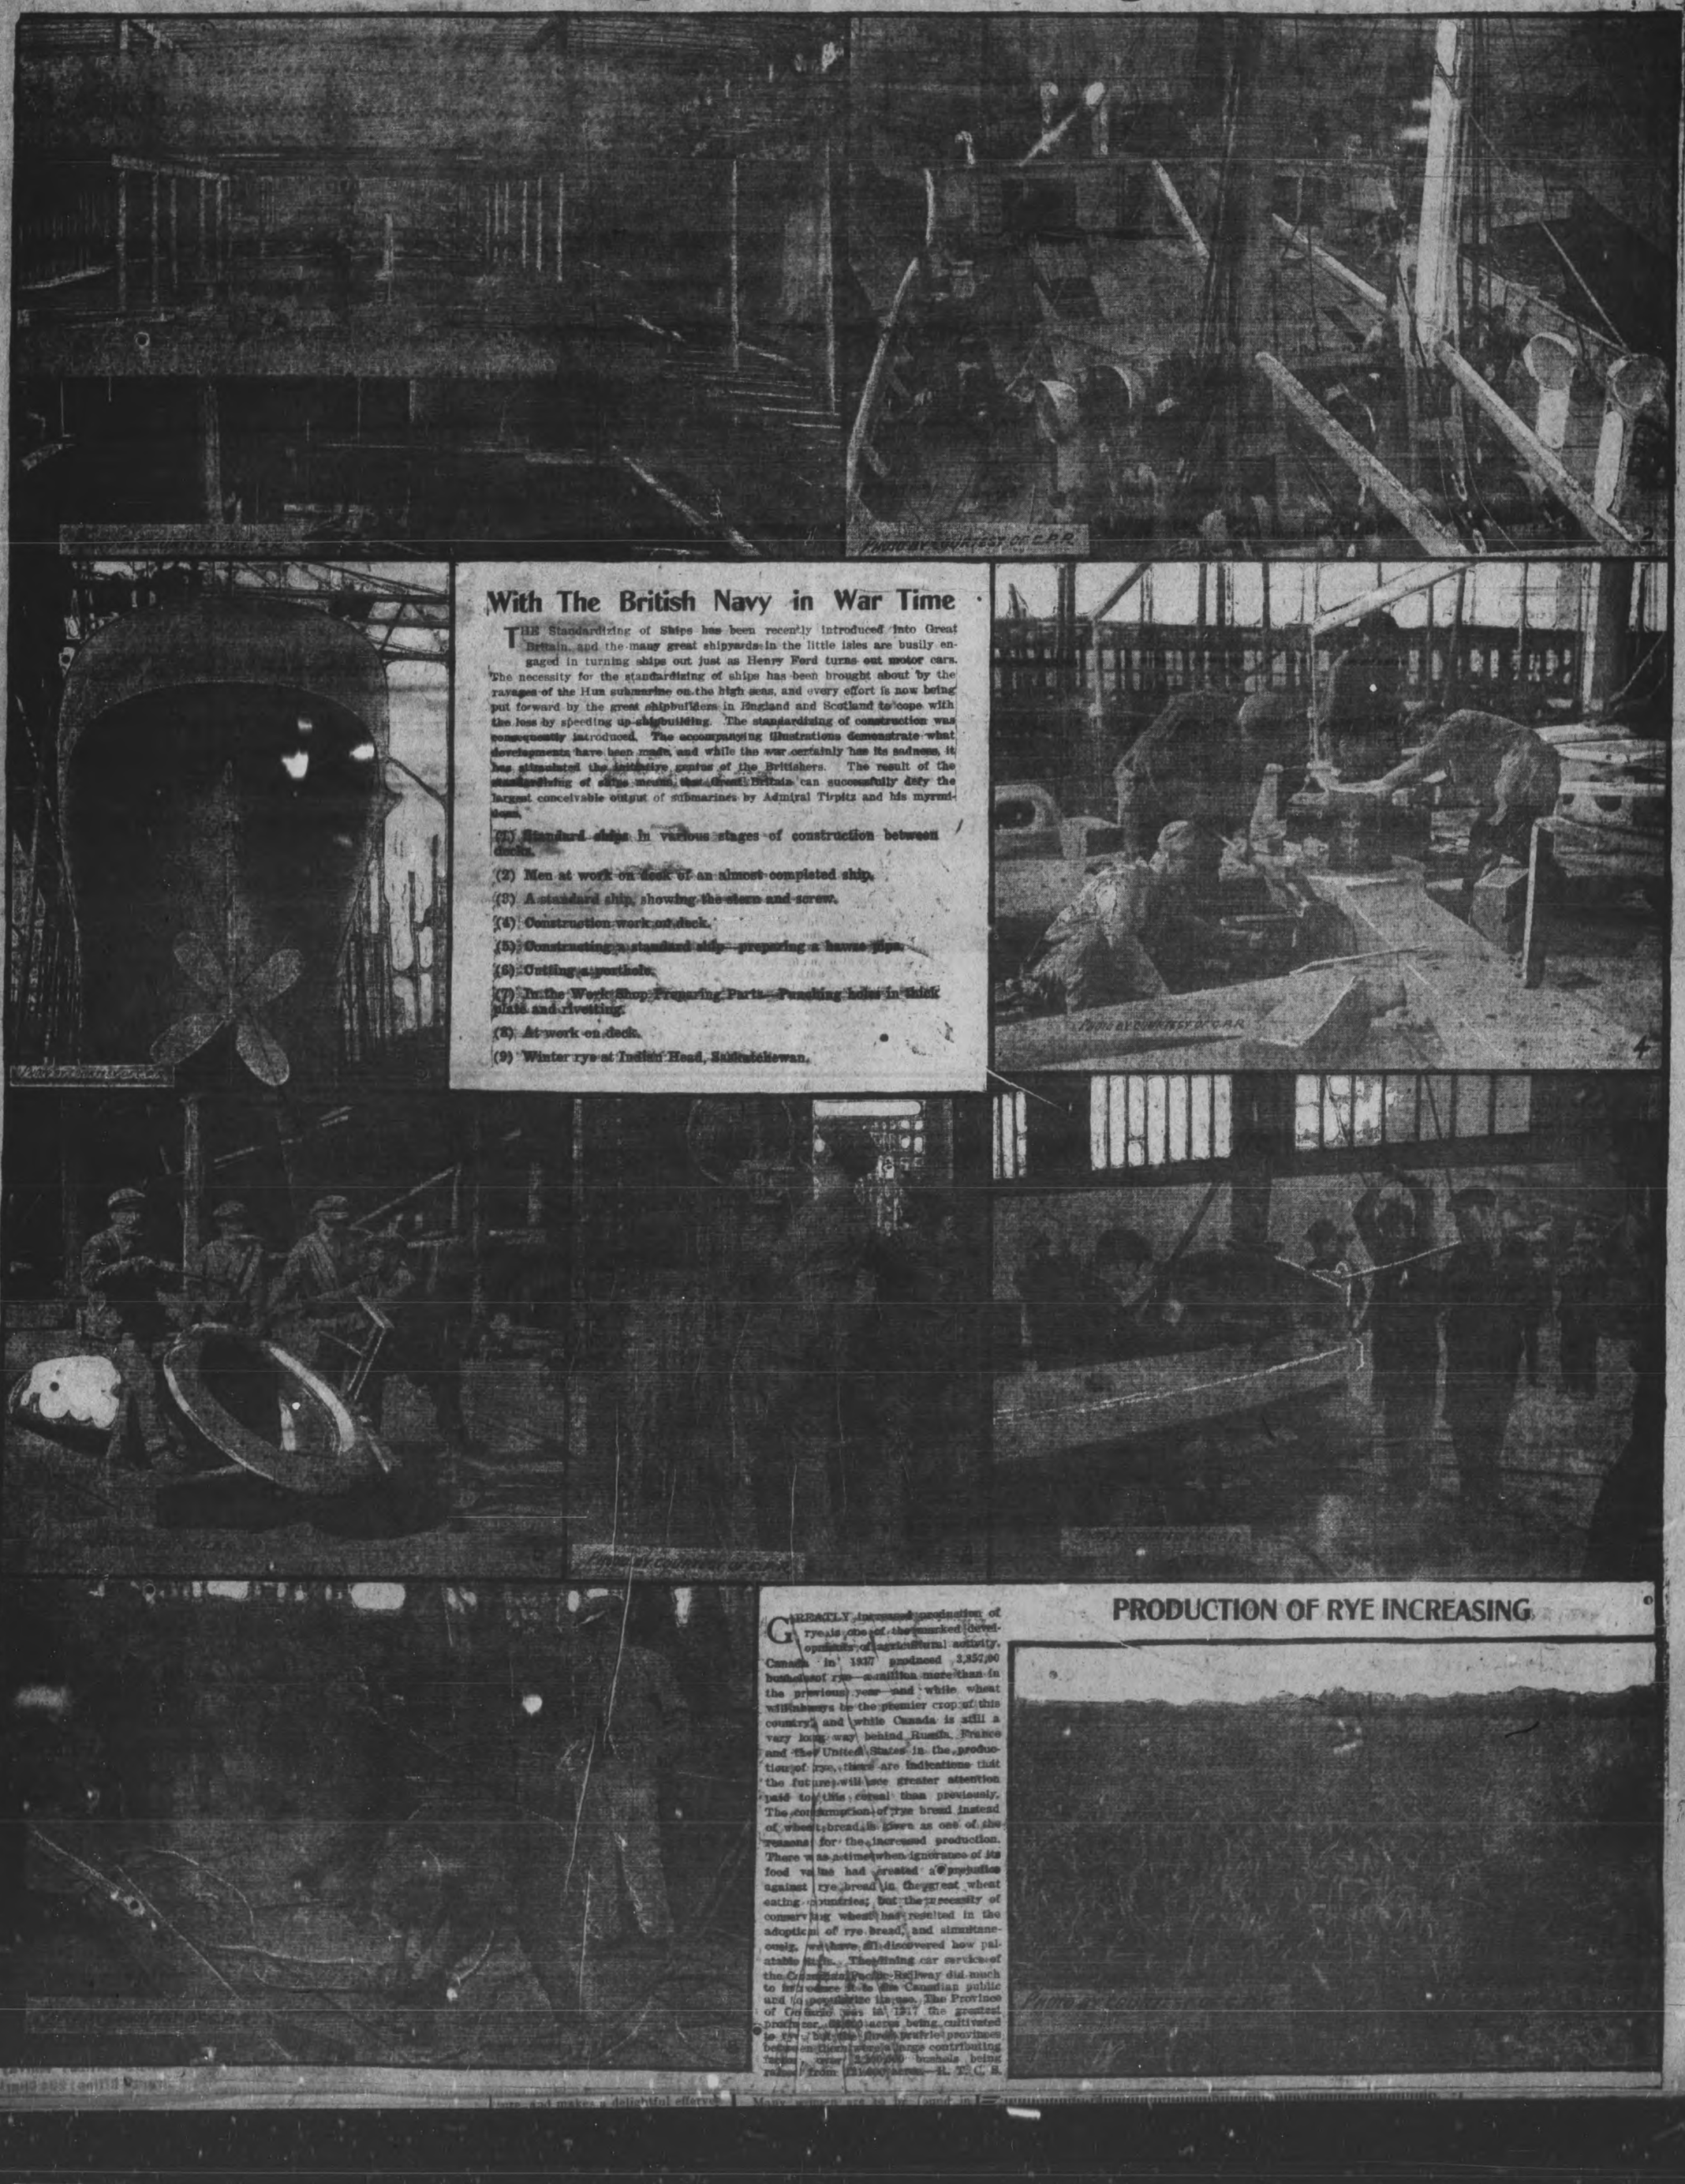
Britain's Standard Ships in Various Stages of Construction



With The British Navy in War Time

THE Standardizing of Ships has been recently introduced into Great Britain, and the many great shipyards in the little isles are busily engaged in turning ships out just as Henry Ford turns out motor cars. The necessity for the standardizing of ships has been brought about by the ravages of the Hun submarine on the high seas, and every effort is now being put forward by the great shipbuilders in England and Scotland to cope with the loss by speeding up shipbuilding. The standardizing of construction was consequently introduced. The accompanying illustrations demonstrate what developments have been made, and while the war certainly has its sadness, it has stimulated the initiative genius of the Britishers. The result of the standardizing of ships means, that Great Britain can successfully defy the largest conceivable output of submarines by Admiral Tirpitz and his myrmidons.

PRODUCTION OF RYE INCREASING

GREATLY increased production of rye is one of the marked developments of agricultural activity. Canada in 1917 produced 3,357,00 bushels of rye—a million more than in the previous year—and while wheat will always be the premier crop of this country, and while Canada is still a very long way behind Russia, France and the United States in the production of rye, there are indications that the future will see greater attention paid to this cereal than previously. The consumption of rye bread instead of wheat bread is given as one of the reasons for the increased production. There was a time when ignorance of its food value had created a prejudice against rye bread in the great wheat eating countries; but the necessity of conserving wheat has resulted in the adoption of rye bread, and simultaneously, we have all discovered how palatable it is. The dining car service of the Canadian Pacific Railway did much to introduce it to the Canadian public and to popularize its use. The Province of Ontario was in 1917 the greatest producer, [illegible] acres being cultivated to rye, but the three prairie provinces between them were a large contributing factor, over 2,500,000 bushels being raised from [illegible] acres.—R. F. O. B.
FORD, ONT.

Supplied as chassis only

BUSINESS men everywhere who have hauling or delivering problems to consider—whether operating a wholesale business, a retail store, or a farm—will welcome the arrival of the Ford One-Ton Truck.

Heretofore, the Ford user who wanted to carry loads up to a ton found it necessary to get one of several special attachments or extensions which were on the market. Now the standard Ford truck is available—a car that can withstand the drudgeries of commercial use, and yet lacks superfluous weight, and is easily handled.

The truck differs from Ford passenger cars in that it is specially designed throughout in proper pattern and strength for heavy-duty service. It has a final drive of the worm gear type, so that all gears are enclosed. Rear wheels are equipped with solid tires. Front tires are pneumatic. Standard Ford motor, transmission and ignition.

The largest truck and automobile company in the British Empire, with an organization of more than 700 Canadian dealers stands back of every Ford truck purchased.

Clever Son of Great Father

"WHAT! learn more than I was positively forced to learn! I felt the weight of learning that, for I was a blockhead and pushed up above my parts." So writes Horace Walpole in one of his letters, speaking of his days at Eton College. As the son of the great Prime Minister, that he was "pushed up above his parts" is probably true, but, despite his own disclaimer, there is enough to show from what he did at Eton, to say nothing of what he did afterwards, that his abilities were by no means to be despised. It was on the 24th of April in the year 1727 that Horace Walpole, "a slight lad of ten, in a stiff-skirted coat and knee breeches," entered Eton College, and it is there that his life story, like the life stories of so many others, begins. It was at Eton that he formed the famous "Quadruple Alliance," and it was here that he formed that friendship with Gray which, in spite of the famous quarrel at Reggio, some thirteen years later, was always a feature in the lives of the two men.

At Eton they were always together, and when they both had left school and college, and the grand tour of France and Italy became inevitable for Walpole, he invited Gray to go with him. Walpole was to act as paymaster; but Gray was to be independent, and so, after many preparations, the two friends set out for Paris, according to Walpole, on the 10th of March, 1739. They took the tour after the usual leisurely fashion; some weeks were spent in Paris and some months at Rheims, under the pretense of learning the language. And so on to Italy and Florence, where Walpole found life so congenial that he spent more than a year with Horace Mann, the British Envoy Extraordinary to the Court of Tuscany. From Florence the two friends went to Rome, then back again to Florence, and, for Walpole, it was all a wonderful experience. The man who, in after years, enjoyed nothing better than a night at Ranelagh which had "totally beat Vauxhall," appreciated the round of gayeties in Florence to the utmost. But for Gray, with his retired studiousness, it was a different matter, and so they drew steadily apart, until there came the day at Reggio, when they finally separated.

It was during the grand tour that Walpole began that wonderful series of letters, to many correspondents, which present such a remarkable picture of the times in which he lived, and of the people, little and big, who moved in his world. He was, indeed, in many ways, one of the most remarkable letter writers in history, and he was also an author of no mean merit. As an author, however, he suffered all the disadvantages of being his father's son. The way was always made easy for Horace Walpole. He never had to cross swords with want, as did his great contemporaries, Samuel Johnson, Oliver Goldsmith, and others. His father provided amply against all that, and, in those "piping days of the sinecure," that was not difficult. So in all Horace Walpole's work, and in many of his deeds, there is something more than a suspicion of dilletantism, although many of his works, notably, for instance, his "Catalogue of Royal and Notable Authors of England," could have been achieved only as the result of careful and toilsome research. He was indeed a most voluminous writer, and his diaries alone extend from 1775 to 1783, and cover a period of momentous importance in the annals of the national history.

To most people, Horace Walpole will be best remembered for the wonderful villa, Strawberry Hill, which he built for himself on the banks of the Thames near Twickenham, where, as he writes in a letter to Mann, the "prospect is as delightful as possible, commanding the river, the town, and Richmond Park. It is set in enamelled meadows with filigree hedges:

A small Euphrates through the piece is roll'd,
And little finches wave their wings in gold.

Two delightful roads that you would call dusty, supply me continually with coaches and chaises; barges as solemn as Barons of the Exchequer move under my window; Richmond Hill and Ham Walks bound my prospects." And so Strawberry Hill, which he added to year by year, until it developed into one of the most remarkable Gothic structures in the Kingdom, became the centre of fashionable learning in the England of those days. Horace Walpole set up a printing press there, and there published much that was his own and his friends'. Gray's Odes were issued from Strawberry Hill, as was his own gloomy story, "The Castle of Otranto," whilst it was there, too, that he wrote many of his "incomparable letters."

Life Was Complete.

The tank had established itself amorphously in the great square of a large town in the north of England. Its advent had been widely heralded, and the lady inspected it with a keen interest, as the Manchester Guardian tells the story. She conducted a deliberate, comprehensive scrutiny, and then, her mission concluded, she said to the crowd: "I'm glad I came to see it. It was a long way to get on a day like this, but I don't regret it." After a pause, she added, with immense satisfaction, almost amounting to a Nunc Dimittis: "And now I've seen Kitchener, Sir Daniel McCabe and the Tank!" She then got on a train and went home.

Strength

Life's greatest assets are Health and Strength and without these existence becomes intolerable.

The Human Body, under the best of conditions, is a fragile structure, easily susceptible to climatic conditions, over-heating, exertion, mental and physical emotions. This subject requires constant attention if health and strength are to be continually maintained. The most sensible method of preserving health is to consume food which produces it. The foods which produces health is that which contains Carbo-Hydrates, Proteins and Fats. COCOA is a palatable liquid food containing, when mixed with milk, all these necessary substances in a form that is not injurious to the weakest digestion. For the easiest and most pleasurable way to obtain just the right kind of nourishment the body needs, drink Cocoa. For the best and quickest results drink Cowan's Perfection Cocoa.

"Not Far Now From A State Of Famine"

DR. ABBOTT SPOKE PLAINLY TO TEACHERS IN PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

Toronto, March 28.—"Mere conservation of food is no longer adequate, there must be greater production. We are not far from a condition of famine, for there is not enough food to go round."

This startling statement was made by Dr. Abbott, speaking before the teachers of the Public Schools, at a meeting organized by the Food Resources Committee of the Board of Education, and held in the Technical School. Both Dr. Abbott and Archdeacon Cody addressed the gathering—their subject being, "Food and Famine."

Canada is now the great hope of the allies as far as food is concerned, declared Dr Abbott. Supplies in India, Australia and the Argentine were not available owing to the length of the voyage. That the need for food of all kinds was great was made clear by Lord Rhondda, who also pointed out that the word "shortage" did not describe the actual conditions. It was not "shortage" but "famine" that faced the British people and the Allies.

In closing Dr. Abbott urged the teachers to do their best to induce the boys under their control to join the little army of producers.

Cotton frocks have plain straight skirts, slightly full, sometimes with large tucks, simple little waists, often with surplice or fischu effect. They are very often of organdy and with the simplest little ribbon belt with ends.

A NECESSITY IN THE HOUSE.

Most of the common ills of life arise from a torpid, sluggish condition of the Liver, Kidneys or Bowels, and because they act on each of these organs in a direct and specific way Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills overcome serious and painful diseases over which ordinary medicines have no control.

So-Called French-Canadian.

The French-Canadians are a curious study in nationality. They have no passionate longing for France and no bitter hatred against England because the Union Jack and not the Tricolor is the symbol of their nationality. They have not the same feeling against England as the conqueror that the Irish have. They have no long list of real or imaginary grievances to be avenged. They do not dream of the day when the yoke of the oppressor shall be cast off and once again they shall renew their allegiance to France. France is not their motherland, they are not her children; their hearts do not thrill when they recall her glorious past or her valiant deeds of to-day. They are not English; of English history they are almost totally ignorant; the genius of the English people is foreign to them. And they are not, which perhaps is most curious of all, Canadian.

When one speaks in broad terms, and there are times when only generalities can be properly used, there is always a danger of saying too much or too little and therefore doing an injustice. So that no injustice may be done, I recognize that there is a minority of French-Canadians to whom Canada means as much as it does to the English-speaking people, and in the Canadian regiments at the front there are French-Canadians who have fought with the same gallantry as the men from all the other parts of the British Empire, and who have shown the supreme test of patriotism; the willingness to die in defence of country. But a minority, and especially a numerically small minority, is not representative of the mass, and what I say about the French-Canadian is a true presentation of the majority. —American Review of Reviews.

MEAT CAUSE OF KIDNEY TROUBLE

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys If Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers

If you must have your meat every day, eat it, but flush your kidneys with salts occasionally, says a noted authority who tells us that meat forms uric acid which almost paralyzes the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken, then you suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or side, headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids, to cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste, get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink.

ESTABLISHED 1842

THE RIGHT PAINT TO PAINT RIGHT

AN HONEST TIME-TRIED QUALITY PAINT

—is the kind you should use and what you get if you buy and specify Ramsay's.

The real economy of painting rests with the paint itself, because paint that is not properly proportioned and tested for chemical impurities, will rapidly deteriorate and peel off.

Every gallon of Ramsay's paint is subjected to a severe test by our expert chemists before leaving the factory, hence economy for the user.

USE RAMSAY'S VARNISHES

We make Varnishes suitable for all classes of work. Their clear, glossy, elastic finish ranks second to none.

NO FINER QUALITY MADE

Paint with Ramsay's Guaranteed Pure Paint, if it is only for quality's sake.

Ask any Ramsay dealer for color cards or submit your painting problems to us; we will be glad to help you with suggestions.

A Wounded Tommy.

The story that Drake was playing bowls upon Plymouth Hoe when the news of the Spanish Armada came to him, and that he was undisturbed at his game, is all but matched by that of the crew of the caterpillar tank who went into action, so it is said, playing their gramophone records. Drake was not under fire on the memorable occasion. But many a Tommy behind the front has ignored the shot and shell which were seeking their billet around him and played his cricket unheedingly. Indeed, there is a story of an enthusiastic, sporting Tommy sent to "Blighty," wounded. When his family inquired about his injuries, what was their surprise and chagrin to hear that he had got his wound in playing football behind the lines!

To Have Beautiful Hair Use

NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE

No woman can afford to be indifferent to the appearance of her hair. A mass of nice snappy hair, becomingly dressed, will add more in genuine looks than a pretty face, or an expensive gown. Don't allow the scalp to become clogged with dirt and dandruff. Don't allow dandruff to destroy your hair. If your hair is uneven, dead, dull and brittle and comes out by the handful every time you draw a comb through it, dandruff is the cause. To rid your scalp of the dandruff and check the loss of hair should be your first anxiety. NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE will do this and at the same time put the hair and scalp in a sanitary condition. HERPICIDE appeals to those of greatest refinement on account of its exquisite odor, its purity and cleanliness. It contains no grease and does not stain or dye. There is nothing more dependable than this remarkable scalp prophylactic. The hair responds readily to a regular and intelligent use of NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE.

Try it and see. Send 10 cents today to THE HERPICIDE CO., Dept. S, Detroit, Mich., for a sample bottle and a booklet telling all about the hair.

For sale everywhere in 50c and $1.00 sizes. Guaranteed by The Herpicide Company.

Newfoundland and the War.

Sir Walter Davidson, for four years Governor of Newfoundland, has been appointed Governor of the Australian state of New South Wales. Arriving in England recently for a short stay, prior to taking up his new duties in Australia, Sir Walter paid a high and well-merited tribute to the people of Newfoundland and to the wholehearted manner in which they have supported the cause of the Empire in the war. He found it difficult, he said, to find terms in which to express his appreciation of the patriotic and practical part which Newfoundland had taken, and was continuing to take, in the war. He entered upon the Governorship of that colony in 1913, and had remained there continuously until a few weeks ago, when he was summoned to London by the Colonial Office. During that period he witnessed scenes of enthusiasm which, he says, it would be difficult to rival as manifestations of patriotism in any other part of the Empire, and which will remain with him as vivid memories for life.

Newfoundland is small in comparison with the big Dominions of Canada, South Africa, and Australia—its area is only one-third of that of the United Kingdom, and its population numbers little more than a quarter of a million—but it is proud of the distinction it enjoys as "Britain's oldest colony," and what it lacks in numbers, as far as population is concerned, is more than made up in the intensity of its patriotism. "It was my privilege," said Sir Walter Davidson, "to see that patriotic enthusiasm translated into terms of action, which, measured by results, represented a practicable contribution to the war resources of the Empire far beyond the anticipations of the most optimistic. It is no exaggeration to say that for the purposes of the war the whole population was a unit. Every man, woman and child in the island, without exception, was and is animated by one impulse—to do his or her utmost by personal service or by contributions in cash or kind to help the Empire's cause in the war. Newfoundland possesses a seafaring community which is, perhaps, larger in proportion to its population than in any of the other overseas dominions. And, perhaps, as a natural corollary, it produces the finest seamen in the world. These men have gone into the Royal Naval Reserve in their thousands, and have there won a reputation for valor and seamanship which stands out as one of the most inspiring facts of Newfoundland's participation in the war. And what is true of the sea forces is equally true of the fighting men in the Newfoundland regiments, who have distinguished themselves in a degree which, I think, merits special distinction. Even the highest honors for military service in the gift of the nation would be no more than a just recognition of their gallantry and heroism."

Dumplings can be made with half corn flour.

PADEREWSKI'S ARMY

POLISH LEGION TRAINING AT CAMP NIAGARA.

Great Pianist Secured Permission to Organize His Fellow-Countrymen Who Desire to Fight for the Freedom of Poland and They Are Preparing to Cross to Europe.

PADEREWSKI, whose name, nationality or profession need only be mentioned in order to arouse thoughts of poor Poland and her warriors and dreamers, has secured permission to raise a Polish army in America for service on the French front. "Paderewski's Polish Army" is not the proper title of the company of alien volunteers who long to see historic Poland a republic, but it is one that somehow clings because the Poles love their famous countryman.

Quite out of place, perhaps, in the beginning of even a brief article on the interesting movement, but too illustrative of the fact to pass by here, is an anecdote of a great Polish meeting in Chicago during the closing days of October, when a Chicago detachment eagerly organized for the service. The musician was one of the speakers of the evening. His enthusiasm, come from his desire to see all Slavs, of whatever nations, united and fighting for a common cause, had kindled his hearers as fully as his skill at the piano would have done. When he had finished the Pole made commanding officer of the battalion arose and appointed Paderewski an honorary private.

"Your name," the lieutenant said, "will be called daily. And when it is called each soldier will reply, 'Yes, Paderewski is here, for he is in the hearts of all of us'."

It is in Canada that the Polish volunteers of alien birth are camping this winter, undergoing a stiff introduction to the period of fighting alongside the French. Camp Niagara, Ontario, is their post office address. There, even now, is seen a Slavic melting pot. There Russian, Austrian and German subjects, Poles with the traditions of Pulaski and Kosciusko behind them, find brotherhood. Even the most illiterate, the unskilled laborer, strong and silent, has the Polish imagination and can vision a new nation in the north risen from the despoiling of an historical land.

The French, perhaps more than any other people, appreciate the Polish disposition. Mutual love of freedom binds them close. France, therefore, will help the Poles in America who have not become naturalized to come to the aid of those who would demand that Poland be freed from the yoke of either Germany or Russia. President Poincare sent to the United States—a French-Polish mission, to appeal to these northmen who are steadfast in their almost mystic love for religion and who still hold as their treasured hope the reality of a Polish republic.

Italy, too, has offered to give money or equipment in the organization of the 150,000 American Poles. The attitude of Italy may be summed up in the words of Arturo Colautti, the poet: "Poland, Latin by faith, western in soul, French in habits and tastes; Poland the snowy rampart of Europe, already thrice guardian of civilization, has been condemned to an oblivion worse than hatred, slavery or death itself." Italian newspapers have been unanimous in realizing that there is no safe place in Europe until Poland is free.

In one appeal which Paderewski made to his countrymen in the United States, he said: "Our army is needed, not for France, but for Poland. Occupied by the enemy, Poland is prevented from sending her sons to join the ranks of freedom's champions. But you are here, the worthy sons of a valorous race. Conscious of our sacred duty to the motherland, conscious of our obligations to America, we have long waited for this opportunity with a full responsibility before God, the nation and our own conscience."

Poles from all over the world are being asked to come to the aid of the new army. Heavy enlistments promise that the future Polish army will render effective service.

Canada, as a whole, is sympathetic and is energetically supporting the Polish army. The men's uniforms, and even their food, come from the Government commissary, and when this article is written there are 5,000 in the Ontario camp. The uniforms chosen are typical of the artistry of Poland and of their passion for individuality as a separate people. The tunic is a light bluish-gray, with trousers to match, and trimmed, like the cap, in purplish red. The white eagle of the old Poland nation dominates the fing they expect to carry into the trenches in France, and white eagles are seen on buttons and shoulder straps. On the boulevards of Paris already a few of these new uniforms are noticeable. It is the first Polish army raised in more than 100 years.

That Gaul was divided into three parts is a more familiar quotation, but concerns not nearly so important a fact as the tragic partition of Poland into three parts. "There is no exact knowledge of the number of Poles serving in the armies of the three powers among which Poland is divided," wrote one authority on things Slavic. "But in spite of the absence of reliable statistics a fair estimate may be obtained by comparison of and deduction from such figures as are published. But it is certain that the number of Poles serving foreign masters in 1915 was equal to the army of France. Germany at that time having 111,000 men of Polish birth, Austria 82,000 and Russia 400,000 — Pole fighting against Pole, at the command of alien kings."

One of the officers in Canada is an Austrian Pole, who held a commission in Francis Joseph's army. There are twelve recruiting centres in the United States for Poles who are not naturalized, and a number of experienced military men have thus been gathered, many having seen compulsory service in the armies of Russia, Germany and Austria. Men of Polish origin, who have no dependents and are, in the main, above draft age, are accepted.

In Boston, which is one recruiting centre, men from eighteen to forty are enlisting in the Polish army. Two thousand are expected to go from that city. One hundred and twenty-seven young men from western Massachusetts have left Holyoke to join the Worcester, Mass, division.

In Milwaukee Polish women are urging their men to join the ranks across the border and get into training to fight for the homeland and its friends. They say that they will band together and live on a co-operative plan in order to cheapen their expenses and help the cause.

Paderewski is particularly loved among this colony of his countrymen. Several years ago he gave a benefit performance in Milwaukee exclusively for the poverty-stricken Poles. He has told them that in the hands of the Poles of America rests the honor of Poland and her future.

New Treatment Now Advocated For Bronchitis

Is Having Wonderful Success, and is Making Most Remarkable Cures.

For bronchitis a different form of treatment is now advocated. It consists of a scientifically devised vapour that penetrates to the uttermost recesses of the lungs and bronchial tubes. Every spot that is sore, every surface that is irritated is at once bathed with soothing balsams and healing essences that make chronic bronchitis an impossibility.

This treatment now so universally employed in bronchitis, throat troubles, colds, etc., is called CATARRH-OZONE. It acts just as air of the pine woods acts, as a healing antiseptic remedy for all diseases of the breathing organs.

Just think of it—a remedy that can be carried with the very air you breathe to the seat of bronchial or catarrhal inflammation. A remedy powerful enough to kill germ life and yet so healing that disease flees before it. Catarrhozone is truly a wonderful remedy. In many lands it has won its way, and is affording grand results to sufferers from colds, catarrh, throat weakness, asthma and bronchitis. There is no sufferer from a grippy cold or any winter ill, that won't find a cure in Catarrhozone, which is employed by physicians, ministers, lawyers and public men throughout many foreign lands. Large size lasts two months and costs $1.00 and is guaranteed; small size 50c., sample size 25c., all storekeepers and druggists, or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

Jaffa Legends.

Jaffa (or Joppa), "The beautiful," and the seaport of Jerusalem, is a town of about 50,000 inhabitants, 10,000 of which are Christians and 10,000 Jews. The town is set on a rocky cliff about 100 feet high, and the road by which it is approached has vineyards on the left, and on the right orange gardens covering an area of about three square miles. The district is very fertile, particularly the Plain of Sharon, which extends along the coast to Caesarea, 32 miles north of Jaffa, and is crossed by the Nahr el Auja, next to the Jordan the largest river in Palestine. In Jaffa itself there are a barracks, an Arab bazaar, an English school for girls, an English Protestant cemetery; and a London Jews Society is quartered at the entrance to the Germany colony, on the northeastern outskirts of the town, where also lies the railway station. The harbor is rock-girt, but only small boats can enter it, larger vessels finding anchorage outside in water 13 and 15 fathoms deep.

In addition to the story of Jonah and the whale, with Jaffa is associated the Perseus and Andromeda legend. A tradition dating from 1654 declares that the Latin Hospice in the town is built on the site of the House of Simon the Tanner, an honor also claimed for a mosque near the lighthouse.

Saving Light.

It is reported in the London Times that notice has been given by the general in command of the Munster army corps district that the consumption of gas and electric power in shops, restaurants and other establishments must this winter not exceed one-half of the consumption in the winter of 1915-16. All the military and civil authorities, businesses and other private undertakings are required to alter their office hours to the time between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m. Schools will keep the same hours. The lighting of shop windows and the use of passenger elevator are forbidden and all restaurants are to be closed at 9 p.m. —Scientific American.

THROUGH 100 MILES WASTE.

New Australian Railroad Traverses Wilderness Lacking Water.

The longest tangent in the world, 330 miles without the slightest variation from a straight line, occurs on the railway linking Western Australia to the eastern states, which was formally opened on November 12th. In the 1,052 miles of line between Port Augusta and Kalgoorlie there is not a single tunnel and very few cuts, while at only a few places on the eastern section is the ruling grade of one in eighty approached. The 330-mile straight occurs in the great limestone region of the Mullabor Plain which the line traverses for over five hundred miles. This is a desolate waste in which there are no hills, no valleys, no rivers, no trees, and no water. When the line was begun in 1912 the country along four-fifths of the route had not a single inhabitant except a few wandering aboriginals, and absolutely no permanent surface water. Indeed, water has been the one great difficulty of the line. At a few points reservoirs have proved successful, but for the most part the only supply available has been drawn from wells and bores. This water contains such a high proportion of solid matter and acids that it is very unsuitable for locomotive use, rendering special devices necessary, while in places it is salt and condensors have had to be erected. At one period during construction water for all purposes had to be carried over three hundred miles by train on the western section. The line gives the first communication by land between the two halves of Australia and opens up a quarter of a million square miles now unoccupied. In spite of the scanty rainfall, averaging well under ten inches a year, much of this country is well grassed and grows salt bush and other edible plants which would carry large numbers of sheep and cattle if water can be provided. The cost of the line has been about $40,000,000.—Scientific American.

Artificial Diamonds.

Sir Charles Parsons, who has been experimenting for over thirty years upon the production of artificial diamonds, will shortly lecture at the British Institute of Metals on the result of his labors. He has probably more inventions to his credit than any other living Englishman. The turbine king—for the modern turbine in its application both to merchant ships and warships is the work of Sir Charles—took off his coat some forty years ago as an apprentice in the great Armstrong workshops.

Would not be Without Zutoo Tablets At Any Cost

Such is the statement of Mr. A. O. Norton, of Boston, the largest Jack Manufacturer in the world. His voluntary testimonial regarding ZUTOO follows:

286 Congress St., Boston, Mass.

"I have been a sufferer from Headache since childhood and have used all, or nearly all the so-called 'cures' on the market. Some months since my attention was called to Zutoo Tablets and I have been using them ever since with the most gratifying results. I find they cure a 'sick' or 'nervous' headache in a few minutes and leave no bad effects. My family use them whenever needed with equally good results. I have frequently given them to friends who were suffering from Headache and they never failed to give quick relief. I always carry Zutoo Tablets in my grip on the road and WOULD NOT BE WITHOUT THEM AT ANY COST."

A VARIED LIST.

Some of the British Subjects Recently Given Titles.

The New Year's honors list, which was published last New Year's Day, largely reflected the war activities of the British Empire. It contained one new viscount, Lord Furness, chairman of Furness, Withy & Co., a shipping firm which has rendered valuable services to the country during the war; four new peers, Sir Frederick Cawley, Bart, M.P., Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster; Sir John Lonsdale, Bart, M.P., chairman and leader of the Irish Unionist party; Almeric H. Paget, and Sir James Woodhouse, chairman of the Defence of the Realm Losses Commission, and a director of the London City and Midland Bank. Six members of the House of Commons became Privy Councillors, Lord Hugh Cecil, one of the most brilliant debaters in the House, third son of the third Marquess of Salisbury; Sir Henry Craik, K.C.B., for 19 years secretary of the Scottish Education Department; Sir Gordon Hewart, K.C., Solicitor-General; Major Sir Henry Norman, a former Postmaster-General; Mr. Tom Richards, general secretary of the Miners' Federation; and Lord Edmund Talbot, chief Unionist whip, and Deputy Earl Marshal.

Twenty new baronets have been created, among whom may be mentioned Lieut.-Colonel James Craik, Treasurer of the Household, who will be best remembered for the prominent part he played in the Ulster opposition to Home Rule; Sir Ellis Griffith, K.C.; and Sir Joseph Lawrence.

Among the 52 new knights are several names famous in art and literature, such as John Lavery, A.R.A., a portrait painter with a European reputation, and one of the most distinguished of the Glasgow school; David Murray, the landscape painter, president of the Royal Institute of Painters in Water Colors; Edwin L. Lutyens, the architect and artist, who was appointed a member of the committee to advise the Government of India as to the site of the capital at Delhi; Anthony Hope Hawkins, the well-known novelist; John Scott Keltie, the veteran former secretary of the Royal Geographical Society, and many others renowned in the educational, industrial and medical world.

The Hon. Sir Francis Villiers, British Minister at The Hague, has been appointed a knight of the Grand Cross of St. Michael and St. George.

The list of K.C.M.G.'s include Sir Frank Barnard, Lieutenant-Governor of British Columbia; Sir John Davies, president of the Legislative Council, Victoria, New South Wales; while Adly Yeghan Pasha, Minister of Education in the Egyptian Government, becomes an honorary K.C.M.G.

Among the Indian honors the special title of "Faithful Ally of the British Government" and the style of "His Exalted Highness" as a hereditary distinction, has been bestowed upon the Nizam of Hyderabad, and the Order of the Bath upon Lieutenant-General His Highness Maharaja Bahadur Sir Pertab Singh. Her Highness Nawab, Sultan Jahan Begum of Bhopal, has been invested with the Grand Cross of the British Empire, and Her Highness Mahi Sahiba Giraj Kuar, of Bharatpur, with the Crown of India.

With Uncle Sam's Fleet.

There is an amusing story going round the British grand fleet — just the kind of joke which Jack Tar likes to give and take with his friends. It is quite seriously affirmed that when an American squadron consisting of the U. S. S. Delaware, New York and Wyoming, with destroyers and other craft, came up the Firth the British flagship signalled to them: "You are to anchor west of the Forth Bridge." But the Americans passed under the bridge and sailed on. Shortly the British admiral made another signal: "We signalled just now that you were to anchor west of the Forth Bridge; why don't you stop?" And the American flagship immediately signalled the reply: "Well, I guess we have only passed one bridge as yet."

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

Counterfeit!

By James Knelland Shawvan

I thought of early boyhood's days and skating on one foot, as the sole of one shoe struck a flat piece of banana peel, and I went sliding irresistibly toward a wooden crate cover set over a manhole in the sidewalk.

Bang! My feet met it, sending it spinning halfway around on the unfastened pivot and down I shot through the half-moon aperture.

Thump! I landed ten feet down amid utter darkness across an upturned tub, knocking out its bottom, and bringing hoops and staves about me in flying sections.

The shock was brief, my bruises trivial. Then I congratulated myself. If the under-sidewalk space into which I had been precipitated connected with the main cellar of the structure abutting upon it I would hail my misadventure as a stroke of genuine good luck. That grim old time-shattered three-story building had been a center of considerable interest to me during the past week. I had haunted its vicinity persistently. It was to little purpose, however. Its rear was a blank brick wall. Its sides were guarded by heavy iron shutters. The front had but one entrance, a double doorway, and beyond it was a store space shallow and narrow, more of a hall entrance than a room, barred closely nights, and in the daytime, seated behind a bench hammering away at various pieces of metal, was a low-browed, keen-eyed man, evidently the guardian of the place.

I was on a still hunt for a missing friend, and had been for over a month. That was how I came to be interested in what had veritably become to me a house of mystery.

Acton Meserve had been a fellow worker and close friend for something like two years. We were both of us expert engravers and earned good wages in the service of a leading bank-note engraving concern. It was just after he had married and was gone on his honeymoon that trouble began.

CHASE & SANBORN, MONTREAL

You must know that the working economy of a confidential and important business such as we were engaged in calls for strict integrity on the part of those employed. It was about a week after my friend Meserve had left on his memorable vacation when a discovery was made that some government paper, some denomination dies and a kit of fine engraving tools were missing from the vault. When a search was made in the office there was found in Meserve's desk some of the paper. The company awaited the return of Meserve to charge him with irregularities, possibly theft. But neither he nor his wife returned to the city at the end of two weeks, nor four, nor six. In fact, although a detective was employed to seek to gain a trace of their whereabouts, Acton Meserve and his wife had disappeared as effectually as though the earth had swallowed them up.

One day I was summoned to the private office of the president of the company. I knew that my close companionship with Meserve had aroused suspicion in the mind of the detective as to a possible knowledge on my part as to what had become of Meserve. The disappearance of the well-guarded property of the company pointed to a probable scheme to do some outside plate work. This surmise was emphasized by the strange absence of Meserve.

"We shall require your services no longer, Mr. Illsley," spoke my superior, definitely and with sternness.

"I am sorry," I said simply. "I will not ask you the reason of this unwarrantable discharge, for I can guess. You are wrong in attributing what you imagine to as good a man as Acton Meserve. I shall make it my business to prove it to you soon."

"I hope so," coldly remarked the official, "and I further hope you will take care of yourself."

There was significance, almost insult, in this last remark, and I did not resent it in words. I had made up my mind that I would find Acton Meserve if it took all I had saved up and a year of my life to accomplish it. There was something wrong, not only at the engraving plant, but as regarded Meserve.

There was a dense mystery surrounding the abstraction of the property of the company and the inexplicable vanishment of Meserve and his wife. I started to solve the enigma, firm in my faith in my tried and true comrade.

I found his relatives and friends anxious and grieved over his absence. None of them had seen or heard from him since the day they had seen him started on his wedding journey. I went over his presumable honeymoon trip, to lose all trace of him utterly. I returned to the city, more in the dark than ever, gloomily disappointed, almost hopeless.

One day I struck a clew, or fancied I had. It was when, for the first time in many months, I saw walking ahead of me on the street a man named Bartley Webb. This person had been a printer at the engraving plant who had left work about a week before Meserve had started on his vacation. We had never liked him and had noticed that he kept bad company—just now worse than ever, for the two men with him were as villainous-looking fellows as I had ever seen. I followed them, a new suspicion in my mind as they were admitted to the very building I have described. I took up watch and ward over the sombre pile of masonry for several days. Twice I saw Webb visit the place. Always his admission was followed by the closing and locking of the outside door. Always the door was kept carefully reclosed until he had departed, after a brief stay. I know not why, but somehow I associated Webb with the pilferings at the engraving plant and the disappearance of Meserve. I had an irrepressible desire to explore the old rookery, and now fate and circumstance had, I hoped, granted my wish for admission to the apparently impregnable structure.

I got to my feet and proceeded to explore my surroundings. I came to an opening like a doorway, traversed a corridor which penetrated the cellar of the building and faced a pair of stairs. These I ascended, reached a vacant room, crossed it, opened a door, ascended a second flight of stairs and charily felt my way along a narrow passage way. I accidentally blundered against a swinging door. I landed in a lighted room, tried to draw back as I discovered that it held an inmate, and was rooted to the spot as I recognized in a woman standing staring at me agape—the wife of Acton Meserve!

All the bloom I had last seen was departed from that sweet face, the eyes were sunken and haunted with the horror of confinement and fear.

"Mr. Illsley!" she gasped, and reeled.

"You—you!" I breathed incoherently. "What does this mean? Where is Meserve?"

"He is in there," she whispered, all a tremble, and she pointed to an opposite door. "No—no! You risk your life!"

But I had run at the door and opened it and rushed towards a man at a bench bending over a leather plate pad, a graver in his hand—Acton Meserve.

And then I understood the warning just uttered. Two men, and one of these was Webb, sprang at me. I received a heavy blow on the head and knew no more. I awoke, jolted about in a cab and held up by the best friends I had in the world—Acton Meserve and his wife. They were babbling with the maddest of joyfulness, like two children released from a terrible captivity. Then the vehicle halted in front of the engraving plant.

I was still dazed as I sat back in the chair in the office of the president. As in a dream I caught the echo of the tones of Meserve, telling all the story of his mysterious disappearance.

It was Webb who had abstracted the missing property of the plant. It was Webb and accomplices who had kidnapped husband and wife, who had threatened to kill the latter if Meserve did not engrave a plate they forced him to make. It was just as I appeared that the plate was finished, all except one corner, and this Meserve refused to complete unless immediate liberty was promised. The scoundrels then abandoned the place with the plate, Meserve agreeing to wait an hour later.

"I believe your story, Mr. Meserve," said the staid and dignified president, "but do you not consider it very reprehensible to engage in such work under any circumstances?"

"Not as I worked it out," dissented Meserve. 'Sir, when the law runs down these miscreants, as it must, you will find the plate worthless."

"You mean—?"

'That the last rapid work I did was to engrave in hair-line tracery, while they were not looking, one word, a warning to all the world."

"And the word was—?"

"'Counterfeit!'"

THE MAPLE LEAF TO THE FORE

The placid Somme, on left and right
Was witness to a stirring sight.
As onward rolled an eager band
Of soldiers from a foreign land,
Who little knew of arts of war—
Had never heard the cannons roar—
But at command they showed their worth,
"The land of Maple gave them birth.

St. Julien with its vine-clad hills,
Well nurtured by the brooks and rills,
Now holds in safety those who died
To stem the Huns' onrushing tide.
The foe adopted hellish aid,
And on the field our sons were laid.
We murmured not, for such a deed
Must rest upon a broken reed;
The day will come—a reckoning day—
In God's own time, in God's own way.

On Flanders' fields and in the vale
Of Ypres and of Passchendaele
The "Maple Leaf" joined in the fray,
And won fresh laurels day by day.
Its sons were fighting for a cause
That aimed to uphold freedom's laws,
To help oppressed in every land,
And give the world a righteous stand.

The "Khaki boys" of Vimy heights,
Showed to the world their tact and might;
They forward pushed in serried ranks,
Supported by the deadly tanks,
And little thought of trials endured,
Since gains they made were well secured;
With cheerful song and spirits high
They hear the foe's retreating cry.
Again the "Maple" stood the test,
Its praises ring from East to West.
From North to South the word has come,
"Canadian boys, Well done! Well done!"

How Much Does He Save?

A professional man says it costs about 7 cents a mile to run his auto. This includes oil, wear and tear, insurance and upkeep generally. Once a week he drives to the country and buys supplies, butter, eggs, chickens, apples, potatoes, etc. Sometimes he covers 50 miles on a trip. Thus, according to his own estimates, his expense would be fully $3.50 for the 50 miles. If he buys eggs at 5 cents a dozen, butter at 5 cents a pound, chickens at 4 cents a pound cheaper than he can buy them in the city—and he buys them

MUCH JAPAN SHIPPING TRANSFERRED TO U. S.

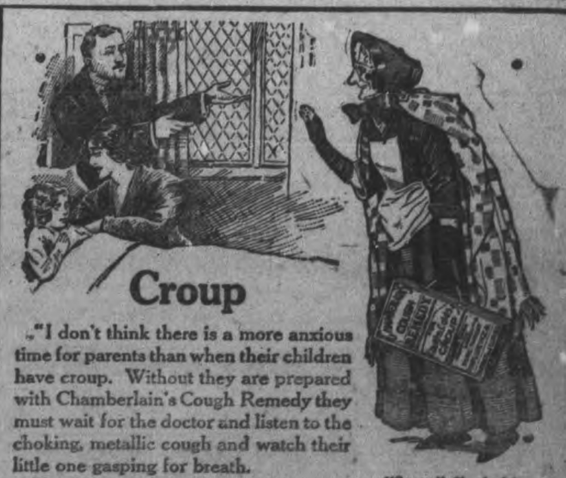
WASHINGTON, March 28.—Negotiations for the transfer of 150,000 tons of Japanese shipping to the United States have been completed on the basis of two tons of steel plates for one ton of deadweight ship capacity.

This agreement is understood to be in the nature of a preliminary one intended to bridge over the period of negotiations now being conducted by American Ambassador Morris at Tokio for a wider and more permanent understanding.

Signing of the agreement is all that remains.

TAX ON AUTOS NOT HEEDED.

OTTAWA, March 27.—Authoritative announcement was made to-day that no decision had been reached by the Government in respect of the rumored Federal tax of 10 per cent. on automobiles. No order in Council, it is further announced, has been passed placing an embargo on automobile parts.



Croup

"I don't think there is a more anxious time for parents than when their children have croup. Without they are prepared with Chamberlain's Cough Remedy they must wait for the doctor and listen to the choking, metallic cough and watch their little one gasping for breath.

You know the great danger of croup is the formation of a false membrane in the larynx, and until this is expelled relief cannot be obtained, and the spasmodic choking continues. Give Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in frequent doses. It will loosen this membrane and cause the child to expel it by vomiting.

"Granny" Chamberlain

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy

is an absolutely safe and certain remedy for croup, and if given as soon as the child becomes hoarse, or even after the croupy cough appears, it will prevent the attack."

An Announcement Addressed Particularly to Single Men — and Their Employers

NOTE—
In listing the following classes of labour from which farm help may be reasonably drawn, we respectfully exclude all returned soldiers engaged in these occupations. They have already DONE THEIR NATIONAL SERVICE.

Shoe Shiners
Soda Fountain Dispensers
Jewelry Salesmen
Shoe Salesmen
Men's Wear Salesmen
Women's Wear Salesmen
Florist's Salesmen
And every other class that can be included under the heading of Store Clerks or Store Salesmen.
Commercial Travellers
Lunch Counter Waiters
Hotel Waiters
Bell Boys
Restaurant Clerks
Book-Keepers
Typists
General Office Assistants
Theatre Ushers
Grocers' Assistants
Hardware Assistants
Drug Store Assistants
Messenger and Delivery Boys.
Shipping Clerks
Warehousemen
Music Store Salesmen
Chauffeurs
Carters
Drivers of Delivery Waggons."
Street Car Conductors
Elevator Operators
All General Labourers who can reasonably be Spared.
House to House Canvassers of all Classes and Grades.

This list by no means includes all. There are many other non-essential occupations in war times, and those who are engaged in them would do well to consider their abandonment in favour of farm work.

Get away for a moment from the clamour of the street; go into your room, at once, or to-night if you are not now at home, and ask yourself this question:

"Have I actually done anything that could count as National Service for my country during the forty bloody months of her suffering?"

Put down in hours the actual time that you have worked. Then, if before your conscience you can say, fearlessly, that you have done a man's service to your country, well and good—we know that you will do even more. But if there is the thought drumming through your mind that all—everything—that you have done, is a mere nothing, just a sop to conscience, then as you are worthy of your manhood, make a speedy decision to devote the next few months of your life to National Service.

Outside of our armed forces only one kind of civilian labour ranks as National Service for men. That is Service on a farm.

That is why the Government in all seriousness exempted the farmer and the farmer's helper from military service.

If you are not quite sure whether your work could be done by a woman consult the list of occupations. These do not include all occupations. There are many others.

Sheer necessity urges that many men in these occupations should give place immediately to women, while they, the men, take up farm work temporarily.

This applies particularly to single men who can move with little or no inconvenience. Positions can also be found for married men who wish to move their families to the country.

Organized Labour Endorses This Crusade—Remember That!

In a memorandum to members they specifically, as a matter of national necessity, agree to:

(a) The exemption from compulsory military service of all farm help.

(b) The substitution of female for male help in order that certain classes of male help may be released for essential National Labour Service, that is, Farm Labour.

(c) The stipulation that women who temporarily replace men who go upon the farm shall receive the same pay for service equal to the man replaced, so that the rates of wages for men shall not be lowered.

Farm Wages are Good

At present farm wages with board are in many cases equal to, if not better, than city wages without board. So that the handicap of wages should not be magnified.

A day of reckoning is coming; a day when that irresistible force, Public Opinion, will judge a man by his work, and will judge employers by the work they are retaining men to do.

Men and women will look hard at the clerks in stores, offices, warehouses and factories. We are down to elementals to-day, and our people will not tolerate the thought that while so many of our sons are perishing in the bloody struggle in France, so many men are doing work that can easily and efficiently be done by women without sacrifice to their womanhood or health.

Remember Your Effort is Voluntary

The production of food is the paramount work of Canada to-day.

In going to work upon a farm, the farm is actually your channel of National Service. That is the attitude you should take towards the matter.

We owe it to our nationhood and to our Allies, who stand with us through the Ordeal by Battle to see that no effort is spared to insure to them a sufficient food supply.

Don't dismiss this matter from your mind. Enroll for service quickly. Send your application to the District Representative of the Department of Agriculture in your County, or apply at the local public employment bureau or fill out the coupon below and mail it to the address given.

The Woman Who Changed

By JANE PHELPS

AN HABITUE OF THE PLACE

AN HABITUE OF THE PLACE.
CHAPTER XXVIII.

The next morning I dressed very carefully. I wore a smart dark tailor suit with delicate French organdie collar and cuffs; a small toque, with stiff quills, and white gloves. I really was very well "turned out," as George once expressed himself anent a woman we saw in the street.

As I leaned back in the car I thought what a lucky girl I was in many ways. A beautiful home, all the lovely clothes I wanted, car, servants, etc. Yet at the same time I suppressed a sigh as I wished George would love me a little more, and not give me so much.

I went to the office for him, and we drove directly to Mercedes. George was very hard to suit and was tired out when he ordered me an exquisite dress in a new shade of blue. A wonderful brocade in many colors, combined with the plain chiffon and trimmed with seed pearls. He did'nt forget anything. Shoes, stockings, everything I needed, even to an ornament to my hair.

Then, instead of giving the restaurant address, we drove to the principal jeweller of the town. To my surprise and d ight he bought me a lovely string of pearls. I did not hear the amount he paid for them but I know it was fabulous as he refused several strings as not being perfectly matched or of the right color.

THE ARE VERY BECOMING.

He clasped them around my neck. "Keep them on. They are very becoming," he said, as he slipped the case into his pocket. "Now we'll go and eat."

"Oh, thank you! they are perfectly lovely," I said squeezing his hand.

"I am glad you like them. But remember it isn't good form to be demonstrative in public. Are you hungry?" he asked as he told the chauffeur to drive us to the restaurant.

"I thought I was starving until you bought me the pearls. Now I am so excited that I don't feel hungry at all," I might have added too that his rebuke had helped to take away my appetite.

"A good table for two, Henry!" George said to the pompous looking head waiter.

"Right this way, Mr. Howard," and he led us to a table where I could see all over the room.

"Will this please you?" the man asked looking at me.

"Very much!" I replied. It was satisfactory to me, intoxicatingly so, I feared George would think me bold because I had answered the waiter, but he paid no attention.

"What would you like, Helen?" he asked, passing me the menu card.

"Oh, you please order," I told him.

"I will to-day, but you must learn how to order a well balanced luncheon or dinner. Mrs. Sexton will help you."

Oh, dear, I thought, is that woman going to intrude even upon my luncheon? But I said nothing, and listened attenively while George ordered a delightful luncheon, occasionally looking at me to see if I approved.

"You are looking very smart today," he said to me when the waiter left us. "I am quite proud of you."

I flushed with pleasure. I had seen him bow to this one and that one—people I had never seen before. Stylish, smartly dressed women and well groomed men. I was glad that he thought I looked well.

"How do you do, Howard?" a pleasant voice said. "I see you have your same old table."

"Very well. Helen may I present Mr. Carpenter. My wife, Mrs. Howard," George said, with his most dignified manner. "Then, won't you join us?"

"No thank, you," Mr. Carpenter said after he had acknowledged the introduction, "I am with some of the old bunch. You see, Mrs. Howard," he turned to me, "your husband is an old habitue of this place. I am glad he is bringing you with him. You must meet some of his old friends."

"Thank you, I am sure I should like them very much," I replied wondering who the "old bunch" were and why that look of annoyance flashed over George's face as he spoke of them.

"Will you have the same wine, as usual?" the waiter asked.

"Yes," said George shortly.

"How well they know you," I exclaimed, astonished. I knew so little of hotels and restaurants that I did not realize that it was part of a waiter's business to know what his patrons like. "You must come here a great deal."

"Here's the lunch; we will discuss that instead of talking of the waiters," he said coolly. But he soon smiled over at me and I forgot to be hurt while I ate sweetbreads and mushrooms under glass, and the other delicious things that he had ordered.

Monday: Evelyn Hears a Complaint.

"I wish," said she to the clerk, "I put in this advertisement for a cook. It will go in three times, won't it?"

"No, madam," said the clerk, after counting it. "We will have to charge you for four times but you can add four words if you wish."

Whereupon the lady had an idea. "Just add," said she, "Policeman stationed opposite corner."

British Will Undertake Great Farm Offensive Behind the French Lines

THE British War Office is making plans for carrying out an agricultural offensive on an enormous scale this spring behind the British lines in France. With the cordial co-operation of the French Government, thousands of acres of grass will be ploughed up, as well as some parts of the old battlefields. British soldiers by the thousands will be employed on the work, most of them being assigned to this labor during their period of reserve duty.

The food grown in this way will, if the war lasts long enough, go to help in feeding the British army. American tractor ploughs will be largely used in the work of turning over the ground.

The area to be tilled includes one of the most fiercely contested battlegrounds of the war. Heretofore it has been held that little could be done for perhaps several generations toward restoring these battlefields to cultivation, owing partly to the soil being "poisoned" by asphyxiating gases and high explosives, and partly to the fact that unexploded shells and grenades would make ploughing very dangerous. But practical farmers do not agree with this theory. An American farmer who recently visited the whole Somme area studying the possibilities of cultivation there, states:

"To those who believe that the land has been poisoned by gas and shell-fumes, I might point out that while these fumes will fresh foliage, the effect is only temporary, rarely lasting for more than a week or two. The soil itself, is not deleteriously affected.

"As to the churning-up of the earth by bursting shells, I might point out that sub-soil cultivation by the use of dynamite has been practiced in America for several years. In all the world, I know of no soil more likely to benefit by this process than that of Northern France, underlaid as it is by strata of decomposing chalk.

"Evidence of the fertility of these battlefields is found in the wealth of flowers and weeds with which they are already covered. Never under the hands of the husbandman have these farms brought forth such verdure.

"I believe that the danger from unexploded shells is practically negligible. A shell which has failed to go off at the end of a five or ten-mile flight through the air is not likely to be disturbed by a prod from a plough. Moreover, the explosive in a shell or grenade deteriorates rapidly from burial in damp earth. Buried barb-wire must be picked up, pulled up, or cut off as it is encountered. Concrete fragments, heavy iron, and the like, will have to be picked up boldly and carted away.

"This leaves one problem to be solved—a practicable way of effecting the first rough cultivation.

"The first implement to be used should be a harrow of enormous strength, raking the earth to a depth of 18 inches to two feet. It could be hauled by a 20-foot cable from a tank-tractor. The next process would be a further smoothing of the ground by means of a string of tractor ploughs. After that the ground would be ready for the ordinary process of cultivation."

Turning History Upside Down

In Rot in history seemed to have rolled backward. The city where the English burned Joan of Arc seems almost as British to-day as Birming-chimneys smoked busily beside the Seine; the river was full of British shipping—coal barges, transports, hospital ships, tramp steamers; and in the crowded city streets were thousands of Tommies in khaki, Scotties in kilts or scandalous "shorts" of the same loud-colored plaid as the kilt, Australians and New Zealanders, natty, public school bred officers, Sikhs wearing khaki turbans, and scores of V. A. D.'s and other rose-cheeked British women in khaki or blue serge or the white muslin of the Red Cross nurse.

The Norman Conquest had been reversed, and the British had retaken Rouen. It was an impressive and noble example of the complete unity and power of the allies.—Red Cross Magazine.

WAS OFF WORK 4 OR 5 MONTHS A YEAR WITH CONSTIPATION

If the truth were only known you would find that over one-half of the ills of life are caused by allowing the bowels to get into a constipated condition.

When the bowels become constipated the stomach gets out of order, the liver does not work properly, and then follows the violent sick headaches, the sourness of the stomach, heartburn, water brash, etc.

Keep your bowels regular by using Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills. They work on the bowels gently and naturally, and will cure the worst cases of constipation.

Mr. Sylvester Clements, Galt, Ont., writes: "I desire to express my heartfelt thanks for what Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills have done for me. I have been suffering from a bad stomach and constipation and would be off work 4 or 5 months a year. I was hardly able to be inside without getting a severe headache. I tried doctors' medicine and other remedies, but got no relief until a friend advised me to use Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills. Now I can work inside without any headaches or pain. I would not be without your remedy for anything. I write this so that anyone suffering the same as I did may use them and be cured."

The Fighting On The Battle Front Has Diminished

GERMANS HAVE BEEN FOUGHT PRACTICALLY TO A STANDSTILL

GENERAL FOCH HAS BEEN GIVEN COMMAND OF ALLIED ARMIES

MEASURES ARE BEING TAKEN TO PROTECT LIVES AND PROPERTY OF QUEBEC CITIZENS

As the Registrar's Office Burst Into Flames the Crowd Sang "O Canada"—Martial Law May Be Proclaimed.

INVESTIGATION BEGUN

Canadian Press Despatch:

QUEBEC, March 30.—After a stormy riotous night, during which two newspaper offices and the premises of Registrar Gobeil were destroyed with the military patrolling the streets, Quebec was very quiet this morning. The regiments in quarters in Quebec come from Ontario and they have been reinforced by local militia. Mayor Lavigueur began this morning an investigation of the grave charges made against the police in regard to the smashing up of the Chroncile and Levenemet offices. As the Military Service Act registrar's building burst into flames yesterday the crowd sang "O Canada." Mayor Lavigueuer told the Canadian Press to-day that the strictest measures have been taken today to prevent a reoccurrence of the riots here. General Landry, commander of the Quebec military district, said that he had not yet received instructions to proclaim martial law, but that measures are being taken to protect the property and lives of citizens.

LATER DESPATCH.

OTTAWA, March 30. —The government is preparing to deal firmly with the opposition which has developed in Quebec City to the enforcement of the Military Service Act. Steps are being taken to prevent repetition of the riots and to deal with the offenders. Col. H. A. C. Machin, director of the Military Service Council, left yesterday for Quebec City to investigate and to take charge of the situation.

POULTRYMEN WILL HOLD PUBLIC MEETING ON TUESDAY NIGHT

Members of Poultry Association Will Co-operate in Greater Production Movement

The Peterborough Poultry Association has arranged for a public meeting to be held in the Council Chamber on Tuesday evening, April 2nd, at 8 o'clock. We shall have the pleasure of listening to a lecture on the above subject given by Mrs. Wollard, one of the most valued workers from the Department of Agriculture. Mrs. Wollard has the faculty of imparting information in a clear and forceful manner and is one who has a practical experience in all the branches of poultry work. In addition, she has been most successful in vegetable gardening. We hope to see everyone interested present at this meeting to co-operate in this great movement to raise more poultry and vegetables for ourselves and thus save more meat for our brave soldiers and allies who are doing their utmost to crush Prussianism.

HOUSE PARTY ON BETHUNE STREET

An enjoyable house party was held last night at the residence of Mrs. Fred. Stabler, Bethune street, when a number of her friends were entertained by cards and dancing. Several pretty dances were presented by the Misses Wainwright and Lewis, and a very tasty supper was served by the hostess. Many guests from out of town were present, and all thoroughly enjoyed themselves.

HEAVY ARTILLERY FIRE IS BEING MAINTAINED ON CANADIAN FRONT

(By W. A. Willison, Correspondent of the Canadian Press in Flanders.)

CANADIAN ARMY HEADQUARTERS, March 30. — From early last night until six this morning the noise of guns has been persistent upon the whole front from the south to Hill 70 in the north. Steadily for over ten hours our heaviest field guns, trench mortars and machine guns maintained their fire on thousands of yards of front against enemy trenches, support and assembly areah, communications and strong points. At eleven o'clock and again at five thirty our artillery fire increased to battle intensity, enemy assembly and concentration areas and communication roads being raked with creeping barrages. The intensity and duration of the fire was such that no enemy attack developed north of Oppy.

ENEMY RAIDS WERE REPULSED.

Before the great battle began two enemy attacks were made to raid our lines. At one point an enemy party was sent over to see if our front line was occupied. It was challenged by one of our bombing patrols. The enemy attacked the post. In the fighting which followed the Germans were driven out of our trenches by rifle fire and pursued by a Canadian bombing squad. Our casualties were nil.

Another raid against our positions was completely driven off with estimated enemy casualties of twenty. The raids were preceded by artillery and trench mortar barrages. The enemy placed a barrage around one of our positions and advanced to attack in two parties, one twenty strong and the other fifty. The Canadians broke up the Boche attacks with rifle and machine-gun fire before the enemy got within thirty yards of our line.

Countryside Is Full Of Bodies

The Air is Horrible With the Odour of Death—Wells Cannot Be Used

BRITISH ENDURANCE

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, March 30.—The Morning Post's correspondent in France draws a gruesome picture of battlefield conditions. Prisoners state that the countryside is full of bodies and that the air is horrible with the odour of death. He writes:

Wells cannot be used. Ruined villages are impossible as billets because they are strewn with German dead. There are piles of bodies along the roads and between them. The enemy has only recently found time to bury any of his dead. The spectacle of the battlefield carpeted with bodies of their comrades has affected fresh troops who in this way discovered to their surprise that the British are not too weak to fight. Prisoners say that British endurance and skill in fighting is delaying the progress of the Germans. Among the feats of this British endurance may be mentioned that of a detachment which marched eighteen hours, fought throughout one night and half of the next day, repelled three attacks, twice recaptured a certain village and dug trenches.

Nine-Hour Day Adopted By Two More Factories

The nine-hour working day is spreading fast in Peterborough since it was inaugurated by the Canadian General Electric Co. two weeks ago. Mr. A. E. Coulthard stated that the Colonial Weaving Company had adopted this working day and would put it into force on Monday, April 1st. The employees, mostly young women, will begin work at 7 a.m. and cease at 5 p.m.

The De Laval Company began the nine-hour day yesterday. This was a voluntary concession to the employees, and from reports is greatly appreciated. This factory is one of the busiest in the city, and enjoys the special advantage that derives from a fine spirit among the employees.

Lieut.-Col. Mills Will Receive Applications

Lieut.-Col. J. Mills, of this city, has been notified by the authorities at Kingston to receive applications from officers who wish to join the new tank battalion. Preference will be given to those who have served in France and who are now physically fit and of the right age; next to officers who have served in Canada, but were unable to proceed overseas.

German Shell Struck Church

Fifty-four Women Were Killed When German Long Range Gun Found Its Mark in Paris

A HEARTRENDING SIGHT

PARIS, March 30.— Rescue parties at work in a church which was struck yesterday by a shell from the German long range gun, have found more bodies. It is now known that fifty-four women were killed. An official statement issued in Paris last night, said seventy-five persons had been killed and ninety wounded, most of them women or children.

The shell struck the north side of the church, bringing down part of the roof and opening a breach twelve feet high and twenty feet wide. Nearly all the debris fell inward upon the heads of the worshippers sixty feet below. The edifice is now a heart-rending sight. Enormous masses of stone, crumbled into all kinds of shape lie in the middle of the nave and piled to the same height as the high altar, which was not damaged. All the stained glass windows, some of which were of historical interest, were shattered. The church, although begun in the middle ages, was entirely remodelled in the epoch of the renaissance. It is feared several prominent people were killed.

DEATH REPORTED OF PETERBORO' SOLDIER

GUNNER JOHN ELLAM DIED FROM INJURIES RECEIVED IN AN ACCIDENT.

Word was received to-day announcing the death of John Ellam, Peterboro member of the 52nd Battery. An official message to this effect was delivered this morning to Mrs. John Ellam, at her home, 785 George st, wife of deceased.

Death was due to a compound fracture of the lege, and according to the message received from Ottawa, was accidental. Gunner Ellam died at the 1st Casualty Clearing Hospital on March 23.

The late Gunner Ellam prior to enlisting in the 52nd Battery, was foreman of the bindery department of the Examiner. He was a member of the Murray street Baptist church, and his death will be regretted by a wide circle of friends

PLANS HAVE MISCARRIED

Germans Expected to Occupy Amiens on the Fifth or Sixth Day of the Offensive—Enemy is Losing Headway

TRYING TO DRIVE WEDGE

(United Press Service.)
(By Wm. Philip Simms.)
(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FRANCE, March 30.—In the last forty-eight hours I believe Hindenburg's cohorts have been fought practically to a standstill.

Carefully sifted information from widely different sources convinces me that the German war lord's battle plans have signally miscarried.

The present spasmodic thrusts are due partly to re-composition of the enemy's fighting forces and readjustment of its offensive scheme. From prisoners it is known the Germans expected to occupy Amiens on the fifth or sixth day of the offensive, cutting the Calais-Paris railway. Yet Amiens still stands.

STORM TROOPS CHECKED.

Similarly Arras, which was yesterday's immediate objective, with Vimy, remains in the hands of the British. The Kaiser's storm troops were checked by the withering fire from machine guns and artillery.

Further cyclonic fighting is expected along the whole line. The first flash of the enemy's enthusiasm is haste. Prisoners say the offensive is not going as well as was expected. While their losses are high, German discipline will undoubtedly continue the offensive, though their spirits are much lower than at the start.

WERE BADLY MAULED.

About eighty enemy divisions (960,000 men) have already participated. Many of these were badly mauled and are unfit to return to the firing line. Before the tide definitely turned, fresh divisions are being hurled toward the battle while the enemy, though tired, is trying to advance everywhere possible, particularly south of the Somme, in an effort to reach the Amiens-Paris railway.

Against the British alone forty-one divisions were hurled the first day of the battle, eleven more the second, four more the third, nine more the fourth, six more the fifth, six more the seventh, one more the eighth, and about five more thereafter.

ENEMY IS LOSING.

Slowly but surely the enemy is steadily losing headway. On the contrary, Hindenburg was expected to gain momentum as the first strongly entrenched positions were passed.

Meantime, the enemy's main thrusts are in the southward, where the Germans are trying to drive a wedge between the French and British.

AVIATORS TAKE PART

French Aviators Bomb Troop Concentrations—Strip Allied and German Dead of All Clothing

THE "GHOUL SQUADS"

(United Press Service.)
(By Henry Wood.)
(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY IN THE FIELD, March 30.— French bombing planes have dropped sixty-five tons of explosives on German communication lines and depots during the enemy offensive.

Also, for the first time, French aviators are successfully participating in battle, bombing troop concentrations both on the fighting line and in reserve. Fighitng squadrons participate in every battle, constantly pouring machine-gun fire into enemy convoys, filling the roads from St. Quentin, Ham, Chauny, Nesle and Guiscard.

Prisoners assert the German army is accompanied by special "ghoul squads," whose duty it is to strip Allied and German of all clothing, shoes and equipment, which are extremely scarce in Germany. Some of these ghouls, taken prisoners, admit their surprise at the small numbers of French dead and wounded.

"B" Men Are To Be Called To The Colours

Are Needed For Railway Construction Battalions and Other Units —A Chance to Volunteer

OTTAWA, March 29. — Responding to a demand from the military authorities the Military Service Council has decided to call up for service men in medical category B, under the Military Service Act. Category B men are liable for overseas, but not for combatant service. They are being called out because of the necessity of securing more men for railway construction and similar service. The official memorandum follows:

"A military demand for men for railway construction and other similar work has arisen, and it has, therefore, become necessary to draft all men in medical category B, in respect of whom no other grounds for exemption exist.

"The Military Service Council is, therefore, issuing instructions to Registrars to take immediate steps to call up such men.

"Under the procedure heretofore adopted, questions arising in regard to the exemption of men in medical category B on other grounds were postponed until men in the same medical category should be called up, and these men, as well as their employers and relatives, will, therefore, be given an opportunity of presenting claims for their exemption."

In this connection, Wm. Stanley, who is recruiting here for the Railway Construction Battalion issues an invitation to Peterborough Category B men to become members of that unit while they still have the choice and before they are conscripted. Sergt. Stanley may be found at the armouries and will give the necessary information to men who come in the category to be called out.

THE WEATHER

It is sometimes said that the weather on Good Friday is always rainy or threatening. This is not altogether true, and certainly was not the case yesterday, which was a particularly fine day, with the thermometer up to 51 degrees, and the air balmy and spring-like. A little research of old weather records shows, however, that Good Friday in about four years out of five is dull, rainy or lowering. Easter Sunday, on the contrary, is almost invariably a bright and pleasant day.—W.P.

British Secured Prisoners In A Counter Attack

Enemy's Attempts to Capture the Village of Demuin Broke Down After Sharp Fighting--Cavalry Fought With Great Gallantry Both Mounted and Unmounted ---British Section of Battlefront Last Night Was Comparatively Quiet.

THE SITUATION HAS IMPROVED

(By The Associated Press.)

BRITISH ARMY HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, March 30. — The situation to-day from the Entente viewpoint is reported more satisfactory. Along the British section of the battle front last night was comparatively quiet. Detailed official statement follows:

North of the Somme only local actions have taken place. South of the Somme enemy's attacks yesterday at Demuin and Mezieres succeeded in pressing back our troops from the latter village. We secured a number of prisoners in our counter attacks. Ae Demuin ald the enemy's attempts to capture the village broke down after sharp fighting which lasted throughout the afternoon. During the past week our cavalry have fought with great gallantry both mounted and dismounted, and repulsed the enemy inflicting heavy losses on him in numerous engagements.

THE FRENCH HAVE COMPLETELY CHECKED THE GERMANS WEST OF MONTDIDIER—A DANGEROUS SALIENT

NEW YORK, March 30.—The Associated Press war summary to-day says:

Fighting on the battle front between the Scarpe and the Oise having diminished greatly except between Albert and Montdidier, the Allied forces are being made ready for a counter blow against the Germans whose strength has given numerous indications of waning. General Foch, who played a memorable role in stopping the first German rush toward Paris and Channel ports, has been given command of the British, French and American armies in the present operation. Repulsed in attempts to widen their salient by pressing back the northern and southern wings, the Germans have driven forward in the apex of their wedge toward Amiens and are now astride the Somme about twelve miles east of that important point. Between the Somme and Avre the British have retired to a line through Hamel, Marcel Cave and Neuville. Just south of Albert, however, the British hold to the line of the Ancre which makes a salient into the German line that may prove dangerous to further enemy advance. Mezieres, which has been taken by the Germans, is ten miles north of Montdidier. The French have completely checked the Germans west of Montdidier.

SIMMS IN AN AFTERNOON DESPATCH SAYS THE FIRST PHASE OF THE ENEMY'S GREAT OFFENSIVE IS OVER.

(By William Philip Simms, United Press Correspondent.)
(Canadian Press Despatch.)

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FRANCE, March 30.—The first phase of the Central Powers' great offensive is over, I believe.

That the second phase will begin as soon as Hindenburg's battered hosts can be relieved and guns brought up, however, cannot be doubted.

THE GERMANS ARE DIGGING IN.

The situation was not materially changed throughout the British line this morning, while the Germans, like frightened moles—their passage overland checked—were digging in like mad in places.

About midnight the enemy put down a heavy trench mortar bombardment southwest of Cite-Stauguste, near Lens.

(Cite-Stuguste is about a mile due north of Lens, near Hill 70, and about the same distance east and south of Loos).

TURNED MACHINE GUNS LOOSE.

When a hostile party tried to approach the British lines the British waited until the Germans were fairly close, then turned loose their machine guns, scattering the enemy like magic.

South east of Amiens, on the high ground between the Luce and Avre Rivers, the Germans succeeded in taking some territory in the neighbourhood of Mezieres and Maison-Blanche, which they held in force against the British counter attack, though the British brought back prisoners from under the very nozzles of the enemy's machine guns.

At Rouuk, a party of British which held out long after being cut off, was daringly withdrawn at sunset.

BRITISH LINES HAVE BEEN STRENGTHENED RAPIDLY IN EVERY QUARTER ALONG THE FIGHTING FRONT

LONDON, March 30.—"We were pressed back at Demium and Mezieres south of the Somme, but at the latter village we counter attacked and took a number of prisoners," Field Marshal Haig reported to-day.

"Only local actions have taken place north of the Somme during the past week.

"Our cavalry has fought, with great gallantry both mounted and dismounted, and has repulsed the enemy with heavy losses in numerous engagements."

BRITISH LINES HAVE BEEN STRENGTHENED.

BRITISH ARMY HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, March 30.—British lines have been strengthened rapidly in every quarter along the front. There is a most heartening display of determination and optimism. In the vicinity of Albert the Germans to-day were reported to be digging themselves in along the line from Thiepval to Laboiselle.

Sixteen German airplanes were put out of action yesterday by the British, it is announced officially.

FRENCH TROOPS ARE OFFERING DESPERATE RESISTANCE.

PARIS, March 30.—(Official)—French troops supported by reserves are offering desperate resistance to the powerful assaults of the enemy, the War Office announces.

MAPLE SYRUP TO-DAY.

Price Was $2 a Gallon. Some at 65 Cents a Quart.

Maple syrup was a disappointment in everything but price on the market this morning. With ideal weather for the farmer's spring industry, according to the notions of city people who never saw a sugar bush in action, it was expected that every farmer would have a milk can full of real genuine maple ambrosia as they would have called it in the classic days when fancy confections had to be purveyed for the goods and their numerous offspring. But the people had no doubts on the question of price. They were not surprised that some farmers asked only 65 cents a quart, but they were somewhat doubtful of the lower price of $2 a gallon. The supply was quite limited, but there was enough to go around, for, with eggs and butter at prices that might be excused in a besieged city, the neighbours weren't falling over themselves to buy the maple luxury at $2 or more a gallon.

CANADA'S RECORD.

Canadians generally will be gratified at the expressions of appreciation voiced by Sir Robert Hudson, chairman of the Finance committee of the British Red Cross Society in thanking the people of this Dominion for their remarkable response to the appeal from the motherland in her Red Cross campaign. Canada's answer to the "Our Day" appeal was the contribution of the splendid sum of $2,375,000 which is a record for the empire.

Sir Robert's tribute is in part as follows:

"The continued efficiency of our work is largely due to the munificent contributions we have received from Canada during the past three years. The Dominion response on "Our Day" has beaten all records and enables us to look forward for the time being to meeting the demands which reach us from every theatre of war— demands which I fear wil continue to increase until victory is achieved."

Our people will rejoice that their contributions have been of such material assistance and will be ready again if called upon.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Berlin papers say the Germans have further surprises for the allies. Probably have found a new way to murder babies or bomb an hospital.

To the difficulty of getting coal these days has been added in the case of some citizens, the annoyance of of having to find some place to put the fuel. There is an extraordinary demand on cellar space in some households.

That policeman in Toronto who failed to recognize Sir Sam Hughes and held him up for his naturalization papers must have been deaf.

As a reward for his "victory" the Kaiser has promoted the Crown Prince to be chief of the Potsdam Grenadier Guards. But why punish the Guards?

Under the new food regulations a man is liable to starve to death in a restaurant before he can think of anything he is allowed to order.

Probably the reason the Food Board allows railway restaurants to continue selling sandwiches is that no one ever found any meat in a railway sandwich.

Being a Dominion policeman in Quebec is about as dangerous as bomb throwing in Flanders.

The 5,000 Quebec people who assaulted three policemen must have been reading of the German method of attacking in mass.

Out in Mesopotamia and Palestine the British are giving the Turks little time to read the bulletins from the western front.

A despatch from the East in regard to the victory in Mesopotamia says the British captured 600 animals. Probably a new way of describing the German troops who are aiding the Turks.

With the importation of liquor cut off after to-day, the authorities chose the physcological moment to start recruiting for the tank battalion.

There is a distinct activity noticeable on the Quebec front, where raiding parties have been repulsed and heavy fighting has followed.

Now comes the turn of the busy "B's".

Says the New York Times: "The British retreating are undefeated. And our faith is strong that they are undefeatable. The future of the world rests on them and the account they have given of themselves makes us believe that it is safe."

The supremacy of the British flyers is one of the brightest features in the news from the western front.

According to the Military Service Act young men are supposed to notify the Registrar when it is time for them to report. The penalty is $250. A draftee would have a hard time paying his fine from his military pay.

FEEDING WHEAT TO HOGS.

(Toronto Globe)

Mr. R. R. Hall of Peterborough writes The Globe directing attention to a condition which, if he speaks by the book, is a very serious one. He charges directly that, in relation to the production of food, the Dominion Government has "adopted regulations which are resulting in human beings eating more oats and barley, and our hogs more wheat." Mr. Hall proceeds:

"I point out that the food value of wheat and oats for the purpose of feeding hogs is three to one, that is to say, one bushel of wheat will produce the same results in raising hogs as three bushels of oats. But the price of wheat is therefore the farmer sells his regulated at $2.25 per bushel, whereas the price of oats is not, and is determined by the law of supply and demand. Hence to-day oats at one dollar a bushel and feeds his wheat to his hogs and makes 75 cents a bushel profit on his wheat by feeding it to the hogs."

Mr. Hall states that a farmer who was in his office at the time told him that he had "fed his hogs wheat last autumn because it was the cheapest food that he could feed them." In view of the imperative need of Britain and her Allies for wheat Mr. Hall comments that "this unfortunate state of affairs is too serious to be allowed to continue, and should be exposed and corrected."

The situation is assuredly one which should command the immediate attention of Hon. T. A. Crerar, the Minister of Agriculture, and the members of the Canada Food Board. If the facts are as Mr. Hall maintains, and the regulations are at fault, steps should be taken without delay to rectify the blunder. At a time when the spectre of famine hangs over war-swept Europe and Canadians are earnestly committing themselves to patriotic tasks of food production and food economy, conditions such as Mr. Hall describes cannot be tolerated. Mr. Hall's statements should have immediate official attention.

Sick of Germanism.

(New York Sun.)

Mere anger at Germany was but a first stir. We have passed to the stage of rejecting and uprooting with loathing every German thing in this country. In this we react naturally to the indigation that has slowly and steadily mounted during several years of outrages and trickery. Of late the idea has gained hold that Germanism in this country has been used in its whole gamut as a Circe spell, much to the national detriment. People have grown sick of propagandizing professors Kaiser-serving steamship and wireless companies, youth-warping language teachers, Iron Cross-deserving Senators, German-thinking citizens, and the like.

Labour United In A Federal Party That Promises Much

Mr. William Stevens and Mr. A. McArthur returned to-day from the Labour Conference which was held yesterday in Toronto, in connection with the formation of the Independent Labour Party. They were delegates from the Peterboro Trades and Labour Council.

Mr. Stevens reports an excellent meeting with over three hundred delegates present from all parts of the Province; Ottawa, Cobalt, and places as far west as London, were represented. An Independent Labour Party was formed, and Mr. Stevens says there is not the slightest doubt but that the new organization is here to stay, and that in the future it will play a prominent part in connection with the two political parties of the Province. One object of the new party which was given birth yesterday is to see that the Labour interests have a larger representation in Parliament.

Other objects are (a) To organize and maintain in Parliament, Provincial and Federal, a political Labour party. (b) To co-operate with kindred organizations in joint political or other action in harmony with the party constitution and standing orders. (c) To give effect as far as may be practical, to the principles from time to time approved by the party conference. (d) To secure for the producers, by hand or by brain, the full fruits of their industry, and the most equitable distribution thereof. (e) Generally to promote the political, social and economic emancipation of the people, and more particularly of those who depend directly upon their own exertions by hand or brain for the means of life."

SPECIAL MUSIC AT GEORGE STREET

The evening service will be bright musically. The choir will sing Ashworth's "The Strife is O'er," and Turner's "O Death Where is Thy Sting." Miss Emma Worth, Mrs. J. H. Renwick and Mr. Arthur Morrison, of Toronto (formerly of Chicago) will sing solos. Nine ladies of the choir will sing Rowley's 'Easter Day' as arranged by Mr. J. H. Renwick. The pastor's subject is "If a Man Die Shall He Live Again."

BRITISH WERE WELL SUPPLIED

German General Never Saw Such Stocks of Munitions

AMSTERDAM March 30.—The correspondent of the Amsterdam Handelsblad, visiting the Verdun front, declares he saw great masses of German troops concentrated there. He interviewed Gen. Gallwitz, who said he never saw such enormous stocks of munitions as the British have.

Peterborough Store Windows

Notwithstanding All the Difficulties the Display is An Excellent One

Robert Fair Company.

The window of the Robert Fair Company presents an attractive appearance. The display includes a number of Easter hats trimmed in the season's latest styles. Also interesting are the blouses showing the popular models with convertible collars. Some of them have a tucked panel set in with hemstitching and ribbon tie. New spring coats that speak individuality are also included in the many good things shown in this window. They embody the latest word as to style, colour and fabrics. The new spring styles this year are strikingly handsome; no previous season ever offering such a delightful variety. The splendid stock of the Robert Fair Company is so large and varied that dozens of becoming models in coats, suits and dresses can be found for every style of figure.

Richard Hall and Son.

The story of beauty and attractiveness that is revealed in the window display of the Richard Hall and Son, is a story that must be read with one's own eyes and receive each wearer's own interpretation. This season's styles as represented in the magnificent display contain latest offerings. The dainty materials, charming designs, and delicate colours all unite in making it very appealing to the feminine mind. In the main window is shown an attractive line of the most fashionable outergarments, smart up-to-the-minute models developed in the new fashionable colours from the newest fabrics of the season. Some of them are silk-lined in plain or novelty effects, introducing an innovation of the season. The Easter stock of the Richard Hall and Son, is complete and will well repay a visit to the store.

A. W. Cressman Company.

A variety of smart styles, splendid materials and carefully tailoring combine to make the spring suits displayed in the window of the A. W. Cressman Company, wonderfully attractive. They include a number of the leading shades, good-wearing materials and a number of jaunty models. In the extreme south window is shown some of the newest styles in ladies' footwear. These shoes are the latest designs and colours embracing points of shoe-making that have yet to be surpassed. The styles include Oxford, Colonial, pumps and dainty strap slippers; high and low heels represented. Gloves of the most delightful sort are shown in another window of the Cressman Company, and while of conservative style according to the latest edict of Ta Mode, there is a difference about them that will appeal to any shopper in search of something new for Easter.

Eliot's Store.

Elliot's Store, while handicapped in the matter of downstairs display owing to the extensive alterations to their store, have an exceedingly well selected stock of serviceable and attractive millinery and ladies' wear. Exceptionally good taste has been shown in the selection of the display that is now before the ladies of the city in everything pertaining to materials, designs and colors. In millinery and ladies' wear Elliot's Store as usual will be the shopping place for many of the ladies of the city and vicinity

Special Services All Next Week

SERVICES IN THE MARK STREET CHURCH WILL BE CONTINUED ALL NEXT WEEK.

The services in the Mark street church to-morrow will be of unusual interest. At the morning service the Sunday school choir will render several choruses. They will be assisted by the orchestra and Miss Elva McIntyre will sing.

In the evening there will be special music by the choir. The pastor will preach at both services upon subjects appropriate to Easter.

SPECIAL SERVICES.

During the week from March 31st to April 5th special services will be held each evening at 7.45 o'clock. The following speakers have been secured:

Monday—Rev. A. Doner, pastor of Bethany Tabernacle.

Tuesday—Rev. J. P. Wilson, D.D., pastor of Trinity Methodist church.

Wednesday—Rev. R. Pogue, pastor of St. Paul's Presbyterian church.

Thursday—Adjutant McElhiney.

Friday—Rev. A. J. Thomas, pastor of the George street Methodist church

These services will be patriotic and evangelistic in character. It is a day when the hidden forces of the nation's life need to be mobilized for victory. Join with those who attend these meetings in a prayer for the Empire, our boys, and that we may win Christ.

THE SPRING TONIC FOR THIN, PALE PEOPLE

If You Want to Gain in Weight and Recover Your Appetite, Energy and Ambition, Try This Well Known Remedy.

With the passing of winter many people feel weak, depressed and easily tired. The body lacks that vital force and energy which pure blood alone can give. In a word, while not exactly sick, the indoor life of winter has left its mark upon them, and a blood-building, nerve-restoring tonic is needed to give renewed health and energy. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are an all-year-round blood builder and nerve tonic, but they are especially useful in the spring. Every dose helps to make new, rich, red blood, and with this new blood returning strength, cheerfulness and good health quickly follows.

If you are pale and sallow, easily tired, or breathless at the least exertion; if your complexion is poor, or if you are troubled with pimples or eruptions, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are just what you need to put you right. If you have twinges or rheumatism, are subject to headaches or backaches, if you are irritable or nervous, if your sleep does not refresh you, or your appetite is poor, you need the treatment which Dr. Williams' Pink Pills alone can give—you need the new blood, new health and new energy this medicine always brings.

A COMPLETE WRECK.

Mrs. C. Forsythe, R. R. No. 2, Fisherville, Ont., says: "At the age of fourteen my daughter Viola was feeling very much run down in the spring. Then she was attacked with whooping cough which left her a complete wreck. She had no appetite—could not sleep well at nights, and was subject to chills which sometimes kept her in bed for the day. She was doctoring steadily but not apparently getting the least benefit, and I naturally grew very anxious. One of my neighbors suggested giving her Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I got her a box. When she began using the pills she weighed only 87 pounds. Before the box was all gone I sent and got six more boxes, and under their use she constantly grew stronger. Her appetite improved, the color came back to her cheeks, she could sleep well, and feels and looks like a different person, and with all this while using the pills she gained 20 pounds in weight."

A SALLOW COMPLEXION.

Miss Gladys Marshall, Chatham, Ont., says: "I suffered from nervousness and my blood was in a very poor condition. My face broke out in pimples and my complexion was very sallow. I took doctor's medicine but without beneficial results. I was feeling much discouraged when a friend recommended Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I used in all six boxes, and was overjoyed to find that my complexion had become quite clear, pimples had disappeared, my nerves were strengthened and my old time health and ambition returned. I shall always have a good word to say for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

GAINED IN WEIGHT.

Mrs. M. B. Rickert, Kitchener, Ont. says: "I was weak, run down, and losing weight when I began using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I took the pills steadily for a month, and the difference they made in my condition was most gratifying. I gained both in strength and weight, and feel since I used the pills like a new person. I also recommended the use of the pills to my daughter in law, who was pale, thin and weak. When she began using the pills she weighed only 103 pounds, and when she discontinued their use she weighed 137 pounds. For all weak people I think there is no medicine can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

A SPRING COLD.

Mrs. Chas. Winegarden, Delhi, Ont., says: "Last spring my daughter Ruby was taken with a bad cold. She seemed weak, had a constant pain in the side, grew pale, and as the remedies usually used in cases of this kind did not help her we feared she was going into a decline. I decided to give her Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and got six boxes. Before she had used them all she was again well and strong. The cough had left her; she had a good appetite, the pain in her side disappeared and a nice rosy color had returned to her cheeks. I have therefore much reason to speak warmly in praise of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

Notwithstanding the increased cost of all drugs, there has been no change in the price of our Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They can be had through any medicine dealer at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, or will be sent on receipt of price by The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

LAKEFIELD NEWS

Roads to the North Are in Bad Condition

Lakefield, March 30.—Owing to the bad condition of the roads it was impossible for Mrs. Miller of Warsaw, to speak to the Soldiers' Comfort Club on hospital conditions overseas but Mrs. Miller hopes to be able to come in the near future. The afternoon tea at the Comfort Club was a success and the sum of $14 was taken in. Lance Corp. C. Stenner spoke to the club for a few minutes.

CURLING CLUB.

The Lakefield curling club propose holding a dance in aid of the Soldiers Comfort Club, in the town hall, on Friday, April 12th.

WILL GIVE CONCERT.

The Soldiers' News Club and the Maple Leaf Club will give a concert in the town hall on April 19th. The proceeds will be divided between the clubs. The Soldiers News Club will spend their share on maple sugar for our Lakefield boys overseas. The Maple Leaf Club are working for the Maple Leaf Club which has headquarters in London, England, and makes the leave of our boys so pleasant.

Mr. Robert Park of Madoc spent a couple of days in the village while on his way to visit his brother, Mr. Joseph Park, at Apsley. He was accompanied by his niece, Miss Adeline Park, of Havelock.

Rev. Mr. Gardiner of Bobcaygeon, was in the village en route to his former parishioners at Apsley.

Miss Park of the High School left on Friday to spend her Easter vacation at her home in Peterboro.

Miss Corkery is spending her Easter vacation in Peterboro.

Mr. Ira Lennox is moving to Burleigh for the summer months. He has accepted a position with Mr. Gordon Fraser.

Capt. (Rev.) H. A. Ben Oliel has resigned from St. John's parish, Lakefield, his resignation taking effect on Easter Day. His household goods were moved into storage this week. Rev. Cecil Spencer has been appointed as rector.

Rev. W. M. Cragg, (formerly of Lakefield,) returned missionary from Japan, will preach in the Methodist church on Easter day. In the evening the service will be in charge of the Woman's Missionary Society and both Mr. and Mrs. Cragg will speak.

The A.Y.P.A will hold an afternoon tea and sale of home made cookery, in Alford's restaurant, on Wednesday afternoon, April 3rd, from 3 to 6 o'clock. Contributions and patronage are solicited. Proceeds are for patriotic purposes.

Miss Edith Griffin is in Toronto, attending the Ontario Library convention. Miss Griffin intends to purchase some new books for the Public library here.

Union Service At Trinity Church

Over six hundred persons took part in the Union service which was held in Trinity Methodist church yesterday. Rev. J. P. Wilson, D.D., pastor of the church, was in charge of the service. Rev. R. A. Whattam read the lesson. Rev. S. Crookshanks opened the meeting with prayer. The Love Feast was read by the Rev. A. J. Thomas, and Rev. B. Greatrix led the Sacrament. A full choir was present.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

"OLIVET TO CALVARY"

"Olivet to Calvary," a choral work by J. H. Maunder on the theme of the Passion of our Blessed Lord, was a fitting climax to the round of services held yesterday in St. John's church, all four of which were well attended. "Olivet to Calvary" superseded Stainer's "Crucifixion," which under Mr. R. J. Devey's direction was sung on Good Friday night regularly since 1906.

St. John's choristers scored heavily in last night's production, once again demonstrating what can be accomplished by a purely voluntary choir choir by intensive training, for this performance was given without any outside help, and the soloists were from its own members.

The chorus work both in "Olivet," and in the hymns, was splendid, in perfect phrasing, balance of tone, expression, and, most important feature in a work of this kind, the evident heartfelt reverence of the choristers.

Mr. R. J. Devey has given splendid evidence of rare ability for many years past in the production of oratorio, opera and cantata, and it is certain that the performanc last night was well up to the standard of excellence in choral work he has established, and steadily maintained.

The Solo Parts.

The solo parts were finely sung by Mrs. A. L. Amys, Mr. T. W. Ward, and Mr. Walter Hutchinson, so was the quartette (double) by Mrs. Devey, Mrs. Perks, sopranos, Mrs. Evans, Miss Lancaster, altos, Mr. Marshall, Mr. Hutchinson, tenors, and Mr. Coleman, Mr. Flowers, basses.

Mr. Cyril H. Devey skillfully presided at the organ, and was heartily congratulated for his excellent playing. Lantern slides were effectively operated by Mr. Amus Conway.

The Rev. Canon Morley of St. Alban's Cathedral Toronto, conducted the devotions before and after the cantata.

The Choristers.

Boys: Masters Kennet, Watson, Roberts, I. Watson, Bachelor, L. Bachelor, Graham, Perks, Hutchinson, H. Coleman, G. Coleman, J. Yarnold. Ladies: Mesdames Devey, Evans, Amys, Cooper, Perks, Coleman Ritchie, Misses: Quartermaine, Wood, Fenwick, Bickersteth, Bridge, Lancaster, Smith, Mann. Messrs. Ward, Coleman, Flowers, Hope, Rootes, Stoneley Brown, Frost, Marshall, Hutchinson, Campazzi, Heidermann, Glover, Pitchford, Russell Johnson.

Ten of the choristers were absent through sickness or holidays.

RECITAL IN TRINITY CHURCH

There was a large attendance at the enjoyable recital given by Mr. and Mrs. George H. King, assisted by Miss Lasca Elliot of Goderich, in Trinity Church, yesterday afternoon. Not only was the programme a good one and the artistes contributing to it of high merit, but the restful, quiet church, on a beautiful spring afternoon, tended to increase one's enjoyment in one of the pleasures that can still be enjoyed with an easy conscience in these sad and anxious days. The programme opened with an organ solo by Mr. King. an "Offertory" composed by Batiste, the late organist of the Church of St. Eustache, Paris to St. Cecilia, the goddess of music. This was given an excellent rendering, the registration being good and the pedalling clean and unblurred. Mr. King's second number "Evensong," by Johnston, was beautifully played, the fine quality Vox Humana stop being used with good effect. One could indeed imagine "far away through arches dim, a sad sweet melody" sounding forth as the worshippers, amid the twittering of birds, wended their way to evensong. Lemare's well known and always pleasing "Andantine in D Flat," completed Mr. King's solo numbers, in all of which he exhibited to great advantage the beauty and fine quality of the Trinity Church organ. Mrs. King, soloist of Trinity Church, gave Denza's bright dainty song "Sing on" a delightful rendering, the rippling runs being sung with beautiful tonal quality and evenness. Mrs. King's enunciation is very distinct, and her phrasing exceptionally good. Her next number was one well adapted to show the flexibility of her voice and to test her powers as a singer of Oratorio, being the Aria from Handel's Judas Maccabaeus, "So shall the Lute and Harp Awake." This fine Aria was done full justice to by Mrs. King. Her other numbers were Kennedy Russell's tender, beautiful song, "Vale" (Farewell), Noel Johnson's "Remembrance," and Trevalsa's dainty little ballad "My Treasure." All three numbers were most tastefully sung, the singer exhibiting great feeling and symoathy in her interpretation of them.

Mrs. King gave Carrie Jacobs Bond's "A Perfect Day" as an encore number. Miss Lasca Elliot is a real pianist, possessed of a brilliant technique, a fine touch, and also temperament, without which quality a pianist may play ever so brilliantly and still leave the audience unmoved. Miss Elliot has force and can get a big fortissimo, but she can also get a most delicate pianissimo, this was specially in evidence in the first movement of the Humersque de Concert." by the well-known American pianist, Homer Bartlette," and in Nollet's "Elegie in C sharp minor, which was most delicately played. Kowalski's "March Militaire," in octaves, was given a brilliant rendering.

Miss Elliot is a pianist whom Peterborough music lovers will hope to hear on some future occasion. Miss Elliot, in response to an encore, gave Charminadi's "Air de Ballet." Mention should be made of the sympathetic accompaniments played by Mr. King to the vocal numbers, too frequently the work of the accompanist, who can utterly mar the best efforts of a vocalist, is taken for granted.

The Recital concluded with the singing of the National Anthem.

STAINER'S CRUCIFIXION

The choir of All Saints' Parish urch sang Stainer's Crucifixion t night to a large congregation, sisted by Miss Logan, violinist. The oruses were particularly well renred; the large choir caught the irit of the music and the attack d diction inspired their hearers eatly.

The soloists and chorus were trained by the choirmaster, who conducted throughout the evening.

Mr. T. H. Boddy (bass), and Mr. E. Chandler (tenor), took a number of the solos, and both sang well. rticularly were they heard to advantage in the duet for bass and ten-

The other solos were very acceptly sung indeed by the following ntlemen Tenors, Mr. W. Barry, Mr. orge Gladwin, Mr. J. Raybould; ss, Mr. W. Gatfield."

Miss Laura Logan played a beautiful solo number, Berceuse (Lullaby). iss Logan seems to add charm to r playing each time she is heard, d last night won new laurels for rself.

Miss Doris Rathbone, always a vorite, sang the beautiful contralto solo from the Messiah, "He was Despised," with pure intonation and this number was greatly enjoyed.

Miss Flowers' playing on the organ was all that could be desired, her work in no small measure helping to make the evening's success.

The prayers were read by the rector, Rev. R. B. Grobb, who thanked the choir and those who had helped for their efforts and kindness.

Easter Sunday At Murray Street Church

Easter Day will be a high day at the Murray street Baptist church. At the 11 o'clock service the pastor will preach the Easter sermon and the choir will render anthems suitable to the Resurrection morning. Easter Sunday is always a day of especial hopefulness and joy. This year there are conditions which will make the anxious multitudes more desirous than ever of finding the comfort and soul rest that the Lord has promised to all that come unto Him.

EVENING SERVICE.

The evening service of this congregation, we understand, will be largely musical. On this occasion, however, the new honor roll will be unveiled and representatives of the Board of deacons will assist in the service. The names of all the members who have laid down their lives in the present war, the nursing sisters, and the soldiers who have served and are still serving will be read. All the members of the families whose names are on the roll are expected to be present at this service. The musical portion of the hour includes two anthems, a ladies' chorus and a ladies' double quartette, a violin solo by Miss Laura Logan, and Miss Kidd will be heard in the solo, "Lead Kindly Light," by McConnell Wood.

The subject of the brief evening sermon will be "The Line that Cannot be Broken."

SPECIAL MEETINGS FOR PRAYER

In addition to the regular services to-morrow in George street Methodist church, there will be special meetings for prayer. These will be held at 7 a.m., 10 a.m. and 4.15 p.m. The first will be in the church parlour and will take the form of a sunrise Easter service. The others will be in the church auditorium and will be especially for prayer for the Empire. At the regular services a splendid programme of Easter music will be rendered. The pastor's evening subject will be, "If a Man Die, Shall He Live Again?" or "Is Death the End?"

MOTHERS TO BE

Should Read Mrs. Monyhan's Letter Published by Her Permission.

Mitchell, Ind.—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helped me so much during the time I was looking forward to the coming of my little one that I am recommending it to other expectant mothers. Before taking it, some days I suffered with neuralgia so badly that I thought I could not live, but after taking three bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was entirely relieved of neuralgia, I had gained in strength and was able to go around and do all my housework. My baby when seven months old weighed 15 pounds and I feel better than I have for a long time. I never had any medicine do me so much good."—Mrs. PEARL MONYHAN, Mitchell, Ind.

Good health during maternity is a most important factor to both mother and child, and many letters have been received by the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., telling of restored health during this trying period after using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

AVOID HARSH PILLS! DOCTORS CONDEMN THEM

Most Pills unfortunately are harsh and drastic; they cause inflammation and great discomfort. Rather like nature is the way a pill should act, mildly but effectively. Science has established nothing more satisfactory as a family pill than the old reliable pills of Dr. Hamilton's, which for forty years have had a premier place in America. Dr. Hamilton's Pills are very mild and can be effectively used by the aged, by children, and indeed by men and women of all ages. No stomach or bowel medicine is more reliable. No remedy for indigestion, headache or biliousness is so effective, so mild, so certain to quickly cure as a 25c. box of Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

CHRISTIANS GATHER AT MASSEY HALL

Peterborough Speaker Gave an Address.

TORONTO March 30.— A convention of Christians, for religious worship and communion, is being held in Massey Hall, and and a big gathering assembled in the basement hall. The meetings are characterized by the utmost simplicity and are one more evidence that the burden of the world's sorrows is bringing men and women to the consolations of religion.

There were two Bible addresses of simple exposition and exhortation, Mr. McCracken of Cleveland, Ohio, spoke of "Elijah's God and God's Elijah," and told the story of Elijah's dependence upon God. Elijah, he said, was a man of like passions as ourselves. He lived in dark days, days of distress and suffering. God's Elijah was a good man, a man who prayed, who obeyed, who stayed where God had placed him, and did the duty that lay nearest him. But he was a stern man when occasion demanded, and he could take up the sword for defence and the punishment of the guilty.

Mr. W. P. Douglas, of Peterborough, gave an exposition of the 105th psalm. The services are held at 10.30, 2.30 and 7.30, and will be continued for the next three days.

Gin Pills FOR THE KIDNEYS

Succeeded Where Operation Failed!

"JOLIETTE, Que.

"During August last I went to Montreal to consult a specialist as I had been suffering terribly with Stone in the Bladder. He had decided on an operation and was assisted by another doctor. They said the calculus was larger than a bean and too hard to crush and they could not take it out. . . was recommended by a friend to try Gin Pills. I bought a box and found relief from the pain at once. . . I did not expect that they would relieve me of the stone, but to my great joy I passed the stone on October 3rd and am now a well man and very happy.

GIRLS! YOU CAN LIFT THEM OFF

Doesn't hurt a bit to lift your sore, touchy corns right out

A noted Cincinnati authority discovered a new ether compound and called it freezone and a quarter ounce of it now can be had for a few cents at any drug store.

You simply apply a few drops of this magic freezone upon a tender corn or painful callus and instantly the soreness disappears, then shortly you will find the corn or callus so loose that you can lift it off with the fingers.

You feel no pain, not a particle of soreness, either when applying freezone or afterwards, and it doesn't even irritate the skin.

Hard corns, soft corns or corns between the toes, also toughened calluses, just shrivel up and lift off so easy. It is wonderful! It works like a charm. Try it!

Women should keep it on their dressers and never let a corn ache twice.

"BEATS ANYTHING I'VE EVER SEEN"

McEwen Relieved By Tanlac After Suffering For Ten Long Years

"I have the best reasons in the world for speaking up for Tanlac," said James McEwen, of 269 Palmerston Avenue, Toronto, recently.

"About ten years ago," he continued, "I began suffering from a disordered stomach and kidneys, and since that time I hardly knew what it was to feel well until now. Sometimes the pains in my back would get so severe that I would just have to stop whatever I happened to be doing and lie down. I suffered so I couldn't get any rest scarcely, and many a night I had to put hot water bottles to my back to ease the pain. I never had one bit of appetite and what little I managed to eat always gave me indigestion. My food just happened to lay in my stomach like lead, and make trouble for me. I just felt tired, worn out and bad all the time, and not so long ago I got in such a bad shape that I could not do a bit of work for three months.

"During those ten years I tried everything I knew about but nothing ever helped me until I got Tanlac. Tanlac has relieved me entirely and it beats anything that I have ever seen. The pain has all disappeared from my back and my kidneys never bother me at all. My appetite is great and I never feel a sign of indigestion. I sleep like a child every night, and am feeling fine all the time, and I am more than glad to let everybody know what I think of Tanlac."

Tanlac is sold in Peterboro by W. B. Warne Drug Co, Ltd., in Hall's block, by A. C. Denike, in Lakefield by the Tanner Drug Co., Ltd., in Fowler's Corners, by W. A. Hunter, in Gelert, by A. J. Scott, in Westwood, by P. Pringle and Son.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,— Allow me through your columns to thank Capt. R. Layfield for his kindness to the troops on board the Grampian. He was one of the few officers who made it his business to help the private on a very weary journey. Many have been the complaints made by returned soldiers, yet if all officers had been like Bob, why things would have been more pleasant.

Thanking you, sir, I am,

LARGE ATTENDANCE AT MEMORIAL SERVICE

Salvation Army Temple Crowded on Good Friday Night.

The memorial service at the Temple last night drew a packed house in every corner, and was enjoyed by young and old.

Over 400 slides were used and many old-time comrades were thrown on the screen, including the very latest of Mr. and Mrs. John Martin and Martin Spenceley.

Adjt. McElhiney has promised a full programme of the Halifax disaster in a week or two. A few of the slides were put on last night.

COULD NOT SLEEP.

Miss Gertrude Pratt, Wolseley St., Barrie, Ont., writes: "I was very much run down and could not sleep either day or night, and my arms and legs ached so that life was very miserable. After using six boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, I feel well and strong again."

Will Cuts Off Peterboro' Heirs

John Macauley Nixon's Will is Probated.

NEW YORK, March 30.—The will of John Macauley Nixon, who was an uncle of Frances Hamilton Abbott, Peterborough, on file for probate here to-day in the Surrogates' Court, without any explanation, cuts off William Herbert Nixon, a brother, of No. 37 East Sixty-fourth street; the Peterborough niece; five other nephews and nieces; a grand niece and grand nephew, and directs his estate, after all debts are paid, be divided equally between his two sisters, Marie H. Broadwell, and Marie Elmes Nixon, both of No. 37 East Sixty-fourth street, who are also named as executrices.

No date, by Surrogate John P. Cohalan, has been set for the proving of the document, executed November 22, 1911, but all ignored heirs will be given an opportunity by the court to file objections, if any or all should feel so inclined to do before the document is admitted to probate.

Mr. Nixon, who lived in this city died, on January 26th last. Just how large an estate he left will not be known until his will is either admitted or denied probate—provided no contest is started by the ignored heirs to upset its provisions—a transfer tax state appraiser, under the direction of the court, is appointed to appraise it to see how much is taxable under the inheritance tax laws of this State, and a report of such appraisal, as the law directs, is filed with the clerk of the Surrogates' Court, as a public document.

If no contest is started by the heirs and no time lost by the sisters, a report of such appraisal can be made up and filed within the next few months.

What caused Mr. Nixon to ignore his brothers, nieces, nephews, grandniece and grand nephew could not be learned.

Constipation Cured in His 78th Year Without Drugs

Did you ever know any person who was permanently cured of Constipation by taking drugs of any kind? Drugs seem to assist Nature at the time, but as time goes on larger doses are necessary until the trouble becomes chronic.

Internal Bathing is the only real cure for Constipation. It keeps the Colon or Lower Intestine free from all accumulation. Soon the system performs its regular functions unaided, and there is no further trouble.

Mr. A. McLean, of Conger Lumber Co., Parry Sound, writes:—"I have been troubled with Constipation for the last 35 or 40 years, and could not pass one day without taking medicine. I have used the 'J. B. L. Cascade' since getting it 21 days ago, with wonderful results. Will recommend any person to use it."

Dr. Chas. A. Tyrrell of New York invented and perfected the "J. B. L. Cascade" for Internal Bathing, which is to-day the only efficient means of accomplishing the desired results. Dr. Tyrrell has published an interesting book on Internal Bathing, called "Why Man of To-day is Only 50 Per Cent. Efficient," which can be had free for the asking at the Warne Drug Co., Peterborough. They will also be pleased to show and explain the "J. B. L. Cascade" to you.

Would You Like to Earn $1 or $2 Daily The Year Round At Home?

The hosiery trade is booming, and the Demand far exceeds the Supply. We gladly take all the goods you can send us.

We must have more workers at once to help us keep pace with the demand. The Auto Knitter is sent on favorable terms to reliable persons, and we furnish full instructions how to knit sox, etc., also all yarn needed. The work is simple and easily learned; the Auto Knitter is a high-speed machine, and works by turning a handle. Our fixed rates of pay guarantee you a steady income the year round, no matter where you live, but our workers often largely increase this by working for private customers.

Working either whole or spare time, this pleasant employment has brought prosperity to many workers in their own homes, and should do the same for you.

Write to-day, enclosing 3c in stamps, for full particulars, rates of pay, etc., and see what you and your family can now earn at home.

L.O.L. SMOKER WAS A SUCCESS

The Loyal Orange Lodge, Number 50, smoker on Thursday evening was attended by about 30 and a most successful evening was spent by all present.

Splendid speeches on the lodge and lodge work were made by Mayor Duncan, Ald. Saunders and Ald. Edgar, who told of their connection with the society and benefits received by their affiliation. After supper a short musical programme was given, when Mr. Walter Irvine and Mr. Thompson sang most acceptable solos and Mr. Irvine contributed enjoyable piano selections.

Mr. Spence occupied the chair.

ONE HALF CUP OF MILK

If wasted daily by each family in Canada would mean—

125,000 quarts wasted each day.

3,750,000 quarts wasted each month.

45,625,000 quarts wasted each year.

Valuing milk at 5 cents per quart, which is about what the producers receive, the above waste amounts to—

$6,250.00 per day.

$187,500.00 per month.

$2,281,250.00 per year.

The value of a good 100 acre farm thrown away each day.

The value of 365 beautiful farm homes wasted each year.

It requires 20,833 cows to produce this ONE HALF CUP OF MILK per family.

It requires 2,833 men to milk these cows each day.

"Left-over" or sour milk can be used for cooking. STOP ALL WASTE.

An extra quart of Milk a day will cut your meat bill in half. Order from one of our milkmen or at the office, 377 Aylmer street, or call 'phone 650.

PARTICULARS CONCERNING THE DEATH OF LIEUT. FRED CRESSMAN

Peterboro' Officer Was Lost at Sea on Christmas Eve—The Seaplane Sank.

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Cressman have received the following communication concerning Flight Lieutenant Fred Cressman, who some time ago was lost at sea. The letter which is from the Squadron Commander, reads as follows:

Dear Mrs. Cressman: I cannot understand your not having received my letter yet. I wrote you about 10 days after Christmas telling you the facts of the sad accident. I can only presume that the letter has gone astray. I cannot give you a full and detailed account of the mishap as I would wish owing to the strictness of the censorship of letters. The plain, unvarnished facts are as follows:

WENT OUT ON PATROL.

Your son went out on patrol with one of the men as a passenger in a seaplane on the day before Christmas, and was compelled to land out at sea through some cause or other; and before help arrived the machine and her crew sank. Destroyers and other patrol craft were sent out to search as soon as it was known that the machine had landed. Other seaplanes also searched the area until it was evident that there was no hope of the machine still being afloat.

The above is a very plain statement of the actual facts, but it is honestly all that I can tell you through the post. Your son was engaged on an important duty in the service of his country and died gallantly doing that duty as so many other Canadian lads have done. He is a great loss to the service and to me personally, for he was a skilful pilot and a hard-working and conscientious officer.

I can hardly describe what a dark shadow the tragedy threw over the men at Christmas time for he was much beloved by his brother officers. May I add that I should like to convey to both you and Mr. Cressman my deepest sympathy and to repeat how much your son is missed by myself and the other officers here. Yours very sincerely,

Victor Wilberforce,
Squadron Commander,
Royal Naval Air Service.

Make Your Own Cough Syrup and Save Money

Better than the ready-made kind. Easily prepared at home.

The finest cough syrup that money can buy—costing only about one-fifth as much as ready-made preparations—can easily be made up at home. The way it takes hold and conquers distressing coughs, throat and chest colds will really make you enthusiastic about it.

Any druggist can supply you with 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth). Pour this into a 16-oz. bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. Shake thoroughly and it is ready for use. The total cost is about 55 cents and gives you 16 ounces—a family supply—of a most effectual pleasant tasting remedy. It keeps perfectly.

It's truly astonishing how quickly it acts, penetrating through every air passage of the throat and lungs—loosens and raises the phlegm, soothes and heals the inflamed or swollen throat membranes, and gradually but surely the annoying throat tickle and dreaded cough will disappear entirely. Nothing better for bronchitis, spasmodic croup, whooping cough or bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway pine extract and is known the world over for its prompt healing effect on the throat membranes.

Avoid disappointment by asking your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

Turnbull's Elite Display of Millinery and Spring Fashions

There are fairies and artists in Peterborough—sure as you live there are. Surer than Santa Claus — and all Good Friday they worked and played until they transformed the sombre outlook of the city into the gayest and prettiest mid-way you ever saw. Windows! Just one is enough to keep you wondering and instead of one to satisfy the longing of Miss Easter shopper and inquisitive Mr. Payer a whole host await the public.

The Turnbull Display.

Beauty, individuality and genuine attractiveness, is the key note of the Easter windows at the Turnbull and Company store. The setting of the ... window is like a dream of ... ght be, and no matter how hard you pinch yourself the window still stays. Decorator C. Lapp worked out a novel scheme in this window when he made it a realistic copy of a bungalow overlooking the Otonabee. Of course its spring time for the gayest of pussy willows straight from the Botannical Flower Co. in Chicago are gathered about the bungalow in charming profusion. Then too, aren't the ladies in the window dressed in the latest creations? Even mere man has to remark "some style" to what he sees there, for sitting at the table apparently enjoying the splendid and realistic scenery depicted by the artist are two ladies clothed in coats, lovely three-quarter length ones, of the most wonderful style and wearing those chic up-to-date small hats with the profusion of flowers which are so much the feature of this year's display. Hats and coats go a long way, especially when they are the discriminating choice of the Turnbull Co. buyers and include Gage and Gainsborough hats and New York coats, but the general make-up is complete with the little accessories so cleverly chosen from the big centres' best offerings by the buyers. There are the dainty little bits of neck wear. Collars, vestees and cuffs. You simply can't do without them on the Easter season if you're going to be smart, and the best are on hand and displayed by the Turnbull Co.

The Dresses.

The corner window displays some dresses that are dresses. Lovely one-piece costumes with nothing of the bizarre or doubtful styles which have been shown in other seasons. They are best because of their simplicity, yet each finds its own way of being distinctive. In this "tout ensemble" of hats, coats and dresses the conservative feature is the maintainance of a monatone, with perhaps a lightening up of a gay little hat whether it is of the mushroom or poke bonnet effect.

The Side Windows.

The side windows are a revelation of style in dress goods to fit every need. Plaid skirting in basket cloth, absolutely new in voiles in the sombre tones grouped with hats of the charming "tulip bed" variety, newest suitings and coatings that are irresistible, and lastly the daintiest of kimona crepes all ready for the Easter kimona.

The Store.

The store has been turned into a gay fairyland under the direction of Mr. C. Lapp, who spared neither time, pains or ingenuity in producing a delightful Easter effect. Spring pictures fresh from the hand of the artist hide the walls, while sweet peas, orchids, roses and chrysanthemums cling to the impromptu trellis work running practically all over the store.

Two Splendid Things

One is plenty of open-air exercise.

If you can't get all of that you should, it's all the more important that you should have the other tried-and-true remedy for a torpid liver and bowels that don't act freely and naturally.

Take one pill every night; more only when you're sure it's necessary.

BEDRIDDEN WITH RHEUMATISM

Felt That He Would Never Walk Again "FRUIT-A-TIVES" Brought Relief.

MR. LORENZO LEDUC

8 Ottawa St., Hull, P.Q.

"Fruit-a-tives" is certainly a wonder. For a year, I suffered with Rheumatism; being forced to stay in bed for five months. I tried all kinds of medicine but without getting better; and thought I would never be able to walk again.

"One day while lying in bed, I read about 'Fruit-a-tives' the great fruit medicine; and it seemed just what I needed, so I decided to try it.

The first box helped me, and I took the tablets regularly until every trace of the Rheumatism left me.

I have every confidence in 'Fruit-a-tives' and strongly recommend them to every sufferer from Rheumatism".

WEDDING BELLS

HUNTER—MATHER.

Quietly this afternoon at 2.30 in George street Methodist church, Rev. Mr. Thomas officiating, the wedding was solemnized of Margery Powell Mather, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Mather, Inverlea avenue, and Bruce, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Hunter.

The bride, who was attended by her sister, Miss Dorothy Mather, looked very lovely in a tailored suit of navy blue with grey collar and small grey shepherdress hat with touches of blue. Miss Dorothy Mather wore a dainty costume of fawn with hat to match.

After the wedding Mr. and Mrs. Hunter left by the 3.28 C.P.R. train for a short honeymoon in the west, after which they will return to Toronto, where Mr. Hunter is on the Dominion Bank staff.

REVIVAL CAMPAIGN IN ROSENEATH

Evangelists Kennedy and Fleming closed a great campaign at Roseneath last week. The meetings lasted for four weeks, and people were driving in for miles around. About two hundred people were converted. Among the converts were a great many men. Several of the citizens of the town said that they had never seen such a genuine work accomplished in the place before.

Mr. Kennedy is a Peterboro boy, and for several years has been engaged in this kind of work. He is a member of the "Interdenominational Association of Evangelists." Mr. Fleming is a graduate of the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago. They have been working together for the past season and are now opening up another campaign.

The adventures of an entertaining group of people in a little college town furnish the nucleus of the story and supply the highly amusing situations and bright dialogue. Among the best known song hits are "An Old Fashioned Wife," "Till the Clouds Roll By," "Flubby Dub," and the famous comedy song, "When It's Nesting Time."

Youth, beauty, loveliness and charm are paramount in the production and through it all runs the story of life's primitive and love. Its ultra smartness and daintiness have caused "Oh Boy" to be known as the smartest and brightest of all musical comedies.

Horses Killed Each Other In Stable Rabies Suspected

Symptoms of rabies are again reported from the Fowler's Corners' district. A farmer named Ray, near Omemee, found two of his horses dead in their stall a few mornings ago, and the evidence offered conclusive proof that they had killed each other. Many chunks of flesh were strewn on the floor and both bodies showed numerous bites and bruises. A brick wall was breached, apparently by powerful kicks, and the stall was completely wrecked. The horses seemed normal when they were fed and bedded on the previous night, and the only explanation of their violent deaths was ascribed to rabies which has counted other victims in that section.

Another farmer near the Corners had to shoot a horse recently, and one of his neighbours lost a heifer. It was stated by a farmer this morning that both animals had rabies.

A hydrophobic dog has been reported on a rampage in Ennismore. It is said to have bitten two sheep and two dogs. There is every evidence that the township west of Peterborough have not yet stamped out rabies, and that the authorities have a problem on their hands that demands immediate and drastic action.

GOVERNMENT BOOKLETS THAT WILL HELP HOME GARDENERS

There has been secured for the use of those going in on the Home Gardening Movement a supply of literature from the official departments of Agriculture, at Ottawa. These publications are so issued in order to place them at the disposal of people and without expense to the public. They are packed full of information, such as would only be acquired after several years' experience. It will pay all interested to secure copies.

Two booklets are especially pertinent. "Garden Making on Vacant Lots" and "The Vegetable Home Garden" contain in concise shape about what there is to know. Perusal and study of the recommendations will be most helpful.

"Common Garden Insects and Their Control" treats of the many pests that attack the growing crop. There seems, to those who carried on work last season, a special bug for each plant, or variety of plant. Where they come from, how to prevent the ravages, how to best combat the pests is told in the pages of the booklet.

"Every Gardener His Own Seed Grower" deals with the right way to secure your own seed from your own crop. It is surprising how little seed is required to stock up the ordinary garden, and how this can be saved from the ripened growth is interesting and instructive.

In order to facilitate the distribution of these publications batches of the leaflets have been left at the City Clerk's Office, Somcoe street, at the stores of J. T. Braund, Smith and George streets, R. C. Braund, Park street, and at Oak Hall, George street. Call and get copies while they last.

Other publications, when procured, will be placed at the same points for distribution.

Regular Meeting 57th Regiment Chapter I.O.D.E.

THE WEEKLY TEAS WILL BE DISCONTINUED.

The 57th Regiment Chapter, I.O.D.E. held its regular monthly meeting on Thursday, the 28th inst, in the Green Room of the Y.W.C.A., with Mrs. J. H. Eastwood, the newly elected Regent, in the chair.

A communication was received from the 57th Regiment Band acknowledging a donation of $100.

The Chapter contemplates having a rummage sale, the date of which will be announced later.

It was decided to discontinue the weekly teas which were held at the Empress Hotel.

During the afternoon Mrs. W. R. Morris gave an interesting and instructive talk on the food situation, and Miss Marion Rush spoke on the important points in the food bulletins.

Votes of thanks were extended to the Toronto Savings and Loan Company for the free use of a room in which to store the scrap paper collected and to the manufacturers, merchants, schools and others for generous donations of scrap paper from which the Chapter realized the handsome sum of $310.45; also to the press for courtesies received.

Appended is the knitting report:

Since last meeting, Feb. 25, 168 pairs of socks were sent overseas to the following: 132 pairs to the Canadian War Contingent Association, 18 pairs to Pte. H. W. Hartshorn, 2nd Battalion, C. E. F., France, 18 pairs to Pte. W. J. Watson, 21st Battalion, C.E.F., France

Letters acknowledging receipt of socks were received from Lieut J. H. Eastwood, 2nd Battalion, Gunner W. Dunford, A.A.A. Battery, France

103 pairs of socks were received during the month and 95 spindles of wool given out All of which is respectfully submitted.

Germans Tried In Vain To Turn The British Flank

French Kept Up Contact With the British Armies and Frustrated the German Plan to Create a Break

(United Press Service.)
(By Henry Wood.)
(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY, March 30.—Since General French, at Ypres, prevented the Germans from turning the British Flank by stretching out his little army until it reached the North Sea, no more brilliant movement has been executed on the west front than teh manner in which the French General Staff, night and day, kept up contact with the British armies doggedly retreating to the northwest.

FRENCH EXTENDING.

The French steadily extended their lines from the region of La Frere to beyond Montdidier. This successful operation has definitely broken up west front than the manner in which original German plan, namely, following the Bavarian Crown Prince's expected rupture of the British front for the German Crown Prince's army to pass through the breach and march on Paris by way of the Oise Valley.

what is known now to have been the Whose death at the front resulted from an accident. His home is at 785 George street.

Mothers Praise Baby's Own Tablets

Every mother wishes her little ones to be well—thousands of mothers have learned the secret of keeping them well. They have found by experience that an occasional dose of Baby's Own Tablets will prevent sickness, or if sickness comes on suddenly the Tablets will promptly give relief. These mothers have nothing but praise for the Tablets. Among them is Mrs. Gustave Lord, St. Perpetue, Que., who says: "I have been using Baby's Own Tablets for my little ones for a number of years and have found them a perfect medicine. They regulate the bowels, stop vomiting; in fact they are good for all the little ailments of childhood." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving memory of my dear mother, Sarah A. Page, who fell asleep in Jesus March 30th, 1916.

'Tis sweet to know we'll meet again
Where parting is no more,
For my dear mother I loved so well
Has crossed to yonder shore.

God knows how much I miss her,
He counts the tears I shed,
He whispers "hush, she only sleeps,
Your mother is not dead."

Some day some time my eyes shall see
The face I loved so well,
Some time some day her hand I'll clasp
To never say farewell.

—Daughter, Mrs. Helen Cook.

OBITUARY

The death occurred last evening of George Keyes at St. Joseph's Hospital, after an illness lasting since last Tuesday, when he was injured while he was at his work. The deceased was 65 years of age and leaves a wife and five children. The children are Emma, Antoinette and Richard, all of Toronto, and Joseph, and Cecile, at home.

The funeral will take place on Monday morning from the family residence, 42 Ware Street, to Sacred Heart Church, and thence to St. Peter's cemetery.

SHIRLEY WELDY.

Shirley Weldy, the nine year old son of Mr. and Mrs. George Weldy, of 190½ West State street, Olean, N. Y., died this morning at 4 o'clock at the Higgins Memorial Hospital.

The funeral will be held on Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the house with Rev. W. W. Brunk of the People's M. E. church officiating. The interment will be in Pleasant Valley cemetery. The little boy's mother was formerly Miss Baxter, of this city.

MRS. MARGARET HUGHES.

SYRACUSE, N.Y., March 30.—Mrs. Margaret Hughes, sister of Mrs. Elizabeth Davis, of Tuttsville, near Peterborough, died last night after a brief illness at her home, 506 Willis avenue, Syracuse, N.Y. A son and two other sisters and a brother survive.

FREDERICK IRVINE.

On March 14th, at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. T. DeGeer, 58 Riverdale avenue, Toronto, there passed away an old and former resident of Peterboro county, in the person of Mr. Frederick Irvin, aged 88 years.

Deceased came from Ireland with his parents, when only 12 years old, and settled in what was then called the Scotch Village, now East City. Most of his life was spent in and around Peterboro.

In 1858 he married Susan Sargent, of Otonabee, sister of the late Sam'l Sargent, who with eight children survive him.

The children are William and Nelson, of Saskatchewan; Sam of B. C., and John, at home; Mrs. A. Greer, of Parry Sound, Mrs. J. English, of Orillia, and Mrs. DeGeer of Toronto. Also one sister survives him, Miss Sarah Armstrong of Spokane, Wash.

Some years ago deceased with his family moved to Orillia, where interment took place on March 16.

GEORGE MATHER.

The sudden death of Mr. George Mather will be learnt of with the keenest regret by a widespread circle of friends and business associates.

Mr. Mather on Friday morning left his house to complete some work at his office at about 7:30. Some few minutes later he felt ill and returned to his home, 347 Charlotte street, and had only entered the house when he passed suddenly away from heart failure in spite of all Dr. Greer, who was called, could do.

Deceased was born in Otonabee 59 years ago, where he resided for 43 years. During his residence there and his subsequent 16 years spent in the city, he enjoyed the confidence alike of his friends in the country and city. He was a man in the finest sense of the word.

He leaves of his immediate family, his wife, formerly Mary West, and three daughters, Nursing Sister Louise, on active service in France; Nellie, nurse-in-training at Clifton Springs, and Bessie at home.

The funeral will take place on Monday afternoon at 2:30 from the family residence to the Little Lake cemetery.

DIED.

MATHER—On Friday, March 29th, 1918, suddenly, George Mather, aged 59. Funeral on Monday afternoon, April 1st, from his late residence, 347 Charlotte street, to the Little Lake cemetery. Service at the house at 2:30 p.m.

Children should not be allowed fried foods.

Tonsilitis, Sore Throat, Chest Colds, Can Be Cured Over Night

They Vanish Quickly If Nerviline is Well Rubbed In

When the throat tickles, when it hurts to draw a long breath, when you feel as if a knife were stuck in your side, it's time to draw out the congestion that will soon become pneumonia.

An ordinar cought syrup has no chance at all—you require a powerful penetrating liniment.

Nothing is known that possesses more merit in such cases than Nerviline.

Rub it liberally over the sides and chest—rub it in hard.

The warm, soothing effect of Nerviline will be apparent in five minutes. Nothing like it for quick relief—takes soreness out of the throat in one rubbing—breaks up the chest cold, draws out the inflammation, stops the cough quickly.

Rub it on for rheumatism—it destroys the pain—drives it right away. Try it for stiff muscles—it works miracles in just such cases.

Give Nerviline a chance on your neuralgia, prove it out for lumbago, see what it can do for sciatica.

No pain-relieving remedy compares in power to cure with Nerviline. Largest sale in Canada for any liniment for nearly forty years. The reason is plain. It satisfies every time.

The large 25 cent family size bottle is very economical. Sold by dealers everywhere, or the Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Canada.

GENUINE GREATNESS

Genuine greatness is marked by simplicity. Glasses fitted and made by Dr. Fowler, on his own grinding plant, are simply genuinely great. The luxury of seeing perfectly, and having complete use of the eyes after perhaps months of short sightedness and other eye-troubles is great also. You will think so when Dr. Fowler has looked after your eyes.

The British Casualties For March Were Light

MARTIAL LAW WILL BE DECLARED IN QUEBEC TO-DAY

The Week-end Bulletins Indicate A Stiffening Up Of British Resistance

Both French and British Forces Capture a Number of Prisoners and Restore Portion of the New Line—British Destroyer Lost—British Casualties in March Were the Smallest in Several Months.

BRITISH LINE IS ADVANCED

Canadian Press Despatch:

QUEBEC, April 1.—Since the arrival of troops yesterday morning, Quebec city has been quiet. Two girls and a man were injured in the riots on Saturday night.

ENEMY HAS FAILED.

Canadian Press Despatch:

PARIS, April 1.— The outstanding feature of the great battle raging over a hundred mile front, is the failure of the enemy to encircle Amiens.

BRILLIANT OPERATIONS.

Canadian Press Despatch:

LONDON, April 1.—Last night's official despatch says: "In a brilliant operation yesterday by Canadian cavalry and British infantry, in conjunction with the French, we captured Moreuil and the wood to the north of that place."

ATTACKS LESS VIOLENT.

Canadian Press Despatch:

PARIS, April 1.— Last night's official says the attacks of the Germans are less violent and numerous on Sunday, and he is feverishly digging himself in.

MARTIAL LAW IN QUEBEC.

Canadian Press Despatch:

OTTAWA, April 1.— The statement is made here that martial law will be declared in Quebec to-day, with General Lessard as Military Governor.

LATE SUNDAY EVENING BULLETINS.

Riots in Quebec.

Canadian Press Despatch:

QUEBEC, March 31. — Ten thousand people threatened to storm a hall and liberate men held under the Military Act. The cavalry charged the mob and a number were slightly injured. Early Sunday morning the mob broke open a hardware store, seizing the firearms.

Americans on the Move.

Canadian Press Despatch:

WITH AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, March 13. — All American troops are to be turned over to the Allies. Great activity is under way in the whole American zone. Mile after mile of Americans are on the move. 100,000 American fighting men fully equipped are available at once.

Heavy Fighting.

Canadian Press Despatch.

PARIS, March 31.— In the woods north of Moreuil the struggle was intense all night. The French took many prisoners in this region.

SUNDAY NOON BULLETINS.

Line is Restored.

Canadian Press Despatch.

LONDON, March 31.—British have restored their line south of the Somme after a vigorous attempt at counter attack, the War Office announces.

Germans Checked.

Canadian Press Despatch.

LONDON, March 31.—The Germans forced their way into the village of Demuin Saturday morning, but were held up at the outskirts.

Battle Line Extended.

Canadian Press Despatch.

PARIS, March 31.— The battle for Moreuil, on the Lassigney front, continued. It has extended along sixty kilometres. The German attacks are incessant and multiplied in force.

Appointment Confirmed.

Canadian Press Despatch:

LONDON, March 31.—Premier Lloyd George announced the name of General Foch as comander of the Allied armies on the western front.

Casualties in Bombardment.

PARIS, March 31. — Casualties in bombardment of the city on Saturday are eight dead and [illegible] seven wounded.

Strong Attacks.

Canadian Press Despatch:

LONDON, March 31.— Strong attacks against the [illegible] front Mer-

Canadian Press Despatch:

LONDON March 31.— The British advanced their line north of the Somme, taking 230 prisoners and forty machine guns.

Destroyer Lost.

Canadian Press Despatch:

LONDON, March 31.—British destroyer struck a mine Thursday night and sunk. One officer and forty men lost.

Enemy Mowed Down.

Canadian Press Despatch:

PARIS, March 31.—Sunday's official says: "German attacking battalions were mowed down by French fire. Moreuil, captured by the Germans, was retaken by the French. The Germans were checked completely between Moreuil and Lassigney."

Feeling of Optimism.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, March 31.—The week ends with a feeling of optimism. No anxiety is now felt regarding the British positions north of the Somme, and the German plan of divding the French and British armies absolutely failed. Nevertheless it is recognized that further attacks must be met.

LATE SATURDAY EVENING BULLETINS.

More Prisoners.

Canadian Press Despatch:

LONDON, March 30.—British army in Mesopotamia has marched eighty-three miles beyond Hit and increased the number of prisoners to over five thousand.

British Casualties.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, March 30.—British casualties reported for March reached a total of 14,090, the smallest in several months.

AWFUL ATTACKS OF HEART TROUBLE

EASED BY SECOND DOSE OF

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills

One of the first danger signals announcing something wrong with the heart is the irregular beat or violent throb. Often there is only a fluttering sensation, or an "all-gone" sinking feeling, or, again you may experience a smothering sensation, gasp for breath and feel as though about to die.

In such cases the action of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills in quieting the heart, restoring its normal beat and imparting tone to the nerve centres, is, beyond question, marvellous.

Mrs. Frank Arseneau, Newcastle, N.B., writes: "I have awful attacks of heart trouble for the past five or six years, and as I had tried many kinds of medicine without getting any better, I decided to give Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills a trial, and to my surprise I found ease from the second dose. I continued taking them until I had used six boxes, and now I feel as well as can be.

"At present my sister is taking them for nervousness, and finds great comfort by their use."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c a box at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

HOW THE UNION GOVERNMENT HAS FAILED TO ENFORCE M.S.A.

Elected on This Issue, and Has Only 30,000 Draftees, One Year After Sir Robert Borden Declared 100,000 Men Were "Needed At Once."

SILENCE IN THE SESSIONS

The Ottawa correspondent of the Toronto Telegram wired the following comment on the Union Government's enforcement of the Military Service Act:

It is now within six or seven weeks of a year since Sir Robert Borden electrified the House with his declaration that 100,000 men were needed "at once" to reinforce the troops at the front to keep Canada from dropping out of the war. That issue was so great that it almost eliminated party spirit. It brought the Anglo-Saxon population of Canada almost en masse to the support of a Government pledged to put that policy into practice. It brought Sir Robert Borden from the verge of a political grave to the leadership of a Government with an overwhelming majority

PARTIALLY ENFORCED.

And the net result is that Sir Robert Borden and his huge majority sit in their places evidently content to appoint commissions, war boards and food controllers, and consider their duty to the boys in the trenches carried out by the partial enforcement of the Military Service Act. The act has so far drafted 30,000 men, and is continuing to draft them almost fast enough to provide for the ordinary percentage of wastage. According to the present figures, the daily returns from the whole of Canada is about 200 men, and to put the whole thing in a nutshell, the entire number of men to reach England by reason of the Military Service Act will hardly fill the places of the casualties in the first big battle in which the Canadians are engaged.

FULFILLING PURPOSE?

Is this fulfilling the purpose for which Union Government was elected? Is this sufficient to allow the Government to be satisfied with the work it has done, and devote its time to voting supply and buying furniture and rugs for the offices of its numerous boards and commissions?

To ask the question that the 152 members of the Unionist party have failed to ask: Why is not the Military Service Act providing the men it was expected to provide?

The men in charge of the enforcement of that act are the only ones who could give a complete if not satisfactory answer to this question.

HAVEN'T BEEN ASKED.

They will not answer unless asked. You can't expect Opposition members to ask it. They did not want conscription, and they are not being given what they did not want, and all the more so that the great majority of them come from Quebec, where the enforcement of the Act has been a farce. It must, therefore, be asked by a Unionist, and it must be answered by the Government.

Meanwhile, it might not be amiss to point out one or two of the things that is causing the Act to produce such poor results—things that are on the surface, and can be seen without the aid of a government searchlight. One of these is that the enforcement is entrusted to three different departments as follows: (1) Military, (2) Agriculture, (3) Legal.

HARD TO GET THEM.

And the least of these is the military. It is easy enough to conscript a man but it is hard to get him into khaki, and, having got him into khaki, it is sometimes a harder thing to keep him there.

The reasons for which a man could be exempted were numerous enough to provide more appeals than soldiers possibly double the number all told. The consequence is that while 30,000 men are provided to fight for their country in France, probably 50,000 more are waging the war for civilization in the appeal courts of Canada.

APPEALS POUR IN.

The Central Appeal Board in Ottawa has now a staff of about 70 men, about 15 of them lawyers, who review the case for the central appeal judge. These appeals are pouring in till this court with its splendid strength is probably the most congested court in Canada. Five hundred appeals from the Toronto district are said to have been received in one week. What Quebec will finally furnish in this line cannot even be guessed. It remains to be seen whether the local tribunals even made work for the central appeal judge. For they tell some funny stories of the work of some of the Quebec local tribunals. In one village it is said the local tribunal were presented with hand bags by the admiring populace because they had succeeded in exempting every man in the village. Even in Ottawa, it is alleged, out of the hundred and ten lawyers, only one was found fit for military service.

PUBLIC SHOULD KNOW.

Now, if the Military Service Act was meant to furnish work for lawyers rather than soldiers for the front, the public have a right to know it. They will never find it out while 152 members of Parliament elected to send help to the boys in the trenches, sit silent in their seats.

Lloyd George is appealing to President Wilson to hurry reinforcements to France. The war is at its crisis, and Canada's Parliament is too deeply interested in whether the hired man will call it a day at five o'clock in the afternoon or whether Sir Thos. White is coming back, to ask where are the 100,000 reinforcements that Sir Robert Borden was elected to send overseas.

GOT RID OF BRONCHITIS.

Mr. W. H. Walker, Calmar, Alta., writes: "I am pleased to say that Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine has done much good to myself, wife and children. My eldest girl, seven years old, had bronchitis and the doctor who attended her did not seem to do much good. We got Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine for her and she soon got well. We always keep this medicine in the house now ready for use and find that it soon cures coughs and colds."

How Laplanders Bathe.

In the Wide World Magazine Frank Hedges Butler describes a vapor bath in the Land of the Laps. He says:

"The bath house is a small wooden structure, generally situated some way from the dwelling house. It is divided into two compartments, one in which to undress, while the other contains the oven which produces the steam. The oven is arched with large stones or pebbles and heated by a fire placed beneath. Undressing in the first room, one enters the heated compartment. After a short rest on a wooden form or bench, which contains a place for the head, the attendants come in and bathe you. Cold water is thrown over the red hot stones and the hissing vapor soon sends up a cloud of steam.

"The higher you sit from the floor the greater the heat. As more water is thrown over the red hot stones the vapor becomes so intense that one can hardly breathe. We were soon gasping for breath and covered with a profuse perspiration which issued from every pore of the skin.

"Hanging up in the room were tender branches or twigs in a green state and retaining their leaves. Dipping these in water the attendant began lashing and whipping me across the legs, shoulders, loins and back, till my body seemed quite red with the switching. The bastinadoing over, I was then washed with a soft flannel covered with soap, after which a jug of the coldest water was thrown over my head and body."

MARVELLOUS SURGERY.

Yachts and Merchant Ships Turned Into Hospitals.

The British navy is so nearly on a war footing at all times that the transition from peace to war was not marked by those violent dislocations and reorganizations involved in the formation and training of the army. Each warship was already provided with its complement of medical officers, hospital corps and medical and surgical supplies, while several large base hospitals were already in existence, with considerable reserve equipment. The principal change necessitated by the outbreak of war was the fitting out and manning of hospital ships and additional base hospitals. For this purpose a number of private yachts and merchantmen were taken over by the navy. Many surgeons were also taken into the navy and given temporary commissions.

During the last year of peace, we learn from Arthur W. May in The British Journal of Surgery for July, 1917, nearly 5,000 operations were performed in the naval hospitals on shore, exclusive of dental operations and injections of salavarsan. During the year 1916, 9,000 surgical operations were performed in the naval hospitals and hospital ships. Of this number over 800 were abdominal cases, including 627 cases of appendicitis and fifty-five of gastric or intestinal perforation. Operations for the relief of disabilities were numerous. Hernia was represented by 1,341 cases. Less common operations were mastoidectomy and operations on the nose and eye; on the kidneys, bladder and prostate, and on the liver, gall-bladder and gall ducts. Many cases of bone planting and wiring are recorded. Spinal analgesias has been employed on several occasions, and local analgesia is becoming more frequently used for rib resections, varicose veins, etc.

In the British service the newcomer is first assigned to hospital duty ashore, where he can learn much about navy customs and navy routine. He is then sent abroad in a large ship as an assistant and later transferred to a smaller ship, where his experience will have taught him how to act as the sole medical officer. Many advanced medical students have served as probationary surgeons, and as such have been placed in medical charge of scouts, destroyers and other small craft, with distinct advantage to the service, their work as a whole having proved most satisfactory. In the larger base hospitals research has been carried forward in spite of the war, and the practical value of the Carrel-Dakin treatment of wounds has been the subject of investigation by a special commission of experts.

Says an inside bath, before breakfast helps us look and feel clean, sweet, fresh.

Sparkling and irivacious—merry, bright, alert—a good, clear skin and a natural, rosy, healthy complexion are assured only by pure blood. If only every man and woman could be induced to adopt the morning inside bath, what a gratifying change would take place. Instead of the thousands of sickly anaemic-lookin- men, women and girls, with pasty or muddy complexions; instead of the multitudes of "nerve wrecks," "rundowns" "brain fags" and pessimists we should see a virile, optimistic throng of rosy-cheeked people everywhere.

An inside bath is had by drinking each morning, before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and ten yards of bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour fermentations and poisons before putting more food into the stomach.

Those subject to sick headache, biliousness, nasty breath, rheumatism, colds; and particularly those who have a pallid, sallow complexion and who are constipated very often, are urged to obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store which will cost but a trifle, but is sufficient to demonstrate the quick and remarkable change in both health and appearance, awaiting those who practice internal sanitation.

Defeated In Moral Sphere.

While the German victories that prolong the war are inflicting frightful damage upon the peoples of Europe and suffering upon the world at large, they are not leading to success or stability for the German cause. They are merely convincing the world of the necessity of a supreme effort to break down the German program of audacity and violence. Even worse than her losses of man power—an attrition that must be felt more, rather than less, from this time on—is her loss of standing in a world which sets more store by justice and right than ever before. Germany's methods in warfare, intended to provoke exemplary fear, have aroused the world's intense reprobation. Her corrupt propaganda, the horrid trails of which are being traced and exposed in every country, have had the most detrimental effect upon the German repute. No great country has ever so rapidly fallen from a place of honor to one of low esteem. Every year, every month, that prolongs the struggle brings Germany lower in the opinion of mankind. This, of course, applies to the German Government and its policies; to the military and naval leaders of Germany and their atrocious methods; and to the religious and educational leaders, with their false doctrines and their insane tribunal egotism.—American Review of Reviews.

Pigs of Wessex Sight to See

STRAIGHT over the heathy Wessex ridge the road dropped and became a wooded lane, then turning swerved into a thatched hamlet, whose name it is useless to repeat because even those versed in the rich nomenclature of English villages would hardly believe in it. In the tiny street, one's bicycle picked its way through a scurry of gigs, waggonettes, and small motors. Some hidden attraction drew all footsteps to the roomiest building in the place.

There in the big barn, high-pitched and shapely, at a long table that lost itself in dimness, sat the farmers, fed feeding like one. The great door on the road was open, and the brilliant noonday sunshine threw a clear square on the floor within it, just reaching to the nearest corner of the table. The sashes of a window set above the door were patterned on this glowing space of light. Further in, the only illumination was from windows in the deep embrasures to right and left, the crossings of transepts of the barn. There jugs were filled, joints carved, and the tables secretly replenished. It was a fine scene out of the Wessex novels. The difficulty with which you grope among modernized settings for the old landmarks, old habits, and old sayings evaporated like a mist. The past itself reached out and placed this bit of reality before you. One just whispered, "Far From the Madding Crowd," and looked on. The clatter of knives and clink of the glasses testified to the embodied Present; but when you peered into the dim farther end you were not so sure, for the cask there and the farmers lunching near it had taken on the augustness of the old shades.

One word, like a magnet, had drawn most of these atoms together and set up the scene. The word was Pigs. Pigs might seem to have found their paradise already—if it is really true that the pig is the cleanest of all animals—in the new white pigperies, freshly concreted, which ran at an angle to the barn. One large pinky-white animal from Yorkshire panted in the sun there, in majestic isolation from the fair, cocking a cynical eye at the golden thatch on the barn roof opposite. We left him to pant, and sought coolness in the long dairy, where rows of Dutch cows, ranged in their stalls ready for milking, showed their rich markings of black and white, fresh as a clean pack of cards. There out into the sun again, for the barn is empty, luncheon is over, and humanity has assembled itself round the hurdled circle dominated by the auctioneer.

Of all the saleable animals pigs seem the most magnificently free from self-consciousness. It is less than nothing to them that attentive onlookers encircle them, appraise them, and bandy their guineas above the corkscrew tails. On this hot afternoon it is a bore, no doubt, to be prodded quicker than you want to go up the tempting green alley that leads from the pens and to be kept moving round the fenced arena while your fate is in the air. But the pig's eyes are on the ground. By degrees the same indifference communicates itself to the uninitiated beholder. The likeness between the "own sisters" who follow each other beneath the hammer is so remarkable. There is a thrill of interest, on the arrival of the "own brothers to the above," to see how family likeness and sex difference will reveal themselves. The boars show a greater truculence about their "nicely turned-up noses," while their foamy jaws suggest the ferocity of the male.

In spite of ignorance, and sloth, one begins to look out for good hams, nice middles, and tails that are in the right place. There are other things to notice also. Besides the human interest which is never more intense than at an auction, and dread of catching the auctioneer's eye as he detects an advancing bid in the silent lift of an eyelid or the twitch of a shoulder, there is the potent magic of the sale catalogue—the magic of names. It is noble to call yourself the Boadicea or Katharine of Aragon of your dairy. There is mystery, faintly tinged with sacrilege, in "Bishop of Bookham," and a richly alliterative assonance about "Halo of Hammonda."

Wessex is, indeed, transmuted. Behind me, as I came back to the auction, were the Germans; and in the dairy, about the fields, among the pigs were women landworkers and farming probationers, who are much to the fore here. The sale was nearly over. The "middle whites" had been followed by the "large blacks," and these by heifers and two black and white Dutch bulls—but not, I was relieved to find, by the black giant who had freely yielded his tremendous forehead and broad muzzle to my stroking. The pigs were entering vehicles to be conveyed to their destinations. It was time for tea—the leisurely farmhouse tea that washes out afternoon heats and is perfected with a lounge over pools of the tiny river, while the sun slopes downwards and warms you at last to get into the saddle. As I passed the opening of a lane, a group of prisoners came hurrying to catch the lorry, and one or two had thrown overcoats about their shoulders, for the September chill, promising a morrow as fine or finer, was in the air.—London Times.

A Free Buffet.

No fewer than 1,400,000 soldiers and sailors passing through London on their way to or from the front have received a meal at Lady Limerick's free buffet at London bridge station. Since May, 1915, fighting men, including many wounded and convalescent, have never asked in vain for refreshment. Funds are now running low, and the people are asked to help in supplying the little comforts that are offered at London bridge.

LADIES! DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

Use Grandma's Sage Tea and Sulphur Recipe and Nobody Will Know

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural color dates back to grandmother's time. She used it to keep her hair beautifully dark, glossy and attractive. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

But brewing at home is mussy and out-of-date. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for a 50-cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get this famous old preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients, which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well known downtown druggist says it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, it becomes beautifully dark and glossy.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire a more youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

Royal Autographs Go Cheap.

The bidding for royal autograph letters contained in the Morrison collection offered at Messrs. Sotheby's rooms in London recently, showed less reverence for the dignities of royalty than one would have expected a few years ago.

A letter written by Queen Christina of Sweden sold for £3 8s. The bidding for a letter of Catherine de Medici began at 3s. and ended at £3. A letter to Louis XIII. from Charles I., signed by the latter, made only five guineas, while an autograph description of the battle of Marston Moor was bought for £300.

Sovereigns In Bolivia.

Bolivia has a strange connection with Great Britain in the fact that the English sovereign is the standard gold coin, remarks the London Chronicle. This is minted from local gold at the capital of the country, La Paz, along with the Peruvian half sovereign, which also is legal tender. Although Bolivia is as yet quite a "new" country and has not had time to adopt a coinage of her own, she has found an opportunity of establishing state monopolies on alcohol, spirituous liquors and tobacco, rendering the prohibition of them at any time an easy matter.

AN INDEPENDENT ISLAND.

A Community In United States Has No Country.

There is at least one community in the United States which is not bothered by politics, and that is Loud's Island, down off the Maine coast. The people do not vote, do not pay taxes, have no form of government whatever. Loud's, which is inhabited by twenty-five or thirty fishing families, who are "agin guvmint" and have been "agin" it so long that they are now "out in their ways," "seceded" from the United States in 1860. At Lincoln's first election in the fall of that year the islanders voted with Bristol, the nearest mainland town, but on some constitutional grounds their ballots were thrown out. This started something at Loud's Island. Having thus been deprived of the right of suffrage the people, acting upon the advice of a lawyer, refused to pay taxes. And, as these sturdy fishermen were of a determined nature, that ultimatum ended the controversy.

When the draft was made for the Civil War a few years after the trouble with Bristol, Loud's Island names were placed in the same box with those of the mainland town, and, not being properly shaken up, came out on top. As a result nine men from the possible forty-five were drawn from the island to fill Bristol's quota. This was "rubbing it in" just a little too freely for the fishermen's tastes. They congregated in a mass and unanimously refused to honor the draft. When the Government officers came to the island to perform their official duties, they were given a rather hot reception. The irate mothers of the drafted boys greeted them with a fusilade of rocks, hot potatoes, and other missiles, and forbade them to land. The officers didn't land! Later the islanders met and made a proportional draft among themselves. They favored the North, but did not want to fight, and so the draftees furnished substitutes.

Thus the island has remained as practically a nonpolitical unit. The only local expense is for the support of the school, and that is maintained wholly by the State of Maine.

About a year ago the Maine authorities, thinking that it was about time for a change in the state of affairs at Loud's Island, requested the people to either incorporate their island as a plantation or annex it to some town. The islanders refused to do either. As the constitution of the state did not empower the officials with the authority to force the islanders to comply with their request, the only thing for them to do was to accept the decision of the fishermen and content themselves by finding a possible way by which to assess the real estate on the island for a state tax. The people of the island intend to fight to the bitter end against even this change in the present "highly satisfactory" conditions.

When the United States declared war against Germany the inhabitants of Loud's Island did not worry very much. They had kept out of the Civil War and would do likewise in this conflict. Congress passed the draft law, and still Loud's Island remained "neutral." When the draft machinery began to operate, the young men of the island were "requested" to register. As the people were beginning to condemn the Kaiser for his inhuman practices, they decided to accept Uncle Sam's "invitation" and help him crush German militarism. Loud"s nine men of the draft age registered, and thus the island became one of the allies.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

The Husking Bee

By Sarah Estelle Balcom

The husking bee was at its height of jollity and excitement when Ned Dawson was lifted to the seventh heaven of ecstacy. All the evening he had moved about and made a show of stripping the long crisp ears of corn, with eyes only for Arline Woolson.

Three times she had brought to view a red ear and had been speedily captured by her male companion. Then, with pain and longing Ned had seen a kiss stolen from her damask cheek.

Just now he was passing her. The seat beside her was vacant. She darted a bright glance as this shy, but deserving suitor at a distance. She drew aside the skirt of her tasteful merino dress invitingly, making room for him.

"Oh, thank you!" he almost gasped, and amid his confusion upset the high basket between them. Then he nervously set at work at the basket to his left, so dazed, yet happy, that he was all at sea.

"Why, you are helping the next girl and she has a partner," cried Arline, with a sweet trilling laugh. "This is your husking basket. I have found three red ears already."

"I—I wish they were all red ears," stammered Ned, and then at the playful, yet seemingly childing glance of Arline he dropped his eyes, abashed. She forgave him by sitting up close to him, a teasing curl about the corners of her merry lips.

"I—I am going to the dance up at Bartley's Saturday evening," he happened to say, and halted there.

"I hope you will have a splendid time," said Arline.

"If I only had company," he began, and blushed like a school boy, and felt the ordeal of the moment too much for him.

"There is your sister," suggested Arline heartlessly. "I don't know better company anywhere than Edna. Oh, dear!"

"A red ear!" rang out an excited chorus.

"Catch her, quick, Dawson!" shouted his neighbor. "She runs like a fawn."

This time that was just what Arline did. She was out of sight by the time Ned had crossed the threshold of the big double barn doors.

"Coo-ee!" rang out her clear, tantalizing tones from covert. Then the flashing edge of her dress guided him to a thicket. Thence a sight of twinkling, aggravating feet led him to where a heap of hay shut her out. Round and round the yard, with all its numerous hiding places, he pursued, to find no further trace of her.

He came back to the barn and unobtrusively regained his seat. Amid the dancing that had now begun, he was unnoticed. He looked eagerly, but vainly for Arline. His heart sank. "She did not want me to kiss her, but she let the others!" he choked up.

Then his eye lit upon the red ear at his feet that Arline had dropped in her flight. He darted a searching glance all about. No one was looking. Ned seized the precious reminder of bright smiles and dancing eyes, thrust it guiltily into his bosom, arose, went outside and started drearily for home with a muffled sob.

"It's strange, Arline," said Ned's sister confidentially, meeting her friend on the street a few days later, "but Ned is acting peculiarly. Mother says he is in love. If he is, he keeps it close to himself, but mother found some kernels of red corn in his bed. Well, I watched, and what do you think? Ned puts an ear of red corn under his pillow every night. I saw him take it off from the bureau last night and kiss it."

Arline looked sedate, almost solemn.

"Yes," she murmured, "he must have met some girl at the husking bee who struck his fancy."

"But it don't seem to make him very happy. Ned mopes around evenings, don't go anywhere and has written to a friend in the city to find him a position."

"Oh, he mustn't leave, Edna," cried Arline, and then checked herself. "I—I mean he shouldn't," corrected Arline, blushing furiously. "He is just the nicest young man in town."

Then Arline hurried away unceremoniously, and turning a corner, and out of sight of Edna, she brushed her eyes suspiciously.

"Poor fellow! and it is frivolous, heartless me who has done all this wicked harm," she choked up. "Oh, dear, and how can I mend it?"

Arline tried to, at any rate. She made it a point to stroll about the streets where there was a chance of meeting Ned. Once she saw him a square distance, coming her way, and set her face to look its prettiest and most winning, but evidently Ned had noticed her and turned into a side lane.

"I have broken his heart and he despises me," wailed the unhappy Arline.

Two days after that Arline saw Ned, with bowed head and wretched mien, pass the house. He disappeared where a stretch of woods began. She followed him.

Ned came to a fallen tree, took out a pocket knife and began digging in the soft, yielding earth beside it. His lips were set grimly. His face was a map of blank despair. He took from his bosom the red ear of corn.

"The funeral of all my hopes," he mourned, and placed the red ear in the hole he had dug.

Then he lifted the prized token of the husking bee to his lips. Sadly, but reverently, he held it there for a moment. He closed his eyes in mournful thought.

And all the time Arline was in sight and hearing. She had stolen after him into the wood, troubled with maidenly scruples, tempered, however, with a sense of culpability that stirred her heart to kinder emotions. Then, not five feet away from Ned, she peered through a screen of vines, wondering, curious, interested, and finally her soul was stirred to the depths at what she observed.

It might have been ludicrous, this mock burial, to a callous woman of the world, but to gentle, sensitive Arline the circumstance was intensely soulful and pathetic.

"Yes, I will leave home," spoke Ned half audibly. "I must forget her. I may in time and—good bye! good-bye!"

Gently he brushed the earth over the cherished red ear, as though he were shutting from sight and memory the most sacred memento of his first love experience.

"Don't oh, please, don't."

Ned Dawson lifted his eyes to gaze transfixed. Arline had burst through the frail foliage. She was at his side, timid, though resolute, flushed and pale by turns, the ring of real pathos in her mellow accent, the glow of true love in her bonny eyes.

"Why, Arline," stammered the poor fellow. "You here!"

"I followed you," voiced Arline in a wild flutter.

"And run away from me that night of the husking bee, and let the other fellows kiss you, and not me. You did not run away from them."

"Because I did not love them—can't you see?"

"But—you—did—me?"

She covered her burning face with both hands and kept it from tell-tale view. In muffled tones she sobbed out:

"You won't go away from home?"

"I'll stay here all my life, if you tell me to," he cried, and his soul seemed lifted to the heights.

"You didn't kiss me at the husking bee," whispered Arline, "but—"

"I may now," and her lips, not her cheek, met his in true love submission.

WOMAN SAVED MUCH SUFFERING

By taking Friend's Advice and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

West Plains, Mo.—"I was all run down in health, had indigestion and terrible cramps every month so I was unable to do anything. I had tried every doctor in West Plains, also every remedy I could think of, without relief. One day when I was suffering greatly a friend was at my house and said, 'Why don't you try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?' So I did, and through it, I found relief from my suffering and I really believe it saved my life. It does not seem as though I can say enough in praise of this wonderful medicine for the health it has brought me."—Miss CORA LEE HALL, West Plains, Mo.

Perhaps it may seem an extravagant statement to say that this great remedy saved a life; but women like Mrs. Hall, to whom it has brought health, appreciate the danger and suffering they have escaped too well to doubt it! All who suffer should try it. Why risk life and health without it?

LIVE CHIEFLY ON TURTLES

Residents of Small Islands Off Coast of Ceylon Find Plenty of Food Near at Hand.

A correspondent of a Ceylon journal gives some interesting information about the turtles on the coast in the neighborhood of Jaffna, in the north of the island, which are said to be innumerable. They are of three species, called sea, milk and pariah turtles, respectively.

The ordinary, or sea turtle, is generally large in size, and is met with everywhere at sea around Jaffna. Two tiny islands, called Iranativu, are literally swarming with the creatures.

The islands themselves are sterile and always exposed to inundation; the inhabitants are poor and ignorant of agriculture, and live chiefly on the turtles. They use the shells of the large ones as seats.

In the town of Jaffna the ordinary turtle is always procurable, and is a favorite article of food with the people. The milk turtle is small in size and is to be found only in wells and banks. It is not an article of food except with the poorer classes. The pariah turtle has a high back, and a shell which somewhat resembles that of the tortoise. It is found in marshes and ditches. It is not an article of food, but is highly valued by native medical men, because its flesh and blood are supposed to be a panacea for ailments peculiar to children.

Burns Inconsistent in Love.

Burns' love affairs were both the product and the inspiration of his genius. Although he had written to Clarinda of Edinburgh that, compared with her, Jean Armour was as the expiring glimmer of a farthing taper beside the glory of the meridian sun, he married Jean within two months. Last year at Sotheby's a letter written a week after his marriage, vindicating Jean entirely, fetched $550. Later a curious Burns letter was offered, dated June 26, 1788 (Burns was married August 3, 1788), in which he states: "I have waited on Mr. Auld about my marriage affair and stated that I was legally fined for an irregular marriage by a justice of the peace. He says if I bring an attestation of this by the two witnesses there shall be no more litigation about it." The "legal" marriage which followed August 3 was apparently the solution of the trouble. Doubts raised in the auction room as to the authenticity of the letter were dispelled.—London Telegraph.

Johnson Letters Sold.

The collection of autographs, letters and historical manuscripts, including a series of 200 letters from Dr. Johnson to Mrs. Thrall, were recently sold. The highest single price was £76, paid for the finest and longest letter from Johnson to Mrs. Thrall, dated 1772. Another realized £47. The letter to Mrs. Thrall dealing with American affairs sold for £35.

Your Bad Taste In The Morning Is Due To Catarrh

Destroy This Poisonous Disease Before Your Health is Seriously Injured.

Perhaps you haven't thought of calling those unpleasant symptoms that affected your nose and throat by any particular name—but it's Catarrh just the same.

When the attack is severe, your eyes are watery and look weak. Your breath is offensive, due to inflammation in the nose and throat.

At last science has discovered a real remedy, a new scientific marvel which acts like no other Catarrh remedy on earth. "Catarrhozone" operates on a new plan; it is a direct remedy, goes instantly to the source of the trouble. Its rich, fragrant essences and healing balsams are breathed in vapour form through a special inhaler and give instant relief.

Catarrhozone doesn't stop at the relief stage— it goes further—keeps on going till a cure is effected. Bad cases are cured, as you can judge from the following letter:—"Every morning for six months last winter I awoke with a bad taste, an awful breath and stuffed up feeling in my nostrils," writes Bob E. Rutland, of Regina. "It was simply an awful case of chronic Catarrh. Relief first came from Catarrhozone. I used that inhaler twenty times a day and took it to bed with me at night. I am cured, and by the use of Catarrhozone stay well. Now I am free from irritable throat trouble, coughs, colds, headache, or catarrh."

"There's a Time to Fight."

Miss Miriam, who will be seven years old soon, knows that little girls should not fight but she is not a "pacifist" for all that. A few days ago she was taken to task by her mother for engaging in a pugilistic encounter with another little girl. "Well, mother," she said, "I don't know whether she hit me first, but I know that if I hit her she deserved it, for that child's mother never has brought her up properly."

On another occasion she complained that a small boy of her acquaintance had kicked her, but admitted on being pressed that she had not done much first, "only pinched and slapped his face a little." She was told to tell the boy's father, so the boy might be punished, but to be sure and tell what she had done, too. The father is still waiting for the report.—Indianapolis News.

Education Not a Prerequisite.

Charles Darwin was a misfit child, a misfit youth, and a misfit in young manhood. He failed miserably in mathematics, the classics, and in theology. He was an indifferent student of medicine, yet when at last he was guided into the paths of his natural capacities he soon became the foremost naturalist of his age and probably of any age before or since.

Emerson was an educational misfit, and so were Froebel and General Grant, and the list of distinguished men in all walks of life who were misfits in childhood might easily be extended almost indefinitely. They prove conclusively that much of what is commonly called education is not a prerequisite for success in life.

An Unfailing Sign.

"My dear, this child is going to have plenty of spirit in his voice."

"How can you tell that now?"

"Because already it shows a tendency to high bawls."

NINE BOILS

Kept Coming On Neck One After the Other

Anyone who has ever suffered from boils, knows how sick and miserable they make you feel.

When you think you are about cured of one, another seems ready to take its place and prolong your wretchedness. All the poulticing and lancing you may do will not cure them and stop more coming.

Boils are simply bad blood bursting out, and the bad blood has be made pure before the boils disappear.

Burdock Blood Bitters is the greatest blood purifier known. It cleanses the system and removes every particle of foul material from the blood, then never another boil comes and the cure is permanent.

Mr. Geo. Ayers, 302 Gloucester St., Ottawa, Ont., writes: "I wish to tell you what I know about your wonderful Burdock Blood Bitters. In the spring I suppose my system needed cleaning out, for I had nine boils come on my neck one after the other. I quickly got a bottle of B.B.B., and before it was half finished I felt a great change, and it certainly put an end to my boils, otherwise I might have had a lot more. I recommend B.B.B. to all I can, for I know it to be a great remedy."

Short Work Is Now Made Of German "Pill Boxes" By the British Fighters

THE business of attacking the German "pillboxes" has been reduced almost to a mathematical science by the British army. Pillboxes which are not "done in" by the big guns in the preliminary bombardment are rushed by the infantry and a grenade is dropped through one of the loopholes.

An attack on a little section of German line a few days ago illustrated the anti-pillbox technique. The attack was made under desperate weather conditions. A cold wind cut through the men's drenched clothing and heavy raindrops stung their numbed faces. The line of craters and shell holes which the advanced British troops held was thigh deep in water and mud, while sections of a hastily raised sandbag parapet kept slipping down as the sodden earth gave way.

The waiting men were almost deafened by the overhead blast of the artillery drumfire. The orders of the officers could hardly be heard a few feet away and had to be shouted down from crater to crater along the irregular line.

The men had been ready for a long time, but in these modern battles all depends upon the guns, and everything must wait for them to finish off their work. At last the moment came, whistles blew faintly, inarticulate voices sounded and the fire curtain lifted so that the earth of the first objectives lay quiescent and smoking — no longer spouting in black, flame-shot plumes toward the sky.

There was no instant leaping from the trench. Men clambered cumbrously up the slippery sides of the craters, falling on hands and knees in the mud. Here and there a soldier helped a falling comrade to regain his balance. Voices cursed, laughed, or complained. Non-commissioned officers urged on their sections, and the attack was launched. Right and left the ploughed and cratered surface of the barren earth seemed to disgorge men who moved slowly, some at wide intervals, some grouped together circling the edge of some quagmire.

Noises were confused and indistinct; enemy shells burst overhead, but their report was drowned by the thunder of the British barrage. Somewhere up-wind smoke bombs had been lighted and the wind carried down a protecting veil of mist and the acid scent of chemicals. An occasional man fell face downward in the mud; others, not so badly hit, rolled into the deceptive cover of water-filled craters to flounder there until stretcher-bearers could recover them. Unwounded men who had been engulfed in mudholes to the thighs appealed to comrades to pull them clear; but the wind bore their voices away and the ranks plodded on unheeding.

Gradually the men struggled up the crest of the rise, panting. Concrete pillbox gun emplacement bulged shattered and exposed among the craters.

One pillbox atop the crest was still in action. From its mound of earth came the familiar rat-tat-tat, and the air seemed full of the whiplash of bullets. Some one shouted and gesticulated. The men broke into a shambling run. A hand grenade burst in the mud a yard or two short of the embrasure; then like a pack of hounds men crowded forward to the quarry.

A section circled the rear and rifle firing broke out at close quarters. Bullets were aimed at the slits, and the bullets that went true ricochetted inside the pillbox in search of their targets. Suddenly a wild figure in khaki appeared gesticulating on the doomed concrete top, knelt and threw something through the embrasure. A moment and the narrow slit spouted flame. Smoke wreathed the group. Then all was quiet.

Three minutes later, two wounded British soldiers were keeping watch over the three remaining live members of the captured garrison. The wave of attack had passed on and the pillbox had fallen.

Wealth and Poverty.

Wealth as well as poverty has its hardships—a species of isolation which limits choice comradeships and in some circumstances is very depressing; a suspicion as to the motives of courtesies extended, the sincerity of praise given, and the genuineness of friendship.

"Will you marry me?" he said. She blushed.

"There is really no time to lose. You see, I have only 24 hours' notice. I must report at headquarters tomorrow at nine. We sail for France in three days. Will you marry me?"

"I don't mind," she said. "Only—I should like to make one condition."

"And this is?"

"I have dreamed for years of getting married; but not in this way. But I will marry you if—when you return—you will propose to me all over again, and we can go on a honeymoon, and I can be courted, and—well, you know, I am sure!"

"All right," he said with a smile. "To be honest with you, dearest, I thought I was going to escape all that—but I see it's no use. I might have known better. Even a war like this cannot keep a woman from having her own way—especially about a wedding."

EVELYN HEARS A COMPLAINT

CHAPTER XXIX.

The remainder of our luncheon passed off pleasantly. George really exerted himself to please and entertain me. After I left him at the office, I ordered the chauffeur to stop at Evelyn's. I wanted to show her my pearls.

"Oh, you lucky girl!" she exclaimed. "They're perfectly lovely!"

Then I told her of my dinner party of the new dress George had ordered for me.

"He is very generous, isn't he?" she asked.

"Very! But, Evelyn, it isn't everything! Wait until I tell you that horrid Mrs. Sexton is to plan my dinner and, worst of all, she has even selected a new maid for me. George has hired a butler, and insists that I need a lady's maid. I begged him to let me keep Annie, but he says she isn't competent. Annie is to be parlour maid."

"You'll have quite an establishment, won't you?"

"Isn't it horrid? I just hate the idea of all these servants in the house. I'll never have a minute's privacy."

"Oh yes you will! You'll soon learn how to manage them."

"Yes— with that Mrs. Sexton to teach me," I said bitterly. Then, "I don't know what I should do if I didn't know you. And so have someone to tell my troubles to. I owe Merton Gray an everlasting vote of thanks for bringing you to call on me that day."

Merton is Eulogized.

"So do I! When I agreed to go with him that day, I did so thinking only that it was nice of him to ask me; not that I should find a dear friend. I knew Mr. Howard was very different from the men in our set, more dignified and well, and —highbrow, and I thought that you were probably like him."

"Me highbrow!" I interrupted with a laugh. "I'm anything but that, although I may be some day. I surely will if George has his way with me. But isn't Merton Gray a dear? He goes with those people too, George's set, but he seems to enjoy us just as much."

He certainly is a darling, Helen, but I sort of imagine he wouldn't like us so well were you not one of us. Don't blush; there's nothing wonderful about his admiring you. Most any man would. And he's an artist you know."

"I never think of him as an artist, Evelyn," I returned. "I just think of him as I would of any nice young fellow who makes himself agreeable. He has been awfully nice to me. George likes him, too!" I added, fearing I was saying too much in favour of this friend who had made things pleasant for me.

"Kurts does too. But who are you to have to your dinner?"

An Embarrassing Question.

"I don't know! George said we would make out the list later. I suppose that means that Mrs. Sexton and he will make it out," I said bitterly. I was embarrassed, terribly so. Would George let me invite Evelyn and Kurts? I doubted it, and it made me so miserable that I almost immediately left, sorry that I had stopped in, or that I said anything to Evelyn anent the dinner until after I had talked with George.

"Who shall we have as guests at our dinner, George?" I asked. He had been very approachable all through dinner and I thought it a good time to broach the subject.

"Let me see!" and taking out pencil and paper he commenced to check off the names of those he wished to invite. The same crowd practically, that were at Mrs. Loring's.

"But you haven't mentioned Kurts and Evelyn," I said boldly, my heart in my mouth, however, at my daring.

"They are too young for this dinner, and"—

"But George it will be such a slight! They were so very nice to me— have been, ever since I met them. Please have them for my sake. I shall be so embarrassed if you don't."

"No—they would not fit in at all. But don't look so distressed. You can give another dinner just as soon as you like and invite them."

"Oh, may I? And will you promise me to come to my dinner?" I asked, thinking that this dinner wasn't mine anyway. It was his and Mrs. Sexton's."

"Yes, I promise," and I knew he would keep his word. I think George was a little sorry for me, that night, when he saw how desperately I wanted to have Evelyn and Kurts.

"That's fine! Thank you," I returned as calmly as I could, for my joy in his promise.

"Now we'll forget them, if you please, until after our first dinner is over. And, stooping over, he kissed me, telling me to go to bed as he would be late.

Oh, how I wanted to ask where he was going, when he left me so nonchalantly night after night! But I didn't dare. Our only really, really serious quarrel had been because I questioned him.

To-morrow—The Last Straw.

Military Service Act

Important Announcement to All

EXEMPTED MEN

and to the Public Generally

IN dealing with the very large number of claims for exemption brought forward for consideration in connection with Class 1 under the Military Service Act, it has occurred, as was inevitable, that as a result of false statements and difficulties put in the way of investigation, some individuals have secured exemption whose proper place is in the Army.

It is not the intention of the Government to allow these men to evade permanently their obligation to bear their part in the military defence of the Country and of the ideals for which we are fighting. To do so would defeat the purpose of the Act, and cause grave injustice to men in the second class necessarily called out to fill their places.

Exemptions Granted on False Grounds

It is, therefore, proposed to scrutinize carefully all exemptions granted to date in order to separate those which have been granted on false or insufficient grounds from those that are well founded.

With this object in view the various Registrars under the Military Service Act have been instructed to issue a series of questionnaires to exempted men. These questionnaires must be filled up correctly and returned promptly under penalty of forfeiture of exemption for failure to do so.

Exempted Men Who Have Changed Address

It is therefore important in their own interest that all exempted men who have changed their address since their exemption was granted and who have not already notified the Registrar of such change should notify him at once. Under the Regulations it is the duty of exempted men to keep the Registrar advised of any change of address, and failure to receive the questionnaire by reason of neglect of this duty must be treated as equivalent to failure to return the questionnaire after receipt.

Citizens Urged to Assist

In many instances information has been furnished by members of the public which has led to the cancellation of exemptions obtained by false or misleading statements. Further co-operation of this character is invited. The Government regard it as the Duty of all loyal citizens, not only to the Country, but to the men at the front, to assist in this way in securing reinforcements on a just and legal basis. Correspondence of this character will be treated as strictly confidential and will receive the fullest investigation.

CHARLES J. DOHERTY,
Minister of Justice.

Correspondence should be directed to Major H. P. Cooke, Deputy Registrar under the Military Service Act, Kingston, Ont. 401P

NEW TOMATOES ON THE MARKET

The following comment on the market situation as regards food stuffs appeared in the Canadian Grocer this week:

Decided reductions have been made in many lines of vegetables during the week, potatoes, beets, parsnips, Canadian cabbage and turnips taking a downward turn. A car of Florida tomatoes reached the local market during the week. The first car of Louisiana strawberries is also reported in and they are selling for the pints at 21c. per box. Declines in a number of grades of barreled apples have been made.

Package tea in some quarters has advanced 5c. per pound and another source indicates that higher prices for their lines would not be altogether unexpected. Bulk teas continue to move freely though the higher grade are by no means any too plentiful.

A shipment of 2,000 boxes of Portuguese figs has arrived in the city. This is said to be the only lot of figs of any description which have come from Europe this year. Prunes are very firm and advance of from 1-4 to 1-2c. per pound are reported in some quarters. Evaporated apples have declined owing to Nova Scotia stock being offered more freely.

Package Oats Advance.

An advance in one line of package oats has been reported, new prices for the family size, 20s, reaching $6.35 per case. The market on all package foods is firm though rolled oats is reported hard to get. Shipments of corn reaching the city during the week will result in back orders on cornmeal being largely cleaned up.

Little improvement is shown in the sugar situation conditions remaining about the same as last year. Acadia has advanced 25c., making Extra Granulated now $8.79 per 100 pounds.

A very good demand for canned vegetables exists and orders for the new pack are already being booked. New season's jam, marmalades, etc., are also being booked at open prices. Mill feeds have been affected by the new freight rates and an increase of 40c. per ton has been put into effect. The market on all spices is firm and peppers and cassia are reported very scarce with advances anticipated. Many miscellaneous lines, including cotton wine, cotton clothes lines, bird seed and sweeping compound have registered advances.

FOR BABY'S TENDER SKIN.

A child's skin is tender as well as beautiful and eczema may be caused by chafing of clothing, the use of poor soap, exposure to cold or sudden change of temperature. Probably no treatment for eczema has ever proven so successful as Dr. Chase's Ointment, and this applies particularly to baby eczema. This ointment is delightfully soothing, stops the itching and consequently prevents scratching. Gradually the sores are healed up, and the skin is left soft and velvety.

ACTING PRESIDENT BREAKS WITH THE GREAT WAR VETERANS

Acting President of Dominion Association Starts New Organization—Too Many Officials

TORONTO, March 28.—"I have resigned my position on the executive of the Great War Veterans' Association and also my membership with the Toronto and York District Association, and in future will devote the time at my disposal to the formation of the veterans' organization which has already been named the Great War Comrades' Federation."

In these words James J. Shanahan, acting president of the Dominion Great War Veterans' Association, who is confined to his home seriously ill as the result of an internal hemorrhage, announced his severence with the organization which he has done so much to build up and of which he was one of the original officials in Toronto.

"It has been proposed that a new association be formed, confining the membership to those who have seen service in France, or an actual fighting zone, in addition to the veterans of former wars, who by reason of age or physical disability, were not eligible for participation in the present war. This appeals to a large number who are already members of another organization because some of those who crowd their platforms have not been further than England.

"Already requests from approximately 300 officers in Toronto and more than 1,000 of the rank and file have been received."

"Why have you left the G.W.V.A. to form the new association?" Mr. Shanahan was asked.

SAYS PAID OFFICIALS TOO NUMEROUS.

"A number of us consider a mistake was made in admitting to membership men who have not been further than England.

"Another mistake, which I admit my share in having been guilty of, was in making applications for public funds in the helping of the organization.

"This has resulted in a number of paid officials in Toronto who far outnumber the actual needs.

"Then, again" continued Mr. Shanahan, "the press has constantly reflected the opinions of a small number of publicity hunters who happened to be in official positions. For instance, the report that the conference with representatives of the G.W.V.A. was called by the Premier at Ottawa for the express purpose of considering the alien question was quite inaccurate, in that the communication issued to G.W.V.A. officials by Sir Robert Borden did not even mention the matter.

"It is quite true that the question might have been brought up after some of the representatives invited arrived at the capital," added Mr. Shanahan.

"One thing is my estimation that any citizen should be condemned for, were he a returned soldier a hundred times over, is any attempt to suggest in private, much less to urge on a public platform, that the law should be defied and force resorted to to accomplish any purpose, as was advocated by a G. W. V. at the recent alien demonstration in Massey Hall. Such a course of action can only be Bolshevikism."

More Letters From Gananoque

Scores of People Telling of Their Experience With This Well-known Medicine.

GANANOQUE, Ont., April 1.—More evidence has come to hand today to prove the great good being accomplished in this town by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Mrs. R. W. Henderson, Main St. S., Gananoque, Ont., writes: "I have used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills as a household remedy for about fifteen years, and for kidney and liver troubles have found them excellent. I have also proved that in a case of tonsilitis or severe cold, if given in time, Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills will quickly relieve the patient. I have had experience of this in my own family, and think these pills cannot be equalled."

Mrs. T. H. Harper, River St., Gananoque, Ont., writes: "For quite a number of years we have made use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills in our home. They are an excellent remedy for kidney and liver troubles, and my husband finds they also relieve him of lumbago, from which he sometimes suffers.

"My husband used Dr. Chase's Ointment for itching piles and in a very short time he was completely cured.

"We have also used Dr. Chase's Linseed and Turpentine when the children suffered from coughs and colds, and think it excellent. We have received such good results from the use of Dr. Chase's Remedies that it is a pleasure to recommend them."

UP 200 TO 300 PER CENT.

Washington, March 30.—The cost of living in Germany has increased from 200 to 300 per cent., while the wages of the working people have only increased fifty per cent. Figures of the Bureau of Labour announced show the food cost to the average German family for one week to be $13.01, compared with $5.98 before the war started, or an increase of 117 per cent. Increases in cost of fuel, clothing, shoes and other necessary commodities have increased more rapidly than food.

WOULD EXCLUDE LaFOLETTE.

WASHINGTON, March 30.—Reading from Wisconsin newspapers regarding the senatorial campaign, Senator Williams, Democrat, of Mississippi, said: "That of course refers to Senator La Folette, who ought to be expelled from this body." This was the first declaration ever made in the open Senate for expulsion of the Wisconsin Senator.

German Attacks Were Repulsed, War Office Reports

The Enemy Advance Has Been Stopped At All Points

Enemy's Preparations For An Attack Were Broken Up Up By The Canadians

Massed Fire on the Canadian Front Continued All Day Sunday--Canadians Look to the Future With Confidence --Are Holding Some Difficult Positions--Moreuil Has Been Recaptured by the Germans---This Is the Only Change South of the Somme.

POSITION IS IMPORTANT TO THE ENEMY

(By W. A. Willison, Canadian Press Correspondent.)

CANADIAN ARMY HEADQUARTERS IN THE FIELD, via London, April 1.—On Easter Monday a year ago the Canadian soldiers were moving mightily to the attack and capture of Vimy Ridge.. This Easter Sunday the soldiers of the Dominiono are united with British troops north of the Scarpe in the defense of the southern flanks of those heights which dominate so much of the vital coal areas of Northern France. Canadian guns played a part in defeating the German onslaught against the positions opposite Oppy and Gavrelle last Thursday. Early yesterday morning German preparations for further attack were effectually defeated by the massed fire of our artillery. All Sunday afternoon the southern flank of Vimy stretching out toward Arras, was alive with fire from our guns which rained shells on the enemy's front lines communicating trenches and assembly areas. Our stokes and machine guns were directed chiefly upon hostile communications.

ENEMY ATTACK WAS BROKEN UP.

Our machine guns maintained a hail of fire across "no man's land," and upon the enemy's front line, while our heavy artillery kept up harassing fire for two hours increasing to battle barrage at stated times, when every gun was firing shell upon shell as fast as they could be fed to them. After such concentration of fire the Hun attack never developed, although the unquestioned concentration of troops proves beyond question that Arras and Vimy Ridge are amongst the chief objectives of the enemy's spring offensive.

The Canadians look to the future as I have stated, with morale amongst all ranks which never was higher. Wherever I have gone I have found the same confidence amongst troops of all ranks, and the same determination to be worthy of great credit of Canada's corps. For years our men have waited to take their part in the world's greatest struggle.

THE BRITISH WAR OFFICE REPORT.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

LONDON, April 1.—(Official)—The Germans made two attacks on the British positions in the western outskirts of Albert last evening and in both cases were repulsed, the War Office announces. South of the Somme the enemy persisted in his attempts to advance along the Luce and Avre Valleys, but made little progress. The number of machine guns taken by the British in their attack near Serre on Saturday was 109.

THE FRENCH OFFICIAL REPORT.

PARIS (Official), April 1.—The battle continued with extreme violence last night in the sector north of Montdidier; large bodies of troops being thrown in by the Germans, the War Office announces. French and British troops broke up assaulting waves.

The official statement follows:

Yesterday and last night the battle continued with extreme violence north of Montdidier. The enemy directed his efforts in particular along the front between Montdidier and the Peronne-Amiens Road, and threw forward important forces with the particular object of enlarging his gains west of Hangarden Hanterre. Franco-British troops broke up assaulting waves which were not able to debouch. Brilliant counter-attack in which our Allies gave proof of their valor, enabled the French to throw back the enemy completely and recapture this village. The fighting further south was no less violent. Grivesnes was the objective of powerful attacks which were renewed incessantly leading to hand-to-hand fighting. This town remained in the hands of the French who inflicted considerable losses on the Germans.

WAR PLANES REPORT THE GERMAN OCCUPATION OF MOREUIL AFTER VERY HEAVY FIGHTING

(United Press Service.)

(By William Philip Simms.)

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FRANCE, April 1.—Two O'clock Despatch)—War planes report the German occupation of Moreuil on the right bank of the Avre after heavy fighting. The enemy launched a vicious attack suddenly this afternoon between Moreuil an dDemuin simultaneously entering the town at 3:30 p.m. The Germans are reported moving westward along the Luce Valley having passed Hamgard.

This practically is the only change south of the Somme, but it is important because it brings the enemy that much nearer to the Calais-Paris railway south of Amiens.

This is the first news of the recapture of Moreuil by the Germans. The British War Office Sunday night announced that the Canadian cavalry and British infantry co-operating with French troops regained the position of Moreuil and the wood to the north on Saturday. The city was first taken by the Germans early in the week. The same announcement said the British also had recaptured Demuin about three miles and a half north and east of Moreuil.

The British attack against a German outpost near Aveluy Wood north of Albert met with the stubbornest resistance and hottest machine gun fire from Albert itself, and the British were forced to retire. Other than the heavy shelling of Villers—Bretoneax, nine miles west and south of Amiens on the Amiens-Rosierst railway, and the usual unceasing patrols encounters the battle front is comparatively quiet.

The German attack against Arras and Vimy Ridge, which was a total failure is known to have cost the enemy heavily. The First Guards' reserve regiment last in officers alone the Colonel and nine other officers killed and twenty-one wounded.

Several British batteries fired at the Germans with open sights, cutting long lanes in the German ranks. Machine guns were cut loose and did similar damage. One gun mowed down four hundred and fifty Germans whose bodies were counted afterward.

Sheep, ewes, $13.50 to $15; lambs $19 to $20.50. Hogs, f.a.w., $21. Calves, $15 to $17.

MAKING GOOD AS A DEMONSTRATOR.

A clipping from the "Hemet News" of Redlands contains a reference to Willard Barker, a former Peterborough boy, who is now making a name for himself as an automobile expert and demonstrator. Barker defeated all-comers in one of the biggest events of its kind ever held in Riverside county. He is a nephew of Mrs. C. W. Morton, 213 Stewart Street, and a son of R. J. Barker, of Bailieboro.

PEACE IS RESTORED

Lavergne Tells the Authorities to Take the Military Patrols Off the Streets

BLAMES THE POLICE

QUEBEC, April 1. — The military authorities, under the command of General Lessard, Inspector General of Canada, acting with the Quebec city police, took over the administration (acting with Quebec City police) of the City of Quebec to-day. Plans were drawn up to checkmate the rioting element and also round up the ring leaders who have been fomenting trouble during the past three days.

General Lessard this morning had a consultation with Mayor Lavigneur and Sir Lomer Gouin, Premier of Quebec, in connection with the enforcement of law and order under the regime of military and police.

A careful inquiry was also set on foot into the charges that certain men who are known as professional provincials were sent in from outside points to create disturbances. All public gatherings were forbidden.

Situation in Montreal.

MONTREAL, April 1.—"We don't anticipate any trouble in Montreal," declared Major General Wilson, G.O. C. of No. 4 district, this morning, when asked if any preparations had been made to deal with trouble that might arise in the city as a result of the riot at Quebec. "We are here and if anything happens we will do our duty."

(Canadian Press.)

Quebec, April 1.—Peace has been restored in this city, at least temporarily. The unruly element which has been creating trouble here has accepted an assurance given them by Armand Lavergne, the noted Nationalist politician, that if they desire to be free from attacks by the military, they must not disturb the peace.

Lavergne has also given the military authorities to understand that patrols of the streets by outside battalions should cease, as these military demonstrations antagonzie the people.

"If the military are taken off the streets, put inside ready for an emergency, and administer the law with some tact, I will go into the barracks as a hosage," declared Armand Lavergne in an interview to-day.

After his plea to the rioters last night to disperse without further trouble, Lavergne told a reporter the whole trouble had been caused by a lack of tact on the part of the officials in dealing with the people, the display of military on the streets, and the choosing of men as Dominion Police who are not decent characters.

THREE PERSONS SHOT AND WOUNDED IN SATURDAY NIGHT'S FRACAS.

Quebec, Que., March 31.—Three persons were shot and slightly wounded during a renewal of the anti-conscription riots here to-night. The shooting took place during a mix-up between the rebellious element and soldiers who were removing firearms from a hardware store. The wounded are Arthur Quart and the Misses Roach. They were walking along a street several blocks away from where the melee was taking place.

The military decided to remove all firearms from all hardware stores following the raid on an establishment handling guns and ammunition in the early hours of this morning. The fire arms were taken to the citadel.

The action of the military was resented by the mob faction, and soldiers engaged in the task were pelted with missiles. In one case the rioters set a hardware establishment belonging to Martineau Brothers on fire. The mob was able to reach a store containing weapons before the soldiers and they broke it open. The premises raided belonged to Samson and Filion.

The city is crowded with local and outside troops, and squads of men with fixed bayonets and machine guns are patrolling the uptown and downtown sections of the city. In addition all the buildings that have been attacked, or are considered likely to be attacked, are surrounded by soldiers.

FIGHTING IS OF A LOCAL CHARACTER

Some of the Fighting To-day Took Place During a Thunderstorm and a Rain of Hail.

GERMANS ATTACKED HEAVILY

10.30 A.M. Despatch:

(United Press Service.)

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

(By William Philip Simms.)

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, April 1.—Energetic fighting continues from one end of the line to the other of the battle front, both the British and French being engaged. But opposite the British the fighting is mostly quiet and of a local character. Some of this to-day was done amidst a thunder storm and a rain of hail, typical of April in France. The sun occasionally penetrated the clouds, making the rain drops shimmer in the peace and apple blossoms so abundant on the hillsides along the fighting line. The Germans vainly tried to reach the Paris-Calais railway. They attacked heavily in the region of Moreuil, but were thrown back without progress. The cavalry aided in clearing up the situation in the forest north-east of Moreuil.

FIGHTING AROUND ARRAS.

Fighting similar to this is going on around Arras, in the Ancre Valley at Albert and astride the Somme and Luce.

Low flying war planes, cavalary, artillery and infantry are participating.

The main thing is the enemy has failed to advance worth mentioning, anywhere and losing everywhere, Belgium, the Somme and Moreuil alone, as a small affair, cost them three hundred thousand dead and a defeat.

Troop Movements Are Increasing

One Division Placed Thursday Has Been Moved.

(United Press Service.)

(By Fred S. Ferguson.)

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN THE FIELD, April 1. — Troops movements behind the German lines are increasing. It was learned that one division moved into the trenches on the Toul front Thursday was withdrawn Saturday, presumably going north.

FUNERAL OF THE LATE GEORGE MATHER

The remains of the late George Mather, 347 Charlote street, were laid at rest s afternoon in Little Lake cemetery. Rev. Mr. Rowand officiated at the house where a service was held at 2.30 and at the cemetery. The pall-bearers were Messrs. Benj. McNeeley, J. H. Ferguson, W. G. Reid, Dr. Drummond, Robert Fair, and George E. Elliott. The floral offerings received were many and beautiful, testifying the deep sympathy for the family and esteem of the many friends in the city and country.

GERMAN PRINCE KILLED IN ACTION

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

BERLIN, April 1.—Prince Emich Ernst, elder son of Prince Emich of Leiningen, has been killed in Flanders while leading a storming company of a Grenadier regiment.

FIRE LOSSES FOR THE MONTH

SIXTEEN FIRES DURING THE MONTH OF MARCH.

The loss from fire in the city during March amounted to something less than $125. Of 16 fires during the month only three were of any importance, these the fire on Sunday at Mr. Vinette's house, amounting to $100, and those at Mr. A. E. Dixon's office and Mr. Yenney's home, which each amounted to $10. The other 13 were chimneys. The pulmotor was not called out during the month.

TWO POSSIBILITIES NOW REMAIN OPEN

INITIATIVE OF THE WESTERN BATTLE HAS RETURNED TO ALLIES

Next Phase of the War May Develop Within the Central Empires —"The House of Blood"

VAST GERMAN CEMETERY

(United Press Service.)

(Special to the Examiner.)

New York, April 1.—By J. W. T. Mason.—The initiative of the western battle has now returned almost wholly by the Allies with the Germans fighting practically everywhere on the defensive This does not mean necessarily that General Foch is preparing to put a major counter-offensive into immediate operation. A policy of caution may suit the present requirements better than a hasty retaliation against Hindenburg. The ghastly slaughter of Germany's man power and the matter of morale among the civilians at home, has now become a vital factor in the war.

SILENT ENDURANCE.

More than ever before the Allies must prepare for silent endurance, while waiting for the reaction in Germany to the gigantic casualties of the past.

The next phase of the war may not consist of field engagements at all. It may be the renewal of discontent in the Central Empires over the realization that the sacrifices to the Hohenzollern "Moloch" has not ended the war.

The German sweep over the country voluntarily abandoned by Hindenburg a year ago, will have done no more than to make that area a German cemetery, if the morale of the Allies holds firm. There can be no major strategic results from the German succe ss as long as the war continues.

It is for the Allies, by their steadfastness, to impress on the German people, a realization of this fact. Thereafter the House of Hohenzollern will become to the German people the House of Blood.

More Peterboro' Boys Are Home From Overseas

Another party of Peterboro men invalided back to Canada from service overseas, arrived home on the 5.35 G T.R. train on Saturday evening The number included Sergt. Gower, and Ptes Robinson and Hardie, formerly of the 93rd Battalion, and Pte. V. Bullied.

Pte. E. G. Hardie, one of Saturday's arrivals, was a member of the 93rd Battalion crack football team, playing on the half line. He went to France with a draft to the 1st Battalion and was badly wounded at Vimy Ridge. A whizz bang exploded over his head and he was struck in the face by a part of the shell receiving very painful injuries. He has had a number of operations in English hospitals and will require further treatment here.

Sergt. Gower, whose home was in Ottawa before he came to Peterboro, went down to that city on Saturday night.

BANDSMEN, ATTENTION

It has been decided to increase the present strength of the 57th Regt. Band from 30 men to 50, and with this object in view all bandsmen in the City are cordially invited to become members. Instruments provided and all the privileges of first-class quarters at the Armouries accorded new men as well as every assistance in securing positions. Rehearsals every Tuesday and Friday. Further particulars on application at the Conservatory of Music. m.t.h.s.-tf.

Germans May Continue the Present Effort or Start Another Offensive —The Allies Are Confident.

RAPID ADVANCE

(United Press Service.)

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

(By Henry Wood.)

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY IN THE FIELD, April 1.—The Allies have checked the German offensive before its objectives were attained. Military officials consider that only two possibilities are now open to the Germans.

First, to continue the present effort, in which case the battle must inevitably become a long and gruelling task, like the Somme or Verdun.

Or, second, to start another offensive elsewhere — presumably in the Champaigne region, where the German Crown Prince's army is.

ALLIES ARE CONFIDENT.

The Allies are confident that the only result that can be obtained is the production of another salient like the present one.

During the temporary lull imposed by the necessity of the Germans bringing up heavy artillery, the Allies likewise are completing concentrations to check further enemy efforts.

Owing to the rapid advance, the battle so far has been essentially one of infantry combats with rifles, machine guns and light field guns alone. Presumably the Germans' next thrust will be supported by their heaviest thrust and fully opposed by the Allies' heaviest pressure.

The Germans so far have engaged ninety divisions, 1,080,000 men, of which a fourth have been withdrawn as the result of losses. The most conservative estimate on military calculations is that the German losses have reached three hundred thousand.

KING VISITED FIGHTING FRONT

WENT ABOUT QUIETLY GIVING WORDS OF THANKS TO OFFICERS AND MEN

Canadian Press Despatch:

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, April 1—King George on his visit to the British front in the past week went about quietly giving words of thanks and encouragement. Officers and men, when engaged in important work, paused only long enough to salute the King and continued their labours. The King covered three hundred and fifty miles in an automobile during his stay and visited numerous sections of the front. Many times he was well within the zone of shell fire.

HAS NOT CHANGED HIS ATTITUDE

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

NEW YORK, April 1. — President Wilson has not changed his attitude concerning a negotiated peace with the Central Powers as expressed in his Flag Day address. His reply to Pope Benedict and his message to Congress on declaration of war with Austria, according to a letter he has written to Bishop Theodore Henderson of the Methodist Episcopal church, and made public here to-day by National War Council of Church.

FIRE DEPARTMENT HAD TWO FIRES ON SUNDAY.

Fires were Extinguished with Chemicals.

At 12.30 yesterday the fire department was called to 200 Edinburgh street, the residence of Mr. B. Pitchford. A six gallon chemical was used and no damage done.

On Saturday evening at 6 o'clock, the department was called to 487 Sherbrooke street, the residence of Mr. C. Barkman, to a chimney fire, which did no damage.

Frank Jenne Says:

In selecting a suit or overcoat, the penalty of a wrong choice is very severe. Make your selection in a shop where your individuality is given consideration. You'll appear better, feel better, and secure better value in every way if you choose a Semi-ready tailored garment. Only a masterly touch could have made Semi-ready clothes what they are.

A good value first—then a brisk, timely, style. "Come to me."

ENEMY WAS THROWN BACK

Enemy Made Two Attacks in Quick Succession—Checking the German Rush

A DEFENDING WALL

(Associated Press.)

BRITISH ARMY HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, April 1.—Last evening the Germans made two attacks in quick succession against the British lines near the town of Albert. On both occasions the enemy was thrown back.

Canadian armoured cars with rapid fire have played an important part in checking the German rush. Up to the time of the present battle they were used but little, but in the last ten days these cars have performed valuable work. Frequently they have held up large bodies of German troops being rushed to strengthen up the front. Their presence has had a wonderful steadying effect upon the British lines. The immediate objective of the Germans in their attacks below the Somme undoubtedly is the Paris-Amiens railway, which runs close to the battle line. They continue to push energetically against the defending wall which checks them in their drive toward Amiens. Along the northern part of the battle front there has been a good deal of fighting, but nothing in the nature of an extended struggle.

Another Blow.

The belief is held that the first onrush of the enemy has been stemmed. He is engaged in the process of consolidating his positions and bringing up heavy artillery, and it is expected that when this work has been completed another big blow will be delivered with all the energy which he still has. With strong reinforcements on the ground and with the co-ordinance of command the hope is expressed here that the allied line will prove impregnable and that the Germans will dash themselves against it in vain.

BODY FOUND BY THE ROADSIDE

DANIEL CASEY HAD $1,800 IN THE BANK

The body of a man, who was subsequently identified as that of Daniel Casey, who was found yesterday afternoon on the lakeshore end of the eighth concession by Roland Stabler. County Constable Archie Moore was notified and the remains removed to Peterborough. Coroner Dr. Greer has decided that an inquest will be unnecessary.

Casey who was an inmate of the House of Refuge, disappeared on December the sixth last and had not been heard of up until yesterday, when the body was discovered in the bushes. The remains were found quite close to the road. He had very little clothing on and a search of which revealed a bank book showing a balance of eighteen hundred dollars in favour of the deceased. THE ALIEN QUESTION.

The Great War Veterans' Association have little reason to be gratified at the result of their long confidence with the Dominion cabinet over the alien question. The returned men the Dominion over are a unit in declaring against a system that allows aliens to remain in safety in Canada earning big wages while Canadians are fighting at $1.10 a day to save democracy.

Several reasons are given by the government in refusing to take any action in this matter. One is that the labour unions are opposed to the conscription of alien labour and another that such action would be a violation of international law. In the case of aliens from countries which are allies of Great Britain it should be possible to enter into a reciprocity agreement such as has recently been adopted by Great Britain, the United States and Canada, which would do away with the second difficulty mentioned by the government, while the labour men may have something to say about the first objection.

HANDS OFF THE FAIRS.

The resolution introduced into the House of Commons last week by W. F. Kay, M.P. for Mississquoi, Quebec, that all exhibitions and fairs be prohibited this year is not one that is likely to receive very general support either in or out of the House. Mr. Kay's proposal was made as a war measure, designed to prevent interference with greater production and ignoring the fact that the fall fairs provide a decided stimulus to the farming industry.

The spirit of competition which is a direct result of the prize lists of the annual exhibitions, has resulted in better farming, better stock and better agricultural products of all kinds. Each farmer is anxious to make a superior showing to his neighbour, and the fairs have provided the necessary incentive.

The exhibitions, too, bring the farmer into touch with the latest improvements in farm machinery—in fact with everything that appertains to his occupation.

Mr. Kay evidently has the opinion that the rural residents waste time in visiting exhibitions that might be employed to better advantage on the farms but it has never been found to be the case that crops are neglected in order that the agriculturists might attend the fairs. Mr. Kay should know that no farmer would think of sacrificing his crops for a couple of days' holidays. The annual exhibition is needed and there is little danger of any government action following the resolution of the member from Missisquoi.

THE FIRST CHAPTER.

(New York Times.)

Pushing back the British does not bring the end of the war any nearer. Shattering the British, breaking the British line, that would be a different matter. But that is precisely what Germany has not succeeded in doing. She has merely forced that indomitable line to move back and it faces her as stiff and rigid as ever. From the standpoint of getting what you want, the first chapter of the German battle of the Somme is a failure, dismal and complete.

But perhaps Germany did not hope to smash the British line in this first chapter; perhaps she only meant to prepare the way for the smash which is scheduled for the second chapter or the third. Well, she has not prepared the way. To prepare the way for any such coming smash she would have had to do one of two things. She would have had to weaken the morale of the British Army, or else she would have had to cut away its power of subsequently striking her. How could she cut away that power? By forcing Marshal Haig to use in self defense the armies which he now holds in reserve for the purpose of delivering a blow himself when the German offensive is spent. And she has not done so. Haig has not brought his striking armies into action at all; he has used only his defensive armies. He has in other words, used just enough power to ward off the blow without disarming it. He retreats, using one arm to protect his face and never bringing the other arm into action. Germany wants him to use both arms. He is keeping the other arm for the point of her jaw.

He is not going to use it for some time yet apparently. He means to let Germany spend her strength. It would be doleful boasting to say that he has been "luring the Germans on." Nevertheless, Germany has now got to a point where, in the northern part of her line, she cannot advance without being hemmed in by high ground on which are posted masses of great guns. Behind these masses of great guns are tough and seasoned veterans, the Canadians for instance, who have not been in battle for months. To try conclusions with them, with this scarred and weary army of hers would be desperate. There is still fighting going on north of the Somme, but it is fighting without any meaning in it.

THE MILITARY SERVICE ACT.

Signs of a rapidly growing dissatisfaction with the administration of the Military Service Act are not hard to find even in the columns of newspapers which have been faithful supporters of the government.

Witness the Toronto Telegram, which remarks significantly:

"Now if the Military Service Act was meant to furnish work for lawyers, rather soldiers for the front, the public have a right to know it. They will never find it out while 152 members of Parliament elected to send help to the boys in the trenches sit silent in their seats."

And the Mail and Empire, which expresses its disappointment as follows:

"The number of Canadian draftees under the Military Service Act is now about 30,000. Nine months have gone by since the compulsory draft was announced, and five months since the Act went into effect. Our reinforcements of 100,000 are not mounting up very fast."

Only 30,000 men have so far been drafted, and according to available figures the increase per day for the whole of Canada is only about 200 men, which is not large enough to take care of the ordinary wastage in the ranks of the Canadian army. Of the men who have been drafted the recruiting provinces have supplied by far the greatest number. Ontario already heavily drained by voluntary enlistment, has supplied the bulk of the draftees, while Quebec has failed to do better under compulsion than she did in the recruiting days. The administration of the Miliary Service Act in that province has been a farce. Exemption tribunals have handed out wholesale exemptions, the appeal courts did not materially alter the percentage of exempted men and the result is that the Central Appeal Board in Ottawa, with a staff of seventy men, including fifteen lawyers, is congested with Quebec appeals and there are more to come.

And now B category men are to be called to the colours and the whole travesty is to be repeated. In Ontario the men of this category will report for service when they are called, or their claims for exemption will be quickly handled by the tribunals. In Quebec the B men will hasten to claim exemption, and if the same Boards which heard the cases of the A category men are sitting, they will have little difficulty in getting immunity from service. The result will be that unless there is a radical change in the manner in which the Act is administered that Ontario will again supply the majority of Category B men, just as she has of A category draftees and volunteers.

It is hoped that there will be no incidents such as has been reported to Ottawa from a Quebec village of 1,000 population, where the citizens held a meeting in the town hall and presented travelling bags and an appreciative address to the members of the local tribunal as an expression of thanks for having exempted every man in the town who came within the scope of the Act.

Sir Robert Borden promised when he spoke in the armouries here before the recent election, that the Military Service Act would be strictly and impartially administered in all parts of the Dominion. Does he think it fair that Ontario, after her record of voluntary enlistment, should supply the greatest part of the draftees? Does he think it fair that the whole Quebec military district should furnish only 586 out of 30,000 who have been put into khaki? Does he think it fair that married men of the 1st contingent, the majority over the maximum age for military service, should have to go back to the front after three years' service there, when the only fight that thousands of young French-Canadians are making is a fight in the Appeal Courts?

Although the Union government was elected largely on its appeal that the Military Service Act was essential to Canada's putting her full weight into the war, it is remarkable that little or nothing has been heard in the House about the working out of the Act. The country is waiting to hear from the government, and the people of Ontario will want an assurance that in the case of the new category to be called for service that this province already so heavily depleted of its young manhood, will not have to furnish the majority of the men to build railways overseas as she has had to furnish the greater part of the fighting forces.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Canadian cavalry in action. In Quebec as well as on the western front.

The first "B" man to be gathered in should be Bourassa.

The Mayor of Quebec says the riots in that city were caused by the "lack of discretion" on the part of the officers administering the Military Service Act. Well no one will accuse the young men of Quebec of lacking discretion when it comes to getting into uniform.

If this year's styles come from Paris some of the millinery creations seen in Peterborough yesterday must have been designed during an air raid.

Major General Sir David Watson must have wished for a short furlough and the services of one of his faithful battalions of his 4th Division when the cables told him that in the midst of his efforts to keep Arras out of the Huns' grasp, his own townspeople were destroying his property.

MAKING MONEY.

(London Advertiser)

An Austrian, arrested in Toronto for rejoicing over the German drive, had on his person $690 of Canadian money. Thee seems to be grounds for complaints that alien enemies are making money pretty rapidly here.

WHAT YOU CAN DO TO HELP.

The heart of the food problem is labour.

At all costs production must be maintained.

That's why farmers and farmers' sons are being exempted from military service. Working on a farm is equivalent to service in the Second Line Trenches.

To enable the farmer to do the work two factors are essential. The first is Time. Whatever we are to do must be done at once. Nature waits for no man. The second is Labour. Many farmers cannot get the necessary help. Many are afraid to increase their acreage because they fear they would not be able to cultivate and harvest an unsual crop after they had raised it.

The burden is not one to be placed solely upon the farmer. Neither can it be placed upon the townsman. It is a personal obligation upon every man, woman, boy and girl, in every farm, town and city home in the Province of Ontario.

Away with criticism—co-operate! Mr. City man, don't say that the farmer should do so-and-so, and thus allow criticism in this hour of our Nation's peril to cripple your effort.

Mr. Farmer, don't hastily underestimate the value the city man can be to you.

WHAT OTHER EDITORS SAY

SERIOUS WORK.

(Kingston Whig)

Serious work is before us to-day, both on the battlefield and on the farm. Famine threatens the world; every available man and woman should be utilized to produce more food. As the Great War Veterans put it: Canada has no place for drones, whether civilians or sildie.

RELATIVE EVILS

A burglar entered a house at Poughkeepsie, N.Y., and found $5.60 in a bureau drawer. The money hod been collected by a girl for the Red Cross, and this fact subsequently was published.

The burglar returned the money. He was a burglar, but, thank God, not a war profiteer.

AND HERE, TOO.

HEARTLESS.

(Ottawa Journal-Press.)

Fancy Mr. Speaker trying to prevent Sir Sam Hughes from intimating that if he were in command of the British forces in France, there would be no retirement. Has the man no heart?

THE CRUELEST CUT.

(Minneapolis Journal.)

The dirtiest, meanest, lowest, vilest, and most reptilian suggestion is that the dear women forego the one big day of the year with a bonnetless Easter. Even Andy Gump pleads not guilty. The go-bare-headed-and-win-the-war slogan is going to get about as far as a third degree tramp trying to break into a secret session of the thirty-third degree Masons.

WIN THE LAST ONE.

(Toronto Globe.)

They always lose all the battles but the last," was Napoleon's comment on the British. Napoleon knew, and the Kaiser will find out.

WE HAVE SOME.

(Ottawa Journal-Press.)

We never knew there were so many potential Napoleons in Ottawa. Yesterday on Sparks street we encountered a dozen gentlemen who felt sure they could do better than Haig.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

TORONTOS CAPTURE THE FAMOUS STANLEY CUP

TORONTO, April 1.— Toronto, National Hockey League champions, retain the Stanley Cup.

Vancouver, champions of the Pacific Coast League, provided a spectacular game at the Arena Saturday night in an effort to carry the silverware back to the coast, but despite their strenuous efforts were beaten 2 to 1 by the Blue Shirts in what proved to be the fastest, most exciting game of the entire series. Both teams entered the fray with a determination to win, each team having won two of the first four games, with the result that hockey of air-tight calibre prevailed.

Visitors Under Handicap.

The visitors, playing the final game under N. H. L. rules, were naturally under a handicap. Despite this handicap, however, the speed marvels from the West forced the local team to extend themselves to the last ounce over every minute of play and with only two minutes ot go threw the entire team into a determined offensive which threatened to tie the score, and the final gong rang with Taylor, McKay and company bombarding Holmes in the Toronto net from all angles.

Holmes' Great Work.

Holmes was equal to the occasion, however, and provided what was probably one of his best games. He was at the top of his form and made two stops in all three periods that were little short of marvellous. From all angles the net guardian swept the puck into the corner, kicking away the low ones, jumping into the waist-high shots and cuffing with hand and stick those shots which were driven at him shoulder high. The spectators fully appreciated his sensational exhibition, and he was given round after round of applause.

Denenney's Sensational Playing.

The surprise of the game, however, was the stellar work of little Corbett Denenney. The slim youngster started the game as a substitute, but he was so effective when on the ice that the management used him as much as possible. Displaying speed that was only eclipsed by McKay, and stick-handling ability that almost equalled that of the veteran Taylor, Denenney was perhaps the most dangerous man on the Toronto team. Toronto's second goal, which cinched the game and the cup, was due solely to Denenney's individual effort. He took the puck from his own defence, eluded the checking of the Vancouver forwards, slipped past Cook of the visitors' defence, and after colliding with Griffis, went right in on top of Lehmann in goal and scored. It was a remarkable piece of individual play, and was thoroughly appreciated by the spectators.

BOWLING On Water St. Alleys

Opening Games in Post Season League.

The following are the games scheduled in the post season league at the Water street alleys:

Tuesday, April 2—Printers vs. Can. Gen. Elec.

Thursday, April 4—Grocers vs. Boston Cafe.

Friday, April 5—High Rollers vs. De Laval.

Weekly Prizes.

The weekly prize for high three games of ten pins was won by S. Anderson. The scores: 203, 238, 201—642; 246, 222 208—676.

The prize for high three games five pins was won by A. Ross, with 277, 167, 184—628.

BOYS' HEXATHLON AT THE Y.M.C.A.

The biggest athletic event of the year in the Y.M.C.A. Gymnasium has just been completed. The Boys' Hexathlon is held every March, and is an international competition, each association running the six events for the five different weight classes in their own gymnasium, the totals being sent to headquarters and the winners announced in the early part of April. This year 145 boys competed, and Peterborough scored 98 points more than last year, when the local association finished ninth in North America, standing higher than many of the biggest associations in the country,—Chicago, Rochester, Washington, Toronto Central and others.

NEW TRADE FOR DISABLED.

Britain Spending Half Million on Development of Diamond Cutting.

One hundred thousand pounds is being spent on a scheme for employing disabled soldiers and sailors in the diamond cutting industry in Brighton. Mr. Bernard Oppenheimer, who has started the industry in the town, and is working in conjunction with the Ministry of Pensions, is building a factory to hold about 1,500, and he has agreed to pay the men a minimum wage of £2 a week after six weeks' training for three years.

"Every man has the right to leave me without notice to seek work elsewhere," said Mr. Oppenheimer, "and if he cannot find it at better rates he can come back, also without notice. Before the war about 3,000 Germans did this work in Germany, and it is their trade we are trying to capture, especially as 99 per cent. of our rough diamonds come from British possessions."

Scalloped codfish and rice is delicious.

Ginghams constantly gain in favour.

New Method CARPET CLEANING

Mr. R. M. Beach has installed a new Twentieth Century Carpet Cleaning Department in connection with his business, for cleaning carpets, rugs and mats, which will remove all dirt and stains, raise the nap, brighten th colours, disinfect and make moth proof in one operation. A boon to housewives.

Special attention given to Halls or Club Rooms and Churches.

THE FARMER AND CHINA.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir: As you are like all good citizens, interested in the welfare of the farmer, the man who manufactures the munitions of every day life, I wish you would permit me to call attention through your columns to the following facts. The prices of all food in China are like this:

San Francisco, March 30.—It's great to live in China, where eggs retail at 25 cents per HUNDRED, spring chickens come to your door for 25 cents a PAIR; fresh meat is gladly sold by the butcher at 11 cents (Mex.) a pound; sucking pig is plentiful at 20 cents (Mex.) PER PIG; and a private rickshaw is at your service for 25 cents a day.

That is the joyful word Sergeant Amil Wiman, of the Marine Corps Guard at the Pekin American Legation brought to San Francisco, when he came home on his furlough. It's a land where poor men play polo and where shopkeepers drive all other customers to the street, trot out their cigarettes and tea and dream of vast wealth when an American marine comes in, bearing a real, American dollar, according to Wiman.

Even polo comes cheap in China. "All the marines play polo," says Wiman. "The Chinese burros make the finest kind of polo ponies, and they retail at $1.50 apiece."

The Western Members of Parliament are set firmly on Free Trade. You will notice that the staple products of the Middle West are not largely affected by China prices. Free Trade and cheap transportation by water will put the Onario farmer on a level with the Chinese if their competition is to be successfully met.

The time to meet trouble is beforehand—when we see it coming. I hope the farmers of West Peterboro will think this schedule over carefully and let me know what they think about it. (A Mexican dollar is worth 50 cents of our money.)

NEW RULE ON PARCELS TO PRISONERS OF WAR.

One Personal Parcel a Quarter—Contents of Specified Sorts.

New regulations governing the sending of parcels from Canada to prisoners of war in Germany have been issued by the Postoffice Department, in accordance with methods adopted by the British War Office.

The new scheme is known as "personal parcel scheme for prisoners of war other than officer " and provides as follows:

1.—Any of the articles noted below may be included: Pipe, sponge, pencils, tooth powder, pomade, cap badge and badges of rank, shaving brush, safety razor mohair boot laces, candles (8 ozs.), medal ribbons, brass polish, mittens (one pair a quarter), muffler (one each year), shaving soap (one stick a quarter), health salts, insecticide powder, braces and belts (provided they are made of webbing and include no rubber or leather), combs, hair brushes, tooth brushes, buttons, chess, draughts dominoes and cloth brushes.

2.—The personal parcel may be sent once a quarter only. The maximum weight is 11 pounds. It is advised that such parcels should not weigh less than three pounds so as to minimize the risk of loss in the post.

3. — The personal parcels must be packed and despatched through the postoffice by the friend or relative of the prisoner, who receives the coupon.

The above regulations are again published by request.

Lloyd George recently declared that the British have 2,000,000 horses engaged in this war. It is estimated that on the whole Western front the number of horses and mules in service is close upon 5,000,000.

George St. Choir's Easter Music Was Splendid Feature

The Easter music at the George Street Methodist Church yesterday, impressed the large congregations at the morning and evening services with the richness and fulness of choral tone and the solemn, thematic beauties. Mr. Edward Jones, who came down from Toronto was heard again, and proved a welcome visitor. He sang "He Bore It All Alone" by Price, in fine voice. The anthem was Smart's "Ye Choir of New Jerusalem" with Miss Kathleen Fanning in the solo part.

The Church was filled at five minutes to seven for the evening service; the choir of forty voices, splendidly balanced and controlled, excelled itself. Two anthems were sung. Ashworth's "The Strife Is O'er" and Turner's "O Death, Where is Thy Sting" breathed the spirit of Easter in moving phrases. "Easter Day" by a semi-chorus of ladies, was a fine number. Miss Elva McIntyre carried the solo part in a voice of liquid purity. Miss Emma Worth's solo "The Resurrection Morn" was another of the choral gems of the service sung in a flowing, round tone, enriched by a nice apreciation of the spirit of the hymn "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth" from the Messiah, was Mrs. Renwick's splendid vocal offering, potently interpreted and rendered in fine voice. Mr. Arthur Morrison also sang Grainer's "Hosanna," very pleasingly. The sermons by Rev. A. J. Thomas conveyed the message of the Resurrection to congregations that will not soon forget this year's celebration of the Anniversary of Christ's glorious triumph over sin.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

SERVICES WERE WELL ATTENDED

Fine Services Were Held in St. John's Church Yesterday

The gloriously rich Liturgy of the Church of England is especially so for the "Queen of Seasons," Easter, and the throngs of worshippers in St. John's Church at each of the five services held yesterday speaks eloquently of the depth of affection felt for the wonderful liturgy of their church. The chancel was beautiful with flowers, many of them in memory of departed members. The choir, numbering forty-six voices, moved in procession from the south entrance to the chancel, and while moving up the aisle, clergy, choir and congregation joined in glad bursts of song in the theme of the day, "He is risen," Alleluia. In addition to the festival music proper to the great Festival of Easter, three standard numbers were used, the first of which, the great "Messiah" song, "I know that my Redeemer liveth," was finely sung by Mrs. A. L. Amys at the morning service, who was also heard to splendid advantage in the evening in the anthem solo, "Come see the place, where the Lord lay." The second number was happily arranged in the place of honour immediately after the third Collect. Canon Morley called upon choir and congregation to sing that grand Easter hymn "Jesus Christ is risen to-day," and announced that as a special act of praise, the "Hallelujah" chorus would be sung after the hymn, all standing, by the choir. The grand chorus was sung with heart and soul, and voice by the well-trained choir, equally by the little nine-year-old boy as the veteran chorister with over forty years' service. The third number was Sir Frederick Bridge's anthem, "As it began to dawn," a lovely setting of the story of the Resurrection, with the old Easter hymn as a finale, which spontaneously brings the congregation to a standing position before the first few bars are complete. The children's service was a happy event; the mite boxes were presented at the altar, and it afterwards transpired that this year's objective as to the amount had been exceeded. Another member of the choir, Mr. Alfred Marshall, joins the army next Friday, making the thirtieth man from St. John's Choir since August, 1914, to join the colours. Mr. H. W. Morphet, on behalf of the choir, presented Mr. Marshall with a fountain pen, and the organist, Mr. R. J. Devey, paid a well deserved tribute to their departing comrade for years of valuable and faithful work in the choir. The opportunity was taken advantage of to heartily thank all the choristers for their splendid services this season, especially "Olivet to Calvary," on Good Friday, and the Easter music.

THE END OF THE CUSTOMS YEAR INDICATES DECREASE

The customs year ending to-day show a slight decrease in returns from last year amounting to $815,-132.43; last year, $858,316.73. However the March returns indicate a decided picking up in business as compared with the same month last year. March 1918, $87,344.26; 1917, $65,-951.51.

ARRAIGNED ON CHARGE OF MURDER

(Canadian Press.)

Brantford, April 1.—George Duncan was to-day arraigned before Magistrate Livingstone on a charge of murder following the death this morning of Alf Isame, who was badly beaten up in a drunken brawl yesterday.

Duncan pleaded not guilty and was remanded for a week.

HE SURRENDERED TO A SQUARE MEAL AT LAST

Nelson Gray on a Hunger Strike For Two Days, Went Away With a Full Stomach.

Before Nelson Gray was taken to Kingston on Saturday night under military guard to be reported for military service, he relinquished his hunger strike of two days' duration, his decision faltering before a square meal the police brought him. Others just like that one he had sent away untouched, but a gnawing hunger overbore his defiance of the authorities expressed by his temporary "strike."

PRAYER SERVICE WAS LARGELY ATTENDED.

The call to an undenominational praper meeting and intercessary service made by the Local Council of Women met with a splendid response, and the Murray street Baptist church was crowded on Saturday afternoon when special prayers were offered for the Allied armies. This call, inspired by the Executive of the National Council of Women in Ottawa, was answered by the Local Councils throughout the Dominion.

W. J. Ferguson Of Lindsay Joins The A. W. Cressman Staff

(Lindsay Warder.)

Mr. W. J. Ferguson, for 21 years past prominently associated with various branches of the mercantile establishment of J. Sutcliffe & Sons, and for six years previous with the firm of Warner & Co., has resigned to accept a position with the Cressman Company of Peterborough.

Mr. Ferguson has been closely identified with various movements, having to do with the welfare of the entire community, and is recognized as one of the ablest young business men in town. He has been closely linked with the success of J. Sutcliffe & Sons during that firm's expansion and will be missed by employer and employees.

Mr. Ferguson was one of the chief promoters of the Lindsay Advancement Club, an organization which while in existence did good work and helped enliven trade conditions. A few years ago he was closely identified with baseball in Lindsay, and a keen supporter of the Town League. For a time he played ball with the old Y.M.C.A. nine, his position being catcher. He was also one of the loyal members of the Lindsay band during the time when it was difficult to keep such an organization together. Mr. Ferguson attends the Queen street Methodist church, where he will be greatly missed. He was also an active member of the Lindsay I.O.F., having just recently resigned his office of Vice Chief Ranger.

Mr. Ferguson has a host of friends in and out of business, and is well known to the wholesale and retail trade.

Mrs. Ferguson will rmeain in Lindsay until such time as a suitable house can be secured in Peterborough.

Rev. Mr. Bartlett At St. James And Trinity Churches

Greater Production as Applied to the Realm of Character

Rev. S. D. Bartlett, Superintendent of Sunday schools and Epworth Leagues of the Methodist church, preached at the Sunday evening service in Trinity Methodist church. The speaker spoke on greater production as it applies not only to the world at large, but also its application to the church, and particularly to the young people of the church. In the afternoon Mr. Bartlett was present at the Sunday school service at St. James' Methodist church and he was forcibly impressed with the possibilities represented in a class of one hundred scholars within the next twenty years. "Anybody who is satisfied with anything less than the best that this life offers in the way of Christian citizenship is making a very dangerous compromise," said Mr. Bartlett.

Unusual Fire In The North End Of City

Drawer Full of Linen Caught Fire Causing a Gun to Explode and in This Way Notifying the Occupants of the House.

The new chemical engine had its first bona-fide try-out yesterday morning to a fire which was attended with most unusual circumstances, and Chief Grange wears the smile that won't come off over the success it made.

Heard Explosion.

At 10:45 the occupants of 10 Lisborn street, the home of Mr. E. Vinette, heard the report of a gun and rushed to where the noise came from, to find a bedroom in the west side in flames. The Fire Department was called and in three minutes had arrived, after covering a distance or two and one-half miles, broken a forty-gallon chemical and were at work. In three-quarters of an hour the fire had been extinguished and the blaze kept confined to one room.

Spontaneous Combustion.

The Chief made an investigation and found the fire to have been caused by spontaneous combustion by heat generated in a drawer in the room used for linen, which had evidently been stored away while damp. The intense heat had caused a loaded gun in the room to explode and give the warning.

Confined Damage.

Chief Grange is delighted with the chemical engine and is convinced that had the horse and waggon been used instead of confining the damage to $100.00, the house would have been destroyed.

Throngs Received Communion In The Catholic Churches

Easter Sunday was celebrated with the usual ceremonies at St. Peter's Cathedral. At 10.30 a.m. Pontifical High Mass was sung by His Lordship Bishop O'Brien; Rev. Father Sholly, of Toronto, was assistant priest, Rev. C. J. Phelan, deacon, and Rev. Father Guiry, subdeacon. The Easter sermons in the morning and at Vespers were preached by Rev. Father Sholly, of the Redemptorist Order, Toronto. At the conclusion of the High Mass, Bishop O'Brien congratulated the congregation upon the large number who had received Communion, and upon the fervor with which Lent had been kept by the people. His Lordship wished the people every joy that springs from the Resurrection and its commemoration, and expressed the confidence that the festal devotions would bring many blessings to the people and happiness into their lives and homes.

The attendance at the early Mass was probably the largest ever observed at the Cathedral. Even the gallery stairs served to seat some of the throng, and practically the whole congregation received Communion.

At the churches of the Sacred Heart and Immaculate Conception Easter was also celebrated as one of the great events of the ecclesiastical year. The altars in all three churches blossomed with lilies and other flowers; and the music befitted the feast. The Vesper music at the Church of the Sacred Heart was notable in the beautiful duet, "O Salutaris," sung by Miss Masterson and Mr. Bartley. The choir also sang "Regina Coeli" very effectively.

Poultrymen Will Meet To-morrow

The Peterborough Poultry Association has arranged for a public meeting to be held in the Council Chamber to-morrow evening. A lecture will be given by Mrs. Wollard, from the Department of Agriculture. Mrs. Wollard has the faculty of imparting information in a clear and forceful manner and is one who has a practical experience in all the branches of poultry work. In addition, she has been most successful in vegetable gardening. It is hoped that everyone interested will be present at this meeting to co-operate in this great movement to raise more poultry and vegetables for ourselves and thus save more meat for our brave soldiers and allies who are doing their utmost to crush Prussianism.

$6,000,000 WORTH OF LIQUOR IMPORTED INTO ONTARIO

Montreal, April 1.—More than four hundred thousand male persons in the province of Ontario out of a possible 750,000, have bought loquir in Montreal since prohibition went into effect in their province in September, 1916, it was learned to-day. During the last two weeks it is estimated that more than $6,000,000 worth of liquor has been carried westward in that time.

PRESENTED WITH A WATCH FOB

Mr. Clarke Swain, a teacher at the Fairmount School, who is leaving to take up work on the farm for the coming season, was presented with a watch fob and the following address by the pupils of the school:

The Address.

Dear Mr. Swain,—We are sorry to hear that you are going to leave us. We hope that you have enjoyed the almost three years spent in our midst. You have laboured faithfully in our interests, and we appreciated your efforts. To show our appreciation we beg of you to accept this small gift of a watch fob. May it be accompanied by a happy remembrance of the days spent with the pupils of the Fairmount Public School.

We wish you good luck and pleasant days for the future.

Signed on behalf of Fairmount School,

Ira Sanderson,
Oren Robertson.

TWO INSPIRING SERVICES AT MURRAY ST. BAPTIST CHURCH

New Honour Roll Was Unveiled—Names Were Read by Mr. H. G. Webber—Rev. Mr. Webb Preached Two Helpful Sermons —Special Music by the Choir

Two large congregations gathered at Murray Street Baptist Church yesterday and the day will be one long to be remembered by all who were present. The pastor Rev. J. R. Webb, preached in the morning from the text, Matt. XXVIII: 6 — "Come see the place where the Lord lay." The large choir under the direction of MissS anderson rendered two anthems, and Miss Florence Scott sang after the sermon, "Easter Day Hath Crowned Him King." In the evening the service was a splendid blendin of the Easter and Patriotic Thoughts. The new honour roll of soldiers was seen for the first. This piece of work was excuted by Messrs. J. J. Turner & Sons, and was the gift of one of the ladies of the congregation.

After the offertory Mr. H. G. Webber stepped to the platform and, representing the Deacons of the church, asked the congregation to rise while he read the names of the eight members of the Church who have already laid down their lives for the Empire. These are:

Harold Stratton Matthews
Charles Adam
Norman Barrie
William Long
Fred Stanley
Joseph Horton
Victor Northcott
John Ellam.

Following the list came the names of the missing sisters from the congregation and this in turn was followed by the names of those who are still serving in different capacities. When Mr. Webber had completed his reading, the Senior Deacon and Mr. R. B. Mathews stepped to the Deacons' platform and led the congregation in prayer for the soldiers and for those who had suffered bereavement.

THE SERMON.

The sermon was based on the words found in Judges IV.-14: "Up, for this is the day in which the Lord hath delivered the enemy into thy hand. Is not the Lord gone out before thee?

Mr. Webb prefaced his address with the announcement that the despatches of the last twenty-four hours had shown no reverses for the Allies, but that the line had been strengthened, and that the morale was good. He likened the smouldering fires of Jabin's hatred to the years of Germany's broding. Sisera, faced with nine hundred chariots of iron what he regarded as the contemptible little army of Israel. In the critical hour a woman's voice was heard saying: This is the day in which the Lord hath delivered thine enemy into thy hand. Is not the Lord gone out before thee? The speaker said: "I see evidence of the Lord's going before Britain's army, in first, our urgent and persistent appeals for the disarming of all nations. Britain has terrible burdens, but she has not the consciousness that she might have done other than she has. Bernhardi's ridicule in 1911 of Immanuel Kant's thesis on "Perpetual Peace" reveals a weight on the eGrman nation, of which Bernhardi was a credited representative, that is hravier than any oppresion can ever bring to the Allies. The second evidence of the Lord's leadership is: "The Absolute unselfishness of our present undertaking." We have never wanted anything that we did not possess in 1913, and we want nothing now but some hostage that the weaker nations will have the right to live and prosper without anchance of being violated by the strong. Mr. Webb sees the leadership of the Divine being the quality of our voluntary soldiers. Never, said he, since God swung the sun into the void has there been witnessed such a consecration of exalted qualities as has been before us since 1914. It is unthinkable, said he, that the cause for which we fight does not appeal to God. It is inconceivable that the class of men now serving and dying for Chrisian ideals are but His presence in the fierce fire of the present moment. For these reasons and others—the line cannot be broken."

THE MUSIC.

Miss Kidd's rendering of McConnell Wood's "Lead Kindly Light" was greatly enjoyed. Miss Laura Logan, who assisted, was in her usual form, and led the audienec with her into a new altitude as she interpreted Jarmefelt on the violin. The ladies' chorus and double quartette showed an asembly of voices and a training of which any church in the city might be proud, while Miss Scott and Miss Doris Rathbone were never heard to better advantage. The representative of the Examiner heard one who had been present at both services say: "There has not been a dull moment in the day."

Patriotic Concert In Lakefield Proved To Be Successful Event

The Patriotic concert given in the town hall on Friday evening proved to be a very delightful affair, a full house greeting the entertainers. The hall presented a most attractive appearance being decorated very prettily with flags, etc., one conspicuous feature of the decoration being the "Stars and Stripes" entwined with the Union Jack. Mr. W. H. Casement performed the duties of chairman in a most satisfactory manner. The very hearty applause given every number testified to the appreciation of the audience and of the ability of the entertainers, each and all appearing at their best. Little Muriel Podger of Lethbridge, Alt., was without doubt the star of the evening. The little girl won the hearts of the audience, and every number she gave was enthusiastically encored. In the rendering of the second number, composed by Miss Pauline Johnson, the exceptional talent of the young artist was most evident, and spoke volumes for the excellent training she has received from her teacher, Mr. Owen Smiley, of whom she is a junior student. A very pleasing part of the programme was the presentation of a beautiful bouquet of sweet peas to little Muriel. This was Muriel's first appearance in Lakefield as an elocutionist, but her audience hope to have the pleasure of hearing her again. The proceeds amounted to $61, less expenses of $6, which was handed over to the Soldiers' Comfort Club. Miss Nelson was accompanist for the evening. Following is the programme:

GUS HILLS' MINSTRELS

Here Next Week – 60 Performers

The many lovers of minstrelsy will be grateful to learn of Gus Hill's Big Minstrels' engagement at The Grand on Monday next, April 8. There is only one Gus Hill, and he is King of the Minstrel World. No Don Carlose has yet arisen to dispute his claim or to present to sovereignty in the realm of burnt cork when Gus Hill holds sway as the undisputed monarch. His conceded individuality and his unique personality, coupled with geniality and magnetism, are attributes which have made his name familiar as household words, and have won for him a popularity which extends from ocean to ocean. Mr. Hill has, during his long professional career, succeeded in elevating negro minstrelsy to an artistic plane, and in rescuing it from the inane dogerel which pervaded it a generation ago, to the highest standards of popularity and appreciation. Gus Hill has the happy faculty of gathering none but the best of minstrel talent to march under his banner. Consequently, the theatre-goers of this great country, wherever they see the Hill banner unfurled to the breeze, feel perfectly assured of a first-class entertainment. The singing contingent of Hill's Minstrels is one of the features of this year's entertainment, including such artists as George Wilson, "Waltz Me Again," Eddie Mazier, Will H. Thompson, John P. Rogers, John McShane, James Corrigan, John Burke, Joe Carey, Thomas Hughes, Arthur Gros, John Lovely, Frank Howard, Al Lewis, George Quinn, Joseph Brennie, Edward Gallagher, Harold Williams, Cyrus Landry, Chas. Judson, Harry Miller and the great Musicalcates with sixty others, all white. There will be the usual street parade at 3.30 p.m. This is the only minstrel organization carrying two interlocutors.

OBSTRUCTED SIDEWALK TRAFFIC FINED $2 AND COSTS IN COURT

When P. C. Dennard ordered a group of men to "move on" from the corner of Simcoe street on Saturday night, Scott McLaren replied that no law in Canada and no policeman could make him move. The fact that he had an audience of twenty-five or thirty persons aggravated his defiance, and he was promptly arrested for obstructing a sidewalk.

In police court this morning he was fined $2 and costs, despite his denial of P. C. Deannard's statements.

"Did you say that no law in Canada could move you," Magistrate Dumble asked him

"Absolutelt not. I wouldn't say such a thing," McLaren replied.

He admitted having been ordered to pass on.

"I didn't go very fast," he said. "The constable gave me a shove. I told him to keep his hands off me. I said I wanted the privilege of walking along like a gentleman; I had paid my poll tax here."

Chief Thompson—"You thought that entitled you to obstruct the sidewalk?"

"No, I didn't," McLaren answered. "I was there only three or four minutes. I have been travelling up and down the country for seventeen years and never had to be told to keep moving."

Magistrate Dumble stated that he accepted the constable's testimony.

Chief Thompson—"I have had many comp'aints from the manager of the Turnbull store. The constables no sooner move one group than another gathers at the corner and leans against the railing, completely obscuring the windows.

Manufacturers' Section Of Board Of Trade

Elected Officers Saturday Night —Other Sections Should Organize Quickly

A meeting of the Manufacturers Section of the Board of Trade was held Saturday evening in the board room of the Toronto Loan and Savings to elect officers for the ensuing year.

A large representation of the different manufacturing interests of the city was present, thereby proving the Manufacturers Section of the Board of Trade to be one of the best sections of the Board.

The election of officers resulted as follows:

Chairman—W. R. Breyfogle, De Laval Co

Vice Chairman—G. G. Gladman, Wm. Hamilton Co.

Messrs. James Hamilton, of the Peter Hamilton Co., E. Howson of the Peterboro Lock Co., and G. G. Gladman were elected as representatives from the Manufacturers Section to the Board of Trade Council.

A unanimous vote of thanks was passed to Mr. W. G. Morrow, manager of the Toronto Loan and Savings Co., for his kindness in placing the board room at the disposal of the various sections of the Board of Trade.

WILL REPRESENT ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH

After the morning service, the congregation of St. Andrew's church met to elect a representative to the Nicholls Hospital Board to replace the late John McClelland who for many years was the representative, and Mr. G. W. Green was unanimously selected. No other nominations were made. Mr. E. B. Fowler is the other member.

Rev. Canon Davidson Addresses A Letter To The Congregation

Was Not Permitted to Take Part in the Easter Service Owing to Illness—A Plea For Greater Production

At the services in St. John's Church yesterday the following letter from the Rev. Canon J. C. Davidson was read to the congregation:

Toronto, Wednesday in Holy Week.

To the Members of St. John's Church, Peterborough.

My dear People.—With feelings of deep sorrow and disappointment do I acquiesce in the Bishop's decision that I am not to return to my post of privilege and duty for the great Festival of Easter, when I would earnestly desire to be with you in joyfully glorifying together the risen Lord as we have done so often in the past. On such an occasion pastor and people are ordinarily drawn together in close and happy fellowship, but the outward realization of this is not to be my privilege this year.

Be assured, however, of my spiritual participation in the services of St. John's, which indeed will be clearly before my mind's eye with the well-known faces of our people helping upwards the glad offering of Easter worship.

On this Festival of the triumph of life over death, we shall remember together, as in past years, departed members of St. John's congregation, and the multitudes of heroic soldiers who have given up their lives for the Empire and humanity. Blessed are the triumphant dead, and may the joy of Easter-tide bring some consolation to the multitudes who mourn. Praying that the power as well as the joy of this day of our Conquering Lord may come into each one of your lives.

Believe me, your affectionate Rector,

J. C. Davidson.

Greater Production.

P.S.—In addition to this Easter greeting, I feel it my duty to urge with strong emphasis the importance of all our people, men, women and children, arranging to do their utmost this spring and summer to aid greatly increased food production, both in the city and country. Every available piece of ground should be brought under cultivation. This is a national duty, and will appeal to every loyal citizen, though no one can picture its importance so easily as those who, from experiences in England and France, realize the critical need for food which confronts our soldiers and the Allies. This need can only be effectively met by Canada along with the co-operation already assured from our neighbours to the south.

Citizens Must Not Obstruct Sidewalks

Chief Thompson stated this morning that he intended stringently to enforce the by-law prohibiting the obstruction of sidewalks by the public. This practice had become altogether too general, and citizens are advised to heed the warning expressed in this morning's police court case in which a young man was fined two dollars and costs for failing to respond promptly to a police constable's order to a group of men to keep moving. The corner gatherings will receive the special attention of the police. Merchants do not regularly change their window displays and devote time any money to this work to have its effect nullified by men, and women too, who thoughtlessly select the principal corners for chance "conversats." Some men delight in sunning themselves on the lea side of certain stores; two or three women with perambulators effectively block the widest walks and force pedestrians into the street. In short, the police have received special instructions to discourage this practice and the citizens are requested to co-operate.

Lakefield Man Killed In Action

Pte. I. Hampton, of Lakefield, a member of the Canadian Army Service Corps, is officially reported killed in action, according to to-day's official casualty lists.

LAKEFIELD NEWS

LAKEFIELD, April 1.—The Sunday School Choir of St. John's Church paid a surprise visit on Saturday to the home of Hazel Crawford, who has been very ill, but has recovered. They presented her with a bunch of Easter flowers and sang her one of the carols.

The Methodist Church was well filled at both services when Rev. W. J. Cragg preached. The evening service was under the auspices of the Woman's Missionary Society, and Mrs. Cragg spoke as well as Mr. Cragg. Appropriate Easter music was rendered.

Miss Cullen sang a solo on Sunday morning in the Presbyterian Church. The quarterly communion service was held and several young people joined the church.

The services in St. John's Church were well attended on Sunday, and beautiful Easter music was rendered. In the anthem, "Be glad, Oh ye righteous, rejoice in the Lord"; Mr. W. M. Graham took the solo part. The children's service in the afternoon was well attended, and beautiful Easter carols were sung.

The Epworth League of the Methodist Church will hold a poverty social to-night in the Sunday School-room. A good time is assured to all who attend.

The A.Y.P.A. will hold an afternoon tea and sale of home-made cooking in the restaurant of Mr. R. H. Alford (kindly loaned for the occasion) on Wednesday afternoon, April 3rd, from 3 to 6 o'clock. Contributions are requested and patronage solicited. Proceeds are to be used for patriotic purposes.

ST. ANDREW'S NOTES.

Mr. G. Walter Green has been appointed to represent St. Andrew's church on the Nicholls Hospital Board along with Mr. E. F. Fowler.

On Wednesday at 8 p.m., the regular prayer service will be held.

Friday, at 3.30 p.m., the Willing Workers' Mission Band will hold an Easter meeting. Mothers and friends are especially invited.

The Rev. J. Bailey of Toronto, will conduct services next Sunday in the absence of the pastor.

Election of Elders.

Session met at the close of the service and counted the ballots that were cast for the election of elders. There was a large vote by the members of the church and the three men elected were: Mr. A. McNab, Mr. J. John, Mr. J. A. McKone.

The other men whose names were on the ballot, received a large vote, from which it was quite evident that many in the congregation would have liked to see them elected.

Citizens Requested To Clean Up Yards

A request to the citizens to clean up their yards has been made by Sanitary Inspector Stapleton. The removal of the winter's accumulation of refuse in many yards will safegaurd public health, and while attention is directed to yards some lawns might be included. Garbage cans have left some of their contents in front of homes, a malodorous and ugly deposit that successive snow falls had hidden. The individual citizens can assist in cleaning up the city at this season by a ready response to the Sanitary Inspector's appeal.

Four Civilians Were Killed In Quebec Riots Last Night

GREAT MASSES OF TROOPS CONCENTRATED IN REGION OF ALBERT

Rioting In Quebec Last Night Resulted In A Number Of Casualties

Four Civilians Were Killed and Many Soldiers and Civilians Injured—Mobs Broke Into Hardware Store and Secured Arms and Ammunition—Statement Issued by Military Authorities.

STERN MEASURES PROMISED

Canadian Press Despatch:

QUEBEC, April 2.— Rioting began at 8.30 last night and continued until midnight. Four civilians were killed and many soldiers and civilians were injured. The mob broke into a grocery store and secured liquor; also broke into a hardware store and secured arms and ammunition. The mobs stoned an ambulance while en route to the hospital with injured soldiers.

STERN MEASURES.

The following statement has been issued by the authorities:

"The military have behaved with the greatest forbearance during the last few days and have, in the plain performance of their duty, met insult and attack with patience and discipline. But there is a limit to such an attitude and any further rioting and disorder must be met with stern measures. The ill-behaved citizens of Quebec are in a small minority and the great majority who are ashamed of the ill-name that their city will earn greatly assist the forces of law and order by keeping off the streets at night."

GRAIN MARKET

There was a sharp setback in oats and barley yesterday. A let-up in the export demand appears to have been the chief factor in lowering prices. Favourable weather and prospects for a free movement of grain may also have had something to do with a general weakening in the tone of the market. The other grains were steady.

Manitoba wheat —No. 1 Northern, $2.23 1-2; No. 2, $2.20 1-2; No. 3, $2.17 1-2; No. 4, $2.10 1-4, including 2 1-2 cent tax, in store, Fort William.

Manitoba oats—No. 2 C.W., 91 3-4c.; No. 2, 87 3-4c.; extra No. 1 feed, 86 1-4c.; No. 1 feed, 84 3-4c., in store, Fort William.

American corn—No. 3 kiln dried. U.S.A. War Board prohibits importation.

Ontario oats—No. 2 white, 92c. to 93c., nominal; No. 3 white, 91c. to 92c.

Barley—Malting, $1.72 to $1.74.

Ontario wheat—No. 2 winter, $2.22, basis in store Montreal.

Peas—No. 2, $3.60 to $3.70, according to freights outside.

Buckwheat—$1.83 to $1.85.

Rye—No. 2, $2.60.

Manitoba flour—War quality, $11.10, Toronto, new bags.

Ontario flour—War quality, $10.70, Toronto-Montreal, $10.70, new bags.

Millfeed—Car lots, delivered, Montreal; shorts, $40.40; bran, $35.40; feed flour, not quoted; middlings, not quoted.

Hay—Baled, track, Toronto, car lots, No. 1, $17 to $18; No. 2, $14 to $16; mixed, $13 to $16; straw, car lots, $8.50 to $9.

CATTLE MARKET

Union Stock Yards— Receipts, 116 cars, with 2,165 cattle, 334 calves, 1,396 hogs and 41 sheep and lambs.

There was a good, active market yesterday, with only a moderate run of cattle offering. Choice butcher steers and heifers sold off at a good pace and about 15c. to 20c. higher than last week. Medium butchers and fat cows held about steady, but everything was pretty well cleaned up by mid-day.

Calves—steady to firm.

Sheep and lambs steady, but very light run.

Hogs were firm from $21 to $21.25, fed and watered.

IF BACK HURTS BEGIN ON SALTS

Flush Your Kidneys Occasionally if You Eat Meat Regularly

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which clogs the kidney pores so they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood, then you get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which all regular meat eaters should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.

Want Daylight Saving Bill Speeded Up

THE MEASURE IS NOW IN FORCE IN THE UNITED STATES.

Toronto, April 1.—Canada to-day from the Atlantic to the Pacific lags behind her big neighbour to the south in the matter of time by sixty golden minutes. The inconvenience resulting to travellers and others brought about by the difference in time is such that many appeals will probably be made to the Canadian government to speed up putting into effect the Canadian Daylight Saving Bill so that the Canadian time will conform to that of the United States in corresponding time divisions of the continent.

Canadian Pacific trains entering Canada from the United States are being held up daily at the border for an hour to help to remedy the situation, but many people are recorded to have missed connections at United States border points owing to the advance of the clocks there this morning.

The last word from Ottawa regarding the Canadian bill was that it might be put through in order to be operative about the 15th of this month.

GERMANS RUINING ANTWERP.

Harbour Filling, Warehouses Damaged, and Lock Gates Rotting.

LIVERPOOL. —Information which has reached The Liverpool Post shows how the Germans have damaged the port of Antwerp. They have deliberately allowed the harbour mouth to fill with silt to such an extent that it will require much dredging before the port is navigable again.

The warehouses on the harbour front are in ruinous condition owing to the fact that all the metal has been stripped off the roofs. The railways on the wharves have been torn up and in many cases the lock gates have been allowed to rot. Even under the most drastic application of the doctrine of reparation it must be many a long day before Antwerp is restored to its former efficiency and prosperity and becomes again a great European port.

THE MEANEST SORT OF TREASON

(Detroit News.)

Of all treason possible in war that which ensconces itself safely within the lines of defence and practices the tricks and trade of the food profiteer, is the most dangerous and despicable. It is such treason as calls for action on the part of the government. If the profiteers cannot be moved by the normal motives of patriotism, they ought to be moved by force and fear.

Imports From U.S. Will Be Reduced For Trade Balance

The Canadian Government have decided to correct the balance of trade which has existed between Canada and the United States by prohibiting the importation from the United States of a number of lines of manufactured articles to the amount of $150,000,000 a year.

Among the articles the entrance of which to Canada it is proposed to prohibit are: Automobiles, tires, accessories, patent medicines, silverware, jewelery, musical instruments of all kinds, boots and shoes, ready-made clothing, and, in fact, every article which can be manufactured in Canada.

Special Tax at Home.

The Canadian manufacturer will have increased production by this embargo, and the Canadian Treasury will lose the revenue formerly collected by customs on imports. But to bring the revenue up, and to tax the Canadian manufacturer for his extra production, it is proposed to impose a special tax of ten per cent. on all articles made in Canada which are on the imports embargo list. Therefore the man who buys a $1,500 automobile will pay $1,500 for the car and $150 extra tax.

It is understood that the United States is taking similar action, and will shortly announce a list of articles which may not be taken into the United States from Canada.

EVERY FIT SCHOLAR NEEDED FOR CROP

Britain Seeks Three Weeks of Their Holidays.

LONDON, March 30.—An appeal "to every school boy physically fit to sacrifice at least three weeks of his summer holidays to aid in getting in the harvest," has been issued by Sir Auckland Geddes, Minister of National Service.

Already, Sir Auckland said, applications have been received from more than 7,000 boys. About 4,000 volunteered last year. The need this summer will be imperative, he declared, both because the acreage under cultivation has increased and because fewer men are available owing to the demands for the army.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

Though Different, Still the Same

By F. A. MITCHEL

Dr. P. Howard Pulsifer—he parted his name as well as his hair, in the middle because he was the family physician of the multimillionaires and must do as they did—had just opened a letter containing a $1,000 check for an operation he had performed, when, looking up, or rather down, he espied a small, ragged boy with a pale, hungry face gazing wistfully at him.

"How did you get in here, sonny?" asked the doctor.

"Dodged in when de crowd was goin' out, De doorkeeper didn't see me."

It was the end of the doctor's office hours.

"Well, what can I do for you?" asked the doctor.

"Me mudder is sick."

"Where does your mother live?"

"In a tenement on Jimson street."

The doctor was putting away his $1,000 check when the small boy spoke again:

"She tole me to tell yer she hain't nothin' to pay with. She can't do no washin', and she can't git no pay. She'll pay when she gits to work ag'in."

The doctor looked from his fat pocketbook to the lean boy, but said nothing. The boy was turning to go when the doctor stopped him.

"Stay here till I get a bite of lunch."

With that he left the room. The boy gaped about him at the paraphernalia intended for looking at "persons" insides, chopping off diseased parts, etc. Among other things was a glass case containing articles which the child could better understand. There were large pieces of silver, among which he recognized a pitcher. Another was a cup with three handles. There were also a cane with a gold handle, an urn—all gold—and many enormous jewels. While the boy was gaping at them the door opened and the doctor returned.

"What's them?" asked the boy, referring to the glittering contents of the case.

"They? They're presents from grateful patients I have helped or who have believed I have helped them, which is the same. Now we will go and see your mother."

He took the boy out to his limousine, put him in, got in himself, told the chauffeur where to go and was whirled away. When he reached the sickroom a woman lying on a bed looked at him in surprise.

"Why, Jakey!" she exclaimed. "Who have you brought? I told you to go to Dr. Puffer."

"Won't I do as well?" asked the great surgeon.

"Yes, sir, but Dr. Puffer makes it a business of tendin' us poor folks. He only charges 50 cents when he comes, though he makes us pay, and if we don't he makes us sweat."

"You can have as long as you like to pay me, and if you never pay I shall not feel it. Now tell me your symptoms."

Six months later the same boy appeared at Dr. Pulsifer's office. The doctor, not recognizing him, asked him how he got in. The boy replied that he had sneaked in.

"That's frank," said the doctor. "What do you want?"

"Me mudder is well."

"Oh, your mother is well?"

"Yes, sir; she's workin' ag'in."

"Who is your mother?"

The dialogue was interrupted by the entrance of a fashionably dressed man.

"Perhaps you don't remember me, doctor," said the visitor. "I'm Alfred Charnley. You treated my wife some time ago."

"Oh! Charnley! I recollect. How is Mrs. Charnley?"

A pained expression came upon the visitor's face. His wife had died under the doctor's care. The latter saw his mistake, remembered too late, and the pained expression was reflected in his own face.

"I've called to settle your bill," said the man.

"There is no bill to settle," said the doctor.

But the man insisted and left a check for $1,500. The doctor, after his visitor had gone, sat oblivious to his surroundings. He was recalled to himself by the small boy.

"Yer don't remember me mudder, do you?" said the child. "You went with me to see me mudder when I sneaked in before, and you cured her."

"Yes, I remember you now."

"Me mudder sent me to give you de pay." He poked a silver half dollar at the great man. "And I role her about what yer got from de grateful patients. She sent this to go in the case. It's me father's watch. He's dead. She cried at partin' wid it."

The watch was of silver and worth probably when new $5 or $6. The doctor took the offered article with inexpressible sadness.

"I did you a favor when I went to see your mother," he said. "Now I wish you to do me one. What's your name?"

"Jake Connoly."

Taking up a pen, the doctor indorsed the check he had just received to Jacob Connoly and handed it to the boy, telling him to give it to his mother. The boy went away, and the doctor sat mute. There was a faraway look in his eye. He was thinking of the patient who had died while under his care and whose death in the multiplicity of his cases he had forgotten, and he said to himself:

"What's the difference between the upper and the lower strata of life? Poverty makes the poor a horror to their betters, and success makes the successful a horror to themselves."

"A Fool Countryman"

By EUNICE BLAKE

"John," said Mr. Whitcomb, president of the Arcola First National bank, "I've got to send $10,000 to San Miguel right off, and I want you to take it there. You'd better make an armed fortress of yourself, for I'm positive there is some one connected with this bank who is giving information to criminals whenever any sum of money leaves the bank. Hemstreet was robbed of $500 a week ago when he left without a possibility of any one outside the bank knowing that he had any money with him."

I assented to what Mr. Whitcomb said, but I made up my mind to try to pull through in my own way. I knew that a trap had been laid for Hemstreet and he had fallen into it. If there was any trap laying in my case I proposed to have a hand in it myself. I slung a short "bulldog" up my right sleeve by an elastic strap in case of an emergency, but I did not expect to use it. I got myself up as a "hayseed," not that I expected to fool those who might be laying for me, but because I might wish to fool some one else. In my hand I carried an old fashioned carpetbag made of real carpet.

I carried the money home with me and the next day took a train that passed through the town at 4 o'clock in the morning. Glancing through a window while dressing, I saw the face of a man at a window on the opposite side of the street. His face was very white in contrast with a very black beard. He was looking straight at my window, and as soon as he saw me looking at him he disappeared.

On my way to the station I neither saw nor heard any one in the street, the stillness being marked, but once I heard faint footfalls behind me. I turned, but saw no one. However, while walking back and forth in the station who should come in but the pale faced man with the black beard. He went to the ticket office and from there to the train. On taking my seat I did not look to see if he was in the car with me, but I presumed he was. After the train had started I went to the cooler to get a drink of water, taking my bag with me, and then I saw my watcher, as I supposed him to be, sitting not far distant from the seat I was using.

Returning to it, I began to talk to a man sitting beside me. I asked him how far it was to San Miguel and what hour the banks closed there. He asked me if I was going there, and I told him I was. I asked him if he was going there, too, and he admitted that he was, whereupon I whispered to him that I had a large sum of money in my bag and offered him $25 if he would go with me from the station to the bank. He said that he would go with me cheerfully, but didn't care to take any pay for doing so.

I became quite chummy with my new found friend, who seemed to be a gentleman and was evidently a bit amused at my country simplicity. Indeed, he told me that I should not have divulged to him my secret. If I trusted him I was likely to trust others and to lose my money. I pretended to be regretful of my indiscretion, but declared that since I had trusted him at all I would trust him throughout. He seemed grateful at my confidence and agreed to do anything in his power to aid me. For this I pretended heartfelt gratitude.

When we were approaching the next station to San Miguel I proposed a plan by which my new acquaintance might get the funds safely through for me. He carried no baggage, having a trunk, which was checked. I asked him if he would get off the train with my carpetbag at the station we were approaching and proceed by other conveyance to San Miguel and deliver the bag to me at the bank as soon as he should arrive. He asked me if the amount I carried was very large, and I told him it was over $500, which was no lie.

He now plied me with questions to test my sincerity, to all of which I gave replies that seemed to satisfy him. He also asked me if I thought any one was on my track to rob me. I told him that I suspected a man sitting back of us with a white face and a black beard. My neighbor finally consented to carry my bag for me when we left the train at San Miguel. This was the best I could do with him.

As we approached the station I got up, leaving my bag with my friend, and went again to the cooler, which was at the forward end of the car. The train was slowing up at the time, and passengers were rising from their seats. Before the train stopped I jumped off and disappeared.

Well, I saw no more of my friend until shortly after I had reached the bank. Then he came in puffing, his cravat awry, his hat caved in. I met him at the door.

"Great Scott, man, what did you leave me for with your bag just as the train pulled up to the station? They've got your money."

"Don't you worry, my friend," I replied; "there was no money in that bag. It was distributed over my person. It is now in bank. I'm no granger. I'm cashier of the First National bank of Arcola. Please make out your bill for services as messenger and for damages and I'll remunerate you, with thanks and apologies."

Not a cent would he take. The best I could do with him was to get him to dine with me. He said he had hated to see "a fool countryman" robbed, hence his sympathies. But long afterward the bank kept him from bankruptcy.

Try to Save Wonder Tree.

One of the new American rhymers has said: "Poets are men like you and me, but only God can make a tree." A great tree, a tree of beauty or a useful tree, may equally inspire this reverent regard. In California, where trees of each of these classes abound, they are especially appreciated.

An instance of this is shown in the remarkable effort now being made to save the life of what is called Southern California's most famous tree. The tree is suffering from a mysterious ailment that has baffled all the local tree doctors and brought to its aid a number of consulting experts of high rank. They are endeavoring with probe and microscope to diagnose the disease that threatens death to the pioneer among the millions of citrous trees of that section of the state.

The ailing tree is a wonder tree. It bore the first navel oranges ever grown in the United States. It is credited with being the parent of groves producing $67,600,000 worth of fruit annually. It stands at the head of Magnolia avenue in Riverside, the paradise of orange groves.

The tree is forty-four years old, having been planted in Riverside in 1873, and was obtained from the Government Horticultural Gardens in Washington, but came originally from Bahia, Brazil. The fruit it produced was called the Washington navel, in honor of the nation's capital.

The United States experiment station and the agricultural department of the University of California have united in the attempt to prolong the tree's life, and their efforts of science to locate and combat the malady will be followed by many thousands to whom all trees are dear.

Slight Stroke Of Paralysis

Down Left Side—Stomach and Heart Affected—Case Baffled Doctors For Three Years

TRENTON, Ont., March 11.—A very interesting report has been received from Mrs. Pringle in regard to her recovery from partial paralysis. This was a most extreme case, for doctors had been trying for three years to find something which would restore the depleted nerve force.

One can scarcely imagine stronger evidence of the restorative influence of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Mrs. C. Pringle, Queen street, Trenton, Ont., writes:

"About five years ago I was troubled with my stomach, there was a sort of paralyzed feeling across it and up my left side, and my heart seemed almost to stop beating. I called in the Doctor, and he thought it was symptoms of a stroke. My stomach kept getting worse. At times the pounding would be intense, almost unbearable, and I thought I would go wild. Sleep was out of the question. I tried different Doctors, giving each one a fair trial, and doctoring nearly three years. My case seemed to baffle them. It was a nervous breakdown caused by overwork and worry. During all this time I could not do any work, and my friends thought it was a matter of time, how long I would live. Some one advised me to try something to build up my system, and I tried different medicines. Finally I thought I would try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and see if they would do me any good. A famous Doctor sanctioned my using these pills, and told me they would be good for me. They seemed to be just what I required, as I soon saw an improvement. I took about fifteen boxes, and the results have been very gratifying. I am now enjoying splendid health, and able to do all my work, eating anything I wish, and can go to bed and get a good night's rest. I have recommended Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to many of my friends, who have also secured good results from this treatment."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, a full treatment of 6 boxes for $2.75, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co. Limited, Toronto. Do not be talked into accepting a substitute. Imitations only disappoint.

The Lords on Suffrage.

It is the general opinion that the speeches in the House of Lords against woman suffrage, at the session which witnessed the victory of the women's cause, certainly did not err on the side of originality, whatever high level they reached in the matter of eloquence. Lord Loreburn spoke of "a leap in the dark," one of the Morning Post's favorite expressions; Lord Curzon of the "opening of floodgates." It was curious how prominent a part was taken in the debate by no less than five chancellors, past and present. Two were in favor, Lord Haldane and Lord Buckmaster, and three against, Lord Finlay, Lord Halsbury and Lord Loreburn. Division of opinion among the heads of the legal profession is no new thing on the question of women's enfranchisement. A story is recalled of how, many years ago, the then Attorney General, afterward "Lord Chief," Sir John Coleridge remarked that women possessed many qualities fitting them to be judges, but was brought up with the growl from Serjeant Dowse that "because so many judges are old women that's no reason for making old women judges."

Lord Balfour's Story.

Lord Balfour of Burleigh, having seen the principle of female suffrage accepted by the peers, moves to submit the question to a referendum. He is an entirely honest man, but his proposal might bring about a result as unexpected as attended certain instructions in a story told by himself. An official of the Soudan railway received one day a message from a remote village: "Station master dead. Shall bury him?" "Yes," was the reply, "but make sure that he is really dead." In due season came the report, "Have buried station master. Made sure he was dead by hitting him twice on head with a fishplate."

Sawdust for Fuel.

In some portions of France where coal is so scarce and consequently so expensive that it is altogether unobtainable by the poorer class of people, sawdust is being used as a substitute, according to the Popular Science Monthly. The sawdust is rammed down tightly in cylindrical metal boxes, and a few drops of petroleum are poured over it. The fire thus made can be used for cooking and all domestic purposes, and will

SLUGGISH LIVER CAUSES LOTS OF TROUBLE

When the liver becomes sluggish it is an indication that the bowels are not working properly, and if they do not move regularly many complications are liable to set in.

Constipation, sick headache, bilious headache, jaundice, heartburn, water brash, catarrh of the stomach, etc., all come from a disordered liver.

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are a specific for all diseases or disorders arising from a slow, sluggish, lazy or torpid liver, and they have been universally used throughout Canada for over 20 years with the greatest success.

Mrs. W. A. Harrison, 7 Poplar Grove, Halifax, N.S., writes: "I take pleasure in writing you concerning the great good I have received by using Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills for a sluggish liver. When my liver got bad I would have severe headaches, but after using a couple of vials of your pills, I have not been bothered any more."

SPHAGNUM MOSS DRESSINGS FOR WAR PURPOSES

SPHAGNUM Moss, to which attention has been drawn by the fatal accident to Mr. Harry James Smith, the American Sphagnum Moss expert, is one of Canada's natural resources, one great value of which has been brought to light by the war. The use of mosses in surgical dressings dates at least as far back as the Napoleonic wars, but the demand for and extensive use of Sphagnum Moss did not materialize until 1915, and even in the Spring of 1916 its use was in the experimental stage. So great has become the demand that Great Britain is no longer able to fill it, and Canada and the United States are now being actively exploited for this highly absorbent dressing.

The first effective work on this side of the Atlantic was initiated by Prof. Porter of McGill University, who secured samples of various qualities of moss from the British authorities early in 1916 and then explored the bogs of Eastern Nova Scotia until he was able to locate supplies of material which the same authorities accepted as "perfect." The first sphagnum dressings sent overseas were made up from this moss in the autumn of 1916 by the Junior Red Cross of Guysboro, Nova Scotia.

Since then the industry has developed steadily. The McGill University Women's Union established a sphagnum department in a large laboratory very generously placed at their disposal by the University Medical School in the autumn of 1916, and from that day until this has been preparing moss and shipping dressings. Another important function of this organization has been to make up experimental sphagnum dressings of many sorts to try out the different grades of Canadian material under varying conditions.

During the winter of 1917 another work room was started at Dalhousie University, Halifax, and the Canadian Red Cross definitely adopted sphagnum for hospital dressings and prepared to open working centres on a large scale. Unfortunately the changes in the Atlantic shipping situation which resulted from unrestricted submarine warfare necessitated a temporary check; but the work of exploration and development was continued.

The late Mr. Harry James Smith of New York became interested in the possibilities of sphagnum last spring, and after spending some time with Dr. Porter to familiarize himself with the technology of the subject, established a sphagnum organization at his own expense at Arichat, Cape Breton, and collected and prepared a large amount of moss. Success in the use of this material led to the adoption of sphagnum by the American Red Cross and to the formation of a department which was placed under the control of Mr. Smith as organizer and Dr. J. A. Hartwell of New York as technical advisor.

During the last two or three months developments have been very rapid. The demand for dressings has increased to such an extent that the Canadian Red Cross has decided to start production on a large scale, and the Americans are organizing for an immense output for the use of their own and the French hospitals.

No moss can of course be procured in the east until the snow melts, and the bogs thaw out; but excellent sphagnum is also found on the Pacific coast. Mr. Smith, with the help of the Canadian Sphagnum Committee, procured a car of Vancouver Island moss early in the winter, and this carload (which Mr. Smith paid for out of his own pocket) proved so satisfactory that he went to Seattle early in March to organize the industry in the north-western States, and incidentally to look into the situation in British Columbia for Professor Porter, who was unable to go west at the time. As a matter of fact Mr. Smith met his death while searching for moss for the Canadian Red Cross, and thus set the seal to a life of exceptional generosity and nobility.

Sphagnum grows in moist and boggy places, and can be found in almost all parts of the country; but the moss to be useful must have exceptionally full and soft foliage, and the stems while tough and elastic must be flexible, as otherwise the dressing would be liable to cause irritation.

First class material has been found in boggy districts close to the Atlantic coast, and equally good moss grows plentifully in the far West — as, for example, on the west coast of Vancouver Island—but little or no first class surgical material has been found far from the sea, although there are immense areas of Sphagnum bog in the interior both of Canada and the United States. The best qualities of moss are likely to be found close to the margins of the ponds, and sometimes considerable areas of clean high grade material fill what was once a small pond. Before any attempt is made to collect moss in quantities all of the bogs in the district should be examined with a view to locating the largest supplies of good material, and this preliminary examination should be made by persons who have had previous experience in collecting Sphagnum.

Owing to the great variations in usefulness of different kinds of Sphagnum, and the fact that different species grow very much intermixed, the material has to be collected by people who have been trained to know good moss from bad, and even an experienced collector will often have difficulty in deciding just what to take and what to leave when he first visits a new locality.

The accompanying photographs show the work of the McGill Women's Union. No. 8 illustrates the preparation and drying of sphagnum and the manufacture of dressings. No. 9, the general soldiers' comforts work. The Union was organized during the first weeks of the war from among the families of the Governors and staff of the University. Its original purpose was to help provide "soldiers' comforts" for McGill graduates and students on active service, and as these now number over 2,200, the possibilities of its work may be imagined. During the three and a half years of its existence the Union has expended nearly $8,000 on the purchase of high grade materials, which have been made up by its members into socks, caps, mufflers, pyjamas, shirts, etc., to a total of about 9,000 articles of clothing alone, to say nothing of an immense number of sphagnum dressings, etc.

The organizer and first president of the Union was Mrs. H. Walter; since then the chair has been filled successively by Mrs. E. F. Howard, Mrs. J. B. Porter and Mrs. J. W. Ross, the present President. The Sphagnum Committee of the Union was organized in 1916 under the chairmanship of Lady Gordon, and its present Chairman is Mrs. Porter. The Treasurer of the Union is Mrs. A. McGoun and the Secretary Mrs. A. Willey. Any correspondence regarding the work of the Union should be addressed to the latter; but questions relating to the technology of Sphagnum and Sphagnum dressings should be addressed to Miss S. M. Bainbridge, Hon. Sec. Committee on Sphagnum Dressings, Canadian Red Cross Society, care McGill University, Montreal.

The Woman Who Changed

By JANE PHELPS

THE LAST STRAW

CHAPTER XXX.

I never shall forget that next week. The new butler came first, then the maid. I took a dislike to both of them at first, principally because Mrs. Sexton had engaged them. But when I saw how competent they were I chided myself for being unreasonable. The butler's name was James, and the maid's Celeste, a dark eyed French girl.

But all that week Mrs. Sexton was particularly trying. She seemed determined to belittle me in every way. She boldly gave orders to my servants without consulting me, and acted as though the house were hers, not mine. Mary disliked her almost as much as I did when she commenced giving orders in the kitchen. Indeed she threatened to leave, and I had to fairly beg her to stay for my sake.

"And what is she a doin' givin' me orders, I'd like to be afther a knowin'?" she said, "I didn't hire to her."

"No, Mary, and it is only for this one dinner. Mr. Howard thinks I am too young and inexxperienced to manage it. Please don't get cross!"

"Too young is it! Ain't I here?" she demanded, then. "Don't you fret, dearie. I'll stand it once."

But the crowning insult came when Mrs. Sexton insisted upon showing me correct table manners. While she didn't go quite so far as to show me how to eat my soup, she came very near it.

A CRYING SPELL.

When she left, one morning, after she had ragged every nerve in my body, I ran up stairs and locking my door threw myself on the bed and cried. I sobbed and wept, and declared over and over that I would go home. She and George could have their old dinner by themselves. I would put up with nothing more from her.

Suddenly I heard George's step on the stairs. Then his rap, and a demand to open the door at once.

What had brought him home in the middle of the day? Of course he had to catch me crying, and he would be cross. But I didn't dare hesitate, so I crossed the room, wiping my eyes as best I could, and opened the door.

"What are you crying about?" he asked sternly.

"Oh, George, it is that horrid Mrs. Sexton! Please don't make me have her here any more? She insulted me horribly, this morning. And"—

"Insulted you! How?"

"Trying to teach me table manners, and"—

"She was hired to teach you anything it was necessary for you to know" he again interrupted, "I came home to take you out with me. I have to go some distance in the country, and as it was such a beautiful day I thought you might enjoy the ride. But you choose to make yourself impossible by crying over nothing, or over something you imagine is so. Good bye—I hope you will remove the traces of your tears before I get back. You are most unattractive," and without waiting to hear my weak little protest he ran back down the stairs and out.

ANOTHER CAUSE FOR WOE.

My tears started afresh when I saw that he had the open car. I seldom rode in it, because he said it made me look 'blowsy,' and now he was going to take a long ride in it without me. He had come all the way home, too, to get me. Would I know him, ever understand how he could be so nice at one time, so disagreeable at another?

I dried my eyes and bathed them at intervals all the afternoon. He had not said how long he would be gone, and he must not be angered further by seeing traces of tears on his return. But sobs kept rising in my throat in spite of all that I could do.

All that long afternoon I remained in my room. Celeste knocked several times, but I would not admit her. Finally Mary came up with a tray of toast and tea, and when I heard her voice I let her in.

"Eat somethin', Mrs. Howard. You'll make yourself sick if you don't," she said coaxingly, "Shure it's the shame for a young thing the likes of you to be stayin' in the house all this beautiful day."

"I know, Mary, and it is all my own fault. I cried about that Mrs. Sexton, and couldn't go out riding with Mr. Howard because of my red eyes," attempting to shield George.

"Shure a thick veil would hide them," she muttered as she went out.

I ate the toast and drank a cup of tea, then had to acknowledge that I felt better. I bathed and dressed, then sat down by the window to watch for George. The bell rang, and I heard Evelyn's voice say:

"I know Mrs. Howard isn't it, James; I just saw her drive by with Mr. Howard. Will you give her this magazine when she comes in?"

"No you didn't see me Evelyn, come right up!" and as she ran lightly up the stairs, I wondered who it was she had seen and mistaken for me.

"She was so done up in veils I didn't see her face," she explained, frankly embarrassed, when I questioned her.

A Valuable Gift.

The London Daily Express states that a magnificent collar, composed of 15 rows of the famous Vanderbilt pearls, connected by large diamonds and set in plaques, worth in all about $25,000, is the Duchess of Marlborough's gift to the children's jewel fund.

Three diamond tiaras already have been sent to the duchess for the fund, of which she is the treasurer. Every woman is asked to contribute one piece of jewelry to help establish child welfare and maternity centres, of which 5,000 more are needed in the United Kingdom.

New Scripture.

A story is going the rounds, in the north of England of a certain Lancashire battalion on the Cambral front. The battalion was trudging back from the trenches, after being relieved, in the small hours of the morning. Suddenly it was confronted by an officer, who ordered it to halt and dig a support trench where it was. The battalion obeyed, of course, without a murmur, but, after a moment, there came a voice from the darkness: "In six days t' Lord made 'eaven an' earth, and then, on the seventh, Lancashires coom an' dup it all oop again."

Optimistic Idea.

Nothing is so uncertain as the minds of the rabble.

KIDNEY DISEASE OVERCOME.

Mr. James Prouse, cattle dealer, Shehe, Sask., writes: "For about ten years I suffered from kidney disease; at times was bad with backache, and derangements of the digestive organs. During that time I was treated by four different doctors. One day I read in Dr. Chase's Almanac about the Kidney-Liver Pills and began to use them. Altogether I used six boxes. All I need say is that I feel well now and attribute this condition to the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills."

The "Poilu" In the Hospital.

What sort of a man the poilu is as he lies defenseless in his bed. I may as well admit at once, after several months of intimacy with him, that he has not only conquered my affection which any poor stricken lad might do, but has inspired in me a profound respect. I will not say that I have been surprised to find him brave and cheerful, for his patience in suffering has been not less than I expected. But perhaps no one who has never helped to nurse wounded soldiers could have anticipated that men from the humblest walks of life, the rank and file of farm laborers, factory hands, cab drivers, butcher boys, and the miscellaneous herd of city clerks, would, with scarcely an exception, have proved so refined, so gentle, so responsive to any overture of courtesy and any demand of generosity. France has always been a great civilizer. She has given manners to the world. Her people embraced Christianity when "our fathers worshipped stock and stones." She was foremost among the nations to be inspired with the divine folly of chivalry. She, with America in her hand, was the first to turn at the mile-post of democracy and begin the arduous race for equal rights and mutual sacrifice in human society. After all, then, that her sons, the poorest and most ignorant of them, should be rich in grace and wise in conduct is not surprising. One little trait is significant. When gentlemen are hungry they show their breeding by restraint and consideration for others, and it is a fact worth noting that in our wards when meals are set upon the table the men eat with a decent regard for all and with singular self-respect. They divide the food among themselves justly giving, indeed, an extra portion to the weakest; they hold their knives and forks properly, they enliven the repast with wit and humor and make of it a pleasant diversion.—Scribner.

WILLY AT JERUSALEM

HOW THE KAISER VISITED THE HOLY CITY.

Twenty Years Ago the Supreme War Lord Made an Entry Into the City of David That Would Alone Have Proved That He Is Lacking Completely In Any Sense of Humor.

THAT the Kaiser completely lacks a sense of humor is the statement of Spencer Leigh Hughes, member of the British Parliament, who relates a story of encountering Wilhelm in Jerusalem nearly twenty years ago. Mr. Hughes grows reminiscent in an article in the London Times, and says:

"More than nineteen years have passed since I had the experience of seeing the Kaiser enter Jerusalem, heralded, appropriately enough, by blatant and brazen music and surrounded by what is sometimes called by descriptive reporters 'a plentiful display of bunting.'

"It was at about 3.15 on the afternoon of Saturday, Oct. 29, 1898, that this curious specimen of a pilgrim entered the Holy City, armed to the teeth, escorted by troops, with Turkish mounted police thrashing out of the way such natives as had drawn near. Some accounts of the event relate that he went in by the Damascus Gate, but that is not the case. To oblige their imperial guest the Turks had made a breach in the historic and immemorial walls of Jerusalem in order to save the Kaiser from the trouble of turning an awkward corner,—an outrage that may have satisfied his sense of Kultur. It may be thought that any reflections I cast on those 1898 proceedings have been tinged by the fact that we are now at war with the chief performer and that what then appeared harmless now seems offensive. That is not, however, the case, for at that time I wrote an account of the event in which I described the Kaiser as the only rival of Barnum, and in regard to the procession of German officers, Turkish Pashas and the horde of hangers-on I then wrote: 'Nothing like this has been seen since Noah came out of the ark.'

"The Kaiser had arrayed himself like a Crusader as seen in pantomime—helmet, silk robe and the other usual trappings for the part. He appeared to be in a mood of exaltation and saluted with almost epileptic fury. Indeed, it seemed to me that he imagined he had captured the city by the sword instead of arriving there, as was the fact, as one of Cook's personally conducted tourists. I have sometimes seen accounts of that imperial trip to the Holy Land in which it is said that the German thoroughness and efficiency were shown by the perfection of the arrangements and by the manner in which the time-table was kept. All these tributes to that perfection of arrangements are well deserved, but the Germans had nothing to do with it, as the whole business, including the providing of money and the catering and transport, was in the hands of Messrs. Thomas Cook & Son, of Ludgate Circus, and it would be impossible to imagine a more British institution than that.

"It was only by chance that I saw this famous entry, for though I had gone out on purpose to witness and to describe it, the Turks, who do not appreciate the press, had tried to keep the special correspondents at a distance. They assured us that the Kaiser had expressed the wish that we should not get within twenty-four hours of him—either in advance or following behind. We knew our Kaiser better than that, as he liked to travel 'with a full band' as the phrase goes. One of our party, the late Melton Prior, had a letter of introduction from the Prince of Wales, afterward King Edward VII., and so obtained an interview when the Kaiser announced that he wished all facilities to be given to the journalists. That made things more easy for us, but we had been delayed so long that it seemed likely that we should not get to Jerusalem in time for the show. But ten or a dozen of us, acting together, hired a special train, and thus we were able to romp into Jerusalem about a couple of hours before the curtain went up and saw a sight worth seeing.

"What struck me about the Kaiser in Jerusalem more than anything else was his complete lack of a sense of humor—a lack so complete as to be hardly consistent with entire sanity. The entry ceremony which I have mentioned showed the truth of the saying that there is but one step between the sublime and the ridiculous. For it was really ludicrous beyond description, and so were some of his subsequent performances in that city. I have never witnessed anything more really funny than his appearance as a preacher in a church in Jerusalem, when he took part in the dedication of a German Protestant church there. He and his attendant officers, gigantic men selected on the Barnum principle because of their size, marched up the church, all armed to the teeth, with a mixture of the goose-step and the cake-walk, while the choir sang a respectful anthem which the Kaiser took to refer to himself and acknowledged it with a military salute! As Germany is not my spiritual home, it happens that I do not understand the German language—indeed, I am so ignorant in this respect that I was not always sure whether the imperial preacher was tackling a guttural or clearing his throat. But the tone throughout was that of a drill sergeant giving orders.

"As I came away I talked to a German officer who knew our language and our country well. He said, 'I know you make fun of our Emperor in your country.' I said that of course we would not be so rude, but he retorted, 'Oh, I know all about it, I see Punch,' and then he added this discriminating remark, 'Whatever you may say about him, this at least is true—he is the greatest commercial traveler in the world'."

"Putting" In Your Parlor.

During stormy weather, or in the winter, it will no longer be necessary for the golfer to forego his putting practice.

Eugene McLean Long has invented a device for catching and holding a ball in such a manner that when you use it you almost imagine you are on a putting green insead of on the parlor floor.

The indoor putting green is a circular device having a recess in the centre. The recess is surrounded by flexible filaments which tip when struck like blades of grass. The underlying idea is to reproduce outdoor conditions as closely as possible.—Popular Science Monthly.

Mother and Children Had Awful Coughs

WERE CURED BY

DR. WOOD'S NORWAY PINE SYRUP

Mrs. Arthur Appleyard, Novar, Ont., writes: "This past winter my children and I had awful colds and coughs which we got by being in drafts. I tried a number of different remedies for us, but got no relief. I thought I would try Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and I found it a most excellent and sure cure. It gave relief to the tickling in the throat, and stopped the cough, and with a few bottles we were all cured."

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is a remedy that has been on the market for over twenty-five years, and we can recommend it as being without doubt, the best cure for coughs and colds that you can posibly procure.

There are a lot of imitations on the market, so when you ask for "Dr. Wood's" see that you get it. Put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price 25c and 50c; manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

The Taking of Jerusalem.

For the world the fall of Jerusalem was an event of great sentimental importance, even though it was practically without military meaning. The rescue of the city from Moslem hands was celebrated alike by Jew and Christian, and for the Jews it was accepted as the guarantee of the erection of a Jewish state under British protection, which would renew the great Hebrew tradition.

On the military side the British success was important only as the campaign is designed to draw away from the Turkish army who were preparing for a thrust at Bagdad, certain divisions and squadrons for the defence of the Holy Land and Syria. Under the command of Falkenhayn, a Turkish army has been preparing for months to retake Bagdad. A threat to Syria and an immediate menace to the Mecca railroad might conceivably lead the Turk to insist upon detaching troops from the Bagdad army for use against Allenby in defending their threatened dominions.

At all events the British are compelled to keep troops in the Near East to defend Egypt, and a defence of Egypt would be as easy in Palestine as at the bank of the Suez Canal, while the moral effect of depriving the Turk of Jerusalem, as he has already been deprived of Bagdad by the British and of Mecca by the Arabs, must be considerable. It would be a mistake to regard the Bagdad or Jerusalem operations as anything but "side shows." One is designed to protect Egypt, the other India. Both have seized Turkish lands which may never return to the Sultan, and the result of both campaigns may be the liberation of all the Arab world from the Osmanli yoke. Syria may become a French protectorate, Palestine and Mesopotamia British protectorates, but these are considerations for the future. For the present they are but details in a world war, new evidences of the fashion in which Britain is reviewing her traditions of other centuries.—American Review of Reviews.

A Single Application Banishes Every Hair

(The Modern Beauty).

Here is how any woman can easily and quickly remove objectionable hair growths without possible injury to the skin: Make a paste with some powdered delatone and water, apply to hairy surface and after 2 or 3 minutes rub off, wash the skin and the hairs are gone. This is a painless, inexpensive method and, excepting where the growth is unusually thick, a single application is enough. You should, however, be careful to get genuine delatone.

THE EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

The Patterns Are Guaranteed to Give Excellent Satisfaction

LADY'S AND MISS' COAT.

Isn't this just the most delightfully simple jacket you've seen this season? It can be made very successfully at home, for it is a straight, loose model which requires very little fitting. The long shawl collar rolls gracefully to the waistline and is faced with satin. The pockets are very easy to make and they are stitched all around the outer edge. They are attached to a wide belt, which fastens by means of a buckle at centre front. The coat may be worn with a narrow skirt of simple design.

The lady's and miss' coat pattern No. 8753 is cut in six sizes—16 to 18 years, 36 to 42 inches bust measure. As on the figure, the 36 inch size requires 3¾ yards 36 inch or 2¼ yards 54 inch, with 1⅛ yards 18 inch or ⅝ yard 42 inch material.

This Pattern Can Be Obtained From the Examiner Office on Payment of 15 Cents.

BRITISH CAPTURE PRISONERS AND MACHINE GUNS

ENEMY COUNTER ATTACKS BROKEN WITH HEAVY LOSSES

GERMANS STILL FIGHTING DESPERATELY NEAR MOREUIL

Rioters Sniped Soldiers From The Housetops

Sixty-two Men Were Placed Under Arrest as Result of Quebec Riots —Machine Guns in Action.

OFFICIAL CASUALTY LIST

Canadian Press Despatch:

QUEBEC, April 2.— Fighting between the rioting element in Quebec and the military forces here continued into the night. After midnight the firing died down to a very great extent, but men on the house tops sniped at the soldiers for hours. It was hoped by the military authorities that now it has been demonstrated that no more breaches of the law will be tolerated, disorderly factions will remain quiet.

SIXTY-TWO MEN ARRESTED.

The military authorities had sixty-two men under arrest this morning in connection with last night's clash between rioters here and the soldiers. They have been arrested on a charge of frequenting an illegal assembly. Th morning General Lessard consulted with the civil authorities as to their prosecution. The official casualty list of last night's battle, handed out by the military authorities this morning, shows that the civilian dead are four, Arthur Laperriere, George Hamel, B. Demelle and Edguard Trembley. The number of wounded soldiers remains at five and civilians four.

ALL MEETINGS CANCELLED.

The question of what disposition was to be made of sixty-two men arrested by the military authorities during last night's rioting is still being discussed by the authorities. The military were afraid that if the men came up before a jury, sympathy would be great and that they would all be acquitted.

This morning, doctors residing in the vicinity of the rioting last night reported to the police fifteen cases of wounding. In order to assist the military to keep the streets clear, to keep people indoors and out of danger from wild shooting, all concerts and meetings scheduled for to-night have been cancelled. To-day was still foggy in Quebec and press reports were that the weather favouring the operations of snipers would prevail to-night. This morning the body of an unknown man was found behind a fence near the Jacques Cartier Square. He had evidently been hit by machine gun fire. An official list of the casualties in the fighting last night follows: Civilians dead 5, wounded civilians 15, soldiers 5. Coroner Jolicoeor will open an inquest to-morrow.

QUEBEC, April 2. — Soldiers and rioters fired at each other last night, and the first casualty list shows that a number of soldiers have been shot and also three civilians killed and several injured. The soldiers when fired on opened back with machine guns. This was the midnight situation.

A number of arrests have been made for breaches of the law, and a large number of other men taken into custody by the soldiers and marched to barracks so as to get them out of the road.

Too Serious to be Discussed.

Shortly before midnight Major-General F. L. Lessard, who is in command, stated that the situation was too serious to be discussed.

Martial Law in Effect.

Anything may break out at any time. Matrial law went automatically into effect when the soldiers were fired upon.

Machine Guns Carried Dismay.

Matters came to a head shortly before 11 o'clock, when the worst clash of all took place on Boulevard Langelier, about six streets from the Market Square. A patrol of soldiers was fired at, dozens of shots being sent at them from behind protecting snow banks, lanes, and in some cases from housetops. The soldiers fired back, and the machine gun section from Toronto opened fire, three machine guns getting into action with a promptness that carried dismay to the hearts of the rioters. It was here that most of the

ENEMY HAS NOT RISKED A GENERAL BATTLE SINCE THURSDAY

Hindenburg is Paying the Allies the Compliment of Further Hesitation—Fighting of Local Character

ARMIES BADLY MAULED

Ten o'clock despatch, by William Philip Simms, United Press service.

Special to The Examiner and Toronto Star.

With the British Army in France, April 2.—Hindenburg is paying the Allies the compliment of further hesitation.

Monday's activities were local in character. His commanders obviously reported their armies too badly mauled to undertake a general advance before they were rested. Reinforcements are brought up with ample artillery.

It is estimated that fifty divisions of 6,000,000 men were used by the Germans between Arras and Moreuil, (about thirty-seven miles in an air line) fifteen of which have received such a drubbing they are unfit for immediate use.

A SECOND BLOW.

The bulk of the enemy is still north of the Somme so far as the British are concerned. A second blow against Arras is likely. All day the German artillery was busy outside the Scarpe.

The enemy has not risked a general battle since Thursday. The small advances made were seldom accomplished by direct assault but by infiltrations and flanking of local positions.

An example of this was the occupation of high ground at the confluence of the Luce and Avre. A short, sharp fight took place in the Luce Valley, whereupon the British line was forced back a short ristance of Demuin. The enemy turned southward penetrating the wood north of Moreuil.

Generally all the fighting for the past four days has been of the same character.

While Hindenburg is struggling to bring up artillery and material across a difficult country to replace his groggy divisions preparatory to the next "kick off" there is reason to believe that another attack will be made in the next week toward Arras and Vimy Ridge. The severest fighting is coming in the direction of Amiens, south of the Somme.

COMPLAINTS CONFIRMED

Men Returning to Canada Had to Sleep on Wet Decks—Food Was Bad and Hospital Cases Were Neglected

STARTLING REVELATIONS

TORONTO., April 2.— According to the summary issued to-day all complaints of the returned men regarding the conditions on the transports carrying them back to Canada were corroborated with one exception at the court of inquiry held in camera at Ottawa recently. Some of the witnesses' evidence had to be taken at their bedsides in the hospital, in one case the witness was dying and has since died. Evidence was given regarding thirteen ships, and the witnesses ranged from lieutenant-colonels to privates. Evidence was produced showing that on the troops ships, men who had been given red tickets by the authorities in England, entitling them to cabin berths, were sent to the bottom of the ship, where they had to lie on the deck floors, in many cases wet. In almost every case the troops ships were disgusting, filthy with vermin, the quarters foul and hot and the food bad. Lavatories on most of the ships were indescribable. Very clear and positive evidence was given showing that some soldiers were placed in the guard room on one of the lower decks and locked in so that had the ship been torpedoed they would have been drowned like rats in traps.

IMMORALITY ALLEGED.

One witness said that that he would rather have his women relatives dead than have one of them cross in a troop ship as a result of the immorality, etc. he had seen. Disgraceful scenes, said the witness, occurred on board. Troops mutinied and hooted the Officer Commanding and openly threatened to throw him overboard. In his evidence, Pte. T. Mullin, 148th Battalion, said that his wound was not dressed on the voyage for twelve days, and although sent back as a cot case, he had to stand at drill for half an hour daily. Much evidence was given showing the utter disregard for the cripples and invalids where lots of better accommodation could have been had, that the men presented grievances but without redress, so that they were lashed and goaded into a state of mutiny. In all forty-two witnesses were heard at the enquiry.

Judgment For $444 To Ackerman Co.

At the non-jury sittings of the County Court to-day, His Honour Judge Huycke presiding, the only case heard was that of B. F. Ackerman, Son & Co., Limited, against A. D. Hunt and William Burton of Port Arthur, for the recovery of $444.56, merchandise sold to the defendants carrying on business under the name of the Twin City Harness Company. The case was not proceeded with against Burton, Hunt defending on the ground that he had retired from the partnership before the debt was contracted. The Court held, however, that as the plaintiffs had not knowledge that Hunt had retired from the partnership that, consequently, Hunt was liable for the partnership debt, and gave judgment accordingly for Ackerman & Company for $444.56 and costs.

The claim of Hunt against the third parties, namely the Estates of W. B. Russell and Bert McGolrich, for indemnity was ordered to be tried by the County Court Judge at Port Arthur.

Mr. F. D. Kerr appeared for the plaintiff, Ackerman & Company, and Mr. G. N. Gordon acted as counsel for Keefer, Keefer & Towers, solicitors for the defendant, Hunt. The third parties were not represented.

MAY CUT CABLES

QUEBEC, April 2.—The police received word from agents investigating the operations here this afternoon that an attempt would be made to-night to cut the transmission cables of the Quebec Light, Heat and Power Co. and plunge the city in darkness. Witnesses of last night's fighting say that an organized gang was distributing money to rioters.

BOTH SIDES ARE DIGGING IN ON THE WESTERN BATTLE FRONT

NEW YORK, April 2.—To-day's Associated Press war review says:

To-day's official report on the situation along the great battle front revealed the conditions unchanged. Yesterday's despatches in which it was noted that both sides were digging in near Montdidier and Noyon made it seem probable that the lull would continue in this sector at least. Apparently there is little more activity on the line north from Montdidier and along the British front. Considerable artillery fire at some points is announced which was to have been expected as the opposing armies were increasingly able to get their larger guns into position. Paris has been subjected not only to another long-range bombardment, but to many raids. The big-gun bombardment, the eighth upon the region of Paris, started shortly after 10 o'clock this forenoon.

Paris Threatened With An Air Raid

Air Raid Warning Was Sounded in the Early Hours of This Morning —A Curtain of Fire

NIGHT WAS CALM

(Canadian Press.)

PARIS, April 2.—An air raid warning was sounded at 3.15 o'clock this morning. Anti-aircraft guns began to fire immediately and a continuous curtain of fire was placed around the capital. At 4.25 it was announced that all danger was over. The night was calm and the moon gleamed fitfully through the light and fleecy clouds, amidst which glided the twinkling lights of French airplanes defending Paris.

THE MEETING WAS LARGELY ATTENDED.

There was a large attendance at the meeting held last evening in the Mark street Methodist church. The speaker for the occasion was the Rev. A. G. Doner, pastor of Bethany Tabernacle, who gave an excellent exposition upon the subject of "Soul Winning" To-night the Rev. J. P. Wilson, D.D., pastor of Trinity Methodist Church will speak. The meetings will continue each evening during the week.

American Army Is On The March

The Roads in the Region of the Americans Are Clogged For Miles —Germans Are Nervous

HEAVY BOMBARDMENT

(United Press Service.)

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

(By Fred S. Ferguson.)

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, April 2.—All that America has offered to the Allies is in motion. The roads in this region are clogged for the third successive day. Men and guns and horses are moving in all directions. In some places there are double lines with men and horses on one side of the road and miles of trucks hurrying in the same direction alongside.

The men are in the highest spirits despite the mud, the rain and the heavy packs. A private in one company, carrying a mandolin, periodically struck up a marching tune. This is typical of the spirit of the army.

The Germans are jumpy on the Toul front, apparently expecting trouble. They turned on a heavy five-hour bombardment with shells of all classes and quantities of gas last night, and early this morning are sweeping the roads, villages and trenches. The damage was trifling.

MAGISTRATE DUMBLE RETIRING FROM PRACTICE OF LAW, ASKS CITY FOR MAXIMUM SALARY

The following communication from Police Magistrate Dumble was read at the regular meeting of the Council last night:

Peterborough, March 14, 1918.

Gentlemen,—On April 1st, 1918, I will retire from the active practice of law, and I will then be entitled to the salary fixed by the Act regarding Police Magistrates, namely, $2,000.00.

I give this notice now that your Treasurer may be advised in time.—Yours respectfully, D. W. DUMBLE.

City Solicitor Gordon quoted the Police Magistrates Act to the effect that in a city of 18,000 or over the Magistrate's salary shall be $2,000; but in a city whose population is between 18,000 and 25,000, where the Magistrate was appointed before January 31st, 1903, and is thereby permitted to practice law, his salary shall be $1,400 a year.

"It seems to me," Mr. Gordon wrote, "that Mr. Dumble is entitled to practice law, and for that reason his salary is limited by this statute. If he does not take advantage of his right to practice law it seems to me to make no difference, but the salary is fixed by statute."

BREAD INSPECTOR'S REPORT.

Police Sergeant Reid's second quarterly report as Bread Inspector showed that he had weighed 266 loaves, of which seven were underweight. These were seized and given to St. Vincent's Orphanage. There were no prosecutions.

NOTE FROM G. W. V. A.

S. A. Whatley, secretary of the G. W. V. A., sent the following note: "I am directed to inform you that the Veterans adhere to their previous resolution not to accept the band instruments under the terms embodied in the Council's agreement." Received.

FOR GREATER PRODUCTION.

J. W. Thirlleck and T. Cronin asked the Council for the use of the vacant and known as the extension of Cambridge Street, for the purpose of raising vegetables. Granted.

ASKED CITY FOR CONTRIBUTION.

Commissioner Richards, of the Salvation Army, requested the Council to assist financially the Army's Women's Social and Prison Operations. Referred to Finance Committee.

OVERDRAFT, $80,118.76.

City Treasurer Adams' statement of the receipts and payments from January 1st to February 28 showed an overbalance at the end of the period of $80,118.76.

ASKED FOR REFUND.

M. Pappas applied for the refund of his motion picture theatre license since January 25, the day on which it was destroyed by fire. The license was renewed in November, 1917. Referred to the Finance Committee.

Ald Edgar remarked that the Council had resolved not to refund any license fees this year.

AUDITOR'S STATEMENT.

Mr. F. J. A. Hall, auditor of all the city's financial accounts, reported that he had found them correct.

TO DRY FIRE HOSE.

The Fire, Water and Light Committee was authorized to shut the hose tower at the Fire Hall. By this improvement, the work will be done more quickly and the heat required in winter will be conserved within the tower.

WANTS SEWER AND DAMAGES.

W. C. Austin, owner of the property at 64 Hunter Street, wrote that he desired a sewer connection to that house, which he expected would be depreciated by the high level bridge. He offered, without prejudice, to release his claim for damages upon payment to him of $1,100.00, and the laying of connection from the Sheridan Street sewer to his Hunter Street house. This offer was

BRITISH OFFICIAL

Enemy Counter Attacks Were Broken Up With Heavy Losses —Large Number of German Dead Scattered Over the Ground

SUCCESSFUL RAIDS

Canadian Press Despatch:

LONDON, April 2.—The British official statement follows: In the course of the fighting yesterday in the area between Ave and the Luce rivers, we captured 50 prisoners and 13 machine guns. A large number of German dead were found on the ground in this locality by us and two counter attacks attempted by the enemy later in the day were broken up with heavy losses by our artillery. A German battery in action in this area was successfully engaged at short range and silenced by our machine guns. A successful local enterprise carried out by us in the neighbourhood of Hebuterne resulted in the capture of 73 prisoners and 3 machine guns. Many Germans were killed in the operation also, and a hostile counter attack during the afternoon was completely repulsed. On the remainder of the front successful raids, in which we secured several prisoners and killed a number of the enemy, were carried out in the neighbourhood of Acheville and Hollebeke.

NEW HIGH VOLTAGE WIRES FROM AUBURN TO THE SUB-STATION

A proposal from the Utilities Commission that the Council purchase a right-of-way through the Faint property, immediately north of Riverside Park, for a new electric feed line of 6,600 volts, was filed for further consideration.

City Engineer Parsons stated that the Commission was stringing their main line from Auburn through Ashburnham, following the G.T.R. to Hunter Street. They desire to erect temporary wires across the river to avoid the new Hunter Street bridge until it is finished. They plan to follow the old raceway south of Hunter Street, cross the Faint property, and reach across the river to the sub-station at the end of Simcoe Street.

"Nothing doing," was Mayor Duncan's terse comment upon the suggestion that the city pay for the right-of-way required.

Mr. Parsons pointed out that the new line will provide the power used on the west side of the river, and it was therefore an important work.

ROAD OIL NEEDED FOR MUNITIONS ITS MANUFACTURERS SAY

Several of the manufacturers whom the Council asked for quotations on road oil have declined to submit prices, and have suggested that the city should reduce to a minimum its purchases of this oil, because it is needed in the manufacture of munitions.

The Imperial Oil Co. wrote that it was too valuable as a fuel. When their oil tanks arrive from Mexico they may forward a price-list.

The International Petroleum Co. of St. Catharines quoted 14.38 cents an imperial gallon for 40,000 gallons.

Tarvia B was offered at 13 3-4 cents.

Ald Edgar stated that the city might be able to dispense with oil this summer, but the rest of the Council foresaw endless complaints from citizens in that event.

Mayor Duncan stated that three weeks ago, when the weather was at freezing, several men asked him when the city intended to lay the dust.

Ald. Weir stated that two or three new carts would be required if the streets were to be watered. They would cost $500 each.

The Council plainly favoured the oiling of the streets this year, and the Board of Works was instructed to get more prices.

PRAISE THE CANADIANS

Men From the Dominion Were in the Forefront at a Critical Juncture—Enemy Is Entrenching

FIGHTING IS INTENSE

(United Press Service.)

(Special to Peterboro Examiner and Toronto Star.)

(By Henry Wood.)

British Army in the Field, April 2. —The French military officials warmly praise the Canadians whose units are fighting with the French near the junction of the Franco-British lines, and who with the French recaptured Moreuil in one of the bloodiest battle charges of the entire war. Moreuil has been re-taken and re-lost twice.

One Canadian unit returning from a broken portion of the British line for the purpose of rejoining the British, arrived before Montdidner.

Learning of the critical situation, they again dashed into action, victoriously assaulting the Germans.

To-day the German advance is checked along all the routes, and the enemy has modified its objectives, aiming merely to capture the railway running southwards from Amiens to Greil and Beauvis

GIGANTIC BATTLE

A gigantic battle is raging between Lassigney and Moreuil for possession of the Amiens railway. The completeness of the check between La Ferre and Montdidnier is shown by the fact that the Germans are now entrenching that portion of their line.

Meantime between Montdidnier and Moreuil the Germans are still fighting desperately.

Women's Auxiliary Held A Meeting Last Evening

FREIGHT CONGESTION DELAYS FURNISHING OF THE VETERANS' CLUB ROOMS.

A largely attended meeting of the Women's Auxiliary to the Great War Veterans was held last evening in the Y.M.C.A. Arrangements have been completed for the furnishing of the new quarters of the Veterans but the arrival of the furniture has been delayed owing to the freight situation

Lieut.-Colonel J. Mills gave an instructive address on the methods employed to feed and supply an army in the field.

It was reported that the canvassers for the various districts have not all completed their work but as soon as the returns are all in a financial statement will be prepared for the public.

VOTE OF THANKS.

A hearty vote of thanks was extended to Mr. Schneider for the use of the Strand Theatre on March 13th, when a large sum of money was realized which will go towards the furnishing of the lub rooms of the Great War Veterans.

Mrs. Staunton, Mrs. Whittaker and Miss Robinson were appointed representatives to the local Council of Women.

The winners of the two crochet yokes were Miss McGregor and Miss Rena Johnson.

DIED.

WEIR.—On March 27th, Anne Weir, B.A., daughter of the late James and Susan Weir, of Forest. The interment took place on March 29th, at Arkana.

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving memory of my dear mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Guthrie, who died September 25th, 1917, aged 72 years:

BATTLE LINE MUST NOT WANT.

Do you realize what a German peace would mean to Canada?

Germany covets our natural resources—our agricultural and mineral wealth, our forests, our fisheries, everything that is Canada's.

Germany won't be satisfied with European territory, with teeming masses, wrangling factions and depleted natural resources. She wants colonies—big, thinly-populated countries in temperate zones for her sons and daughters to go to propagate their kind.

The Kaiser would sacrifice millions of Germans to-morrow if he thought that by so doing he could set foot on Canada's shores as Conqueror.

And what's more, the Germans would offer themselves for the sacrifice, so great is their subjection to the military ideal.

The only thing that balks German ambition is that battle line from the North Sea to Switzerland — and the British Navy.

The only thing that sustains our men on land and sea—is food.

What are we, each one of us, prepared to do to insure that food supply?

COL. LABATT'S CASE.

How can a man who is adjudged by a Medical Board as having sustained 100 per cent. disability while on active service, carry on the duties of Pension Commissioner at $5,000 per year is a question that has been puzzling many people, especially returned soldiers since the case of Col. H. H. Labatt of the Board of Pension Commissioners was brought into the limelight in the House of Commons by Mr. Devlin, M.P.

Col. Labatt went overseas early in the war, spent a short time in France—three weeks it is stated—was invalided home, suffering from heart trouble and a Medical Board gave it as their opinion that he was completely disabled, marking his disability at 100 per cent. which meant a pension of $2,130 a year for the Colonel. That was pretty generous treatment as very few soldiers who are troubled with affection of the heart have been able to secure a complete disability. On top of this Col. Labatt, although pronounced totally disabled, steps into a ten-year appointment as Pension Commissioner at a yearly salary of $5,000, making his total revenue per annum $7,130. Of course the fact that he is a brother-in-law of Hon. Dr. Reid, Minister of Railways, may not have had anything to do with the munificent treatment Col. Labatt has received.

Other returned soldiers who have been granted small disabilities have a right to expect from the Pension Board a measure of the generosity accorded to Col. Labatt.

MR. GUISE-BAGLEY'S CONVERSION

"I have the question very much at heart how the Allies are to be fed and consider that a man that can raise 1,000 bushels of grain gives more service to the Empire than if he went to England to train for a soldier."

The amazing point in connection with the sentiment quoted above is that they are the views as now expressed of Mr. J. Guise-Bagley, who was Capt. Burnham's agent in the recent election. Mr. Guise-Bagley's conversion on the food question is of very recent origin apparently, for at no time in the campaign was his voice raised or his pen employed in support of the principle that greater production was of supreme importance in Canada's war efforts.

Perhaps Mr. Burnham's official agent in the December contest is suffering from qualms of conscience. He knows that the country was assured that farmers would not be selected and that if any were drafted in error the Minister of Militia would see that they were exempted. He knows this because before the election he took the matter up with the Minister of Justice and was assured on these points.

Now he is finding out that pledges made during an election campaign are not always reliable, as his letter, published elsewhere in to-day's issue, admits. Mr. Guise-Begley quotes the Minister of Militia as saying that he had not discharged a single man, and the Minister's Secretary is given as authority for the statement that the Leave of Absence Boards are not to overrule the decisions of the Central Appeal Judge which does not leave them with much power to better the condition.

Is Mr. Guise-Bagley's activity now, as evidenced by his visit to Ottawa and his preparing of petitions to be regarded as inspired by remorse?

THE LAST MAN.

That more Canadians will be called to the colours and that the men of Class 2 may soon be drafted would seem to be evident consequences of the appeal from Premier Lloyd-George received by the Governor-General. The British Premier's splendid tribute to the valour of Canadian troops and to the necessity of getting more of them overseas was as follows:

"I have been inspired during the past week with the constant news of the dauntless courage with which the Dominion troops have withstood the desperate assaults of vastly more numerous German troops. This battle shows that the Empire has reason to be proud of all its sons. Our armies cannot have too many of these splendid men. As already announced, we proposed to ask Parliament to authorize immediate measures for raising fresh forces. I would also urge the Government of Canada to reinforce its heroic troops in the fullest possible manner and with the smallest possible delay. The struggle is only in its opening stages, and it is our business to see that our armies get the maximum measure of support that we can give them. Let no one think that what even the remotest of our Dominions can now do can be too late. Before this campaign is finished the last man may count."

To give effect to Lloyd-George's appeal for the reinforcement of Canada's forces in the fullest possible manner, and with the smallest possible delay, a more vigorous administration of the Military Service Act will be necessary. So far, the first class has yielded a disappointingly small number of men for the army, although the totals will be increased as temporary exemptions terminate and appeals are disposed of. From Quebec alone should come some thousands of troops when the Appeal Judge wades through the appeals with which his court is congested.

Lloyd-George's statement that the last man may count, however, brings it home to the married men of Class 2 that their call to the colours may not long be delayed.

OFFICIAL MISTAKES.

One of the chief grievances that the wives and dependents of soldiers have to contend with, is the tendency on the part of officials at Ottawa to make mistakes in regard to assigned pay and separation allowances—errors that require much time to correct owing to the red tape which exists to super-abundance in the departments. Mistakes will occur under the best of systems, and in the early days of the war were excusable, but Canada has been in the struggle for three years and eight months now, and it is only reasonable to expect, at this late stage, that errors will be reduced to a minimum, and that such mistakes as occur will be rectified.

Here are a couple of typical cases The Examiner has come across recently. The wife of a Peterboro soldier, whose husband is on duty in France, received in February last a cheque marked "Assigned pay and separation allowance." So far, so good, but the cheque was only for $15.00, which was her assigned pay alone, the $25 separation allowance being missing. She wrote several letters complaining about the matter, but received no answer. And when March came along the process was repeated. Another $15.00 cheque arrived again marked "Assigned pay and separation allowance." The result is that for the two months this soldier's wife has been expected to live and support her family on $30 assigned pay, and the Patriotic Fund allowance, while the Government owes her $50.00 separation allowance.

Here is a second, and a different kind of error on the part of officialdom: A local man employed by one of the Government departments here enlisted for overseas service in 1915. As a Government employee, he was entitled to half a year's pay each year of his service, as well as to his military pay, and on this account the usual separation allowance should not have been paid. However, the separation allowance was sent regularly to his wife, who was not aware of the fact that she was not entitled to this grant on account of the other circumstances. For over two years Ottawa has continued to pay the separation allowance. The sequel came last week when the officials discovered that an error had been made and sent the wife a letter informing her that she owes the Government a sum in excess of $500.

Such mistakes are bad enough but the manner in which letters sent to the departments are ignored, is infinitely worse. It seems to be difficult for soldiers' wives to get any explanation from the departments when there are errors to be rectified. If they go to a Member of Parliament, or to the Great War Veterans' Association, or the Patriotic Fund officials, it is possible to get some satisfaction from Ottawa, but such a step should not be needed. Surely women who have bravely allowed their husbands to go overseas should be treated with the courtesy of a reply to their letters at least. The officials at Ottawa cannot be so much overworked that they cannot find time to answer the communications of the relatives of our boys overseas.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Quebec young men may not want a chance to win the Military Cross, but they are liable to make the military cross if they persist in their tactics.

Although the Canadian corps, as a whole, has not been engaged in the great battle on the western front, Canadians have done splendid work. The Canadian cavalry assisted in the capture of Moreuil. Canadian artillery helped to stop the attack on Arras, and Canadian armoured motor cars distinguished themselves in the fighting south of that point.

The regulations prohibiting the importation of automobiles and jewellery will not bother newspaper men very much.

NEW METHOD
CARPET CLEANING

Mr. R. M. Beach has installed a New Twentieth Century Carpet Cleaning Department in connection with his business.

For cleaning carpets, rugs, and mats, this method will remove all dirt and stains, raise the nap, brighten the colours, disinfect and make moth proof in one operation.

WHAT OTHER EDITORS SAY

Costly Real Estate.

(Toronto Star).

The Germans are paying a tremendous price per acre for a merely temporary use of some French soil. It is probably the highest rent ever paid for vacant land in the world's history.

Would Be Unanimous.

(London Advertiser).

Regina Rotarians express disappointment with the Union Government's failure to deal energetically with war problems. If everyone would express an honest opinion, the expression would be unanimous from the nation.

The Royal Wanderers.

(Kingston Whig).

Society note: Ex-Czar and family have closed their winter home in Siberia and have gone to the Ural mountains to spend the summer. They have taken with them a new phonograph record entitled: "Where Do We Go From Here, Boys?"

Will Soon Forget It.

(Hamilton Record).

Canadian farmers condemn daylight-saving without having given it trial. In eleven countries where it has been tried the farmers as well as the rest of the people favor it. After it has been in effect in Canada for a little while the farmers will forget all about it.

Her Chief Distinction.

(New York Herald).

When Mother's Day rolls around some German women are sure to recall the significant fact that the Kaiserin is the only mother in all Germany able to boast the possession of six sons, strong and husky — and untouched.

The Kaiser Takes the Cure.

(New York Life).

The Kaiser, it is reported, has transferred his headquarters to Spa, the Belgian watering place, so that he may take the cure there for a short time. Taking the cure at Spa, as we understand it, consists of bathing a couple of times a day and drinking several quarts of funny-smelling water. This sort of treatment will not cure the Kaiser of his chief sickness for it only cleanses the body. The Kaiser needs to cleanse his soul, which is very foul indeed, and his reputation, which is as soiled and diseased as any reputation of which we have any knowledge. A few million years of bathing in bell-fire may cleanse the former; but his reputation will remain incurable until history ceases to be written, read and taught.

Hard Luck Cases.

(Kingston Standard).

Now that it costs 35 cents for a hair cut, the poor bald-headed men who have only a little fringe around the back of their head are up against it worse than ever because they have to pay just the same as if they possessed a full-grown crop of hair. Fate deals unkindly with some individuals.

Dance in the Conservatory

The dance last night in the Conservatory of Music given in aid of the 57th Regiment Band, was a charming little affair. Musgrave's music left little to be desired; and the young people regretfully heard the National Anthem at 2.30 this morning. Some of those who attended were the Misses Elva Jackson, E. Lawless, B. Heard, J. Girard, L. and C. Shevlin, Daisy Stocker, Isabel Baird, Vera Knox, Margery and Norah Hatton, Genevive and Marie McCarthy, Mamie Cottingham, Herbertson, Helen MacLaren, Marion Harstone, Ruth Robertson, Phyllis Robertson, Esme Aylmer, M. F. and G. Gladman, Gertrude Weir, Helen Bulmer, Genevive Bulmer, M. MacDonald, M. Fanning, Elva McIntyre Grace Primeau, Kathleen Byers E. Vincent, M. Lynn, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hall, Mrs. H. With Other Councils

Will Not Withdraw Order.

At a special meeting of the Chatham board of health the board refused to grant a request made by a committee of the city council and a committee of the Mechanic's Board of Trade that the order that all children be vaccinated before going to school be lifted.

Chatham is Growing.

The return made by the Chatham assessors shows an increase of $28,750 in assessment and an increase of 360 in population in ward 4. Other assessment has not been completed yet. Ward 5, which was reported a couple of weeks ago, also showed an increase.

Mayor Overrules Police Chief.

"The people of Canada have every reason to be thankful that they trusted you in a vastly bigger game of chance," said Mayor Macbride, of Brantford, in a letter to the secretary of the Great War Veterans' Association authorizing the raffle for a piano, which is being conducted by the returned men of the city. Objection to the raffle had been made by Chief of Police Slemin.

Good County Record.

Chatham and Kent county will have a very valuable record of men who have served in the present war. Capt. Y. Ross Robertson is in charge of the work, and a complete record is being made of every man who enlisted from the city and county. Nurses, A. M. C. and physicians are also being recorded. The record shows full details and as far as possible a complete military record and a photograph. The city and county are joining in the expense.

Economize on Heating.

Alterations in the present heating system at the Stratford Collegiate Institute, whereby in milder weather the entire school could be heated from one boiler instead of requiring the two, have been decided on by the collegiate board.

Will Not Investigate.

The Provincial Boards of Health will have nothing whatever to do with the investigations into events following the smallpox outbreak in Chatham, and this point was made clear by Dr. McCullough over the long-distance phone when apprised of the resolution passed by the council asking that an officer be sent to Chatham to conduct an investigation.

Against Daylight Saving.

At a meeting of the Middlesex County Council to discuss greater production the members went on record as being strongly against the daylight saving proposal, believing it to be most detrimental to farming interests. An organization to boost production will be formed in every township. Warden Graham deprecated the lack of co-operation between city residents and farmers and urged them to get together and help in the great needs of the present time.

Feed Garbage to Hogs.

Simcoe—A committee of the county council will inquire into the feasibility of feeding hogs at the industrial farm, utilizing garbage from the town for food.

Waterloo County Active.

Waterloo County will co-operate in the Dominion-wide campaign to increase garden production which is being promoted by the Canadian Food Board.

Dear Sir: Your contemporary, the Review, has one of its characteristic editorials in its last night's edition, on the riots in Quebec, and it says:

"This is no time for one or other of the parties to attempt to make political capital out of the situation in Quebec."

Then it proceeds to heap coal on the fiery furnace of hate and distrust for political purposes, when it says:

"But Bourassa's influence with his people could have been offset by leaders in that race higher in authority and possessed of more prestige than he, if they had chosen to exert themselves instead of standing passively b[illegible]d wa[illegible]ng him fan the spark i[illegible] a flame."

Wouldn't that gall you!

Bourassa, the man who elected the Conservatives in 1911, the platform companion of Hon. Frank Cochrane at North Bay and Sudbury during the election campaign of 1911, to tell the poor Frenchmen of Northern Ontario what a traitor Laurier was to Quebec and the Frenchmen, and how good to them Sir Robert Borden and his party would be!

Oh, no, the Conservative party and the Review sowed the wind in 1911, and are still sowing it, and they must reap the whirlwind.

Yours truly,
CONSTANT READER.

Peterborough, March 28th, 1918.

The Editor, "Examiner."

Sir,—In view of the alarm felt in farming circles in consequence of the Kingston Leave of Absence Board refusing to allow bona fide farmers to go back to the farms in the National interests as food producers, I have been to Ottawa and interviewed the Ministers of Agriculture and Militia, especially the latter, with reference to the letter of the Minister of Justice written to me during the late election campaign, copy of which I reproduce as follows:

"Military Service Branch,
"130 Sparks Street, Ottawa,
"30th November, 1917.

"Jas. G. Guise-Bagley, Esq.
"Peterborough, Ont.:

"Sir,

"Miliary Service Act, 1917.

"I have the honour by direction to "reply to your letter of the 26th ad"dressed to the Right Hon. the Prime "Minister.

"You will have noticed in the Press "of a few days ago that the Prime "Minister pointed out very clearly "that food production of all kinds was "essential, and that farmers and oth"ers bona fidely engaged in this "work must not be selected.

"You have doubtless, also noticed "a speech of the Hon. the Minister "of Militia in which he stated that ev"en if those engaged in food produc"tion, such as farmers, etc., were "drafted in error, that on proper proof "to him, HE WOULD SEE THAT "THEY WERE DISCHARGED.

"I think this fully meets the sugges"tion contained in your letter.

"Yours truly,
"E. L. NEWCOMBE.
"Deputy Minister of Justice."

and I put it up to the Minister of Militia that these pledges were not being lived up to by the Government, and informed him that the people are demanding that a fulfilment of the pledges be granted.

The Minister informed me that he had not discharged a single man under the Order-in-Council passed in January last and thought it would be unwise to do so! He had erected the Leave of Absence Boards to investigate and do the work, not by way of discharge, but by way of Leave of Absence, as it was necessary to keep track of the men who if given leave must stick to food production and nothing else, and so long as the National interests were served by these means discharge was unnecessary. He referred me to his Secretary, Captain Tyndall, who informed me that the Department considered the Leave of Absence Boards were not to overrule the decision of the Central Appeal Judge unless new circumstances had arisen since his decision. I argued that the Leave Board should not be fettered by any such regulations as all the Tribunals had to decide was whether the men were to be drafted, and then the Leave Board could decide what to do with the soldier, whether to the trenches or the farm according to where he would be of most service, but he gave me no satisfaction.

I then saw the Minister of Agriculture who expressed great dissatisfaction with the events that are happening at Kingston and elsewhere, and the depletion of the farms, and the loss to the food producing industry, and I understand there are now strong representations being sent from the Board of Agriculture to the Minister of Militia to have the regulations slackened and allow the men back to the farms. And I gathered that the hands of the Department of Agriculture needed to be strengthened by the backing of the Rural population.

I have therefore prepared a petition for signature by the people in the form printed below, and those who want to sign it may do so in the space provided and return to me at once. All that is needed is to cut out the petition and signatures, and the cuttings will all be annexed together and presented to the Governor-General early next week so that before seeding time is on us a change may be made and the necessary help drafted from the army to the farms so as to ensure the spring crop being put in.

The rest may be left to take care of itself. I have no interest in getting any man of military service, but I have the question very much at heart how the Allies are to be fed, and consider that a man that can raise a 1,000 bushels of grain gives more service to the Empire than if he went to England to train for a soldier, especially as so many never get there, and time and money are wasted on them.

If the farmers want to bring this grievance to a head this is their opportunity, and they should send in their signatures at once.

Yours truly,
JAS. G. GUISE-BAGLEY.

To His Excellency the Right Honorable the Duke of Devonshire, K.G., K.C., M.G., G.C.V.O., P.C., etc., Governor-General of the Dominion of Canada—

The humble petition of the undersigned, being bonafide farmers of the County of Peterborough, in the Province of Ontario and the vicinity,

Sheweth as follows:

1. That the County and City of Peterborough have yielded their manhood from the farms and city, and particularly the farms, to the extent of seven per cent. of the entire population for service in the present war and the farming population is thereby in the greatest straits for help. That there is scarcely a farm in the County that is not lamentably undermanned and it is found impossible to obtain labour skilled in the art of agriculture at any price.

2. That under the Military Service Act the farm help that had been left on the farm have almost to a man been drafted for Military Service and that numerous applications by the farmers concerned to the Leave of Absence Board for relief from military service in the interests of food production have been rejected and the men retained in the army because technical regulations fetter the liberty of action of the said Board.

3. That the removal of such farm help, and the refusal of the said Board to allow the farmers to have skilled men is producing a deadlock throughout the County that threatens to dislocate the food production of the greatest part of the farming community, and instead of greater production there will be a diminuition, and in some cases total extinction of food production in the County of Peterborough.

4. That it is of paramount National importance that food be produced in this Dominion to the utmost capacity and it is inimical to the National interests that the said men be taken from food production.

5. Your Petitioners respectfully refer to the pledges given by His Majesty's Prime Minister and Minister of Militia during the late Election Campaign promising that men bonafidely engaged in food production should not be drafted or if drafted would be discharged.

6. Your Petitioners allege that contrary to such pledges many men bonafidely engaged in food production have been erroneously drafted and have not been discharged and the regualtions of the Militia Department have fettered the liberty of action of the Leave of Absence Boards, preventing the investigation of such cases.

7. Your Petitioners submit that a change of policy should be immediately inaugurated, and on the basis of such change cases already heard by the Board should be reviewed.

8. Your Petitioners submit that it takes a number of years to train a man in the art of Agriculture and seeing that there is an insufficient supply of such men already, no skilled man should be refused Leave of Absence when his exemption is asked by a bona-fide farmer whose farm is shown to need the man.

9. That the County Council of the County of Peterborough passed a resolution on 23rd March, 1918, to the effect that:

"This Council resolves that the Minister of Militia be requested to return all skilled labour to the farms now conscripted, until at least the first of June."

Your Petitioners therefore pray that it may please your Excellency in Council to take such action in the premises as will ensure the full investigation of every case of alleged erroneous drafting regardless of any previous decisions thereon, and that all drafted men skilled in Agriculture be immediately returned to the farms on Leave of Absence. And your Petitioners will ever pray, etc., etc.

Signature of Petitioner. Occupation. Address.

THE WEATHER

The month of March this year, perhaps to recompense for the severity of the preceding winter months, had an average temperature higher than usual. The warmest day was the 20th, with 64 degrees. The coldest was the 11th, with 4 below zero. This was the only occasion when the temperature went below zero during the month. The snowfall amounted to 9 1-2 inches; the rainfall to .90 of an inch. The precipitation of the month was not up to the average, but for the winter as a whole, was about 25 per cent. above average. Spring came a few days before the average date; likewise most of the spring birds.—W. P.

Restaurant Stalls Must Go But Council Has Not Ordered It Yet

The Board of Health's recommendations respecting restaurants found the Council entirely responsive last night. The Board's resolution asked that new regulations provide that there shall be no compartments or stalls in restaurants, that each restaurant shall have a separate sanitary lavatory and wash basin for ladies and gentlemen, and that the sleeping apartments shall have a separate entrance from and have no connection with the kitchen and dining room; and that the basement floor shall be concreted.

The Council showed a desire to suspend its proposed new regulations in the case of little eating houses, of which there are only one or two. One of them is on Water street, opposite the Market.

It was suggested that principal restaurants might be designated by mentioning the streets.

Ald. Edgar remarked that there were far too many youths spending their money on late and high-priced meals, and in many instances their money was required at home.

"They don't need them as much as we do," said the South Ward alderman, to the amusement of the Council, but no one offered to buy.

The Finance Committee will deal with the restaurant question and invite the hotelmen to the meeting.

It is proposed to raise the restaurant fee. Five dollars is the present tax; twenty-five was mentioned last night and it may go higher.

SEEDING WILL BE GENERAL THIS WEEK

Former Peterborough Man Writes Optimistic Letter

In a letter received to-day from Mr. Wm. J. Connor of Consort, Alberta, he states that farm work has commenced and seeding will be general this week. The land is in excellent condition and prospects were never better for a good crop.

He also goes on to say that there is enough seed of all kinds in the locality, but none to spare, and that farm help is not scarce.

This is rather an optimistic letter to receive and it will be good news for those who know the seriousness of the food situation.

PAINT SMOKE STACK FOR $60.00.

Incinerator's Iron Pipe Will Be Given Two "Coats."

Tenders for repainting the incinerator's smoke stack were received by the Council last night from M. W. Oldroyd for $70, and E. S. Revoy for $60. The latter price was accepted. A short time ago Revoy quoted $45. The pipe must be scraped and given two "coats."

Hardware And Metal Markets

Fluctuations have been many in the linseed oil market during the week though the present basis reveals a somewhat narrower range prevailing than shown in last week's quotations. At one time the spread in the prices was 18c, following a decline of 5c, but an advance of 6c later narrows the range 1c per gallon. The seed market has been erratic and the war news serious, both undoubtedly exerting some influence in the rapid changes. Turpentine declined from 3c to 3c per gallon and very little movement is reported.

Tarred building paper, roofing felt, roofing pitch and tar have undergone revision upward and new prices issued, while no showing very much change are at advanced figures.

Predictions made last week as to a probable advance in sash and cotton rope have been fulfilled and new prices about 2c lower on cord and 5c lower on rope have been issued. The raw cotton market maintains a very firm basis though fluctuations occur, the result of which has been generally that prices end at a little higher level.

Screen wire cloth has advanced 50c to $3.50 per 100 square feet, and the present indications are that a possible shortage may develop. This will depend largely on the weather conditions which one cannot foretell. Clay and rock picks, mattocks and crow bars are being quoted at higher levels in conjunction with post hole spoons. Iron rivets registered a decline as outlined in last week's issue of Hardware and Metal. The present discount is 25 per cent., applying to black, tinned and coppered.

Ingot metals show little change, though the many restrictions now hedging these is being felt in Canada. Tin remains firm and though some supplies remain in the city, these are being carefully watched over until news of further shipments is received.

Miscellaneous lines to advance include bench axes, sheep shearing machines, wrecking bars, alarm clocks, and sweat pads. Business is reported as excellent.—"Hardware and Metal"

"400,000 HUN SPIES PLOT IN THE U. S." CHARGE IN SENATE

WASHINGTON, March 30. — German spies, working in America aeroplane factories, have delayed this country's aircraft programme, Senator Overman charged in the Senate. Replying to continued attacks on the delay of supplying Gen. Pershing's forces with flying machines, Overman declared "there are 400,000 German spies in this country," some of whom were at work in aeroplane plants.

U. S. SENATE WILL FIND OUT.

Washington, March 30.—Stirred by charges in the Senate of delays in the aircraft programme, the Senate Military Committee has summoned Major-General Squiere and Col. Deeds of the Signal Corps, in charge of aircraft production, and Howard Coffin, chairman of the aircraft board, to appear immediately.

Lloyd George Asks Canada To Send Reinforcements

Ottawa, March 31.—The Duke of Devonshire, Governor-General of Canada, has received the following cablegram from Premier Lloyd George:

"I have been inspired during the past week with the constant news of the dauntless courage with which the Dominion troops have withstood the desperate assaults of vastly more numerous German troops This battle shows that the Empire has reason to be proud of all its sons Our armies cannot have too many of these splendid men. As already announced, we propose to ask Parliament to authorize immediate measures for raising fresh forces. I would also urge the government of Canada to reinforce its heroic troops in the fullest possible manner and with the smallest possible delay. The struggle is only in its opening stages and it is our business to see that our armies get the maximum measure of support that we can give them. Let no one think that what even the remotest of our Dominions can do can be too late. Before this campaign is finished the last man may count."

U. S. NAVY PLANS LONG RANGE GUN

Would Have Germany's "Skinned by Miles."

WASHINGTON, April 2.—The United States Navy Department plans to construct a long range gun capable of carrying 105 miles. It will be developed along the so-called sub-calibre plan. This embodies creation of a large gun of big calibre and then inserting therein a tube for a smaller calibre shell.

Secretary of the Navy Daniels is understood to be very favourable to the plan, and it will be put into execution as soon as possible. On the other hand, some navy authorities believe that such a gun is of no military importance, and would involve a warfare of inhumanity upon civilians which America, as a nation, has never sanctioned.

WOULD LIKE TO SEND IT OVER TO FRANCE

Toronto Woman Wants Soldier Husband to Have Tanlac After What It Did For Her

"I derived so much benefit from Tanlac that I want to send a bottle to my husband who is with the army in France," said Mrs. Agnes Liston, of 185 Bellwoods Avenue, Toronto, the other day.

"For the last two or three years," she continued, "I was terribly rundown and in mighty bad shape generally. I lost my appetite, nothing tasted right and the little I forced down seemed to tear me all to pieces. My head ached most all the time, I had an awful pain in the back of my neck and in the small of my back. Spells of weakness would nearly overcome me, everything would turn black and I would get to trembling so violently that I could hardly stand on my feet. My nerves were in such a wretched state that many a night I lay awake till almost day before I could go to sleep. I fell off to almost a shadow and had so little life and strength, and felt so miserable all the time, it was all I could do to drag myself around and do my housework.

"I heard so much about Tanlac that I got me a bottle and began to improve right from the start. By the time I had finished my second bottle my appetite had picked up so that I am actually ashamed of it. I enjoy everything I eat, nothing hurts me at all, my nerves are stronger, those pains in my back are gone and I never have a headache now. Tanlac has built me up something wonderful and I am better in every way since taking it."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd., in Havelock by A. C. Denike in Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co., Ltd., in Fowler's Corners by W. A. Hunter, in Gelert by A. J. Scott, in Westwood by G. Pringle & Son.

HOTELS WILL CLOSE UNLESS CITY PROVIDES SOME RELIEF

Deputation of Hotel Keepers Ask Council For Exemption From Taxation, Also For Refund of Light and Water Rates—Are Being Forced Out of Business

Unless the Council can exempt their property from all but school taxes, relieve them of light and water rates, and otherwise place them on a basis of what they consider fair competition with restaurants, the hotelkeepers of Peterborough declare that they will be forced to lock their doors and go out of business.

Such was the plain statement of a deputation, representing practically all the local hotels, at the regular meeting of the Council last night. It sounded like an ultimatum, although it was made as an appeal for help.

The hotelmen present were G. N. Graham of the Empress, Gus White of the White House; Frank Montgomery of the Montgomery House; R. J. Munro, the Munro House; P. Hogan of the Albion Hotel, Ashburnham; W. Hamilton of the King George hotel.

Mr. G. W. Hatton spoke in behalf of the deputation. The hotel proprietors asked for relief, he said, from conditions which have been steadily becoming more burdensome since the liquor licenses were cut off in September, 1916. In other cities hotels were relieved of all taxes except for schools, their light and water charges were refunded, and in some western cities they received a bonus from the municipalities in order that they could survive the extreme conditions until the war is over, and business returns to a normal basis.

"Unless the hotels are given relief" Mr. Hatton continued, "they must close. There is no question but that some of them will be forced out.

He mentioned the importance to the city of providing sufficient accommodation for the travelling public. So limited had it become that visitors were avoiding this city.

"If the accommodation is reduced people will get into the habit of going some place else. Taxes have been increased and hotelkeepers have had to bear their share. Their rates have been increased, but only twenty per cent. or one-fifth of the former rates, where as labour's wages have increased fifty and sixty per cent. The price of coal is very much higher."

ASKED FOR A CONFERENCE.

Mr. Hatton requested the Council to give the hotel men a hearing, either at a regular meeting or at one of the committee meetings. If this were granted, he would obtain data showing the prevailing conditions in hotel management here and elsewhere.

He also stated that the eating houses and restaurants had an advantage over the hotelkeepers. Many persons took their meals at the restaurants, but went to the hotels for other accommodation which the restaurants do not provide. Thus the public's money goes to the eating houses and the hotels are left with a revenue entirely insufficient for their needs and for the accommodation they offer and must maintain.

HAVE REACHED THE LIMIT.

Mr. Gus White stated that under the present conditions he simply could not keep the White House open. "It means we are being forced out, and we might as well quit now as later."

Mr. R. J. Munro was equally positive that the hotelmen would soon close their houses unless they received some consideration from the municipality.

Mr. G. N. Graham of the Empress stated that the Standard Licensed hotels were not being fairly dealt with. "I have forty hired help," he said, "and they are all English. But we are up against Chinamen, Greeks and other foreigners. The money paid to our help is spent here; it's not sent to far-off countries. I have ninety-one bedrooms. The public sleep at the hotel, but many of them eat at the restaurants. The foreigners feed them. Billiard licenses are also given to the Greeks. We don't object to the bars having been cut off; they left us 2 1-2 per cent. beer, and all the Greeks, Italians and little shops in town are selling it. We have to get a license to provide sleeping accommodation, but the foreigners escape licenses except what they pay here at the city hall.

We are simply not treated fairly. This town needs the hotels, but I'm going to shut up the Empress unless you help us. I'll have to, and I'm not going to work to help swell Greeks' fat bank rolls. They divide their profits among themselves; our employees are citizens of Peterborough.

The amount of wages paid to our help one year ago was $1,400 a month. It is now over $1750.

Ald. Edgar asked Mr. Graham to suggest means by which the City Council could help the hotel-keepers.

"We want the taxes knocked off," was the reply; "and the light and water rates, too. If this is not done, I, for one will close up."

Mayor Duncan — "The light and water rates are controlled by the Utilities commission. We will consider the request about taxes at a meeting of the Committee of the Whole.

In a parting expression, Mr. Graham declared that Peterborough's aliens ought to be in the war. My boys are there and so are many other citizens, and these people are left behind, taking no part in the war. We are talking about greater production. They are neither fighting nor producing. Let them do farm work if they won't help any other way."

Mrs. Wiggs and Family in "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," at "The Grand" Next Saturday.

The elaborate revival of that most charming of comedy dramas, "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," for a coast to coast tour of the larger cities, brought up a discussion recently in the Lambs Club of New York, as to the reasons for its great popularity, for the play has shown a verility that promises to equal "Rip Van Winkle," "The Old Homestead" and the "Music Master." It was finally agreed that it was due to its capacity to please more different kinds of people than any other play, combined with the advertising that it received from the book which in English speaking countries was the best seller for from three to five years, and is still offered in every shop that sells books, regardless of how small the stock may be.

As a play its rich and continuous humor pleases the men who wish to go to the theatre for a hearty laugh, the thoughtful mothers find the problem which Mrs. Wiggs had to face a most appealing study: the young man and his girl and the young husband and his wife find the heart interest which surrounds Miss Lucy and Lovey Mary a sweet romance, while children go wild with delight over the varied experiences of Jim, Billy, Chis and Pete, and the three little girls Asia, Australia and Europena, so named by their mother after much thoughtful consideration. A large company of character players carefully selected for their parts and several clever children constitute one of the best dramatic organizations on the road today.

Rioters Sniped Soldiers, etc.

rioters were wounded, but the majority were taken by their friends to doctors' offices for treatment, and they will probably never be known.

Some more shots were fired at the soldiers, but the aim was bad. The khaki could not be located in the fog.

Military Ambulance Attacked.

When the military ambulance taking away a wounded soldier was at the corner of Crown and St. Valier streets some rioters attempted to stop it, and flung ice and stones at it. A civilian was wounded here when the patrol came up.

Soldiers Batter Down Shop Door.

There is a candy shop near the steps leading to Crown street and some of the mob when chased by the soldiers were seen to run in that direction. The store was closed by the proprietor, J. A. Lecours, and the soldiers broke down the door with their rifle butts in order to search for those who were believed to have taken refuge there. However, diligent search failed to show the men wanted.

Numerous Young Men Gathered In.

Young men around midnight were seized almost on sight when near patrols and asked to produce their exemption papers. A number were quickly gathered in by this method, and in some cases men in Class B were also taken, the military evidently not wishing to have their work over again when this class is ordered to the colours. It is entirely a different affair picking up conscripts when the military do the task and when it is done by other men. The order is simply "Fall in," and those in Quebec who have not learned what that means tonight are bound to learn very quickly.

Hundreds of Revolvers Carried.

Any doubt as to whether there is martial law in Quebec was removed when, after the troubles ceased, the soldiers stopped pedestrians and searched them for weapons. Hundreds of revolvers have been captured since midnight, and there is a queer assortment of firearms. A considerable quantity of ammunition was seized also. The majority of those stopped had weapons, according to reports from some sections.

St. Joseph Street Storm Centre.

The storm centre is along St. Joseph street. In the evening until 9 o'clock men gathered in the barrooms along this street and through the district generally, but when the bars were closed at 9 o'clock a picket of soldiers met the out-comers from each hotel. They were not allowed to stand around the doors talking.

Groups would be stopped by officers, asked where they were going, and allowed to go ahead when they said they were going home, and advised to go home in a hurry.

Pickets Clear the Streets.

The rumbling of the storm can be heard all over lower town. The side streets are the favourite places, and these are being constantly cleared as the pickets swing along.

On St. Joseph street for a distance of about two miles there is a picket every few blocks, and soldiers marching between the units maintaining communications between the groups.

Bayonets Backed Advice.

Young women walking along the street or men with female companions were told to go home, that it would be better for them to do so, and do it at once, so that nothing would happen to them.

"Come now, you have no business out here this hour, get home at once and stay there," was the advice handed out. Many took the advice, and this facilitated the work of the soldiers. Others just kept moving a few steps away, and were moved along by bayonets presented at them.

Crowds Sullen, But Helpless.

The crowds, or the hundreds of sections, were in a sullen mood. Little groups would pass other little groups of friends and throw out a few hurried remarks and then move forward. There were too many soldiers in the district for anything serious to happen and that seemed to be realized. These little groups were not allowed to talk to each other, for this would have meant a crowd, and a crowd to-day means more than three people, and even three people are looked on with certain suspicion.

French-Canadian Soldiers' Conduct.

The splendid way in which the French-Canadian soldiers have acted in these troubles encouraged the authorities to the very highest possible extent. An example of this was told to-day. A French-Canadian soldier on guard ordered several of his compatriots to move along. They did not take him seriously.

He was a Quebec man, and they told him they knew that he would not attack his own people. When they refused to move on the most obnoxious of the bunch was promptly bayoneted.

While his wound was not serious—for the soldier did only what was necessary—the impression was great.

Mayor's Charges Unsubstantiated.

OTTAWA, April 2. — The charge made by Mayor Lavigueur of Quebec that the ring-leaders in the rioters were strangers in the city have so far not been substantiated by any reports made to the Government here.

HAS TWO MORE SONS ON WESTERN FRONT.

Gunner John Ellam was the First of the Family to Fall.

Mr. Joseph Ellam, of Montreal, father of the late Gunner John Ellam, who died in France as the result of injuries received in an accident, is in the city to-day in connection with the death of his son. Mr. Ellam has two other sons at the front and wishes he could set the clock back a few years so as to qualify himself for a position on the firing line. The two brothers of the late John Ellam who are at the front enlisted in Winnipeg in the Fort Garry Horse. They were working a couple of homesteads when the call came from overseas, and they dropped their tools and went over. That is nearly three years ago, and they are still doing their bit, although one is in England at the present time recuperating from a general break down. He is trying to get home for three months for the purpose of visiting his homestead, which is suffering from lack of care.

The boys' names are Trooper Chas. Wilfrid Ellam and Trooper James Ellam. A distressing circumstance surrounding the death last week of Gunner John Ellam, is that his wife, who resides on George street north, is in the hospital seriously ill. The late soldier's parents reside in Montreal.

War Veterans Will Be Represented At The Conference

Recommendations For Positions Must Now Go Before the Civil Service Commission

At a meeting of the Great War Veterans held last evening in the armouries, a letter was read from Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., stating that by reason of a new legislative enactment the members of the Association had no power to recommend candidates for positions. Such recommendations must now go through the Civil Service Commission.

The G.W.V.A. is holding a conference in Hamilton on May 23rd, 24th and 25th. Delegates are to be appointed in proportion to the membership of each branch, on a basis of one member for fifty or less, two members for each number from fifty to a hundred, and one delegate for every two hundred above the number of fifty. At this rate the local branch will be entitled to send three delegates. Each branch must bear the expense of the delegates. It was gested that a conference be held to raise funds for the purpose of meeting the expense of the local delegation.

TAG DAY.

Saturday, April 20th, was fixed as tag day, and not only will the citizens of Peterboro be solicited, but also those of the neighboring towns of Havelock, Lakefield and Keene.

The following committee was appointed:

Peterboro: Comrade Stanley, Comrade Bacon, Comrade Loader, Comrade Hill.

Sub-Committees: Havelock, Comrade Bush; Lakefield, Comrade McFadden; Keene, Colonel Johnson.

In concluding, Comrade Staunton, the President, said he hoped that everybody would get out and make Tag Day a great success.

The meeting closed with the National Anthem.

City Should Pay For Moving Spur Mr. Denham Claims

When the Canadian railways were called upon to supply rails for use in France, the spur line in Ashburnham to the old McAllister mill, was torn up, and its rails made ready for shipment. The destruction of the Quaker Oats plant gave the old mill a new value. The Quaker Oats Company wished to keep as many of their employees as possible engaged here. They equipped the McAllister mill, and this move necessitated the relaying of the spur line to it. The rails were replaced in their old position. Shortly afterwards the city requested the company to move the track ten feet west of its position at the end of Douro street. This request led to correspondence between the city and the Quaker Oats Company, and at last night's meeting of the council, Mr. W. H. Denham presented his reasons why the city should bear the expense of the removal

The railway had been there for 30 years before it was taken up, he said, and in that time there had been no protests against its location. It seemed to have been a menace to no one. The rails were removed by the G.T.R. and on their own initiative. When relaid in their old grooves new plans were not required, the approval of the Railway Commission was not necessary, and consequently no extra expense was entailed.

If the city considers the railway a menace when laid in its old position, Mr. Denham contended that this was a work for the city to alter, and not ask the company to pay the cost. He remarked that the relaying operations had been in progress for some time, and that objections should have been raised then. Besides the line would be abandoned when the new Quaker Oats plant begins manufacturing. Mr. Denham asked the Council to approve the line as it is, or to pay for the removal the Council had requested.

This matter was referred to the Railway Committee.

DANIEL CASEY BURIED TO-DAY

The body of the late Daniel Casey found frozen on the Chemong Lake shore on Sunday, was taken to-day to Douro, and buried in St. Joseph's cemetery. The deceased who was 70 years of age, leaves of his near relatives, only his nephew, Gerald Casey —residing in Douro.

Market Arcade Will Be Filled By Two Stores

A by-law passed by the Council last night empowers the City Trust to spend not more than $5,000 in building two shops facing George Street in the arcade approach to the Market. The Trust Commission is authorized to proceed with this work at once. When the arcade is filled in, the public will have to reach the Market Square and hall from the rear approaches extending north and south from Charlotte and Simcoe Streets, respectively.

Council Approves $100 Increase In Grant To Horticultural Society, Making Total $600

Ald. Edgar objected to the grant of $600.00 to the Horticultural Society last night. It had been fixed at $500 by the Committee of the Whole Council, he said, and the Finance Committee followed this action by recommending the increased grant of $600.

Ald. Weir stated that the sum should be $750 and moved to that effect, but failed to attract a seconder.

Mayor Duncan and Ald. Jones were opposed to neglecting the parks this year. It would be a mistake to permit them to run wild. The Mayor believed that $600 was insufficient; it was the least the Horticulturalists could carry on with, owing to increased cost of labour and materials.

Ald. Edgar replied that the war was imposing heavy expenditures upon the people. Because road oil is used in making munitions, letters had been received by the City Engineer suggesting that Peterborough dispense with oiling the roads this year for patriotic considerations. His objections were not supported and the committee's report carried, as follows:

That this committee be given authority to sell the debentures which have been authorized by by-law to be issued.

That a grant of $500.00 be made to the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition.

That a grant of $600.00 be made to the Peterborough Horticultural Society on the usual conditions regarding the care of the parks.

That Mrs. R. Fitzgerald's letter, asking for a remission of 78 cents' interest on taxes be referred to the Court of Revision.

That an account from the Township of North Monaghan for $807.79 be aproved and that an account owing by the Township to the City for the care of children in the Isolation Hospital be deducted and the balance paid to the Township.

That a copy of the recommendation of this committee regarding competitive prices for articles purchased for the city be sent to the Chief of the Fire Department and that his attention be called to a bill for gasoline, in which it is charged for at a price higher than we are informed other dealers are charging, and that he be informed that this Committee wishes him to carry out the recommendation.

Music & Drama

"OH BOY."

"Oh Boy," the Comstock-Elliott Co. musical comedy which appeared at the Grand Opera House last night proved a very amusing and entertaining production, which differed from other musical entertainments of the season in the respect that it contained a logical and well carried out plot. The story briefly is that Jackie Sampson, playing the part of 'Modesty' in the morality play, "Experience," becomes involved in a party in a gay restaurant, hits Constable Sims in the eye, takes his revolver away from him, and in making her get-away, climbs a fire escape leading into the dormitory of a young college professor. The latter has just been secretly married to a charming young girl who is forced to return home, leaving behind her a suit of blue pyjamas and other finery which she had intended to wear on her honeymoon. The dashing actress, followed by Constable Sims, puts on the blue pyjamas and forces the college professor to introduce her as his wife. Complications are thick and fast when the real bride returns, coincident with the appearance on the scene of the professor's Quaker aunt.

The comedy was cleverly acted by a capable company, of which Helen Shipman as Jackie Simpson, carried off the leading honours. Harold Crane, as Jim Marvin, sang nicely. Joseph Allen scored heavily in the comedy role of Constable Sims, and Irene Haisman was altogether delightful in the part of the young bride.

The production was not particularly strong in vocal ability, but at that the delightful musical numbers got over nicely. "An Old Fashioned Wife" was a big hit, and the number "Till the Clouds Roll By" proved irresistibly catchy. "When It's Nesting Time in Flatbush," a travesty on songs of the "When It's Tulip Time in Holland," caused much amusement.

Annual Vestry Meetings

ST. GEORGE'S CHURCH

The annual vestry meeting of St. George's Church, was held in January last.

ST. JOHN'S CHURCH

At the Vestry meeting at St. John's Church last night, Mr. Harry Rush, Mr. George Lenton, Mr. G. A. Smith and Mr. A. J. Aylmer were elected lay delegates to attend the Synod in Toronto.

The minutes of the January meeting were read and confirmed, and most encouraging, satisfactory reports read from the Junior Woman's Auxiliary, and the report was received for the Easter collections.

ST. LUKE'S CHURCH

At the meeting of the 43rd Annual Vestry of St. Luke's Church, last night, the Rector, the Rev. W. H. White, occupied the chair and conducted the preliminary devotions. In opening the meeting the Chairman noted that this was the last annual meeting to be held on Easter Monday, the date of future meetings of the kind having been shifted by regulation of the Synod, to January, in each year. The presence of the women of the congregation as active members of the Vestry, was welcomed as another recent change.

DETAILED REPORTS.

Detailed reports of the various activities of church organizations and appropriate acknowledgement of the of the same were adjourned to a subsequent congregational meeting, to be held on Monday, April 15th. Election of the Advisory Board, was also deferred until the later meeting.

FINANCIAL REPORT.

On behalf of the Churchwardens, the People's Warden, Mr. J. J. Turner, presented a carefully prepared financial report, dealing with current local income and expenditure, extra parochial funds, building fund, concluding with a budget for the coming year. The finances of the congregation were shown to be in excellent condition in spite of many unexpected expenses, and thanks to a liberal response to the recent Easter appeal. An expenidture of some $2000.00 on the new basement kitchen and primary department of the Sunday School had been in great part already met through the energy of the Woman's Guild and a bequest of $500.00 from the late Dr. Burnham. A tablet chronicling the latter benefactor was to be placed in the new premises. An honorarium of an extra month's salary was voted to the caretaker, Mr. Alex. Calder, in consideration of the extra work entailed by the severe winter and in recognition of his courteous and efficient discharge of his duties.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS

The election of church officers resulted as follows: Rector's Warden, F. Adams (re-appointed); People's Warden (re-elected, J. J. Turner; Vestry Clerk, R. B. Rogers (re-elected; Assistant Wardens, F. Whitehouse, W. H. Carter, E. Heap, Robert Starr; Auditors, E. A. Peck and F. Whitehouse; Charity Board, Alex. Fitzgerald; Protestant Home Board, Rev. W. H. White Nicholls Hospital Board, E. A. Peck; Delegates to Synod; R. B Rogers, E. A. Peck, F. Whitehouse.

ALL SAINTS' CHURCH

The annual Easter Vestry meeting of All Saints' Church was held Monday evening in the parish hall, and was largely attended, with the Rector, Rev. R. B. Grobb, in the chair.

Mr. Gray Copping, the peoples' warden, presented financial statement, which was most encouraging. The current free will offerings exceeded those of last year by $612, and those of 1916 by $1067, while the Building Fund report showed that $2500 had been contributed to the reduction of the church debt. Much interest was manifested in the announcement that the Easter offering, exclusive of the envelope system, amounted to $402.

The Sunday School report was read by Mr. C. E. Sisson, the Superintendent, and showed a total enrollment of 419, with an average attendance of 265. During the year the school contributed $20 to the Red Cross Funds of the church; $16 to the Sick Children's Hospital, and $15.62 to the Syrian and Armenian Relief Fund. The treasurer's report was read by Miss Cairns.

The mission fund of the church, presented by Mr. Edgar Worth, indicated that $350 had been contributed.

Mrs. R. E. Clark read the report of the Women's Guild, showing that $600 had been raised for the building fund which will go to the further reduction of the church debt.

RED CROSS WORK.

The Red Cross Association, the report of which was read by Miss Melton, showed an enrollment of 42 with work accomplished as follows: 19 doz. towels, 1 dozen handkerchiefs, 5 sets of bandages; 3 shirts and 14 pairs of socks.

Other reports were those of the Woment's Auxiliary by Mrs. Davidson, and the Junior Auxiliary, by Mrs. Bott, both showing that valuable bales had been sent to needy missions as a result of the year's work. The report of the Chancel Guild was presented by Miss Clementi, and that of the choir by Mr. Chandler.

The Rector, in his report, pointed out that the church now possessed an honor roll of 145, of whom three are prisoners of war, while eighteen have paid the supreme sacrifice. He also took occasion to thank the officers, and members of the various organizations for their faithful service making particular mention of Mr. Gray Copping, the retiring people's warden.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

The election of officers resulted as follows:

Rector's Warden: (Appointed by the Rector)—Mr. Edgar Worth.

People's Warden — Mr. Thomas Hooper.

Treasurer—Mr. Gray Copping.

Secretary—Mr. John Davidson.

Manager of the Envelope System—Mr. Webber.

Envelope Secretaries—Miss Rush and Miss Clementi.

Chairman of Sidesmen — Mr. Downes.

Auditors—Mr. James Edgar and Mr. J. H Dawson.

Delegates to the Synod — Mr. James Edgar, Mr. C. E. Sisson, and Mr. Herbert Rush.

Vestry Clerk—Mr. Roberts.

Representative on Charity Board—Mr. Wm. Buller.

Rep. on Prot. Home Board and Nich. Hosp. Board—Mr. James Edgar

Much interesting discussion took place on several topics having to do with the wellfare of the church, especially the need of increased accommodation for the Sunday school. No action was taken but the hope was expressed that something would be done in the near future.

As a token of appreciation the rector's stipend was increased by $260.

The meeting was brought to a close at a late hour by all joining in the general thanksgiving.

LINDSAY WOMAN COMMITTED FOR TRIAL

Canadian Press Despatch:

STRATFORD, April 2.—Fred Howe, of Hanover, was to-day sentenced to six months' imprisonment for the non-support of his wife, and Miss E. Johns, of Lindsay, was committed for trial on two charges, one of obtaining through false pretences, a trunk addressed to Mrs. Howe, and another of forging Mrs. Howe's name to a bill of lading in Toronto.

George Street Epworth League Elect Officers

Officers of the George Street Epworth League for 1918-19 were elected at last evening's meeting as follows:

Hon. Pres.—Rev. A. J. Thomas.

President—Miss Alice Elson (re-elected).

1st Vice-Pres.—Miss Stella Bennett.

2nd Vice-Pres.—Miss Ethel Miller.

3rd Vice-Pres.—Miss Ethelwyn Dix.

4th Vice-Pres.—Dr. C. Fulford (re-elected).

6th Vice-Pres.—Miss Edna Manning.

Secretary—Miss Eva Stewart.

Corr. Sec.—Miss Flossie Elliott.

Treasurer—Mr. S. Ivey.

Pianists—Miss Ida Northey and Miss Irene Delehey.

Owing to the special meetings which will be conducted during the next two weeks by Rev. Mr. Thomas, there will be no League meetings on the nights of April 8th and 15th. The Second Department is arranging a meeting for the 22nd, and on the 29th of April a supper for the members will be served at 6 o'clock, after which reports covering the year's work of the different departments will be given.

The new skirts are apt to have much fulness in front.

Silk stockinet and wool serge are a new dress combination.

French Official

Canadian Press Despatch:

PARIS, April 2.—The French official statement follows: The night was negatively calm on the front between the Oise and the Somme. The artillery fighting became rather heavy along some parts of the battlefield. Franco-British troops made some progress during the night between the Somme and Demulin. In the region of Colonne Trench and Bandesapt, the French made two successful raids and took prisoners. At Chambrettes a German attack on small French posts was repulsed.

The Gillespie Garage Prepares For Big Spring Business—New Sales Manager Engaged

The Gillespie Garage, 378 Aylmer St, the distributors for the popular "Twin Cars"—the Studebaker and the Maxwell—has put on the spring spurt, and is out for business in good earnest. The constant aim of the Gillespie Garage is to promote the efficiency and popularity of these two motor cars that have won so high endorsement from the public. An extra vigorous push is to be made this season to increase the sales of these cars. With this end in view, Mr. Percy P. Hawn of Ottawa, has been engaged as sales manager. He has spent several years in the automobile business in the Seat of Government City, where he has been connected with some of the best firms. He has selected the Studebaker and Maxwell cars, because he believes they have a wonderful future in Peterborough as well as elsewhere, basing his belief on the rapid development of these cars' prestige in the large Canadian and American cities.

Returned Soldier Creates A Stir

FIGHTING MEN WANT SOMETHING MORE THAN PRETTY WORDS.

Canadian Press Despatch:

HAMILTON, April 2.—At a civic reception to returned soldiers this afternoon, Private Gilvear, of the Princess Pats, created some stir when he declared that fighting men wanted something more than pretty words in appreciation for their services. Foreigners and aliens, he said, were preferred in factories over returned soldiers, and men who were fighting for the liberty of France would fight for liberty in Canada if necessary. Mayor Booker vigorously denounced Bourassa as a skunk, for whom shooting was too good.

Trains Leave Belleville and Lindsay Daily, Passing Through Peterborough.

The G.T.R. way freight service between Belleville and Lindsay was restored yesterday to one train from each terminal daily. This will be a big advantage to merchants and manufacturers. Previously one freight left Lindsay and Belleville on alternate days. Now there are two trains, and the service is exactly doubled. The quantity of freight moving is extremely heavy.

Mr. F. D. Kerr Unveiled Portrait At Victoria

Mr. F. D. Kerr was in Toronto yesterday attending the convocation at Victoria University unveiling an oil painting of Professor Reynar, Professor of English Literature and Modern Languages for upwards of fifty years in Victoria University.

The Mail and Empire states that Mr. Kerr was extremely happy in his choice of reminisences and his tributes to the honoured professor.

The Globe reports that a unique feature of the evening was the unveiling of a fine portrait in oils of Rev. Prof. A. H. Reynar, M.A., L.L.D. The unveiling ceremony was performed by Mr. Francis D. Kerr, B.A., of Peterborough, who was a member of the graduation class of 1892, the members of which had subscribed to the cost of the portrait. Mr. Kerr said that Canada would never know what it owes to men such as Dr. Reynar and the late Dr. Burwash.

MAY DECLARE WAR ON TURKEY AND BULGARIA

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

WASHINGTON, April 2.—A resolution proposing the declaration of a state of war between the United States and Turkey and Bulgaria, was introduced in the Senate to-day by Senator King of Utah, and referred to the Foreign Relations Committee without debate. The resolution recited that the two nations named are Germany's allies and therefore enemies of the United States.

BROKEN STREET CAR RAILS DAMAGE AUTOMOBILE TIRES.

R. H. Turner wrote that the flanges on the street car rails on Charlotte St. have been so badly cut by the wheels that they are continually breaking away, creating a menace to motor tires. He suggested that the Street Railway officials be asked to break off the worn parts and to collect the pieces of steel already distributed along the road. Referred to the Railway Committee.

TAX COLLECTOR'S REPORT.

Statement ending March 31, 1918:

To total amount on roll $376,999.60

By total amount deposited .. 356,111.14

Balance ....$ 20,888.46

Amount received and deposited during March .....$ 4,620.90

Ald. Edgar said that $10,000 of the balance should be deducted, leaving a real balance of $10,000, according to information he received from Mr. Green, the Tax Collector. The citizens who have paid their taxes, he said, might wonder why more than $20,000 remained unreturned.

WILL WAIT TILL HARVEST.

Before Department Will Try and Get Farm Hands From U. S.

There will be no attempt made this year by the Department of Immigration and Colonization to get farm help from the United States until the harvest time comes at the earliest.

Last year the Department opened bureaus in the border cities to try and get men to come to Canada to work on farms early in the year, and many labourers were thus secured.

But this year the need for increased production in the United States, as well as Canada, has decided the Department that it would not be fair to try and take men from there when the need is as great as in Ontario.

However, it is expected that when harvest time comes there will be enough men to spare that Ontario can get a few to help bring in the bountiful crops that it is expected will be grown, by the Ontario farmers.

MILITARY HAVE QUEBEC SITUATION UNDER CONTROL

The City Was Quiet Last Evening—Dead Number Five Civilians—Yesterday was a Great Day on the Western Front.

WEDNESDAY MORNIMG BULLETINS

Canadian Press Despatch.

QUEBEC, April 3.—The city was quiet last night. There was no rioting and it is believed the military authorities have the situation under control. The dead now number five civilians.

FIRE IN TORONTO.

Canadian Press Despatch.

TORONTO, April 3.—The Thor Iron Works and Shipbuilding Plant was destroyed by fire early yesterday evening. The loss is estimated at four hundred thousand dollars.

GUN BURST.

Canadian Press Despatch.

PARIS, April 3.—Prisoners say one long range gun bombarding Paris burst killing five of the gun crew.

A QUIET DAY.

Canadian Press Despatch.

LONDON, April 3—Reuter's correspondent at Army Headquarters in France says yesterday was the quietest day since the offensive began, except for the tireless activity of the air men.

Canadian Press Despatch.

OTTAWA, April 3—Sir Robert Borden announced in the Commons that important amendments would shortly be made to the Military Service Act. Sir Wilfrid Laurier declared that the act was not being judiciously enforced in Quebec. In future men who engage in riots against the Military Service Act will be arrested and put into uniform regardless of the class they are in.

If Breathing Is Difficult, If Nostrils Are Plugged, You Have Catarrh

At Last a Remedy That Already Has Permanently Cured Thousands.

Perhaps you haven't heard of the new remedy—it's so pleasant to use—fills the nose, throat and lungs with a healing balsamic vapor like the air of the pine woods. It's really a wonderful remedy—utilizes that marvelous antiseptic only found in the Blue Gum tree of Australia.

The name of this grand specific is Catarrhozone, and you can't find its tqual on earth for coughs, colds, catarrh or throat trouble. You see it's not longer necessary to drug the stomach—that spoils digestion—just simply inhale the balsamic essences of Catarrhozone which are so rich in healing that they drive out every trace of Catarrh in no time.

"I look upon Catarhozone as the most valuable medical discovery of recent years," writes R. V. Potter, of Prince Albert. "As a long sufferer from nasal and throat catarrh I was obliged to take considerable medicine, and, although it helped me, my digestion was always disturbed and the catarrh didn't go away. With Catarrhozone it was different. It cleaned my nose and throat of all phlegm and discharges, enabled me to breathe freely, relieved a stuffy feeling in my nose and frontal headaches. To-day I am entirely free from catarrh, and I use my Catarrhozone Inhaler a little every day in order to prevent the disease from returning."

With Catarrhozone experimenting ends. A permanent curative action begins. Lasting relief from Catarrh results. The large size costs $1.00, last two months and is guaranteed. Small size 50c.; sample size 25c. All storekeepers and druggists, or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

"B" MEN WILL BE DULY NOTIFIED

CELTIC LINER SAFE IN BRITISH PORT

Was Torpedoed on Voyage to the United States.

NEW YORK, April 3. — The big White Star liner steamship Celtic, which was torpedoed a day or two ago while on a voyage to the United States, has reached a British port safely. The White Star Line has received a cable message reading:

"Celtic safe." This was taken to mean that the Celtic had returned to her port of departure or some other British port.

WILL ACT WHEN TIME COMES.

Tokio, April 2.—Japan has made to take quick action, Foreign Minis, no formal proposal to the allies about Japanese intervention in Siberia but if the Russian situation becomes threatening, this Government intends to take quick action, Foreign Minister Motono told the Diet here to-day.

PIMPLES AND RUNNING SORES

Would Hold Head Down Face Was Such a Sight

Pimples are caused by the blood being out of order. Those festering and running sores appear on the forehead, on the nose, on the chin and other parts of the body, and although they are not a dangerous trouble they are very unsightly to both you and your friends.

There is only one way to get rid of this obnoxious skin trouble, and this is by giving the blood a thorough cleansing by the use of Burdock Blood Bitters.

This sterling remedy has been on the market for over 40 years, during which time we have received thousands of testimonials as to its curative powers over all skin diseases.

Mrs. Victor G. Fry, North Battleford, Sask., writes: "I used Burdock Blood Bitters when I was about eighteen. I was so bad with pimples and running sores, that when I went down town, I would hold my head down when I would see anyone coming, my face was such a sight. I got two bottles, and my face began to clear, so I kept on until I had a beautiful complexion. I have recommended it to everyone who is in a run-down condition, as it builds up the blood, and when the blood is Al the face is clear."

SAGE TEA KEEPS YOUR HAIR DARK

When Mixed With Sulphur It Brings Back Its Beautiful Lustre At Once

Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray and looks streaked, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred-fold.

Don't stay gray! Look young! Either prepare the recipe at home or get from any drug store a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which is merely the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients. Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use preparation, because it darkens the hair beautifully, besides, no one can possibly tell, as it darkens so naturally and evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, its natural colour is restored and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous, and you appear years younger.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

A HEAVY LONG RANGE BOMBARDMENT

Canadian Press:

LONDON, April 2.— A Reuter despatch says there has been a considerable increase in artillery fire on the British positions at Passchendaele and on the Goebreg Ridge in Belgium north-east of Ypres. The correspondent says, however, that the Germans are committed so heavily to the present battle front that it is not easy to believe they will try an offensive elsewhere.

Canadian Press:

OTTAWA, April 2.— There is considerable excitement regarding the Quebec riots among the members of the Commons who have returned for the resumption of sessions to-day. It is believed Premier Sir Robt. Borden will make a stateme t when the House opens on this subject, but it is regarded as unlikely there will be a general discussion in the House on the matter to-day.

Poultry cannot be kept in good condition unless kept free from lice and this requires continuous effort. Gather the droppings daily, if possible, and frequently apply insecticides to roosting places.

CAUGHT IN A BARRAGE

British Stormed Strongly Held German Positions and Forced Enemy to Withdraw

Canadian Press:

BRITISH ARMY HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, April 2.—The British stormed strongly held German positions in a wood along the Luce River yesterday. When the enemy withdrew after sharp fighting, he left the ground strewn with his dead.

The Germans shelled the wood heavily after it was occupied by the British and organized two counter attacks for the purpose of retaking it, and both were caught in the British curtain of barrage and broken up.

RIOTERS WILL BE CONSCRIPTED

OTTAWA, April 3.— Premier Borden announced late yesterday afternoon in commenting on the Quebec riots that an amendment is to be made to the Military Service Act. This will provide that persons who engage in forcible resistance to the Military Service Act shall be forthwith enrolled in the Canadian forces for overseas. This will be regardless of whether their class has been called out or not, and the only consideration will be that of military age. The Premier remarked, amid Government cheers, that men who are so warlike may well utilize their warlike activities upon the enemies of the empire.

THE GERMAN ARMY.

How the Reinforcements From Russia Will Be Used.

The German army is taking advantage of the reinforcements it has been able to bring to the western front from Russia to effect a reorganization or formation in order to strengthen the fighting units, says a cable despatch to the New York Tribune. At the beginning of the war the German army was organized in powerful masses, but as the fighting reduced the number in size until a German division, which counted 42,000 men of all arms at the beginning of the war, became 16,000.

The Echo de Paris gives the following as the new organization of the German battalion:

A staff, comprising a commander, two aids, a quartermaster and a chief medical officer.

Four companies of infantry, each with a complement of lightweight machine guns.

A machine gun company with four officers, eighty-five enlisted men and non-commissioned officers and twelve heavy machine guns.

A mine thrower detachment with eight mine throwers.

Necessary transport.

It is not evident as yet whether they are going to return to the former system of four battalions to the regiment and four regiments to the brigade, but even if they do not, they have strengthened the division by not less than 3,000 and thus brought it up again very close to 20,000.

Le Temps describes the present method by which a German battalion advances to the attack as follows:

"At the moment the artillery barrage is lifted from the opposing first line trenches, a detachment comprising one machine gun and a complement of grenade throwers leaves the German lines and advances into No Man's Land. The machine gun is placed at a point that will command the enemy lines while the grenade throwers go on to where they can throw their grenades into the trenches. German prisoners who have explained this formation say that it gives excellent results, as the grenade throwers can often clean up the front line trench before the main body of the battalion leaves the trenches and thus it is not held up in its charge.

"The assaulting columns in the German army are now provided with arms and munitions for only a quick, sharp fight. The machine gun men carry a revolver and sixteen cartridges and a bayonet each, while they have only 1,000 or 1,500 cartridges for the gun. The grenadiers have each a rifle and bayonet with sixteen cartridges and twenty grenades. They wear rubber-soled shoes to walk noiselessly. The machine gun men and grenade throwers are all under thirty years of age and are men who were athletes before the war."

VINOL MAKES GOOD BLOOD

Positive—Convincing Proof

Many so-called remedies for anaemia are only so in name. Their makers are afraid to prove their claims by telling what their medicines contain.

The only way to be honest with the people is to let them know what they are paying for. Here is the Vinol formula. When the doctor knows what a medicine contains, it ceases to be a "patent" medicine.

R Cod Liver and Beef Peptones, Iron and Manganese Peptonates, Iron and Ammonium Citrate, Lime and Soda Glycerophosphates, Cascarin.

Any doctor will tell you that the ingredients of Vinol, as named above, will enrich the blood and banish anaemia and create strength. When the blood is pure and rich and red, the body is strong and robust.

You can prove this at our expense because your money will be returned if Vinol does not improve your health.

THE POLISH ARMY.

An Account of the Troops Raised Under French Auspices.

The fourth day of June, 1917, the President of the French Republic, Raymond Poincare, signed a decree authorizing the constitution of a Polish army in France, under the command of the chief general and under the French rules. These boys bear a great resemblance to our boys from the northern departments of France now held by the Germans. They have heard of all the atrocities done by these Huns, who don't allow the people to send any direct news to France; so the poor fellows don't know if they have a mother, a sister, a wife, children or even a home left.

Whenever I had to order a raid in the German lines, if I wanted fifty volunteers I could find immediately 300 at least. They were the best troops I ever had on the front, and I think the Poles who are in the same condition and have the same spirit will be as splendid fighters as our northern soldiers. Conditions are still worse in Poland than in Belgium and the north of France.

Nobody can accept the hypocritical proposals of peace, because the Germans refuse to admit the free right of oppressed nations seized before the war to dispose of their own destiny. In fact, the free affirmation of their will by the populations of Poland, Lithuania, Courland, as well as Alsace-Lorraine and all other countries occupied by the troops of the other states, is impossible until the moment of the return of the native population to the places they have evacuated. The allegation that the will of the people of the said countries has already been manifested is devoid of all foundation. Under the martial law and under the yoke of military censorship the peoples of the occupied countries could not express their will. The presence of the German troops makes impossible a fair referendum of the people in these provinces.

When Poland has achieved her liberty she must have an army, and she will have the army that is going to fight side by side with the white eagle. Her boys have sworn to deliver their country or die; they will not fail.

All the allies have promised that Poland shall live. They will keep their promise.

France has always been the ally of Poland. When King Stanislaus Leckzinski was deprived of his kingdom the King of France gave him the dukedom of Lorraine. When the poor Poles were persecuted some said in despair before dying: "God is too high and France is too far."

No, France is not too far. France is always there. Though bleeding herself, she is still able to support her friends, as you know she is doing in Italy. And always opening her arms to the suffering nations and giving willingly the blood of her sons for the liberty of the world.—From an article by a French military attache.

THE COSSACKS.

What These Russian Fighters Are Really Like.

Few conceptions are probably further from the truth than the very popular conception of the Cossack. The wild semi-barbarian rough rider, "much be-bearded and much be-capped," really belongs to the same category and had his origin in the same wellspring of mid-Victorian romance as the popular picture of Siberia, all a frozen waste, with no other inhabitant than the convict or the exile, forever chained to his neighbor and forever on the march. As a matter of fact, of course, the Cossack population of Russia is better educated, better organized and altogether more enlightened than almost any other section of the community. But to understand them one must understand something of their history. The Cossack never really had an official beginning. He was the gradual outgrowth of circumstances. Thus, in the early days of the sixteenth century, when Poland was one of the great European powers, she had one perennial cause of harassment, namely, the depredations of the Tartars on her frontiers. In those days the illimitable steppes of Southeastern Europe, extending from the Dnieper to the Urals, had no settled population. Hunters and fishermen frequented the innumerable rivers, while runaway serfs occasionally settled there in small communities. Gradually these communities increased. They were composed of bold and daring men, obliged at all times to be ready to defend themselves against the attacks of the Tartars, and as they grew stronger and more numerous the defensive warfare became an offensive warfare until they had formed themselves into a kind of natural bulwark against barbarian advance, whether of the Turk or the Tartar.

The next most important episode in their history was when Stephen, the famous King of Poland, in the latter half of the sixteenth century formed them into six regiments, assigned them a headquarters on the Dnieper and virtually constituted the Cossack Commonwealth. This commonwealth had the privilege of electing a hetman, or chief, and, although in time of peace his power was little more than that of the responsible minister of a constitutional republic, in time of warfare he was a dictator and disobedience to his orders was punishable with the most drastic severity. So there came into being the Cossack state as it exists to-day.

Endowed with certain well defined privileges, the Cossacks are bound in return to give military service. They are to be found in ten separate voiskos, settled along the frontiers—the Cossacks of the Don in the southeast, where the River Don flows down to the Sea of Azoff; the Cossacks of Kuban, Terek, Astrakan, Ural, Oranburg, Siberia, Semityechensk, Amur and Usuri. Military service is obligatory on all men for twenty years, beginning at the age of eighteen, and every Cossack is bound to procure his own uniform and horse, if he is mounted, and his own equipment.

From time to time the Cossacks have received from the state grants of land for each voisko separately, and they are a powerful and thriving people. As a rule, as has been said, popular education stands on a higher level among them than in the remainder of Russia. They have more schools and a greater proportion of the children attend school. They are, moreover, great agriculturists and raisers of cattle, while such a peaceful pursuit as bee-keeping is popular with many of them. Nevertheless, every man among the Cossacks prides himself on being able to transform himself into a soldier, booted, spurred and well equipped, within an hour. Altogether, they constitute the most important military body in Russia, and they must play a prominent part in any settlement of her present difficulties which Russia may reach.

The Ford Saves the Hay and Oats the Horses Eat

IT HAS been estimated that five acres of land are required to maintain one horse for a year, and that the same five acres would produce nearly enough food for two people. If 50,000 Canadian farmers each replaced one horse with a Ford, 250,000 acres would be added to the Nation's source of food supply and enough extra food made available to feed 100,000 people.

Just think what a great service this means to the country at the present time and the benefit to the farmers from the sale of food produced on this acreage.

A Ford car also saves the farmer a week or more of valuable time each year, which can be used for further productive work. The Ford travels three times as fast as a horse and rig—costs less to run and keep, and is far easier to take care of. With labor so scarce and high priced, time means money, so do not delay in getting your Ford.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

Her Dowry

By DONALD CHAMBERLIN

Jim Hathaway, an American, was in Paris studying art when the great European war broke out and volunteered in the American legion. He was severely wounded at the battle of the Marne and discharged from the service. Before enlisting he had been on the eve of setting out to what was formerly Bretagne, on the west coast of France, but now divided into several departments. After a partial recovery he concluded to carry out his previous intention, hoping to gain strength by breathing the salt air. He took with him sketching materials, but made little use of them, sitting most of the time in an invalid chair on a beach fanned by the sea breeze.

One day when he was thus occupied, or, rather, unoccupied, he fell asleep. When he awoke, a short distance before him was a young girl sitting at an easel. Her back being to him, he could not see her face, but from her costume he judged that she was a peasant. This theory, however, did not correspond with her painting pictures, the one before her, visible to the ex-soldier, showing considerable skill. After watching her for some time he suddenly called out:

"Mademoiselle!"

The girl turned, showing a face indicating refinement, and looked at Hathaway.

"The coloring you are giving the water," continued the young man in French, "is not what it must be, considering that of the sky. There is too much blue in it."

The girl turned again to her picture, looked from it out to the water and the sky and admitted that monsieur's criticism was correct. Then she proceeded to change the coloring.

Hathaway chatted with her while she painted and before they parted told her about the war, his wound and that he had come to the coast to regain his strength. This was the beginning of an acquaintance.

Meanwhile Hathaway regained his strength. The girl, who gave her name as Louise, proved herself far more companionable than might have been expected from a simple country girl. She appeared to be unsophisticated, but Hathaway came to suspect that she was less so than she appeared. Now and again there came a twinkle to her eye that confirmed this suspicion. This twinkle, accompanied as it was by a smile that produced a pair of pretty dimples, was very engaging. Before the young American realized where he was drifting he was madly in love.

Then came those efforts to escape from an enthrallment with one of an inferior social grade which have from time immemorial been made by lovers. But Hathaway was not successful and lingered on at the coast instead of escaping from temptation by taking himself elsewhere.

One day Louise told him that a fete day was approaching at which a dance would be held for marriageable girls, who would be present with a view to being selected as wives. She explained to him that they would wear skirts composed of white and yellow bands indicating the dowry they would receive. Each white band represented a hundred, each yellow one a thousand francs. Hathaway expressed a desire to witness this curious scene, and Louise told him when and where it would take place.

On reaching the ballroom he saw Louise dancing, her skirt being composed of two white stripes and three yellow ones, indicating that her dowry would be 3,040 francs, or $608. The moment he entered the room she looked at him, then cast her eyes down to the stripes indicating the amount of her dowry, as much as to say, "You see what I will bring you if you marry me."

Louise was far more refined looking than any girl in the room and acknowledged to be the most beautiful. She sailed past Hathaway temptingly, and he was sorely tempted. When she had finished the dance he joined her, and as the atmosphere in the room was hot and close she expressed a desire to breathe the outer air. They walked out into a moonlight night.

Byron says, "The devil's in the moon for mischief." Hathaway proved this by telling Louise that he loved her. She gave him a chance to withdraw by saying that she was quite sure he was a gentleman and would regret a marriage with a mere peasant. But he swore that he would love her if she were in the lowest rank of human beings.

The next morning he woke up in the sunlight instead of the moonlight and was of a very different opinion. Indeed, he was conscious of having taken a very unfortunate step. What would he do to get out of his proposal? Then, like a shuttle, he rushed to the other extreme and did not wish to get out of it.

During the morning a lackey called and told Hathaway that he had been sent to conduct him to a manor house in the vicinity that had been rented for the summer by an American family, who wished to entertain him. He accompanied the man and was ushered into a drawing room. A lady rose to receive him, whom he recognized at once as Louise. He stood transfixed for a moment, while she stood smiling at him. Then they were folded in an embrace.

Louise was an American heiress, devoted to art. She had come to France to study and had preferred to go about sketching as a peasant. Each yellow stripe on the dress she had worn the night before had stood for $100,000.

HEART WAS BAD NERVES ALL GONE

Very important it is in this age to have a clear cool head, a strong heart and steady nerves.

Too much rush and bustle, work and worry, fall to the lot of women attending to their household duties and social obligations. The constant strain under which they continue day in and day out will soon shatter the strongest system. Before long the heart gets weak, flutters and palpitates, the nerves become unstrung, you start at the least sound, the pulse becomes weak and irregular, then finally comes physical breakdown or nervous prostration.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are the remedy you require to strengthen your heart and steady your nerves.

Mrs. Jackson, 457 Bolivar St., Peterborough, Ont., writes: "Fifteen years ago I was so bad with my heart I could not walk across the house, my nerves were literally all gone, and I was frightened at my shadow. I commenced to take Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and was soon able to do my own work. I have told dozens of people about them, some as bad as I was, and to-day they are also doing their own work. If more people would take them there would not be so many weak hearts."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c. per box at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

India's Coal Supply.

The war has forced India to depend upon her own supply of coal and has drawn attention anew to her large deposits. For the last ten years, one is told in the Geographical Review, India's output has been gradually increasing as a consequence of the extension of railroads and the development of industries. In 1915 the production increased to more than double the amount produced in 1905. India now not only supplies her own needs, but exports to Ceylon and the Strait Settlements.

India's coal deposits are scattered well over the east-central part of the country. The reserve field in Assam is calculated at seven billion tons. All these are Mesozoic and Tertiary beds. The deposits of Bengal and of the newly-created Province of Bihar and Orissa furnish over 90 per cent. of the present actual output. Two single fields, those of Raniganj and Iherria, contain a reserve of 22,000,000,000 and 518,000,000 tons, respectively. In Central India and the Central Provinces few mines are actually in operation, but large quantities of good coal have been recognized, while in the Godivara basin, extending from near the coast along the Godivari river, important reserves are believed to be probable. Up to the present time the labor supply for the mines has been derived largely from the agricultural population. But gradually a permanent mining population is developing.

To Stop a Persistent. Hacking Cough

The best remedy is one you can easily make at home. Cheap, but very effective.

Thousands of people normally healthy in every other respect, are annoyed with a persistent hanging-on bronchial cough year after year, disturbing their sleep and making life disagreeable. It's so needless—there's an old home-made remedy that will end such a cough easily and quickly.

Get from any druggist "2½ ounces of Pinex" (50 cents worth), pour it into a 16-oz. bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. Begin taking it at once. Gradually but surely you will notice the phlegm thin out and then disappear altogether, thus ending a cough that you never thought would end. It also promptly loosens a dry or tight cough, stops the troublesome throat tickle, soothes the irritated membranes that line the throat and bronchial tubes, and relief comes almost immediately. A day's use will usually break up an ordinary throat or chest cold, and for bronchitis, croup, whooping cough and bronchial asthma there is nothing better. It tastes pleasant and keeps perfectly.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract and is used by millions of people every year for throat and chest colds with splendid results.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

Wastage of Adult Life.

A child born to-day has about ten times as many chances of living and growing to maturity as had the child born thirty years ago, says the Popular Science Monthly. On the other hand, a man forty years old has fewer years to live than had the man of the same age thirty years ago. Medical statistics prove that infant mortality and preventable diseases are decreasing, whereas degenerative diseases and cancer are increasing. However, the gravity of the wastage of adult life will not be appreciated until there is a nation-wide registration of the sick.

Nine-tenths of Russia's gold mining is done on lands owned or formerly owned by the Czar.

WHOOPING COUGH.

Mr. Arthur Haingc, Ash n Farm, Perley, Sask., writes: "Two ye ago whooping cough was very bad in this part of the country; our eight months old boy caught it and had a very severe attack. A neighbor advised the use of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine and we gave it and nothing else with splendid results. When the older brother took the whooping cough we used this medicine promptly and prevented serious trouble, as the cough passed off in two or three days."

Treasures of Poland.

It is not generally known that many of the ancient and valuable treasures of Poland are stored away in a special museum in Switzerland. This permanent memorial of the heroic struggle of Poland for its national liberty exists in the old castle of Rapperswill, an enchanting spot on the southern end of the lake of Zurich. It was founded by Count Broel-Plater in the year 1870, when he and some patriotic representatives of the country leased the tottering stronghold of the former Counts of Rapperswill for a period of ninety-nine years. When the museum was inaugurated in 1870 a document was signed by all the Poles present stating that the collection was national property, that it was meant to be a permanent reminder that the Polish race could not be wiped out, and that the relics were to remain in the castle of Rapperswill as long as they were banished from native soil, or as long as they could not be kept safely in Poland. The document also expressed the belief that the museum would further the Polish cause, as the collection would be a means of affording better understanding and appreciation of Poland's past and future in the field of history, literature, science and art.—Family Herald.

Rather a Jolt.

Apropos of the pro-German propaganda which he has been carrying on in his own country, a story is being told concerning the son of the great Norwegian writer Bjornsterne Bjornson, which, as a bon mot, and quite apart from the people concerned, is worth preserving. Young Bjornson, in the course of a voyage on an ocean steamship, had the temerity to intrude himself on the bridge. The captain was scandalized, as all captains would be, and requested the intruder to return at once to the deck. "Are you aware," said Bjornson hotly, "to whom you are speaking," and when the captain professed complete ignorance, added, "To the son of Norway's greatest poet." "I cannot help it," said the captain, with the air of a man who performs an unpleasant duty. "You must, none the less, leave the bridge—Mr. Ibsen."

DISCREDITED PROFESSORS.

Germanism Losing Its Hold In This Country.

German education has been found out. It has been proved to be pagan, immoral, grossly materialistic and brutal. This does not mean that German professors have loyally fought for their country, and even tried to make out some sort of justification for it. It is due partly to the falsity, and much more to the foolishness, of the things they say; their perversions of history, their wilful misrepresentations of everything American, French and British; the childish inconsistency of the positions they assume, their justification of brutality or their denial of it, and their substitution of virulent abuse for argument.

Never has there been such a complete exposure of the mental operations of an intellectual class. The most-learned professor, celebrated all over the world for his knowledge of archaeology, or Greek history, or chemistry, resorts to methods that stamp him as a liar, or else utterly devoid of judgment, intellectual honesty, and enough mental freedom to recognize his own foolishness.

Dr. Eduard Meye, professor of ancient history of the University of Berlin, has published a book under the title of "England, Her National and Political Evolution, and the War With Germany," which has been reviewed by the Right Hon. J. M. Robertson, M.P., in a pamphlet entitled "Britain and Germany," which we commend to any person who wishes to see satire and irony and incisive excoriation employed in the most artistic manner.

The German professor has been found out. Not many Canadians will seek education again in German universities. No Canadian institution of learning will show a partiality for degrees from German universities in the filling of its faculty. The German professor has shown what sort of a man is produced by the intensive training of his mind and the utter obliteration of his moral nature.

German will have to come out of the schools, or the German courses be entirely made over. For twenty-five years the pan-German league and similar societies have been working through their agents in this and other countries to get German into the curricula of all schools, and then to use the German instruction as a means of propagating Germanism, kaiserism, militarism, materialism, paganism and contempt for international law and humanity. This has been found out, and the German text books will have to go. If the language is to be taught, it will be by means of other text books. But hereafter there will be very little occasion for learning German.

Escapes Profiteer's Hand

The humble peanut continues holding its own against the war, and is so far the only product the retail price, of which remains at the old figure—five cents a pint. This price seems to have been fixed as firmly as the Rock of Gibraltar. Neither flood nor famine, fire nor war, has ever shaken it. The peanut has enjoyed immunity from the operations of the favorite old standby, the law of supply and demand, and while all other commodities are subject to cyclonic shifts in prices, the peanut stands firm and unconcerned. Sometimes the peanut gets into court, but it always emerges triumphant. It can even claim close and intimate relations with the Interstate Commerce Commission, which may be counted upon to invariably take sides with it. Recently the peanut went before the commission and made representation that some of the southern railroads had raised freight rates on it, and the commission undertook an investigation. It found the outlook rather doubtful for the client, the conclusion arrived at being that the rates complained of were not "prejudicial." However, the commission decided that they might be classed as "unreasonable," so it ordered the railroads to shave off 10 per cent. The peanut was thus saved again, and the traditional price remains at five cents a point.

Von Tirpitz Dirge.

A gloomyy picture of Germany's future was painted by Grand Admiral von Tirpitz in his recent speech in Essen, according to the Hamburg News. Regarding a successful economic war against Germany after the war, he said:

"Imagine the position if we simultaneously have to bear the burden of taxation which must fall on every German and, despite the fallen value of German money, we still have to buy the most necessary food and raw materials from abroad. Can anyone in his heart of hearts really believe that in these circumstances, without an increase of power, without indemnity and without security we could avoid Germany's ruin."

Germany's plight at the hands of England he bemoaned as follows:

"Not only has England taken our colonies and Mesopotamia, but everywhere she has made deeper and firmer bases for her maritime and colonial supremacy. She has tarnished and trodden down the prestige and honor of Germany by unprecedented calumnies. In the whole transatlantic world we are considered as conquered and done for."

Sciatic Pains from Exhausted Nerves

SCIATICA or sciatic rheumatism is attended with pain and tenderness along the sciatic nerve in the hips and thighs, and indicates an exhausted condition of the nervous system.

Relief is sometimes obtained by external applications or the use of heat, but at the slightest provocation the distressing pains return and from time to time become more severe as the nervous system becomes more exhausted.

The only way to obtain actual cure is by a reconstruction of the wasted nerve cells, and this is best accomplished by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. It need not cost you much to restore vigor to the nervous system, but it will take a little patience, particularly at first. After you have used a few boxes and got the building-up process established you will find improvements from day to day which will encourage you to keep up this treatment until the nervous system is completely restored.

Nervous disorders do not right themselves, but naturally, become more acute as the system becomes further exhausted. It is only wise to be warned by sleeplessness, headaches, neuralgic and sciatic pains and to take immediate action to restore the depleted nerves before paralysis, lacomotor ataxia or some form of helplessness is developed.

MESQUITE BEAN IS VALUABLE

Not only is the mesquite bean, of which millions of bushels might be gathered annually in Texas, Southern New Mexico and Southern Arizona, valuable for stock feed, if properly treated, according to New Mexico State College experiments, but when ground into meal is also excellent for human food. A New Mexican housewife, experimenting with it, found that it will make breakfast food, syrup, jelly, candy, and can be converted into a beverage, also baked into nourishing bread. For a period of three weeks she lived exclusively on viands made of the mesquite bean and actually gained in weight and health.—Argonaut.

GREAT FIGURES REPORTED BY THE SUN LIFE

THE TOTAL INSURANCE IN FORCE IS NOW $311,870,000.

The Sun Life, amongst Canadian companies, is in a class by itself. Its business in force increases every year by a greater amount than the total new business of most other companies, and its new business itself is more than 50 per cent. greater than that of any other Canadian company. Last year its new business paid for was $47,811,567, and the addition to the business in force was $30,436,245, or well over 60 per cent. of the new issue. The Company adds to its assets every year more than the total amount of the assets of most individual Canadian companies. Last year the addition to the assets was $7,211,178, bringing them up to a total of $90,160,174, and the end of the year will thus see them near the $100,000,000 mark, even if they do not pass it. The company's increase in annual income was greater than the total income of most native competitors, the increase being $789,866, and the total income $19,288,998.

It is astonishing to read that the Sun has already paid to its policy holders $69,094,316, and that last year alone it paid them $8,840,245.

The Company's new Head Office building which adorns Dominion Square, Montreal, is now in occupation, and is unquestionably one of the finest insurance buildings in North America. It will no doubt materially assist the efficient handling of the Company's vast affairs.

The Woman Who Changed

By JANE PHELPS

THE VEILED LADY

CHAPTER XXXI.

Evelyn did not remain long; and I did not wonder. My mind was so insistantly trying to think who the veiled lady with George could be, that I was very inattentive to my caller.

Evidently when George found it impossible to take me because of my red eyes, he had invited someone in my place. But Evelyn had said she was so 'done up in veils" as to be unrecognizable. I might have gone, had I asked George to allow me to wear a heavy veil, I thought; then I knew he never would have consented. I did wish I could do something so that I never would cry again so long as I lived, but whenever anything hurt or angered me, the tears always came in spite of everything I could do. I was what George called "the weepy kind."

I dressed carefully, and when George came in, about half an hour before dinner, my face showed no traces of tears. I ran to the door to meet him, and tried not to notice the carelessness with which he returned my kiss.

I followed him upstairs and while he freshened up for dinner I talked to him. Finally I said:

"Evelyn Reeve came over for a little while this afternoon. She came very soon after you left. She thought I was with you."

"It was your own fault that you were not!" impatiently replied George.

"She said you had some woman all done up in veils; that's the reason she thought it was I with you. She couldn't see her face."

George made no reply, but I noticed a slight scowl on his face. Foolishly I went on:

"I might have gone that way. If I had worn a heavy veil, my red eyes would not have shown through it."

"You may as well understand, now, that I shall not take you anywhere when you have been weeping. If you choose to make a fright of yourself, you may remain where my friends do not see you."

"Who was that lady with you?" I asked ready to weep again because of his severely uncompromising tone.

"Madge Loring —although it is none of your business."

The Call to Dinner Interrupts.

Just then Annie announced dinner and we said no more. But all through the very quiet meal—George scarcely spoke save when the butler was in the room—I kept thinking of what he had said about taking Madge Loring riding with him. Was it "none of my business," as he had declared? Was it another of those things done by society people, which I had been taught to believe not quite an fait for married people?

In our little home town it would have been a nine days' scandal for a married man to take ont another man's wife, unless his wife also was of the party. But everything in Morelands was so different. People here seemed to have a code of behaviour totally unlike that of the homefolks.

Then suddenly flashed another thought.

If George could go motoring with his friends, why of course I could also go out with mine. Perhaps sometime with Merton Gray. I started to say something of the kind to George, but just then the telephone rang and I had no chance.

"Who was it?" I asked when he returned to the table just as James brought out the dessert.

"It was a personal call," George answered, scowling, after I had repeated the question, thinking he had not heard me the first time.

Rebuked and cowed, but also hurt at his tone, I made no further effort to talk. As soon as we finished dinner he ran up-stairs, and in an incredibly short time was down again dressed in his evening clothes.

"Good night! go to bed early," he said giving me one of his careless kisses. Sometimes I felt I would rather he would not kiss me at all; yet, even to be noticed was something—perhaps.

Evidently some one had asked him to go out, when he went ot the telephone, for he had said something which gave me to understand he intended to remain home for the evening.

Carelessly I walked to the little booth under the stairs where the telephone for the first floor was installed. I had no intention of using it; no real reason to go there.

A piece of paper, torn from the little pad we kept on the wall, was on the floor where George had either thrown, or dropped, it. I picked it up and, smoothing it out, saw a telephone number upon it.

Was that where George had gone. I looked through the telephone book, but could not find the number, so I called up central and asked her to give me the address,—I giving her the number. She did so, and to my delight it was some club. I don't know what I expected, but someway it helped to pass the lonely evening to know that George was with men and not with—Madge Loring or some other woman.

A Simple Way To Remove Dandruff

There is one sure way that has never failed to remove dandruff at once, and that is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, common liquid arvon from any drug store (this is all you will need), apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

CATTLE MARKET

Union Stock Yards.—Receipts, 42 cars, with 578 cattle, 856 hogs, and 31 sheep and lambs.

There was not much to the cattle trade yesterday. Offerings were very light, some of the holders preferring to keep their cattle for to-morrow's market. Prices were just about steady with Monday for the choice butcher, but medium is barely holding its own. Trading, however, was so light that there was scarcely enough to make a market. The hog situation has taken an easier turn. Yesterday's run of hogs was heavier for the Tuesday market than for some weeks past. The packers' demand has also let up somewhat, and there was an absence of the keen competition which has characterized this market of late. The result was an easier tone, and the $21 fed and watered, offered was freely taken, the chances of the market going higher appearing to be remote from present indications as to what receipts may be for the rest of the week.

Actress Started Him With Taxi and Takes Interest Out in Rides.

LONDON. — A popular English actress who married a young man connected with a titled family some time ago was asked by a friend how she managed to retain the same taxicab driver every night and whether she did not find this expensive in these days of taxi shortage.

"Not at all," replied the actress, according to a newspaper account. "He happens to be my husband. When we married he hadn't a penny, and, as motoring was the only thing he could do, I started him with a taxicab, and he is doing well. As he doesn't charge me anything, the saving on my fares pays me a decent interest on my investment."

ON GUARD

At this time of the year people feel weak, tired, listless, their blood is thin, they have lived indoors and perhaps expended all their mental and bodily energy and they want to know how to renew their energy and stamina, overcome headaches and backaches, have clear eyes, a smooth, ruddy skin, and feel the exhilaration of real good health tingling thru their body. Good, pure, rich, red blood is the best insurance against ills of all kinds. Almost all diseases come from impure and impoverished blood. It is to be noticed in the pale or pimply face, the tired, haggard appearance or the listless manner.

Drink hot water a half hour before meals, and for a vegetable tonic there's nothing better than Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, the old-fashioned herbal remedy, which has had such a fine reputation for fifty years. It contains no alcohol or narcotics. It is made from Golden Seal root, Bloodroot, Oregon grape root, Queen's root, Black Cherry bark, extracted with glycerine and made into tablets and liquid. Tablets fifty cents, at most drug stores.

In order to insure pure blood and to build up the system try this tonic known as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Get it now!

Arrangements Completed For The Big Meeting to be Held in May's Schoolhouse

Arrangements have been completed for the big meeting to be held Friday evening in May's school house, North Monaghan, in the interests of greater production. Among the speakers will be Mr. S. F. Reeves of Humber Bay, ex-president of the Vegetable Growers' Association of Ontario, Mr. G. A. Gillespie, M.P.P., Mr. H. B. Cowan, Mr. Joseph Wearing of the farm volunteer movement; Mr. McRae of Norwood, district representative for the department of Agriculture; Miss Pearce of this city, Reeve John McIntosh of North Monaghan and others.

An automobile service will be in commission between the hour of 7 and 8 o'clock to convey ladies from the end of the street car line to the place of meeting. The object of the meeting is to create an organization of vegetable growers with a view of stimulating greater production.

ISOLATION FACES HUNS FOR CAUSING BLOODIEST WAR.

ZURICH, March 30.—Count Lichnovsky may be tried on a charge of violating official secrets and acting contrary to orders, the newspaper Germania, of Berlin, declares. Recently several articles he has written have been made public regarding the diplomatic manoeuvres preceding the war in which he intimated that Germany and not Great Britain, had the greater responsibility for starting the conflict. He is reported to have said these articles were prepared for his own family records and not for publication.

Seventeen Years After——

In 1900 the Quaker Oats Company commenced building a magnificent milling plant at Peterboro', Ont.

Among other problems at that time not their least important was that of securing efficient Power Transmission Machinery. It was desirable to secure this machinery in Canada, but there was considerable doubt in their minds as to whether any Canadian manufacturer had the plant and facilities to fulfill so large a contract on time.

We knew that we had both plant and facilities, and we told them so.

Whereupon Mr. Karn, their General Superintendent of Construction, came from Chicago to visit our works and verify our claims.

He made a most minute examination of our patterns, our processes and our plant; and as a result expressed himself as thoroughly confident of our ability to handle the contract. A few days thereafter we received the entire order for their Power Transmission Equipment.

• • •

In 1917 fire completely destroyed that plant.

• • •

What happened?

Once again Mr. Karn came to see us, not to investigate our plant and facilities, but to ask us how "orders ahead" stood, and to inquire if he would be safe in placing an immediate order for ten or twelve carloads of Transmission Equipment.

We said "Yes."

After a few minutes Mr. Karn replied "Go ahead."

Not a price was mentioned, an honor of which we are not unmindful; and orders have been coming thick and fast from them ever since.

We are proud of this transaction, for it gives us the feeling that our endeavor to serve customers faithfully and well, at all costs, has been recognised, and that sometimes our policy bears fruit a hundredfold.

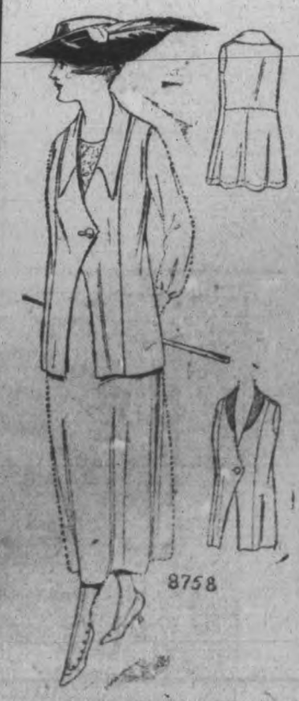
THE EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

The Patterns Are Guaranteed to Give Excellent Satisfaction

LADY'S SEMI-FITTED SLEEVELESS COAT.



Paris style notes tell us that sleeveless jackets will be worn a great deal during the coming warm months and one of the very latest ones which is being shown is copied in pattern No. 8758. The front is semi-fitted, with a seam extending from shoulder to hem at each side. The front is cut in a very graceful shape and the fastening consists of one large button and a bound buttonhole. The back of the coat fits the figure rather closely, and it is joined at the waistline to a circular peplum. There are no sleeves in this coat. To wear over summer dresses it may be made of satin, taffeta or jersey.

The lady's semi-fitted sleeveless coat No. 8758 is cut in five sizes—34 to 42 inches bust measure. As on the figure, the 36 inch size requires 2¼ yards 36 inch, 1¾ yards 44 inch or 1¾ yards 54 inch material.

This Pattern Can Be Obtained From the Examiner Office on Payment of 15 Cents.

PETERBOROUGH, WEDNESDAY, APRIL 3, 1918

TOWN OF AYETTE HAS BEEN RE-TAKEN BY BRITISH FORCES

DETERMINED GERMAN ATTACK REPULSED BY SHARP FIGHTING

British Troops Repulse Several German Attacks

Fighting is of a Spasmodic Character on the Western Front—British take part in Several Succesful Raids.

BRITISH OFFICIAL REPORT

Canadian Press Despatch:

LONDON, April 3.—British troops, after sharp fighting last night, repulsed a determined attack by the Germans in the neighbourhood of Fampoux, the War Office announced today.

The town of Ayette, about eight miles south-west of Arras, is again in British possession, the statement announced. The statement reads:

At dawn yesterday a determined attack made by a strong party of the enemy against our positions in the neighbourhood of Fampoux was repulsed after sharp fighting. A number of German dead and some prisoners were left in our hands. A successful local operation was undertaken by us last night in the neighbourhood of Ayette, which is now in our possession. Over 100 prisoners and three machine guns were captured by us, the official statement says.

SUCCESSFUL RAIDS.

We secured a few prisoners yesterday through an enterprise in the neighbourhood of Serre, already reported. There is nothing further to report from the battle front. Lincolnshire troops raided the enemy's trenches north-east of Loos yesterday morning and captured 31 prisoners and a machine gun. Another successful raid in which we captured a few men, was carried out by us last night north-east of Poel Cappelle.

IMPORTANT POSITION.

Canadian Press Despatch:

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, April 3.— The British last night stormed and captured the strong German position of Hebutern, which menaced defensive positions. The recapture of Ayette, south of Arras, by the British, is the most important news from the northern battle front reported this far to-day. The Ayette sector has been one of the most fierce contests. The Germans have sacrificed great numbers of troops in an effort to secure a hold here.

CADET ROBERT PEEL DENNISTOUN, R.N.A.S., son of Lieut.-Col. R. M. Dennistoun, Deputy Judge Advocate General O.M.F.C. Cadet Dennistoun is at present in England.

French Official

Canadian Press Despatch:

PARIS, April 3.—A German attack south of Moreuil last night was repulsed by the French fire, and the enemy was unable to gain a footing in any part of the French positions, the War Office announces.

The official statement follows:

On the front between the Somme and the Oise there was increasing activity on the part of the artillery on both sides. South of Moreuil the enemy made a spirited attack against the French positions between Morisel and Mailly Rameval. It was repulsed by French fire and the enemy was not able to gain a footing in the French defences except at a single point. A German effort north of Rollet was broken up by French fire. Last night the French carried out a local operation on the slopes north of Plemont, in the course of which our troops enlarged their position appreciably and took sixty prisoners. There is nothing to report from the remainder of the front. On March 31 and April 1 the French aerial squadrons threw down 12,000 kilograms, more than 13 tons, of projectiles on railways and cantonments at Ham, Chauny, Noyon, etc.

GERMANS BOAST OF ANOTHER DRIVE

Roads Must Be Repaired and Munitions and Food Sent Up.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

AMSTERDAM, April 3. — The pause in the fighting is a necessity the same as when the Tagliamento was held on the Italian front — rain has greatly hampered our transport, a bulletin despatch published in the Cologne Gazette says:

A despatch to the Volke Zeitung from the front says the pause is not due to the enemy success, but to the orders of the German command. Roads must be repaired and munitions and food sent up. The enemy soon will realize we intend to go on.

EAT MORE FISH AND SAVE FOOD FOR OUR TROOPS

Canada Food Board Appeals to the Public to Substitute Fish More Generally Than They Have Been Doing.

RETAILERS' REPORT

The Mayor has received from the Canada Food Board a letter in which the Board states that it is encouraging the increased consumption of fish, and asks that the Mayor call the attention of the citizens of Peterborough to an opportunity to help a national industry and an Imperial necessity. Advices have been received from the Atlantic fish producers that vast quantities of sea-food will be landed during the next six months, more in fact than Canada can consume with existing retail distribution.

At the suggestion of the Food Board the Mayor met a number of local fish dealers last evening and questions asked and suggestions made by the Food Board were considered. A reply will be sent to the Board and some suggestions made for its consideration.

Two points were brought out in the discussion which are of more immediate local interest, namely:

1. That quite a number of citizens use fish on meatless days as a substitute for beef and pork, but that apparently a large number do not.

2. That the demand here is principally for lake fish, fully 85 per cent. of the demand being for this class of fish. Enough lake fish cannot be obtained to supply the demand, while sea fish is plentiful.

Demand for Lake Fish.

The attention of the Food Board will be called to the fact that enough lake fish has not been available, but the citizens can assist greatly by using more fish, and especially by using more sea fish. This might in many cases call for some sacrifice of taste, but that should not prevent a greater use of this class of food for the small sacrifice called for is for the purpose of assisting the soldiers who are making such tremendous sacrifices on the battle lines.

It is urged that citizens use more fish, on meatless and other days, and also use more sea fish, especially when the more popular kind cannot be obtained, and thus in this as in other ways give material aid in the great crisis.

It is also suggested that if less demand were made for deliveries and the people made a practice of taking home their purchases, especially small purchases, it would tend to decrease the price by lessening the expense of selling and handling.

CATHEDRAL OF NOYON ON FIRE

Canadian Press Despatch:

PARIS, April 3.—The Cathedral of Noyon, one of the most beautiful in France, is on fire. The Germans say the French bombardment started the blaze.

AMIENS STILL THE OBJECTIVE

The Enemy Plans to Encircle the City and Force its Evacuation —Encirclement has Been Checked.

AERIAL ACTIVITY

(United Press Service.)

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

(By Henry Wood.)

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES IN THE FIELD, April 3.— Failure to reach Paris and Amiens through wing attacks apparently has caused the German command to centre its efforts on the latter city, hoping to encircle it by attacking in naturally defined sectors along the rivers. The first of these is north of the Ancre, another is between the Ancre and the Somme, the next is between the Somme and the Luce, the fourth is between the Luce and the Avre, and the fifth between Avre and the Noye. The latest attacks betray the enemy's intention. While aiming directly at Amiens in the centre, the attacks on the north and south aim to encircle the city from the north via Hebuterne and Doullens and from the south via Montdidier and Conty. First they would isolate Amiens from the northward and southward railway communications and for the evacuation of a semi-circular artillery concentration.

Artillery Concentration.

The encirclement has temporarily been checked, but airplanes report the constant arrivals of heavy artillery and new divisions for the supreme effort. The artillery concentration is especially heavy in the region of Montdidier while a great number of six-inch pieces are constantly in action everywhere. The difficulties of the terrain are delaying the enemy and causing him hardships. One German division marched eight nights, another detrained in the evening and marched twenty miles, entering the firing line in the morning exhausted. There are 32 divisions (384,000) men so far opposed to the French. The airial warfare is extensive. Yesterday an allied squadron of 80 machines pursued a German squadron of 40.

GERMANY'S BIG "BUCHERS BILL"

FORTY DIVISIONS HAVE BEEN WITHDRAWN

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

LONDON, April 3.—"Ludendorff is beginning to prepare the German people for a very big butcher's bill," Gen. Maurice, British Director of Operations, declared to-day, commenting on the changed tone of the German communiques. The enemy has been compelled to withdraw 40 divisions (480,000 men). Our own figures are less than half that.

"From Arras to the Oise, a condition of stability obtains.

'It is futile to suppose the operations are ended. It is now earlier than the beginning of the 1917 offensive. The whole of the 1918 campaigning season is ahead."

LONDON, April 3. — There is no question but that the German losses in the past fortnight have been considerably heavier than ours, Major-General F. B. Maurice, Chief Director of Military Operations at the War Office, said to-day.

ATTACK ON ITALY.

LONDON, April 3.—"There are indications that an Austrian attack on Italy is in preparation and we shall not be surprised if it develops before long," said Major General F. B. Maurice, Director of Military Operations at the War Office, in his weekly talk to-day.

LIEUT. J. F. P. BIRNIE REPORTED WOUNDED

Mrs. John Birnie received a wire from Ottawa this morning, stating that her husband, Lieut. J. F. P. Birnie, only son of Mr. and Mrs. John Birnie, Collingwood, has been officially reported wounded on April 1st, 1918.

Lieut. Birnie went overseas in September, 1916, with the 32nd Battery, and in March, 1917, crossed to France with the 81st Battery, where he has been on active service for over a year.

THE GERMANS HESITATE TO TO PUSH ON TOWARDS AMIENS WITH THEIR BATTERED ARMY

(By William Philip Simms—United Press Service.)
(Ten O'clock Despatch.)

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, April 3.—Hindenburg and Ludendorff continues to hesitate. They have been shifting about for five days. Probably the Germans are ready for the second phase of their offensive. But two things are worrying them. The first is the stunning blow given them by the British Army at Arras. The second is the doubled battle front combined with a lessened number of troops. They dislike pushing on towards Amiens with Arras and Vimy threatening their north flank and the Frenchmen at their south flank.

Likewise whereas they had ninety divisions (1,080,000) men in the line and in reserve for a 55-mile front on March 21, by now they have only the remnants of this force. Plus the spars fresh troops with which to carry on their offensive over a hundred-mile front.

SHORTENING THEIR BATTLE LINE.

Indications in the past few days are that Hindenburg is trying to shorten the active battle front by digging in at certain places permitting him to concentrate—probably south of the Somme. He will be compelled again to draw from garrisons in the quiet sectors. He has already drawn 28 divisions (336,000) men from the North Sea and 30 divisions (360,000) men from the Swiss end of the west front.

About 700,000 men—almost half the total of the west front—are concentrated on the battle front. The problem now is how long he can keep up the drain.

Obviously Hindenburg is staking everything on this last throw of the dice.

AMERICANS WILL GO TO ENGLAND

Large Part of United States Army will be Moved to England to take the Place of British Troops.

A NEW PLAN

(United Press Service.)

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterboro Examiner.)

(By Carl D. Groat.)

WASHINGTON, April 3.— A large part of the American army will be sent to England just as soon as the ships to transport it can be assembled. This was learned from an authoritative source in the army to-day. These troops comprise a substantial portion of those in camp in the States and will take the place of British troops that have been undergoing training in England.

This plan is entirely apart from the accelerated movement of American troops to the firing line in France. The best divisions of the American army will go direct to France while these in less developed stage will go to England.

Men Over 35 And Those Reaching 20 May Be Called

OTTAWA, April 2.—Amendments to the Military Service Act designed to expedite and simplify its operation in the actual securing of men will be submitted to Parliament within a few days by the Government.

It is understood they will include some changes in the age schedules, whereby men over 35 years of age, if physically fit, may be called to the colours. There are said to be thousands of men in Canada who may be a few years above the age limit at present set for Class 1, and who are quite fit for active service.

Another amendment, it is understood, will provide for the inclusion within Class 1 under the present Act of all young men who have attained the age of twenty since the Act was passed, and also providing for the calling up of men as they attain this age from now on.

THE AMERICANS ARE MOVING UP

The Dugouts are Half Full of Water —Rain Checks Activities.

TOUL FRONT BOMBARDED

(United Press Service.)

(Special to Peterboro Examiner and Toronto Star.)

(By Fred S. Ferguson.)

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, April 3. — Mud-spattered American columns, after three days of rain have flooded this region, make no complaints as their movement towards the big battle is speeded up. The trenches which the Americans are holding are miniature rivers. The dugouts are half full of water. But their occupants, knowing their comrades are bound for the great fight, endure it with smiles. The enemy again bombarded the Toul front last night. Rain blocked their activities.

American patrols are now equipped with rubber crawling suits, permitting them to keep dry as they snake their way through the mud.

THE J. C. TURNBULL COMPANY'S STORE CHANGES HANDS

Old Established Peterboro Business Has Been Purchased By Hodgens Bros. of Goderich, Ontario.

Messrs. Hodgens Brothers, of Goderich, Ont., have purchased the Turnbull Company's business from Mrs. F. J. Might, executor for the estate of the J. C. Turnbull Company. Hodgens Bros. are old-established Ontario merchants, who have always carried on a high standard of business. The business will be conducted along the same lines as has always characterized the successful operation of the Turnbull store in the past.

All the Turnbull employees will be retained. In retiring Mrs. Might wishes to thank the public for their patronage in the past, and solicit a continuance of the same for the future proprietors.

Peterboro will welcome the new firm that is being established, and at the same time will remember the company who are passing out of business, and whose name has long been a familiar one in the city's business life.

AUSTRIAN MINISTER INTENDS TO RESIGN

Canadian Press Despatch:

COPENHAGEN, April 3.—It is persistently rumoured in well-informed circles that Count Czerin, Austro-Hungarian Foreign Minister, intends to resign as soon as peace with Roumania has been finally secured, says the Budapest newspaper, Az Est, in reporting that Emperor Charles received Count Czerin at a lengthy audience on Sunday.

CANADIANS ARE ACTIVE

Enemy's Field Works Smashed up by the Canadian Artillery — Machine Guns Sweep No Man's Land.

PATROL ACTIVITY

(By W. A. Willison, Canadian Press Correspondent.)

CANADIAN ARMY HEADQUARTERS IN THE FIELD, Via London, April 3.—Again this morning the Canadian guns, heavy and light, have smashed up the enemy trenches, communications and assembly areas, our artillery co-operating with the infantry in fifteen minutes of barrage fire, while our machine guns swept No Man's Land and the opposing trenches. Our stokes and trench mortars added the weight of their fire to the programme, which gave the enemy further grim notice of our readiness to meet his offensive operations.

HARASSING FIRE.

All night long, too, our guns maintained a slow fire on the enemy areas, punctuated with harassing fire programmes at intervals. While both the enemy's weight of artillery and infantry concentration point to another attempt against Arras and Vimy Ridge, nothing more than patrol activity has characterized our front line, save for one raid north of Acheville against an enemy post.

HIGH MORALE.

In visits to batteries, battalions and divisions I have found high spirits everywhere. It is felt that Germany has lost the first play in her desperate gamble for victory, and while further bitter fighting is anticipated, there is no conviction that the enemy can succeed in the future where he has failed in the past.

NEWS CREATED INTERNAL INTEREST

Officials Are Pleased at the Action of American Government.

(Three O'clock Despatch.)

(By Wm. Philip Simms.)
(United Press Service.)

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FRANCE, April 3.—News that the American troops will be brigaded with the British for immediate fighting created intense interest among the officials here who are immensely pleased.

The action of the American Government insures keeping up the French and British divisions to full strength. Army officers declare it a proof of the United States singleness of purpose. Canadians especially are pleased.

Among the stories of the gallant stands of the various divisions is that of the Fifty-First. Astride the important Bapaume-Cambrai Road this division fought the enemy to a standstill against great odds, thrilling even the Germans.

Members of the division sent up the following paper balloon message: "The good old Fifty-First is sticking it out still cheerio."

SITUATION IS QUIET IN QUEBEC

Sixty-Two Prisoners Arrested Monday Night Still in Custody.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

QUEBEC, April 3.—Sixty-two prisoners arrested in connection with the rioting on Monday night are still in the custody of the military. As the military and civil authorities had not agreed when the cases were called for preliminary hearing by Judge E. Langelier to-day, as to details of prosecution, the military are not willing at present to grant the prisoners their liberty on bail. The city remains quiet to-day with the soldiers in full control of the situation.

A Later Despatch Says.

QUEBEC, April 3.—Judge Langelier adjourned the cases till this afternoon and intimated that he would communicate with the Department of Justice at Ottawa for instructions. A number of lawyers were present to represent the prisoners. If the prisoners are not liberated this afternoon, lawyers say, they will apply for habeas corpus.

QUEBEC, April 3.—General Lessard announced this afternoon that the men under arrest would be examined to see if they come under the Military Service Act, and if they do, they will be dealt with accordingly by the military, and not turned over to the civil authorities.

NEW GERMAN PEACE MOVE

Army Attempt on the Part of Germany to Discuss Peace at Present Time Will Find a Negative Response in America.

COUNT CZERNIN'S SPEECH

(Canadian Press.)

Washington, April 3.—Count Czernin's statement that France had suggested peace discussions with Austria Hungary, was characterized by the officials here to-day as the beginning of a new German peace offensive, with the Austria Hungary foreign minister acting at Germany's behest. The peace move, they said, was timed to follow the break down of the Teutonic military offensive. Any Teutonic suggestion that the time for a peace discussion is near at hand, will find nothing but a negative response in America.

CLAIM AGAINST SERBIA.

London, April 3.—"I do not intend to go begging for peace or to obtain it by treaties and lamentations, but to enforce it by our moral right and physical strength," Count Czernin, the Austro-Hungarian foreign minister, declared in an address to the Vienna municipal council, on Tuesday.

"Any other tactics I consider will contribute to the prolongation of the war." In regard to Bulgaria's claim against Serbia, the Foreign Minister said:

"Bulgaria must receive from Serbia certain districts inhabited by Bulgarians. We, however, have no desire to destroy Serbia. We will enable Serbia to develop and would welcome closer economic relations with her."

ARCHBISHOP WILL VISIT PETERBORO

St. George's Day, the 23rd inst., will be celebrated in Peterboro as in former years. A service will be held in St. John's church in the evening, when the sermon will be preached by His Grace the Archbishop of Ontario. This will be the first visit ever paid to the city by an English Archbishop and English Churchmen and Churchwomen will feel highly honoured by such a visit.

The Archbishop will arrive in the city on Monday afternoon, the 22nd inst., and in the evening will meet a number of the official churchmen of the town (lay and clerical) for an informal conference. Further particulars of this meeting will be given in a later issue.

WILL SELL ROSES.

As on the former four years, Red Roses will be sold in the city on Saturday, the 20th inst. The proceeds will be given in aid of St. George's Church, South End. This church has suffered more than any other church in the city through so many of its members having enlisted for military purposes. This will be the fifth time for the Roses to be offered for sale, and it is to be hoped that all true Britons will proudly wear the Empire's emblem on their breast, on Saturday, the 20th inst.

GERMANS AGAIN BOMBARD PARIS

(Canadian Press.)

Paris, April 3.—The Germans again began to bombard Paris at 9.50 o'clock this morning.

FRANK JENNE SAYS:

In these uncertain times it is a boon to find something that is a certainty.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 3RD, 1918.

THE VETERANS' TAG DAY.

The Great War Veterans of Peterboro have announced that they will observe the anniversary of the Second Battle of Ypres by holding a tag day campaign to augment the Association's relief funds. The public should not misunderstand the objects of this effort—the money to be raised is not for the Veterans themselves, or for their club room fund, but is to be used in furnishing relief for cases of distress among Veterans, their families, and the dependents of Peterboro county soldiers who are still overseas, or who will not return.

There are many cases which come up where temporary assistance is required. Separation allowances go astray or assigned pay is held up, and the Veterans' fund is available for those who are deserving cases. The Veterans have a relief committee who enquire into the circumstances in each case before action is taken.

There will be further announcements about the tag day which will fully inform the public about the relief unds, and the work being done by the Veterans.

AID FOR HOTELS.

The announcement from the hotelkeepers of Peterboro, that unless they receive a measure of civic aid, such as exemption from all but school taxes, and relief from light and water rates, they will be forced to close, is a serious one. Peterboro is already suffering from lack of hotel accommodation, and the closing of even another hotel would be severely felt.

There is no question that hotel proprietors have been facing steadily worse conditions since the cutting off of the liquor licenses. This, of course, materially affected their revenues, while their expenses have been constantly mounting, wages being higher and the cost of food and fuel steadily increasing. In addition they are suffering from what they term the unfair competition of restaurants, whose patrons use the hotel conveniences but leave their money at the eating houses.

Other cities have accorded hotel men the relief asked for by the local proprietors and in some cases have voted a bonus as well.

Peterboro cannot afford to have any further curtailment in hotel accommodation.

HEROIC AUDACITY.

No exploits in the glorious history of the Canadian troops in France have surpassed the story of the fighting that has been done during the past ten days by the Canadian armoured motor batteries, some of the details of which have been received from war correspondents. The motor batteries were hurried south at the outset of the German attack and the crews after a sleepless night, and after travelling over one hundred kilometres, were thrown into action aginst the Prussian hordes. Their astounding adventures in the days that followed surpass in heroic audacity anything told in fiction. Philip Gibbs, the world's greatest war correspondent and representative of the London Times with the British troops in France, has given to the world a thrilling description of how these Canadians fought. They have inflicted heavy casualties on the enemy, smashed German cavalry, checked columns of the enemy crossing bridges and have, on several occasions, rescued British infantry when they were almost surrounded by the Germans.

Mr. Gibbs says that these Canadians of the armoured batteries are the "darlings of the troops" and describes them "as grim fighting fellows with jests on their lips and utterly reckless of life as long as they kill Germans."

The story is one that will thrill every Canadian heart.

A BUSINESS ACQUISITION.

The business and commercial community of the city is to be congratulated on its being augmented by the new firm of Hodgens Brothers, of Goderich, who have just completed the purchase of the Turnbull Company business. It speaks well for the present business and the future prospects of the city, when a transaction of the magnitude of this transfer takes place.

Messrs. Hodgens Bros. have an old and well established business in Western Ontario, and with their experience and sound judgment, it makes it all the more palpable that Peterboro is looked upon commercially as one of the best of the smaller cities of the province

The Turnbull Company has been looked upon here as one of the fixures of the city, and while the staff is complete, the departure of Mrs. Might and Mr. Caldwell of the executive end of the business, will be regretted when they move out of the city.

HOW SOLDIERS SAVE.

The urgent need of Canadians at home conserving food, and eliminating waste as much as possible, is evidenced by copies of the diet sheet issued by the Canadian Director of Supply and Transport for the guidance of Canadian units overseas. "Save now, to obviate going without later," the diet sheet advises, and adds that disciplinary action will be taken if the instructions are deviated from.

Some of the rules may be of interest to the people at home. Here are a few:

"The Sergeant Cook is responsible that no potatoes, meat, bread, beans, fat, grease, bones or unprepared food, is placed in swill cans."

"The fat from the water used for washing the kitchen dishes must be collected."

"No surplus commodities must be kept in the kitchen or store room. Save all the bread and flour possible; it is urgently needed."

"When there is a surplus of cooked porridge at breakfast, some can be used with advantage as a substitute, or to supplement any dishes requiring stale bread, etc."

"Meat left on bones which have passed through the stock pot may also be used to supplement various dishes."

In spite of these drastic regulations, however, the menu prescribed by the diet sheet seems to provide variety, at least as can be judged from the following:

"Breakfast: Rolled oats, minced mutton, bread, butter, coffee.

"Dinner: Baked sausages and fried onions, cabbage, potatoes, baked jam roll, bread.

"Supper: Pork and beans, fried potatoes, commissioner's buns, bread, butter, tea.

WORSE THAN REPORTED.

The summary given out for publication of the conditions prevailing on Canadian transports returning from Europe, as so far revealed by the inquiry now being held, show that the complaints made by a number of returned soldiers, and from time to time referred to in the press, have been mild in comparison to the revelations made by witnesses during the inquiry. The evidence given is of a character that should bring a blush of shame to the cheek of every Canadian. Almost incredible are the stories told by the forty-two witnesses examined, ranging in rank from privates to Lieut.-Colonels, and covering thirteen transports.

The inquiry has shown that wounded Canadian soldiers have been brought back to Canada, after fighting for liberty in France, under conditions that one would hesitate to believe existed in the worst of German prison camps. Imagine men who had sacrificed health and limb to make fame for Canada, being herded together like slaves in the lower parts of the transports.

Red tickets, entitling the holders to cabin privileges, were ignored, and the wounded soldiers who had been given these tickets, were sent, instead, to the bottom of the ship, where they had to lie on the floors, which were often wet. Witnesses described the conditions on board as intolerable; the ships, they said, were "filthy with vermin," and the "quarters foul and hot." It has been stated by other witnesses that the lavatory accommodation was "indescribable."

All this is bad enough, but the utter disregard and neglect of crippled and invalided soldiers, as described by the witnesses, is even more to be condemned. One soldier swore that his wound was not dressed for twelve days, and that in spite of the fact that he was a "cot" case, the authorities made him stand at drill for a half an hour each day.

Similar evidence by other soldiers, who also referred to immorality on board the transports, and to other serious charges, such as locking men in the guard room on the lower decks, where they would have drowned like rats in a trap if the ship had been torpedoed, makes it easy to believe the testimony of soldiers that the men were driven almost to the point of mutiny.

The inquiry has not yet been completed, but enough has been disclosed to warrant the Government to take immediate and drastic steps to remedy the conditions, and to show the people of Canada that a deep debt of gratitude is due to Lieut. John Quinney, the officer who was courageous enough to bring the terrible state of affairs into the light of publicity, and to press for the inquiry that is now being held.

The revelations are appalling, and will shock the Dominion. The Canadian people will not be satisfied unil they are assured that the complaints have been acted on, and that men who have risked everything to fight for Canada overseas are from now on certain to be brought home in transports where they can at least travel in comfort.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The Ontario farmer who put a $3,000 mortgage on his farm in order to buy liquor, wasn't exactly providing for a rainy day, but was at least taking precautions against encountering any dry ones.

It is a pleasing antidote to the news from Quebec to read of the exploits of a machine gun detachment, raised by a French Canadian officer, in the great battle in Picardy.

Many people will agree with the remark of a Hamilton soldier that returned men want more than pretty words when they come back.

There is no defense against Professor Leacock's charge that waste is manifest everywhere in Canada, and that all sorts of useless enterprises are going on instead of the whole Dominion being organized for the sole business of winning the war.

La Patrie (Montreal), discussing the trouble in Quebec, agrees with the sentiments of people in all parts of Canada, when it remarks that "the Government is in a large measure responsible, because it has tolerated the actual campaign carried on by certain newspapers to inflame opinion against the Conscription law.

In an article in The Examiner yesterday, the case of a soldier's wife, who had not received any separation allowances for February and March, was mentioned. The sequel of the story is that yesterday she received a cheque for $50, the full amount of what was due her, without a word of explanation as to why the payments had been delayed.

WHEAT FED TO HOGS.

(Toronto Globe)

Mr. R. R. Hall of Peterborough, who says that there may be a marked decrease in the spring wheat acreage because the growing of other grains is more profitable, tells The Globe that a single customs grist mill recently ground up over a thousand bushels of wheat in one week on the order of farmers who proposed to use it in feeding hogs and other live stock. Their claim is that it is more profitable to use wheat in this way which they must sell at $2.25 per bushel rather than oats or barley, which bring relatively higher prices under the law of supply and demand.

From other quarters comes information confirmatory of Mr. Hall's statements. There is unquestionably much wheat now being fed to hogs in Ontario that under normal conditions would be on a barley or oats diet. The Food Board should investigate conditions at the earliest possible moment and either increase wheat prices or forbid the use of wheat for the feeding of live stock.

LLOYD GEORGES WARNING.

"I fear the disciplined people behind the German army, the rationed family, and the determination of wife and sister and daughter and mother to stand and starve—so that their fighting men may be fed—I fear it more than the Imperial German army itself."—Lloyd George.

Britain is now on Food Rations.

France is now on Food Rations.

Italy is on the verge of starvation. Only continuous support from us can enable them to hold out.

Only with a disciplined people behind can we hope to win. The rationed British Nation, blood of our blood, bone of our bone, are proudly paying the price and sharing with France and Italy their limited stock of food. For in this there is mighty pride, a conscious measuring of their glory with the best traditions of ancient Sparta, and of Imperial Rome, for Britons know that upon them rests the burden of saying humanity. The story of their service shall ring and echo forever along the hill tops of history.

TO SEND MORE FOOD TO OUR ALLIES IS NOT CHARITY.

It is war. The Allies have a right to demand it. They have a right to resent the offer of only what is "left over." Those who are fighting the common battle for civilization and for our protection have a higher claim than had Lazarus, to only the "crumbs that fall from the rich man's table."

The Canadian people must recognize that our Allies have the first claim on our food supplies.

As the shipping situation makes the Allies dependent upon the North American continent for food, it is vitally necessary that Canada should increase her production of food in order to take a larger part in providing for the Allies' requirements. This is especially urgent as the maintenance of a large United States army in the European field will cause a very heavy drain on that country's food resources.

LADIES AID ANNUAL BUSINESS MEETING

The annual business meeting was held yesterday of the Ladies' Aid Society of the George Street Methodist Church. The Rev. Mr. J. Thomas took charge of the meeting for the election of officers, which was as follows,

President—Mrs. C. E. Smith.
1st Vice-Pres.—Mrs. H. Foote.
2nd Vice-Pres.—Mrs. J. Long.
Secretary—Mrs. B. Shortley.
Treasurer—Mrs. D. A. Oke.
Pianist—Mrs. A. E. Meeks.

The reports for the year were submitted and were very satisfactory.

G. A. BRETTON HAD RECORD SALE

A record Holstein auction for Canada was made at G. A. Brethen's sale at the Toronto Union Stock Yards on Thursday last. A long range of high live stock prices has marked the leaders in both beef and dairy cows this season. Despite the almost unending numbers of dairy cattle sales throughout Ontario this spring, Toronto drew a record crowd who piled up some record prices.

These Holsteins carried the blood in various and rich combinations of May Echo Sylvia, Rag Apple Korndyke, King of the Pontiacs, Ranwerd Count de Kol and others, the best producing families in Canada.

Brethen's 27 females averaged $850.55, and his 9 bulls $449, or a total of $27,005 for 36 head.

Afternoon dresses for little girls are of white lawn with collars and cuffs of pink or blue chambray.

CARTERS AND DELIVERY MEN MUST RETURN THE CITY'S COAL BAGS

The city's timely delivery of coal during the winter cost the Municipal Fuel Yard nearly all of the one hundred brand new coal bags, bought at a price of $2.50 each. Expressmen, carters and others have inadvertently perhaps retained these sacks, which the Police Department herewith gives notice must be returned by Friday night.

GUS HILL'S MINSTRELS SCORE BIG SUCCESS

London Paper Describes The Performance as a Delightful Entertainment With George Wilson and Eddie Maziers As The Leading Fun-makers—A Clever Company of Singers, Dancers and Comedians.

The following from the London Free Press, refers to Gus Hill's big Minstrels, which will be seen at the Grand Opera House here on Monday night next:

Lovers of minstrelsy turned out in large numbers to the Grand Theatre last evening to see Gus Hill's own company of black-faced performers of the old and new school give two hours and a half of most enjoyable entertainment. Everybody loves a minstrel show. There is something about the very thought of such an offering that appeals to men and women.

There is nothing that Gus Hill will not tackle; when he makes up his mind to do a thing he does it well. For his minstrel show he has selected a clever company of singers, dancers and comedians, given them a splendid orchestra, good material to work with, handsome costumes, and special scenery, and they do the rest.

Old and new faces are among the performers. George Wilson at one time a partner with our own George Primrose, now a 72-year-old boy, cavorts about like a two-year-old, and kept the audience laughing with his "Topics of the Day." Eddie Mazier, one of the comers in minstrelsy, contributed some clever monologue and character work, and was repeatedly encored for his work.

A GOOD FIRST PART.

The first part is generally the best part of a minstrel show, but not so last night, for the olio was varied, well-balanced and clever. The opening was the usual semi-circle, with the entire company and the orchestra in black face. The costumes are burnt orange and lavender full evening dress, and the general effect is one of splendour. Many jokes bright and snappy, are told by the comedians and the songs, some of which brought back memories of other days were generously applauded.

Among the singers the features were Will Thompson, who sang, "Somebody Loves You, Dear," in the first part, and another beautiful ballad in the olio. "Any Old Port in a Storm," a bass solo by that beautiful singer, John Rogers, was warmly received. Mr. Rogers also alternated with Mr. Thompson as interlocutor.

The second part was opened with an original creation, showing the battleship Alabama. As a scenic background it was novel for the singing of "Somewhere in France" by the entire company, and dancing and drilling on the deck after the song number.

Eddie Mazier and Will Thompson, in a comedy talking act, scored heavily, and the Musical Cates, past masters on the saxophone, were generously encored. "Scenes in Blackville" proved a good vehicle for the introduction of songs and dances by various members of the company, and George Wilson closed the olio with a very funny 20 minutes of stump speech.

A rip roaring comedy, with Eddie Mazier as the chief funmaker, concluded the entertainment.

The orchestra under the able direction of Raymond Woodworth, added greatly to the evening.

PETERBOROUGH STANDS THIRD

Serbian Relief Committee Acknowledges Donations From This City.

Mr. W. H. Dunsford of the local committee of the Serbian Relief Fund has received the following letter from Miss Naomi Boulton of Toronto, the Corresponding Secretary:

Dear Sir,—Your letter of the 25th inst., received, enclosing a cheque for $198, a splendid addition to your former contribution. This makes your total very close to the thousand dollar mrak, and the Peterboro Committee stands third among the local Ontario Committees, Guelph is first with $1,500, and Chatham second, with $1,100. Please convey our thanks to those who have helped to bring in this welcome addition to the fund.

Yours truly,
NAOMI BOULTON.

FORREST SAYS HE WAS SURPRISED

Got Rid of His Troubles Soon After He Began Taking Tanlac.

"The way Tanlac straightened me out and rid me of my troubles is certainly a surprise to me," said Andrew B. Forrest, who resides at 299 Spadina Avenue, Toronto, recently.

"My system was so run down," he continued, "that for six months I was hardly fit for a thing. My blood was bad and I suffered from a troublesome breaking out on my face and painful lumps all over my body. My appetite failed so I couldn't relish my food and I fell off in weight and got so weak I had no life about me. I felt dull and sluggish and unfit for work and was in a most miserable condition and getting worse every day in spite of all I could do, for I took about everything I could hear of.

"At last, I got me a bottle of Tanlac and it sure started me up hill again. I am now on my fourth bottle and have such a fine appetite I eat with zest everything set before me. My blood is richer and better, my skin healthier and about free from every sign of that old trouble I had before. That sluggish feeling has disappeared, my system is toned up, I am stronger and better in every way; I have more life and energy and can do my work with a vim that makes me feel like a new man. It is a pleasure to recommend such a wonderful medicine as Tanlac and I do so every chance I get.

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd., in Havelock by A. C. Demike; in Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co. Ltd., in Fowler's Corners by W. A. Hunter, in Gelert by A. J. Scott, in Westwood by G. Pringle & Son.

WELL KNOWN ENGINEER DEAD.

Ottawa, April 2.—One of the best known engineers in Canada died at Cornwall, Ont., in the person of John Baye Brophy, of Ottawa, who passed away after an attack of pneumonia. He had been with the Department of Railways and Canals for many years. He also had a great deal of railway building to his credit, having worked on the C.P.R., the Intercolonial, and the Cape Breton Railway.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

School Board Put the Soft Pedal on Expenditures At Last Night's Meeting

The Board Will Recommend that the Council Take Steps to Improve the the Fire Protection in Public Schools of the City. Regular Monthly Meeting of the Board.

Putting the closure down on any proposition that would incur the expenditure of money kept the School Board busy last night in any discussion following the presentation of reports and communications.

The Teachers' Institute wrote asking that a representative from the Entrance Class teachers should be added to the Board of Examiners on the entrance examinations, as this would mean an extra expenditure of some $30, and as two-thirds of the Entrance pupils are now passed by recommendation, it was voted down.

SCHOOL GARDEN PRIZES.

Mr. F. J. A. Hall's request for a donation from the Board towards awarding prizes at the Exhibition for the school gardens was referred to special committee. The Exhibition is willing to donate $25 towards this competition. Mr. Hall is Secretary of the Peterborough Exhibition Board.

INCREASED FIRE PROTECTION.

The Utilities report by Ross Dobbin, superintendent of the Waterworks department, on the question of increasing the water service for fire protection in the school buildings was received and the Board will recommend to the Council that such steps, as suggested by Mr. Dobbin will be taken.

AN APPLICATION.

Miss Margaret Eastwood wrote asking to have her name placed on record as available for a position on the school staff. This was referred to the Committee of Appointments.

MARCH ATTENDANCE

The report for attendance at the Public and High Schools showed in the High School an enrollment of 324 and an average attendance of 305. In the Public Schools an enrollment of 2,784 and an average attendance of 2,543. Fire drill had been practiced throughout the month in the public schools.

IS PATRIOTISM PRACTICED?

A communication from the Sons of England asked the following pertinent questions:

How many of our Public Schools have the Union Jack flying on the building and how often is it flown?

Is the Union Jack flown on the Collegiate Institute and if so on what occasion?

Is the National Anthem sung at either the opening or closing of all our Public Schools and Collegiate Institute?

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON APPOINTMENTS.

The Committee on Appointments submitted the following report:

Regarding the matter of the request of the Public School teachers for increased salary, which was referred to your committee, we beg to recommend, that as the Public School salaries' schedule was carefully revised in April, 1917, no further revision be made at the present time, except that, for the school year beginning 1st September next and ending 30th June, 1919, a double increase be granted those Public School teachers and supervisors who have not already reached their maximum salary, and in no case shall a teacher receive more than the maximum under the present schedule.

Your committee beg also to recommend as follows:

1st. That the Public School Inspector receive a double increase for the school year beginning 1st of September next and ending 30th June, 1919.

2nd. That the salary of Miss M. J. V. Jory, who is substituting for Miss E. Kennedy, school nurse, be in accordance with the present schedule pertaining to the school nurse, and that her first increase date from 1st September next.

3rd. That each of the Public School janitors, excepting the janitor of the King George School, who is leaving on the 30th of April, be paid an extra salary of $50.00 as a war bonus for the present year, commencing 1st of January, 1918.

4th. That the salary of the Secretary-Treasurer be increased $100 per year, dating from 1st January, 1918.

5th. That Mr. F. A. Dainton be appointed janitor of the King George School, to succeed Mr. H. W. Naish. Salary to be according to schedule, and duties to commence 1st of May, next.—Roland Denne, chairman.

Girls Conference To be Held Here

The Canadian Standard Efficiency Test as Applied to Girls—An Important Event.

A conference of girls and Sunday school leaders will open in this city on Friday, April 19th and continue for three days. This is the first event of its kind ever held in Peterborough and efforts are being made to ensure its success. The conference is being arranged under the direction of the Advisory committee of the Dominion Council of the Young Women's Christian Associations of Canada.

The "four-fold development" scheme for girls, which is similar to the standard efficiency test for boys, will be thoroughly dealt with by capable speakers. A conference similar to this has been held in four other cities in Canada this year. Girls between the ages of fifteen and twenty-four years will attend the convention, also Sunday school workers of all grades from both the city and county. The conference is interdenominational in scope and aims at the development of a standard adaptable to girls and embodying the principles of physical, intellectual, religious and service and its true and proper application to "teen-age" girls and others.

ECZEMA ON MY FOREHEAD FOR OVER EIGHT YEARS

Electrical treatmen and other so-called remedies, failed to cure this case. Then she tried Swaizema. Read the letter:

"Being troubled with Eczema on my forehead for over eight years, I tried several special remedies, which did me no good, also tried electrical treatment. I stopped the electrical treatment and began with Swaizema. On using it I saw very great improvement the first week, the redness almost entirely disappeared. I continued taking Swaizema which, when I had taken the fourth bottle, was entirely cured. I am well pleased, and will recommend it to others suffering from eczema.

LARGE STORES OF SUPPLIES ARE BEING TRANSPORTED TO BERLIN

Trade Between Ukraine and Germany is in Full Swing—Scattered Fighting Throughout Russia—Soviet is Mobilizing Forces to Defend Charkoff.

GERMAN FOURTH ARMY ATTACKED

(By Jos. Shaplen—United Press Service.)

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

PETROGRAD, April 3.—Trade between Ukrane and Germany is in full blast. Great stores of bread are being transported from Kieff to Berlin by railway under the supervision of the German commission.

The forces of the Ukranians Soviet in the Konotop region have retreated after inflicting heavy casualties on the enemy who reached Sarym.

Toward Reovensk the Soviet forces which were evacuating Voroshba attacked the German fourth army.

On the Charkoff front the enemy retreated in the region of Achtirks and Lebediani. The Soviet is mobilizing forces to defend Charkoff. Citizens are evacuating Katerinoslav in view of the enemy advance from Nizhni-Dmeporvsk.

A severe battle is raging around Gnakievo.

CITY AUTHORIZED TO ASSUME CONTROL OF VACANT LOTS FOR USE BY SOLDIERS OF THE SOIL

There is no excuse for vacant land remaining idle this summer. If citizens who do not intend to use their unoccupied lots, refuse to permit other persons to work them, the Council can compel them to do so. This power is clearly defined in an Act passed by the Provincial Government. It authorizes the Council to pass a by-law under the provisions of which vacant land within the municipality may be entered upon and used for purposes of cultivation. This is an extraordinary bit of legislation which will remain in force until the war is won.

Under this by-law the Council must notify property owners of its intention to assume vacant lands and set a date on which objections may be presented. Lots that are to be used for immediate building, manufacturing or other revenue producing purposes are exempt. Not only may vacant lands be temporarily acquired for greater production uses, but the Council may issue permits to persons who purpose to plant it, may specify the crops that shall be raised and indicate the disposal of the produce. Permits shall not cost more than twenty-five cents and there shall be no compensation allowed to the property owners.

Alleged Deserter Ran Off With The Wife Of A Soldier

Charged with being a deserter from the "Niobe," of what was once derided as Canada's "tin-pot" navy, George Thom was remanded for a week in police court this morning. It was stated that he had recently come to Peterborough with the wife of a soldier who has just returned from France. They were traced to a house on George street, where they were living together. Thorn is said to have assumed the husband's name. The latter followed them from Toronto, and at the police station last night pleaded to be admitted to the cells, to visit his vengeance upon the alleged deserter who had alienated his wife's affections. He had sought an opportunity to speak with Thom, and after giving vent to his wrath in words, inquired of the prisoner "how the kiddy was." The information that his child was well overcame his anger, and shortly afterwards he accompanied an officer to the house where his wife was staying.

Narrow Escape From Fire

Blaze Discovered In Livery Stable Of A. E. Graham, Lakefield

LAKEFIELD, April 3.—A fire was discovered on Monday afternoon in the livery barn of Mr. A. E. Graham. Luckily the flames had not gained much headway when the discovery was made and a few pails of water extinguished it. Very little damage was done as the blaze was discovered in time.

The poverty social of the Epworth League on Monday night was a great success and there was much amusement over the costumes. There were fines for elaborate hairdressing, jewellry and ornaments.

ANNUAL MEETING.

The annual Vestry meeting of St. John's Church was held in the Sunday School room on Monday night, at 8 o'clock. There was a fair attendance. The resignation of Capt. (Rev.) H. A. ONE OF THE MOST BELOVED MEN IN THE BATTALION

Commanding Officer's Tribute to Pte. G. R. Strickland Who Was Killed at Passchendeale.

One of the many Canadians who fell in wresting Passchendaele from the Germans last autumn was Pte. G. R. Strickland, of the 72nd Canadian Battalion, and son of Mr. R. C. Strickland, of Burleigh Ranch. Pte. Strickland was widely known in the district and the news of his death was received with deep regret.

Pte. Strickland's wife, who lives in Vancouver, has received the following letter from the commanding officer of the 72nd Battalion:

Dear Mrs. Strickland,—I understand that Major Birds has already written you regarding the death of your husband, 130072 Pte. G. R. Strickland. I trust you will pardon my delay in expressing to you my sincere sympathy in your great sorrow.

Your husband was one of the oldest members of my battalion, and one of the most beloved. I knew him personally for the past two years and can testify to his continued devotion to duty. He would undoubtedly have won his commission, and probably further honours, had he been spared.

If there is any additional information that you desire I hope that you will not hesitate to write me. I presume that the chaplain who conducted the burial service has written you.

Yours sincerely,
J. A. Clark, Lieut.-Col.

Street Railway Extension to Byersville A Subject For Council's Railway Committee

The Railway Committee of the City Council will probably discuss proposed extensions of Peterborough's Street Railway system at to-night's meeting unless other and more pressing questions monipolize the evening. Alderman Edgar has given the street railway problem a prominent place on his file; and it demands not only discussion and recommendations to the managing officials, but also action, this summer if possible. The traffic is overtaxing the accommodation on every route excepting the Jackson Park stub line. This is particularly apparent and discomforting to passengers during the rush hours, which are gradually extending as the city grows while the service remains static and rigid. It is unnecessary to enter into the details of the street railway's virtual retrogression during the past four years, for the condition is probably admitted by the management. They offer the valid excuse that the cost of material and labour has militated against expansion. This explanation has been patiently accepted, and the overcrowding endured in the hope that relief would not be too long withheld.

On none of the routes has traffic grown more steadily than in the line to Byersville. The extension of the Charlotte street branch south on Monaghan Road to connect at Chamberlen street with the present road offers relief, but the work has never advanced beyond the grading of part of this street. For several years past, there have been faint signs of action which have always ended in postponement. Another spring is here and there is actually less prospect of extension, reading the managerial silence, than at any period since the fateful August of 1914.

Alderman Edgar must be very sanguine indeed, or shares official information, if he expects his committee to obtain results now, in the face of a succession if annual delays. The last year has strengthened his hand, but the need of improvements was almost as pressing a year ago.

To the overcrowding of cars may be added the increasing dilapidation of the older stock. In short the system is beginning to show signs of running down at the heels, and a renovation is practically imperative. It must be admitted, considering the continuous burden borne by the limited equipment, that the condition of the older cars might have been worse, but not much. They need a thorough overhauling if they can escape the scrap heap.

Hence, the Railway Committee can readily formulate recommendations for improvements, and it must be apparent that looping the Charlotte street line with the C.G.E. at Chamberlen street will provide two routes from the suburb to the centre of the city, and thereby relieve the overcrowding of the present C.G.E. cars. This is surely an obvious necessity, and the suggested extension is a natural one. There are other problems in the same category, but the solution of this has been long contemplated. The more involved schemes may be reserved for next year.

MARS NO LONGER FIGHTS WITH BEARD

Modern Warrier Less Ferocious But More Efficient in Consequence.

When the Indian braves of old met foemen unquestionably worthy of their tomahawks, they arrayed themselves as fantastically as possible, and emitting the most blood-curdling warwhoop in their repertoire, raced into the fray. Their strategy was based on the assumption that strength of arm would have to be supplemented by superiority of will, if victory was to be their portion. They reasoned that if they could frighten their opponents before their opponents had frightened them they would win the day.

Then came the bearded warriors of the Crimea and the American Civil War. These were not bearded from choice, but from stern necessity, since the double edged 100 per cent. efficient blade of the modern safety ragor was undreamed of. The old flat-bed razor in vogue at the time, could always be depended upon to be dull. There was nothing left to do but to popularize the beard, and popularized it was. And the basis upon which the beard was popularized was that the warrior affected it because it imparted that ferocity which is the concomitant of victory, and not because he was at a loss to do anything else.

That the psychological offensive is still regarded as a necessary preliminary to the physical offensive is well illustrated by the methods of the German propagandists in the present struggle. But the beard has gone by the board since it has been amply demonstrated that the ferocity which it imparts to the soldier fails to compensate for the many disadvantages which its adoption entails. If the world had stood still, if the safety razor had never been invented, and never been mechanically perfected, beards would undoubtedly be popular to-day. They are still popular in Russia. E

PUBLIC PAY MORE FOR CAN AND WRAPPER THAN THE ACTUAL CONTENTS

Interesting Address by Mrs. Willard of the Women's Institutes—Twenty-five Cents that goes to Buy a Bottle of Catsup Would Cover the Cost of Eight Quart Sealers if Prepared at Home.

Through the efforts of the Peterborough Poultry Association, Mrs. Weelard of the Women's Institute of Ontario, spoke to a small but appreciative audience last evening in the Council chamber. Mrs. Willard's address was mainly on greater production, showing the most approved methods of gardening. She also showed the folly of buying canned tomatoes in fancy tins, etc., and produced a small bottle of catsup with a fancy top and labels which cost 25c. in a store, although it held only an ordinary tea cupful of catsup. She said: 'With that 25c. and tomatoes at the price they were last summer, I could can eight quart sealers of catsup. A can of tomatoes which we pay 25c. for can be prepared for at least three cents. The public to-day pay more for the can, the wrapper and its useless gilding, than for the actual contents of the can."

Canning Machines.

She said the government had installed canning machines at Hamilton, Windsor and Park Hill, each with a capacity of 700 sealers a day. In the small town of Park Hill, 5,000 cans of fruits and vegetables had been sent to the front. And in the three mentioned towns the Women's Institute had sent over to the boys at the front 75,000 cans of fruits and vegetables.

Mrs. Willard spoke very briefly of the poultry association, but said she had visited a farm in Western Ontario where they had seven cows. These cows produced about 36 lb. of butter a week, which was sold for 45c. a lb. wholesale. This same farm had 147 laying hens with eggs selling at 50c. a doz. Yet the hens brought in more revenue than the cows.

Efforts are at present being made to form a Women's Institute here, and it is altogether likely that the government will install a canning machine here.

SUDDEN DEATH OF HAVELOCK MAN

Blood Poisoning Followed the Breaking of a Bone in His Shoulder—Havelock News.

HAVELOCK, April 3.— Havelock citizens were greatly shocked on Thursday morning on hearing of the sudden death of Mr. Wesley Hart, a most respected citizen, who has resided here for the past 30 years. Deceased carried on a butcher business and took the orders on the previous morning. He had not been feeling well for some time, but his condition was not thought to be serious. Some time ago he had the misfortune to hurt his shoulder, but thought it was only sprained and did not consult a doctor. A post mortem was held and it was found that a bone had been broken, which caused blood poisoning and causing his death, in his 64th year. He leaves his wife to mourn his untimely death. The funeral took place on Sunday, services being held at his late residence on George street, at 1.30 p.m., conducted by Rev. J. B. Skene, of Knox Presbyterian church, and from thence to Maple Grove cemetery for burial. Many beautiful floral tributes showed the very high esteem in which he was held. He was a member of the Masonic Order and also of the I.O.O.F.

Blood Poison Developed

As a Result of Accident—Nerves Break Down After Three Weeks of Suffering—A Glowing Tribute to Treatment Used

KINGSTON, Ont., Feb. 12.—Blood poisoning seems to become more common from year to year, and the dread of it is ever on the increase. In the case reported here the doctor did not seem able to get rid of it, and after three weeks of suffering the patient was almost a nervous wreck.

Mrs. Susie Thompson, Smith street, Kingston, Ont., writes:

"Early in the fall of 1916 I had a painful accident. I ran a sliver under my thumb nail and neglected having it extracted. My thumb festered very badly, in fact my arm was fearfully swollen up to the elbow. It developed into blood poison, and I had the doctor lance it several times, but it failed to get better. With the intense pain and loss of sleep I became a nervous wreck. After following the doctor's orders for three weeks and not getting any benefit I wrote my mother about it. By return mail she sent me a box of Dr. Chase's Ointment. The very first application eased the pain, and I slept that night quite easily. I kept using the Ointment regularly, and by the fifth day all the swelling was gone, and also the inflammation.

"During this time I had become so weakened and run down that my whole nervous system seemed affected. I was very nervous and restless, appetite became poor, and I had frequent headaches. I decided to try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and had the same splendid results from this as from the Ointment. Using the Nerve Food internally built up my system and made me strong, while using the Ointment externally healed my sore thumb. I am now quite well thanks to your wonderful remedies—the only regret I have is that I did not begin using them earlier and saved myself months of suffering, to say nothing of Doctor's bills."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, a full treatment of 6 boxes for $2.75, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Do not be talked into accepting a substitute. Imitations only disappoint.

Voice of The People

THE FARMER AND CHINA.

Editor, the Examiner: Mr. J. H. Burnham is evidently quite wrought up over the determination of certain Western Members of Parliament to secure free trade for Canada. He is even fearful that farmers in West Peterboro may become inoculated with this same free trade virus, and to safeguard them against such a dangerous infection he resurrects the time-worn Yellow Peril. In a recent letter to the Examiner he quotes, with child-like trust, the statements of a sergeant of marines, recently returned from China, who tells in a San Francisco paper, of eggs selling in the Celestial Empire for 25c a hundred; spring chickens for 25c a pair; polo ponies for $1.50 apiece; and other prices in proportion. "You will notice," writes Mr. Burnham, "that the staple products of the Middle West are not largely affected by China prices. Free trade, cheap transportation by water will put the Ontario farmer on a level with the Chinese if their competition is to be successfully met."

I would direct Mr. Burnham's attention to a report on this very subject prepared under the direction of the present Minister of Trade and Commerce and published by his department two or three years ago. At that time a commissioner was appointed to investigate the Oriental trade situation with the view to ascertaining the danger, if there were any, of Oriental production interfering with the development of any industry in Canada. After spending a lot of time and considerable government money in a careful survey of the whole situation, this commissioner reported that while products in China were cheap, the standard of living low, and wages ridiculously small, that the efficiency of the Oriental laborer was even lower and that we in Canada have no need to fear their competition. Surely Mr. Burnham would not place more emphasis on the statements of an irresponsible Sergeant of Marines than on the carefully prepared report of a commissioner appointed by his friend Sir George E. Foster! Perhaps, too, had Mr. Burnham been brought up in a seacoast community, as I was, he would have a livelier appreciation of the satisfaction which it gives the returning sailor to tell "long" yarns for the benefit of the unsophisticated "land lubber."

Mr. Burnham would lead us to infer from his letter that the prices of farm products are what they are due to the protection afforded by the customs tariff. Mr. Burnham evidently is not aware that the prices of practically all the farm products of Ontario are determined by the export demand. The prices of our cheese, wheat, pork and beef are all set in Liverpool, England, which is already a free trade market. The price of eggs for the entire season of 1917 was determined by the price that London and Liverpool were willing to pay, and London and Liverpool could have gotten those cheap Chinese eggs absolutely duty free had they wanted them—or had they existed. Were our tariff wall four times as high as it now is, it could not affect the price of farm produce one iota so long as we produce a surplus for export. At the same time the tariff works very effectively to increase the price of everything the farmer has to buy and as a result the farmer finds himself in the difficult position of having to sell his products at the world's price and buy all his supplies on a protected market and at a price enhanced by the operations of the tariff. As a result of this situation there are fewer farmers in Old Ontario to-day than there were 30 or 40 years ago, and in every province of Canada the proportion of urban population is increasing. Farmers are coming to recognize the economic disabilities under which they labour and it will take more than Mr. Burnham's bogy of Oriental competition to bring farmers into the fold of the Protected Interests.

F. E. ELLIS.

THAT PECULIAR FIRE.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—I read with much interest the account of the fire at Auburn and its origin, from spontaneous combustion. I read it to my wife and she laughed and said: Why, I have taken my clean clothes off the line for fifty years. I sprinkled them and ironed them and piled them nicely away in the clean linen drawers, and I never saw any fire, after a few hours or after many hours, and it never occurred to me to enquire if the insurance was all right.

Surely, Mr. Editor, it is the dirty, old clothes filled with oil that one throws into some out-of-the-way corner and are forgotten that possibly may go off with spontaneous combustion—not sweet, clean and newly-ironed linen. Our fires are accounted for too often by "matches and mice," by "defective wiring," "cause unknown," etc., etc. Let there be a rigid investigation after every fire, the cause of which is not clearly known, and it will result in getting rid of this standing disgrace to Canada and America, that our fires are about four times as many as in Europe.

Yours, etc.,
CIVIS.

Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—I saw in last night's paper reference to the complaint of hotelkeepers that a combination of circumstances was forcing them out of business, and asking that the Council assist them by remittance of taxes, water and light rates. I do not see how the Council can use the citizens' money to assist private interests, and I do not think for a moment that they will consider doing so.

Let us consider the statement of hotelmen. Instance was given that the payroll was getting larger. There must be considerable work to do which should be self-supporting. What branch of the business does not pay? Is it the pool room, furnished room, or dining-room, or the bar? That is for the hotelmen to find out and discontinue the branch or branches that does not pay him. I know an instance of Waverley house of Spadina Ave., Toronto, which has never kept a bar, and you may take your room there or out, and they have made a success of their business; also the Brunswick hotel on Bloor street, who are also making it go in renting their rooms.

Again if the restaurants can make it go, what is the matter with the hotel dining room? Also if there is no money in keeping the bar open to sell 2 1-2 n.c., why not close it up? There is a good store space. Then again, why should the citizens help pay the room rent of the commercial travellers who are cumbering the ground? They confess themselves that they produce nothing, and they should either be in the army or on the land. As long as there is no government interference they will continue to draw their salaries and to promote the private interests of their employers who, if necessity arose, would appoint local representation.

Thanking you for your kind attention in your valuable space.

Fancy suit sleeves, such as splitting them horizontally above elbows and inserting vertical tabs giving a box-pleated effect, or crossing underarm sections over the upper as an envelope, embellishing the triangular inset formed thereby with silk braid are two ideas on misses' models.

The Algonquin Provincial (Ontario) Park is an unspoiled territory of nearly four thousand square miles, starred with hundreds of beautiful lakes and intersected by winding streams. No reserve that is easily accessible to the people of the eastern section of the North American Continent can excel it in wealth of attractions for the lover of the out-of-doors. Away up in the Highlands of Ontario, it has an average elevation of two thousand feet above the level of the sea. Its tonic air filters through hundreds of square miles of pine, balsam and spruce; the days are unusually long, with bright sunshine, while the cool evenings are a time of enchantment. The Park makes an especially strong appeal to the fisherman and the canoeist, but the accommodation is such that the most varied tastes can be pleased. The Park is two hundred miles north of Toronto and one hundred and seventy miles west of Ottawa.

BUSINESS MEN'S FIVE PIN LEAGUE

New Men Make Good at the Game

The Business Men's Five-Pin League at the Y.M.C.A. is going in fine shape. Great interest is being taken by the men, and a number of new men at the game have made surprisingly good scores. Last night the Vimys, captained by J. E. Smith, won two and lost one game against R. G. Dobbin's Sommes. The last game was very close, the Sommes winning by one pin. To-night E. Walton's Festuberts play against the Paschendaeles, captained by A. Stansfield. The players should be on hand at 7.30.

Annual Meeting of Women's Mission Circle Of Murray Street

Report of the Nominating Committee—Membership of the Circle

A MEMORIAL

The annual meeting of the Women's Mission Circle of the Murray street church was held yesterday afternoon in the ladies' parlour, with an unusually large attendance. Miss Annie Walton, 1st Vice-President, occupied the chair, and conducted the devotional exercises.

The reports were most encouraging, showing it to be the best year in connection with the Circle, in spite of the heavy demands made upon the ladies on account of the war.

Impressive Address.

A most impressive address was given by the pastor, Rev. J. R. Webb, urging a broader, deeper and fuller vision of the importance of missionary work at this time.

The report of the Nominating committee resulted as follows:

President—Miss Annie Walton.
1st Vice-Pres.—Mrs. Breyfogle.
2nd Vice-Pres.—Mrs. J. B. Mann.
Secretary—Mrs. W. D. Scott.
Treas. for Foreign Missions— Mrs. Stenton.
Treas. for Home Missions — Mrs. Somerville.
Treas. for Indian Fund—Mrs. White.

Secretary's Report.

In her report, the secretary, Mrs. (Dr.) Scott made a sympathetic reference to the late Mrs. Huston, formerly President of the Woman's Mission Circle, and paid a striking tribute to her memory. Miss Annie Walton, vice-president, has, since Mrs. Hunter's death, filled her place, acting as president for the balance of the year.

Membership of Circle.

The Circle has had eleven meetings during the past year, with an average attendance of thirty-four. The membership is one hundred and ten. There are sixty-five visitors and fifty-four "Links" taken by members of the Circle.

A Memorial.

In June a memorial to the life and work of Mrs. Hunter was given in the form of a Life Membership Certificate in the Foreign Mission Society by her daughter, Mrs. H. D. Robertson.

In conclusion a vote of thanks was offered to all who in any way had contributed to the success of the meetings, papers, convention reports and the programme furnished by the Young Ladies' Circle.

Popular Novelist Talks About the British Women And Their Power to Vote

NOW that the women of England virtually are assured of the vote, a discussion has arisen as to what they will do with it after the war.

Approval by Parliament of the new Franchise Bill, which before the war undoubtedly would have been the signal for a great feminine demonstration, elicited far less excitement than the average street queue which forms nowadays in front of a corner grocery shop.

While the mere mention of the introduction of such a measure formerly would have been flashed across the front pages of all the great English newspapers, its enactment into law now commands only passing notice, and its relative importance, to the other news of the day is so slight that the average reader might easily overlook it altogether.

"What does it all mean?" the hard-headed, one uncompromising Englishman is asking.

"It means," says Miss Marie Corelli, the novelist, "that woman work after the war will be very much on the straight and simple lines of nature—love, sweetness and home! That's all woman's work, which she is just now compelled to neglect—but only to cling to it more when the madness of the nations is past."

Americans who, before the war were wont to seek out the places of historic interest in Shakespeare's town, never failed to pause when they came upon the beautiful vine-covered house which Miss Corelli has occupied for some years.

Miss Corelli declares she has no fear for her sex.

"The wheel goes round always, you know, and in time stops at the same old place," asserts the novelist with emphatic assurance. "Grace, coquetry, pretty apparel, and all the dainty sweet things of womanliness will come back again — again another Dante will muse on another Beatrice, another Petrarch on another Laura! Again reverence for women and chivalry will adorn the strength of manhood—and slang and roughness be things of the past. I love my sex, and would have them all "creatures of beauty and joy forever!"

"But what of the vote?"

"I have seen a great deal of women's work in this war," says Miss Corelli, "and I am sure their metier is affection, devotion, tenderness, and that they hardly heed the polling booth to assert their claim to consideration. But the vote will give them a rightly won position in the affairs of the nation. Good and brave men will always pay them honor; they can do without the admixture of politics in their lives, still they may as well have it.

"I hope and believe the place women will occupy after the war will be the old sweet place nature intended her for—in the home nest, with love to guard and sanctify her existence. She will soon be tired of prancing around in trousers and working on the land. Women are privileged to change their minds, and about a year ago I changed mine from strong anti-suffrage to the other thing. In educational matters, women's votes and their influence are imperatively necessary."

A Long Sleep.

Rip Van Winkle's long nap has had several counterparts in real life, the most notable being the long-distance sleeping record established by Caroline Olsson, a Swedish woman, who fell into a trance forty-two years ago, on Dec. 24, 1875, and did not wake up until 1907. Physicians were unable to diagnose her case, which, after she had been asleep a year, was the subject of interested study by all the medical men of Europe. Caroline slept from girlhood to womanhood, being kept alive by the administration of two glasses of milk daily. Two or three times during her sleep of over thirty years she was aroused sufficiently to take a step or two, but always fell back unconscious and continued her sleep. In 1905 a gradual improvement in her condition was noted, and one day in 1907 she suddenly recovered complete consciousness. She was able to recall every detail of her youth, and showed no physical weakness or mental defects from her long sleep.

DR. SHIELDS SCORES REV. BEN SPENCE.

Brantford, April 2.—Rev. Dr. Shields, pastor of Jarvis street Baptist church, Toronto, in a lecture here to-night at Park Street Baptist Church, declared that Rev. Ben Spence had been guilty of unpardonable extravagance and baseless slander against the British people in his tirade against the liquor traffic in England. Dr. Shields, who spent months making a personal investigation of conditions in Canadian camp areas in England, said he would have refused the mail to the open letter of Rev. Ben Spence to Premier Lloyd George had he been postmaster general of Canada. It was up to the Canadian people who could not keep their own big cities entirely clean to mind their own houses. The camp area of Bramshott, with a military population of 20,000, had only 119 cases of drunkenness in 30 weeks.

EMPLOYEE OF WOOLLEN MILLS DROPPED DEAD

Morgan Whattley Was Just About to Commence Work When He Fell.

Morgan Whattley, an employee of the Auburn Woollen Mills, dropped dead this morning at 7 o'clock.

He had only entered the building, hung up his coat and hat, and was about to commence work, when without warning he fell over. The other employees who were in the room rushed to his assistance and called Dr. Harvey, but the man was beyond medical aid.

Deceased, who was 65 years of age, boarded at 339 London street, the home of Mr. George Dredge. He was born in England and for the past seven years had been employed with the Auburn Woollen Mills. His wife returned recently to England. His daughters are in Detroit.

COAL WILL BE SCARCE.

Fuel Controller Recommends That Municipality Secure as Much Wood as Possible.

The committee appointed by the Canadian Manufacturers' Association to investigate the fuel situation has made its report. The committee had a conference with the Fuel Controller, C. A. Magrath, and the latter has recommended that the Provincial and the municipal authorities should take steps to secure supplies of wood wherever possible. If the war continues, the United States may be unable to supply Canada with even as much coal as this season. If, therefore, large supplies of wood are secured consumers would be materially protected against a possible scarcity next winter. The commitetee are of the opinion that Mr. Magrath has handled the situation ably and diplomatically, and has had the full confidence of the United States authorities.

COOLER ON PRAIRIES.

Land Drying Up, But Too Cold for Seeding.

WINNIPEG, April 2.—The weather remains cold on the prairie, but precipitation has almost ceased at all points. There has been a slight snowfall in the last twenty-four hours in several districts of Alberta and Saskatchewan. Prospects are for dry, cool weather for a few days, favourable for drying up the ground, but too cold in some places to permit of the resumption of seeding operations.

At all points on the prairies there have been from ten to twenty degrees of frost in the last twenty-four hours. In the Edmonton and Lethbridge districts the temperature dropped to within a few degrees of zero.

GUELPH TAX RATE.

Patriotic Grant Will Total Nearly $38,000.

GUELPH, April 2.—At the meeting of the City Council to-night the report of the Finance Committee which recommended that the tax rate for the current year was fixed at 30 6-10 mills on the dollar was adopted. This rate is an increase of nearly a mill over that of last year, and is due entirely to the increased expenditure for school purposes. The estimates provide for a grant of $30,000 for the Red Cross and Patriotic Fund campaign, which will be held next week, which is the same grant as last year. The total grant for patriotic purposes will amount to nearly $38,000, and exactly four mills on the dollar. The financial statement for the year ending December 31, 1917, shows that there is a surplus of almost $18,000. The sum of $21,000 is set apart for repairs to the permanent pavements, which are in a deplorable condition. A special rate of a little over one mill is being levied to cover the collection of garbage from the present garbage area. The Council appointed a special committee to arrange for a suitable reception to the returned soldiers and their families.

MARTIN REMAINS MONTREAL'S MAYOR

Majority of 7,270 Votes Over Jos. Ainey Yesterday

MONTREAL, April 2.—Mayor Mederic Martin was re-elected to-day in the municipal elections for Montreal over Joseph Ainey, member of the now defunct Board of Control, by a majority of 7,270. The total vote was: Martin, 42,857; Ainey, 35,537.

Commission Government the Issue.

Martin in this election made his fight against Sir Lomer Gouin on the issue of a commission form of government for the city. In doing this Martin broke with the Provincial wing of the Liberal party, and was elected because the French-speaking electors got it in their heads that the commission form of government was inspired by the English. This, together with the fact that the English vote was almost solid for Ainey, worked to Martin's advantage.

Since the retirement of the late L. Israel Tarte, Martin represented St. Mary's, Montreal division, in the House of Commons, until the recent dissolution.

In to-day's contest the English vote was somewhat apathetic, it being noticeable that in wards where there were English-speaking aldermanic candidates, many voters refrained from casting a ballot for either Mayoralty aspirant.

This will be Mayor Martin's third term as Chief Magistrate of Montreal. His opponent, Mr. Ainey, like himself, is a French-Canadian, and has been a Controller eight years, having been regarded as the representative of Labour on the Board of Control.

With the incoming City Council will be a Commission, named by Sir Lomer Gouin's Government, instead of the Board of Control.

Among the new Aldermen is Hon. Charles Marcil, ex-Speaker of the House of Commons, who was elected to-day as representative of Notre Dame de Grace Ward.

WEDDING BELLS

KINNEAR—FLETT.

In Fenelon Falls to-day the wedding was soleminized of Margaret, daughter of Mrs. James Flett, and John Philip Kinnear, staff sergt., No. 2, C.A.F.C.

KING—SINGLETON.

Quietly last night at 7.30 o'clock at the George Street Methodist Parsonage the wedding was solemnized of John King and Mrs. Sarah Ann Singleton. Rev. Mr. Thomas performed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. King will reside for the present at 180½ Stewart street.

OBITUARY

JOHN BRADEN.

After a lengthy illness which culminated in a paralytic stroke last Tuesday, Mr. John Braden died last night in the home of his son-in-law, Mr. J. F. Turnbull, 115 Rainsford Road. For many years prior to his coming to Toronto he was a teacher in Peterborough and finally Principal of one of the Public Schools. He also was connected with the Toronto Savings & Loan Company, and afterwards went into business in the city. Since moving to Toronto he has been connected with the Manufacturers Life Insurance Co., in which line of business he has been very successful.

He has resided in Toronto for the past 27 years, with the exception of short residence in Guelph and Woodstock. He was in his 76th year, and is survived by the widow, one daughter, Mrs. J. F. Turnbull, and two sons, Fred C. of Detroit, and W. W. of Toronto. He was a member of the C.O.O.F. and a Methodist.

In addition to relatives in Toronto he leaves a brother in Peterborough, Mr. William Braden, Maitland Ave., and a sister, Mrs. Carter, who resides with him; also another brother, Mr. Edward Braden of Keene.

The funeral will take place on Friday from Comstock's undertaking rooms.

WINDSOR WILL BUY A BIG STOCK OF COAL

WINDSOR, April 2 — Citizens of Windsor will not suffer from coal shortage next winter if the aldermen can avoid it. To-night the City Council by a resolution authorized the expenditure of $50,000 to stock up a municipal coal and wood yard. Hard coal will be bought by the boat load and brought here at a cost of $8 per ton and sold to consumers at an advance of perhaps 25 cents a ton. The present retail price is $10 and very little to be had at that price.

Cannot Blot Out German Says Prof. MacGillivray

Must Retain Knowledge of Foe Language in Order to Compete in Art, Literature, and Other Fields of World-wide Effort—O. E. A. Discuss Big Education Problems

TORONTO, April 4.—Discussing the question of the abolition of the teaching of the German language in Ontario schools before the Ontario Educational Association yesterday, Prof. MacGillivray declared that a knowledge of the German tongue was necessary in order to allow Anglo-Saxons to compete successfully in the field of art, literature and other branches of learning.

Speaking to the Household Science section, Inspector J. B. Dandeno touched on the connection of agriculture and household science.

"A knowledge of both agriculture and household science should be required in a teacher of either subject. At present the time requirements for the regular book subjects make such a great demand upon both teachers' and pupils' time that it appears, but only appears, to be impossible to introduce these two practical subjects. A readjustment of time, both in High schools and Public schools, would make an improvement."

WOMEN TEACHERS ORGANIZE

To promote the professional and financial status of women teachers, the conference of organized women teachers' associations formed a confederation of Organized Teachers' Associations of Ontario.

Miss Johnson of London, was unanimously appointed president, and Miss Atkins of St. Thomas as secretary-treasurer.

"The question of why are women with the same training and qualifications relegated to the less remunerative positions,' is one which touches not only our own profession," said Miss Atkins, "but one which deals with woman's whole economic life. Woman has passed through various stages in the world of industry, beginning with when she was first granted the right to enter in the field with men, until now we have reached the stage when we can claim equal pay for equal work. We have yet to educate opponents to this view."

TEACH TO SPEAK AS WELL AS READ

Pupils at schools where the teaching of foreign languages is concerned chiefly at conversation are not able to keep up with the study of grammar, and this lack of grammar handicaps the students at examinations, said W. C. Ferguson in the modern language section, speaking on "New Methods of Modern Language Teaching." Mr. Ferguson believed that the need of speaking French and other foreign languages would be greater in future than in the past.

CANADA CAN'T BAR GERMAN

"If the war could be won, or in any way the conclusion hastened, by the abolition of the German language, no one would hesitate to immediately abolish it," said Prof. J. MacGillivray, in addressing the modern language section.

"But how could this act assist us? Our knowledge of the German tongue is limited, further curtailment would be detrimental. Much of the German efficiency is due to their linguistic achievements. if we abolished the language of our rivals it would be similar to the ostrich action of sticking our heads in the sand."

"No matter how decisive the blow that we expect" continued Prof. MacGillivray, "we can not blot out the language of the eighty million German speaking peoples of Germany, German Austria and Switzerland, nor their characteristics in art, literature and science. We must still compete in those, and a knowledge of their language is essential. The German literature is a world literature of inexhaustible thought, which no translation can ever reprpduce. If the blow be not decisive, then we must set our house in order to suit the circumstances, and a further knowledge of the language will be necessary. Prof. MacGillivray further gave a brief and interesting account of the history of the literature of Switzerland, stressing Keller and Meyer as the two most outstanding figures."

OPERATION FOR APPENDICITIS.

Mrs. J. A. Ballantyne, Sturgeon Falls, Ont., writes: "My husband was treated for appendicitis and the doctors ordered an operation. But he would not consent to an operation and began the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Since doing so he has had no need of an operation or even of a doctor as the trouble has completely left him. I cannot find words to speak our gratitude for his cure."

Wheat Price Fixed By The Grain Board

Board Declines to Fix the Price of Flour

WINNIPEG, April 14.— A guaranteed minimum price of $2 a bushel for the 1918 wheat crop, recommended by George Fisher, representing the Winnipeg Grain Exchange, was approved by the Board of Canada Grain Supervisors. Considerable discussion arose over the recommendation of private elevator companies that grain supervisors ask for power to control flour prices. Dr. Robt. Magill, chairman, opposed it as being too drastic a move. Country elevator owners, however, insisted it should be done, as the Board that fixes the price of wheat should fix the prices of flour. The idea was not adopted.

CURRIE WILL FORCE DEBATE ON QUEBEC

Will Move Adjournment To-day Contrary to Borden's Wishes

OTTAWA, Ont., April 4. —Despite efforts made in the Government caucus yesterday to obviate a discussion of the Quebec situation, Col. John Currie will move the adjournment of the House for that purpose this afternoon.

Having made his statement, and having declared his intention regarding the enforcement of the Act, Sir Robert Borden, it is stated, did not desire that there shall be any lengthy debate in the House on the Quebec incidents, especially as the situation now appears to be pretty well in hand. It is believed that in caucus yesterday he impressed upon his followers the desirability of preventing, so far as possible any controversial discussion.

That the discussion will not only hinge round the Quebec situation, but will deal with the entire enforcement and results of the Act since its inception, it is undoubted. Many men on the Government side are not satisfied, in view of Premier Lloyd George's recent appeal for men, with the number so far netted under the Canadian Military Service Act. The Ottawa Journal, which is the Government's chief newspaper supporter at the capital, has been voicing that discontent for some time past, and declares that thirty thousand men are not sufficient results. The calling out of Category B will not satisfy, because Category B are not trench men, and the Act was designed and approved of by the people for the sole and only purpose of securing fighters.

It may be said with safety that the consensus of opinion at the caucus today was in favour of strict and impartial enforcement of the Act.

CATTLE MARKET

Union Stock Yards —Receipts 89 cars, with 1,232 cattle, 480 calves, 1,998 hogs, and 41 sheep and lambs.

Trade was good for heavy steers and choice butcher cattle. Prices in these classes were good and firm at the top for this week. For medium light butcher there was a decided falling off in the demand, and a number of loads in this class were extremely difficult to cash. Cows and bulls firm. Calves firm and strong.

Sheep and lambs steady.

Hogs were easier, packers quoting 50 cents lower at $20.50 fed and watered. Some were sold at that price and a few at $21.

BEAUTY SPECIALIST TELLS SECRET

A Beauty Specialist Gives Simple Home Made Recipe to Darken Gray Hair.

Mrs. M. D. Gillespie, a well known beauty specialist of Kansas City, recently gave out the following statement regarding gray hair:

"Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home, at very little cost, that will darken gray hair, and make it soft and glossy. To a half pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Orlex Compound and 1-4 ounce of glycerine. These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost, or the druggist will put it up for you. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray haired person look twenty years younger. It does not colour the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off."

The Woman Who Changed

Final Preparations For The Dinner

CHAPTER XXXII.

"We'll dispense with any suggestions, Helen," George said as he, Mrs. Sexton and myself were seated in the breakfast room discussing the final arrangements for the dinner.

I felt so small ,so squelched. Why had he told me to remain with them, if I was to be so embarrassed because of his treatment of me? My cheeks flushed, I half rose from my chair, but a look from him made me sink quietly back. I knew that Mrs. Sexton had seen and understood, and I clenched my hands in my lap, until the nails fairly dug into my flesh; to keep back the tears of anger and mortification.

With brooding envy of Mrs. Sexton's calm unruffled manner, and a growing feeling of being "out of it," out of everything that usually devolves upon the mistress of a home, I sat through that discussion.

When at last George rose to indicate it was over, they—George and Mrs. Sexton—had decided everything connected with the coming dinner, even to the smallest detail.

"You are very fortunate to have such a husband, Mrs. Howard. Not many men would so interest themselves to have your first dinner party a success."

A RUDE SPEECH.

"You mean his and your dinner party!" I returned angrily.

"It is supposedly yours," she answered calmly, "you will get the credit for it, and you should be very grateful, instead of acting like a silly child."

"I am not a child! and I won't be called one!" I snapped, and rushed from the room.

I was immediately frightened and sorry that I had lost my temper. She would be sure to tell George, and I should be made to suffer. I ran quickly to the window as I heard the honk-honk of the car. I hoped George had gone. Yes, he was getting into the car, and I turned from the window with a sigh of relief. At least she couldn't tell him right away.

I brushed my hair where I had rumpled it, leaning against the curtain to watch George, then slowly went back into the breakfast-room, where Mrs. Sexton and Bridget were holding a sort of conference. James, the butler, also joined them after a moment.

Mary looked her sympathy, and several times, as Mrs. Sexton gave her orders (absolutely ignoring me), I thought Mary would surely break out into open rebellion. Once I caught her eyes and signalled her to be good. After that she set her lips in a straight line, and I knew that she would keep still for my sake.

James seemed a little puzzled, and frequently when Mrs. Sexton said something to him about the serving, he would look at me as though waiting for me to speak. Finally she noticed it and said sharply:

"You are to take your orders from me, James; Mrs. Howard will tell you so." She looked at me sternly.

"Yes, James, you are to take your orders from Mrs. Sexton. She is to all intents and purposes the mistress of this house. I am mistress only in name." Then before she could voice her anger at my speech, I burst into a very spasm of tears and rushed from the room.

What did I care that the servants saw that I resented that woman's authority? It was better than to let them think I had calmly consented to be so put upon. I threw myself across the bed and hushed my sobs by lying upon my face. I had not thought to lock the door, and in a moment I heard Mrs. Sexton's cold cutting voice.

"I knocked but evidently you did not hear. I want you to come downstairs and apologize to me before your servants." As I made no move to rise, she went on, "Unless you do, I shall leave this house at once and go to Mr. Howard. And I never shall come into it again while you are here," then she left the room.

What should I do? Although I now know it was foolish, I was at that time more than a little afraid of George. If only the old dinner were over. I felt that I would rather die than go downstairs and apologize to that woman; but I had heard George request her to do several things that morning, to see the florist, to attend to the place cards, and the table decorations. He would be furious if I made it so that she would not do what he wanted.

I felt that almost anything was preferable to facing his anger; so I wiped my eyes and crawled slowly back to the breakfast-room. Mary looked as if she, too, wanted to cry, and even on James' immobile face I detected a glint of sympathy. It made it easier for me to say:

"I am sorry I spoke so hastily, Mrs. Sexton. James and Bridget please both of you do as Mrs. Sexton asks for this dinner." I purposely accented the 'this' to convey the idea that it would be the only time. I had determined that it should—that, rather than submit to her taking my place again, I would go home.

To-morrow—At Last the Dinner.

IF KIDNEYS AND BLADDER BOTHER

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys and Neutralize Irritating Acids

Kidney and Bladder weakness result from uric acid, says a noted authority. The kidneys filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it often remains to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread, the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in avoiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it, because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying, and sometimes very painful, this is really one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, continue this for two or three days. This will neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs which then act normally again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by uric acid irritation. Jad Salts is splendid for kidneys and causes no bad effects whatever.

Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink, which quickly relieves bladder trouble.

LIVER TROUBLE and HEARTBURN

CURED BY

MILLBURN'S LAXA-LIVER PILLS

When the liver is torpid and inflamed it cannot furnish bile to the bowels, causing them to become bound and costive. The symptoms are a feeling of fullness or weight in the right side, and shooting pains in the same region, pains between the shoulders, yellowness of the skin and eyes, floating specks before the eyes, coated tongue, bad taste in the morning, heartburn, water brash, etc.

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills gently unlock the secretions, clear away all effete and waste matter from the system, and give tone and vitality to the whole intestinal track, and are by far the safest and quickest remedy for all diseases or disorders of the liver.

'Mrs. A. Cummings, Manchester, Ont., writes: "I have used Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills some time, and can faithfully recommend them to anyone suffering from heartburn and liver trouble. I tried a great many other remedies but they only relieved me for a time. I believe Laxa-Liver Pills to be a valuable remedy for all sufferers from liver troubles."

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are 25c a vial at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

STOP HEADACHES BEFOREHAND

You never had a headache when you were well.

To keep well is to keep clean, inside.

To relieve headache, and to prevent it, keep the liver active and industrious and the bowels as regular as a clock.

Two generations of healthy, vigorous people have done this by taking one pill at bedtime, regularly—a larger dose when nature gives the warning.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A Belgian Escape

By ALAN HINSDALE

John De Roode was a Belgian who had been taken to Germany to work here. He had been separated from his family whom he dearly loved and his sole object was to get back to them. This could only be done by an escape followed by a journey over several hundred miles through German territory.

De Roode was at work as an engineer in a machine shop making war materials for the German army. Around the plant was a guard of soldiers, and in the building were persons whose especial duty it was to watch those who were at work, for among the German workmen were scattered a number of Belgians.

De Roode finally hit upon a plan for getting out of the building. As to escaping the outside guard he could say no plan, for he could not foresee what he would have to meet when he had left the factory.

The first part of De Roode's plan was to gain as far as possible the confidence of his guards. But in this he was unsuccessful. No guard was allowed to act on any confidence he might have in a foreign workman being satisfied with his enforced captivity. The second part of his plan was but little less difficult. It was this:

Connected with De Roode's engine was a broad leather belt which transmitted the power to the gearing attached to the ceiling. This belt passed within a few feet of a window located about seven-eighths of the distance between the engine and the gearing. De Roode aimed to jump on the belt and ride to the window. To do this while the belt was in motion would likely result in his being dashed against the ceiling. He must make the jump when the belt was about to stop.

Beneath the window some four or five feet was an addition to the building. If De Roode could reach the roof of this addition he could drop from there some twelve or fourteen feet to the ground. The wall he could scale, for it was of no great height. Besides there were several openings in it. But this part of his plan was conjectural.

At a certain hour in the evening work was discontinued in the factory for a few minutes while the night shift took the place of the day shift. At this time De Roode was expected to stop his engine and see that it was in good condition for his successor, who started it up again. De Roode conceived his plan in the summer but was obliged to wait for a time when the change in shift would be made in darkness; for he preferred to attempt to try to pass out of the grounds by dodging the guards rather than to take the risk of getting through under some pretense.

De Roode could only execute his plan when there was no one in the engine room except himself. For this he was obliged to wait for weeks, for besides an assistant engineer there were other workmen in the engine room which was a part of a space containing machinery. During this period of waiting he was noting just how long it took a given point in the belt to go from the lower turning point to the window after the power was turned off. This he determined after careful experiments.

One night when the change of shift was made he looked about and saw the last man in the room in which his engine stood pass out. De Roode must make his jump before the first man of the night shift entered, and that was liable to be any moment. He turned off the power and stood waiting for the belt to slow down to a point where it would seem feasible for him to make the jump. Just as he was about to do so a man entered the other end of the long room containing the machinery. De Roode hesitated, then seeing that the man went to his machine and stood with his back to the engine, he sprang to the belt, caught each edge with a hand, rode to the window, jumped for it and in another moment was on the roof of the addition to the building.

The sun sets very early in Germany in winter and it was now long after dark. De Roode waited till his eyes were accustomed to the darkness then moved cautiously to the edge of the roof, and dropped to the ground alighting with no more sound than would have been made by a cat. He listened, and heard a sentry coming toward him. De Roode thought that his effort had been for nothing. He crouched against the wall of the building his heart beating as it had beaten when he had jumped on the belt. The sentry came within ten paces of him, turned, and while he was walking away De Roode was climbing the wall that surrounded the building. Once over he ran like a deer till he had put the factory far behind him.

An account of De Roode's travels through Germany, hiding by day, traveling by night, the stars his only guide, till he reached Switzerland, would make a story of far greater length than his escape from the munition factory.

From Switzerland he found an easy entrance into France where he sent for his family to come to him. There was one of those joyful reunions which, alas, are not as frequent as the partings in this terrible war. After that De Roode found his place in the Belgian army.

An International Poet.

The following story which is going the rounds of the continental papers, including even those of Austria, must make the Germans mash their teeth: A German and a Dane met recently in Schiller's house in Weimar. As they stood gazing reverently on the scene the German, swelling with pride, remarked to his fellow-visitor: "So this is where our national poet, Schiller, lived." "Pardon me," said the other; "not national, but international." "How so?" asked the German, with surprise. "Why, consider his works," the Dane replied. "He wrote 'Mary Stuart' for the English, 'The Maid of Orleans' for the French, 'Egmont' for the Dutch, 'William Tell' for the Swiss——" "And what did he write for the Germans, pray?" broke in the other. Pat came the Dane's answer, "For the Germans he wrote 'The Robbers'."

Sometimes It Can't Be Done.

"Early to bed and early to rise' is a good old motto."

"Well," replied Grannie Rilem, gloomily, "This daylight saving's all right, of corse. But out our way somebody's simply got to stay up all night to tend the furnace."

Severe Pains In The Back

Told of Kidney Trouble—Was Unable to Work, But Finally Found a Cure by Using This Well-Known Medicine

Gananoque, Ont., March 13—There is plenty of enthusiasm in this town for Dr. Chase's Medicines, and many people ready with good reports of cures effected.

There seems to be no treatment for kidney derangements which proves effective in such a large proportion of cases as does Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. This is because the liver and bowels are usually involved as well as the kidneys, and this medicine overcomes the disease because it acts directly on these organs.

Mrs. W. Higgins, John St., Gananoque, Ont., writes: "My husband has made use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for the last thirteen years. Previous to that he had several attacks of kidney trouble, accompanied by severe pains in his back. He became so bad that he was unable to work. Finally he started using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and the results were splendid. He quite recovered, and by using an occasional Kidney-Liver Pill he wards off recurrent attacks, and has never had any trouble since. We also use Dr. Chase's Ointment in our home and find it an excellent salve."

Mrs. James Bishop, Stone St. N., Gananoque, Ont., writes: "We have used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills in our home for some time, and find them an excellent remedy for pains in the back. They seem to help the stomach and kidneys to do their work more effectively. We are pleased to recommend them to others."

ADDRESS AND PRESENTATION

Hastings News of Interest

HASTINGS, April 3. —The Ladies' Aid of the Methodist church met on Wednesday last at the home of Mrs. W. Warner, when Mrs. Geo. Hormel was presented with a fine copy of the new Methodist hymn book and the following address:

Dear Mrs. Hormel,—It was with feelings of deep regret we learned of your intended removal from our town and church. We as members of the Ladies' Aid we are sorry tha we are come to the parting of the way. What there may be in the future, none can tell, but we hope yours may be bright and prosperous. We will miss you from our Ladies' Aid monthly meetings, from our social gatherings, and from our regular church services. You have always been faithful in attendance and a loyal member and supporter of all that pertained to the church. We know that your place will be hard to fill, but what will be our loss will be some one else's gain, for we feel certain that the habits of a lifetime will not change with new environments, and if, in the good providence of God, you should return to our town to live, we will welcome you back to our church and Aid with great pleasure. We would ask you to accept this hymn book as a slight token of appreciation, and as you use it recall pleasant memories of your friends in Hastings. Signed on behalf of the Ladies Aid.

Mrs. Jas. Buck, Pres. Mrs. Doxsee, Sec'y.

At the same meeting Mrs. Hormel was also the recipient of an address from the W.M.S., of which she was the treasurer:

Dear Mrs. Hormel,—The members of the W.M.S., having learned with deep regret of your intended removal from our midst, desire to convey to you their deep appreciation of the faithful services you have rendered to the society in any and every capacity to which you were chosen. We believe that your services were always rendered willingly and freely, not merely from a sense of duty, but from a heart felt desire to "spend and be spent in His service," and the memory of such service shall linger with us like the alabaster box of ointment, and we believe the blessed Master looking on, is whispering to us in His tenderest tones, "She hath done what she could." Would that your example might emulate each one of us to nobler effort in the missionary cause, the work for which the blessed Saviour gave His life and to His followers gave the commission, "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature." We feel that you will be greatly missed in our monthly gatherings, and our prayer is that wherever you go you may be a power for good, and when you are called to give an account of your stewardship, may you have many sheaves to lay at the Master's feet, the earnest of your faithful sowing. For—

"We cannot expect to be reapers,
And gather the bright, gold ears,
Unless we have first been sowers,
And watered the furrows with tears."

Personals.

Mr. Alex. Wilson was called to Havelock on Thursday to visit his brother-in-law, who was seriously ill from blood poisoning, but he had passed away a short time before his arrival.

Dr. Hess and Mr. Jas. Moore took a trip to Toronto on Monday.

Had Bronchitis FOR THREE YEARS COULD GET NO RELIEF

Bronchitis is generally the result of a cold caused by exposure to wet and inclement weather. It begins with a tightness across the chest, difficulty in breathing, and a wheezing sound comes from the lungs. There is also a raising of phlegm from the lungs, especially in the morning. This is at first white, but later becomes of a greenish or yellowish color, and is occasionally streaked with blood.

On the first sign of bronchitis you should check it immediately by using Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and thereby prevent it becoming chronic and perhaps turning into some more serious lung trouble.

Mr. Theodore P. Beers, Upper Main River, N.B., writes: "I was troubled with bronchitis for three years, and could get no relief. I was always worse when I got wet. I tried lots of different medicines, but none did me any good until a friend told me to try Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. I got three bottles and before I had them half used I was better.

"My mother is now using it for asthma. It is a great medicine and we never want to be without it."

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price 25c. and 50c.; manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

THE EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

The Patterns Are Guaranteed to Give Excellent Satisfaction

LADY'S TWO GORED GATHERED SKIRT

You may use a soft silk such as taffeta or satin and rest assured that you will have a very stylish and becoming skirt if you use pattern No. 8737. The skirt has two gores, but it has a straight lower edge. There is a deep inverted plait at each side and the skirt is gathered all around to the slightly raised waistline. If the skirt is to be a tailored model for general wear, the wide belt and pockets will add a smart touch. Bordered materials and flouncings are to be worn a great deal this season, and this number is just the thing for the purpose.

The lady's two gored gathered skirt pattern No. 8737 is cut in four sizes—24 to 30 inches waist measure. Width at lower edge of skirt is 2 yards. The 26 inch size requires 2¾ yards 36 inch, 2½ yards 44 inch or 54 inch material and 6 yards of braid.

This Pattern Can Be Obtained From the Examiner Office on Payment of 15 Cents.

ENGLAND NEARLY POISONED.

Inspectors Discovered Arsenic In Baking Powder Just In Time.

It seems, says the London Daily Chronicle, that but for the vigilance of the public food inspectors we might all have been poisoned.

For over a year ago—in September, 1916 — the alarming discovery was made that baking powder which was being sold to the public contained arsenic.

A Local Government Board report tells the story. When the Government laboratory came to analyze a sample of baking powder sent with a tender for War Office supplies, it was found to contain 32 parts of arsenic per million. The Food and Drug Act authorities were at once set to work, and the poison was found in samples taken in a large number of districts. In about 50 cases the amounts reported were clearly excessive, reaching as much as 400 parts of arsenic per million, while one contained 643 parts.

How it got there was soon discovered. In every case the arsenic proved to be contained in the cream of tartar substitute used in making baking powder. At least half a dozen chemical works had been supplying this contaminated ingredient, and the trouble was mostly due to serious disarrangements in the supply of raw material.

English Flax.

How strangely ancient and modern meet in the formation of a new Government department for the production of English flax, says the London Daily Mail. We find manufactured flax fibres in the lake dwellings of Switzerland; we find it in the tombs of Egyptian greatness, where it wrapped the mummies of kings and queens whose life stories we know. From it we fashion linen and cambric as well as sails for boats, and dainty lace to deck a ruthless "flapper." But the new department is to raise 10,000 acres of flax largely for aeroplanes. That seems much, but our pre-war imports represented the yield of 500,000 acres, and three parts of it came from now isolated Russia.

MUSIC IN THE HOME

FROM RAGS TO SYMPHONIES.

To provide music for the people is an obligation of the civic authorities. Writing to a Sheffield paper Dr. Coward, well known in Canada as the conductor of the Sheffield Chorus, says: "We should have a new concert hall. The problem is how to raise one. Of course the town should build it; but in the face of the prospective rates the City Fathers will confer, demur, and defer any action, whilst the music of the city languishes for want of proper support." That the matter is not the desire of the home folks entirely is shown by an added comment that when the young men return from "Glory Fields" a great deal more will be heard about the question.

Sometimes a musical composition's title is not appropriate because it suggests something to the imagination that is really not aroused by the music itself. Such is not the case with "Indian Lament," by Dvorak. The title is well chosen. This Lament has been said to be truly the outpouring of a heart heavy with grief that is past mending. With this in mind, one hears the piece with a new enjoyment

"I think I had the distinction of being the sickest man on board," said Emil Sauer of his first voyage to America. Speaking of other pianists, Sauer said about Paderewski "his long curly blond locks and a kind of melancholy atmosphere that he always surrounded himself with were just what the hero worshippers were looking for. It meant dollars to Paderewski. On the other hand look at Josef Hofmann, to my mind the greatest pianist in the world today, but one who lacks sympathetic personality. It is much harder for the public to see the real artist under a short cropped head of hair."

A Belgian tenor once sang in French opera in Boston. He was a poor soloist, and one of the critics was moved to say of him that he baahed like a lamb. The tenor and his friends were up in arms at once. Should they accept this insult and say nothing? Mon dieu! Mais non! Jamais de la vie! A letter was despatched to the newspaper critic. The next day the paper duly apologized in prominent type by saying "Mr. Blank says he is not a lamb."

An English gentleman raises the question—cannot something be done to avert the steady decline of sight reading in the average church choirs? He says most choir members seem to have a shock if they have to sing any new tune at sight.

THE ACCOMPANIST'S ART.

There are treatises on the art of accompaniment. We should like to see a history of the art, how it has developed, until now the accompanist of an accomplished singer must be an equally if not more accomplished pianist. Is the art taught thoroughly in any music school Is it taught at all in some? It should be, and the examining board should be made up of singers. There was a time when a young man or woman despairing of becoming a virtuoso would say: "I play well enough to accompany"; that is, when he did not prefer to become a church organist.

FOUNDATION STUDY VITAL.

All teachers other than music teachers to be accredited as worthy and accepted as competent, must have come through some process of "higher education," or normal work; but any child able to drum out a "tune or two" on a pianoforte is by thousands of parents thought to be a "good enough" teacher for their children's pianoforte study, especially in the first stages; and this unwarranted idea leads to the delay or absolute forbidding of the child's development in true pianoforte playing. The thought that the first lessons are of minor importance is entirely wrong, for, on the contrary, the foundation lessons are of the most vital importance, and as a mere matter of economy the "first teacher" should be the "very best" obtainable, for at this stage of the student's work the future prospects are in the majority of cases, positively settled. It is a safe statement to make that ninety per cent. of the young men and women who study singing, never learn the rudiments of their art, and therefore never "amount to anything" in the music field.

VIRTUES OF THE PIANOLA.

It was at a meeting of an English body, the Musical Association, that the virtues of the pianola were shouted; the pianist can learn a piece easily when the pianola shows how it should sound; conductors and concert pianists can experiment in tempi; children with musical instinct will have the greater ambition; the critic will find it a saver of time, "whenever he has to write with apparent knowledge of a composer's whole works; the amateur concert goer can prepare himself so that he will dilate with the proper emotion and not be caught unawares. A reviewer said that this argument for the use of the pianola might have been added; it supplies "an antidote to fatal facility of the piano, making it not worth while for anyone to play that badly, and a corrective to the slips and distortions of an age that plays everything by heart."

But he also said: "The fallacy is that you can "get" music by hearing it without making it. The pianolist might protest that he makes it too but, by his leave, all that he "makes" is variations of pace and strength The pianola short-cut ignores two elements essential to all things really worth having. The first that happiness comes only incidentally. Expressive playing of the piano, which is a symbole of that happiness, does not even exist if the difficulty of performance and the risk of breaking down are not faced. The second, that a man does not value a thing for which he has not paid the price."

THE TEACHING PROFESSION.

We hear less and less frequently two questions that teachers of voice expected to be confronted with and much dreaded, one because it should not be asked, and the other because it could not often be answered. These questions were: Is my voice worth cultivating? and, Will I get my money back? They were sufficiently indicative of the public's conceptions, or non-conception of the proper place of singing in the social fabric to cause much discouragement. For those who asked them would never think of asking if a piano were worth playing upon or if they could get their money back after such and such an amount of study.

To send children to college or to a finishing school, to have them taught to dance, to paint or to ride—all these were considered worth expenditure, and sacrifice, in the name of education. Singing long waited recognition as a form of education; that is to say, a branch of learning to be looked upon because it was good and to be pursued for its own sake, and secondarily, for its effect on the individual. Of vocal study it was asked not that it produce a better and more social man or woman, not that it add to the store of human wisdom, but just that it pay. We may fitly honour the men who kept the lamp trimmed in earlier days.

Of course, in a young country, inhabited by a people not particularly musical, a rudimentary theory and practice of the entire field of music was to be expected. But some branches made more progress than others. We know that the community had reached the Chopin stage as regards instrumental music, while appreciation of voice was straggling along in the hymn tune or comic song stage And the public asked the questions that such a public would ask.

The cause of this uneven development seems to be that the voice is an instrument, but one whose very perfection as a medium for communicating emotion forbade its recognition as such. Since it was a natural instrument and all could sing a little, excellence was thought to reside in the organ itself and only the exceptional voice was thought fit for cultivation.

That these erroneous notions have been so largely dispelled must be due to the teachers themselves. It is probably safe to say that the singing teachers are united in regarding the voice as an instrument, to be skilfully played upon. They teach it through musical means, rely less and less on anatomical explanations or traditional exercises blindly used, and for the most part they are men and women who have spent time and money without stint upon their own voices.

They reach legitimately a legitimate branch of music and do not encourage extravagant hopes.

MUSIC AS RECREATION

Recreation is essential for the health and well-being of the family, and music is essential for a recreation that is totally relaxing and instructive.

Are you doing without music in the home because no one plays? In these days of marvelous inventions, that is no excuse for the lack of music.

There are people who have been wise enough to purchase player-pianos, organs and phonographs, slightly used, therefore cheaper, by securing them through Heintzman Hall, Peterborough, Royal Bank Buildings, Hunter Street.—H. B. Britton, Manager. 'Phone 258

FINDS PRUSSIC ACID IN SOUTHERN BEANS

Mr. A. McGill, Dominion Analyst, has advised the Government to exercise care in connection with the importation of beans grown in warm climates, because of the dangerous'y large amount of prussic acid they contain. His recommendation, which has been acted upon, forbids the delivery of any beans found to yield more than twenty parts of prussic acid per one hundred thousand.

Of 532 samples of beans recently examined, 240 samples contained no prussic acid, and all other samples, a small quantity. Only nineteen samples, however, contained more than twenty parts of prussic acid per 100,000. A number of cases of illness have resulted from the use of beans containing prussic acid.

"These beans," says the report, "are mainly entered at the west seaboard, and are finding their way eastwards, already practically monopolizing the markets as far east as Manitoba."

WOULDN'T CUT HIS HAIR TILL HUNS WON WAR

SULPHUR, Okla., April 4—Because the Rev. A. J. Capers, 72 years old, is alleged to have declared he would never have his hair cut until Germany emerged victorious from the war, sixty young men awaiting draft call invaded Capers' room in a hotel here, where he was asleep, and shaved his head.

His iron grey locks were distributed as trophies of war.

The minister was forced to kiss the flag, pledge allegiance to the United States, promise not to speak seditiously, and was shown the shortest route out of town.

GERMAN SPIES SPOIL GAS MASKS INTENDED FOR AMERICAN TROOPS

WASHINGTON, April 4.—Charges that German spies are interfering withgas masks intended for use in France were made in the Senate today by Senator Thomas of Colorado, who declared that in one factory 2,900 out of 5,000 masks were found defective. Even after the defective ones had been discarded a number later wer found packed with those that had passed inspection, he said.

Senator Thomas declared the masks had been damaged by small perforations and asserted that the work was done by persons in the factory. He said this is only a sample of the work that is being done by German agents in this country.

Declaring that union labour is responsible for the Kansas City labour trouble, Senator Reed of Missouri said it would "be a very dark day for organ labour" if it interfered with war industry.

The Congestion From a Bad Cold Loosened Up In One Hour

Nerviline Rubbed On At Night —You're Well Next Morning

NERVILINE NEVER FAILS

When that cold comes, how is it to be cured?

This method is simplicity itself; rub the chest and throat vigorously with "Nerviline," rub it in good and deep; lots of rubbing can't do any harm. Then put some Nerviline in the water and use it as a gargle; this will ease the cough, cut out the phlegm, assist in breaking up the cold quickly. There is no telling how quickly Nerviline breaks up a hard racking cough, eases a tight chest, relieves a pleuritic pain. Why, there isn't any liniment with half the power, the penetrative qualities, the honest merit that has made Nerviline the most popular American household liniment.

A large 25c. bottle of Nerviline cures ills of the whole family, and makes the doctor's bill small. Get it to-day. Sold by all dealers everywhere, or direct from The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Canada.

DRAFTEE DEMANDED INCREASE IN PAY

A story is vouched for by an officer of a Toronto battalion concerning a draftee of about two weeks' standing. He got paraded to his company commander on private business. On arrival there he was asked what he wanted, and started in:

"Say, I've been here some time now."

"Two weeks," said the major.

"Well, I know my job better, don't I."

The major agreed.

"But I'm getting the same money as when I was green. How about an extra fifty cents per?"

After the major recovered he stated that there wasn't the faintest possibility of such a thing, it was unheard of.

"Well, then," said the private, "I don't want to be too hard on you, but I'll give you a week's noice. I'm going to quit."

The corporal hustled him out of the orderly room and is keeping an eye on him for fear that he wil carry out intention and jum his job. So far he has not done so.

NERVES ARE EXHAUSTED.

When you have frequent headaches find yourself easily irritated and annoyed, feel discouraged and down-hearted cannot rest and sleep well, and find appetite fickle and digestion bad, you may know that the nerves are in bad condition. Don't wait for these symptoms to become chronic but start in early with the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and head off disaster.

Just Try This When Hairy Growths Appear

(Modes of To-day)

A smooth, hairless skin always follows the use of a paste made by mixing some water with plain powdered delatone. This paste is applied to the hairy surface 2 or 3 minutes, then rubbed off and the skin washed, when every trace of hair will have vanished. No pain or discomfort attends the use of the delatone paste, but caution should be exercised to be sure that you get real delatone.

Scattered Fighting On The Western Front

Haig Reports Very Little Change In The Situation

Austria Hungary Is Anxious About Outcome Of War

Austria-Hungary Realizes Germany Is Losing The War And Invites Peace Offers

Count Czernin in His Speech Suggests That Austria-Hungary Would Accept a Non-Annexationist Peace--Latest Peace Speech Follows Failure of German Offensive to Put the Anglo-French Armies Out of the War.

THE FUTURE OF ALSACE-LORRAINE

(By J. W. T. Mason.)

(United Press Service—Special to The Examiner.)

NEW YORK, April 4.—Realization among the Central Powers that Germany has not won the war by Hindenburg's strategy or slaughter on the western front is undoubtedly responsible for Count Czernin's new peace drive.

The utmost significance must be attached to the fact that immediately after the consumation of Germany's push into Picardy, Austria-Hungary suggests she is willing to accept peace without annexations.

FRANCE MUST ABANDON CLAIM.

If the Central Powers believed they were winning the war such a declaration at this time would be impossible. Count Czernin practically invites all nations to make an offer of a non-annexationist peace to Austria-Hungary, and intimates as broadly as diplomacy allows that he would accept it. By an non-annexationist peace, however, Count Czernin means in particular that France shall abandon all claim to Alsace-Lorraine.

NOW A BRITISH QUESTION.

This is impossible not only from the standpoint of a morale victory which is necessary if world democracy is to win over Prussian autocracy, Alsace-Lorraine's future has become symbolic of the kind of world relations that are to exist when the war is over. For that reason it is no longer exclusively a French question, but is now a British question as well.

VERY STRONG PROOF.

Count Czernin's intimation that peace may be had if the Allies reject France's claim to Alsace-Lorraine is the strongest possible proof that Austria-Hungary is anxious about the outcome of the war. If the Teutonic advance towards Amiens represent a great triumph for the German military machine Count Czernin cannot see it.

IS A SHREWD OBSERVER.

Count Czernin is a very shrewd observer. He has also declared that Austro-Hungary shall not lose her future world power through claiming to be the chariots of German war lords. His newest peace speech is the most dramatic comment on Germany's latest offensive that has been made since it became known that the offensive had failed to put the Anglo-French armies out of the war.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FRANCE, April 4.—The United States' air forces aiding the British have done splendid. The British officers praise the American squadrons and air machines highly. They worked night and day in the great battle, and with Major General Sandoman, carried a "scratch" force of signal, field survey engineers and similar bodies. This force at a critical period, voluntarily stuck in hastily dug trenches east of Amiens for several days, fighting valiantly until the tension was relieved.

Swiss Frontier Will Be Closed on Friday

Special to The Examiner:

ZURICH, April 4.— The German-Swiss frontier will be closed Friday, it was announced here to-day.

The closing of the German frontier at any point in the past often has preceded important troop movements in the vicinity.

German Chancellor Hertling is seriously ill, it was learned here to-day.

The Germans Made a Futile Effort to Recapture Odessa

(United Press Service.)

Special to The Examiner:

(By Joseph Shaplen.)

PETROGRAD April 4.— Ukrainian and German forces seeking to recapture Odessa and Nicolaiff, were repulsed, it was announced here to-day.

The Turko-German fleet, headed toward Odessa, was driven back by the Russian Black Sea fleet.

Germans Thrown Back.

PETROGRAD, April 4.—Turko-German forces have been thrown back sixty versts (39.6 miles) from Batum, likewise they have been driven back from the Erzerum-Karz line.

Batum is on the Black Sea twenty miles east of the Turkish boundary. Erzerum is 110 miles south of Batum, and was recently recaptured by the Turks. Karz is one hundreds miles east of Erzerum and about the same distance south and east of Batum.

Crime is on the Increase in the German Capital

Special to The Examiner:

NEW YORK, April 4.— Burglaries and robberies in Berlin average more than three hundred daily and great alarm has been caused in the German capital by the sensational increase in crime resulting from war conditions. The Berlin Tageblatt on March 10th published an interview with the director of a large insurance company who said that three hundred burglaries and robberies were reported daily to the insurance companies, but the number he said was much higher, as many households and stores were not insured against this class of crime.

Women Raided Bakers' Shops And Were Dispensed by Police

THE RAILWAY PROGRAMME

Minister Will Have Authority to Acquire Railway Equipment and Sell or Lease Same to Any Canadian Railway.

COUNTRY RESPONSIBLE

OTTAWA, Ont., April 4.— The government railway programme is dealt with in two resolutions on an order paper by Hon. Dr. Reid, Minister of Railways. These provide that until one year after the war the Minister may acquire engines, rails and other railway equipment and sell or lease the same to any Canadian railway. The Dominion may either issue its own securities in payment or the guarantee of the railway company, but last instalment may be payable in ten years. A further resolution provides for the creation of a suspense account for the receipts and revenues of the Canadian government railways, but deficits in this amount may be made up out of consolidated revenue funds. That is the government railways are to be put on a separate basis so far as bookkeeping is concerned but the country continues to be responsible for making up their losses.

Lecture By Capt. Spooner To-night

'A Trip to England and the Crowning of a King' is the title of an illustrated lecture by Captain Spooner at the Salvation Army Temple to-night at 8 o'clock.

The Captain took the trip himself and was at the crowning of the King with the Saskatoon Boy Scouts, and the coloured illustrations will be very interesting and profitable indeed.

The Speakers

(Special to The Examiner.)

Ottawa, April 4.—Unless he fails to secure the requisite number of supporters for his motion, Colonel John Currie of North Simcoe, will this afternoon precipitate a debate on the Quebec situation, and on the workings of the Military Service Act in general, which will continue for the most if not all of the day. That he will secure the necessary twenty seems certain from present indications because there are men on both sides who are willing to discuss the topic. From present indications the Government speakers will include Messrs. Currie, Murphy, Edwards, Best, Sutherland, Clark (Red Deer), Hughes (Sir Sam), Chabot, Wallace and others, including the Prime Minister and the Minister of Justice, neither one of whom, however, desired the debate to be precipitated at the present moment.

The Opposition side men who are willing to take up the cudgels, include Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Captain "Chubby" Powers, Cannon of Dorchester, Bureau of Three Rivers, and others.

BUYS A SCOTCH ISLAND.

Lord Leverhulme Acquires Lewis of 440,000 Acres.

LONDON April 4. — Lord Leverhulme, who recently came into the public eye through advocacy of the six-hour day for labouring men, has become one of the largest land owners in Great Britain by the purchase of the Scotch island of Lewis, which is 440,000 acres in extent, and has a population of about 35,000.

The island is the largest of the Outer Hebrides, and its principal town is Stornoway, a port with a population of 4,000. It has a good harbour and is the centre of the greatest of the Scotch fishing districts.

33 SOCIALISTS RAN, 33 WERE DEFEATED

CHICAGO, April 2.— Every Socialist candidate was defeated in the aldermanic elections here to-day. There were 33 Socialist candidates running in the city's 35 wards. Loyalty to the Government was a leading issue on which opponents of the Socialists made the campaigns.

THE LATE PTE. JOHN DOHERTY, Who Was Killed in Action on November 7th, 1917.

WAS WITH A BURIAL PARTY WHEN HE WAS KILLED

Mrs. George Emery, 466 Driscoll Terrace, Peterborough, has received the following letter in regard to the death of her brother, Pte. John Doherty:

Dear Mrs. Emery,—Referring to the death of Pte. John Doherty, 814785, who was killed in action. Your brother was killed by a high explosive shell while with a burial party. The casualty occurred while occupying shelter near a pill box on the night of November 7th, 1917, during an intense bombardment. He was buried next day with his comrades in a cemetery in Otto farm in Belgium, near Ypres. His grave is marked by a cross and is being looked after. With deep sympathy.

Enemy Used A Hundred Divisions

First Stage of German Offensive Ended Similarly to the First Stage of the Battle of the Somme

THE ALLIES ARE READY

(United Press Service.)

Special to The Examiner:

(By Henry Wood.)

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES IN THE FIELD, April 3.—Military men regard the first stage of the German offensive as having ended similarly to the first stage of the battle of the Somme. The Germans are not likely to be able to renew the offensive before the expiration of a three-day interval, when they will probably attack again, with Amiens as ther objective.

The Allies are thoroughly prepared, although the enemy so far has engaged a hundred divisions (1,200,000 men) of which a fourth have been smashed up and withdrawn.

Clock Presented To Mr. And Mrs. J. Burns

Mr. and Mrs. J. Burns, who are leaving Brownton this week to reside in Otonabee, were presented with a handsome mantel clock by the congregation of St. Alban's Mission on Monday evening last, as a token of the esteem and respect in which they are held. Mr. Burns has been a staunch supporter of St. Alban's, and has acted as Church Warden since its inauguration three and a half years ago. Mr. Spence, speaking on behalf of the congregation and himself, in making the presentation, in feeling terms, referred to their approaching departure, to the pleasant and harmonious relations that had always existed between them and the church members, and prayed that God's blessing would be upon them in their new sphere of labour.

Mr. Burns suitably replied, and the pleasing event concluded with a social hour of music and singing, while dainty refreshments were served by the ladies, who also very kindly provided them.

AN AT-HOME AT ST. ALPHONSUS LYCEUM.

The "at home" last night at the St. Alphonsus Lyceum, under the auspices of the T. A. S., proved a great success and was attended by about 50 couples Splendid music was supplied by Miss Delaire and Mr. Frank Lynch.

ARTILLERY ACTIVITY

British Official Statement Reports a Quiet Night in the Battle Area With the Exception of Hostile Artillery Fire at Some Points

FRENCH OFFICIAL

LONDON, April 4. — (Official)— There was little activity in the battle area last night with the exception of hostile artillery fire at various points. A few prisoners were taken by British parties. The text of the statement reads: During the night a German machine gun post in the neighborhood of Hebuterne was rushed by our troops and the machine gun captured. Few prisoners were brought in on other parts of the battle front. Beyond hostile artillery activity at different points on the battle front, and also in Menin Road and Passchendaele sectors there is nothig further to report.

FRENCH OFFICIAL.

PARIS, April 4.—(Official) — The artillery fighting became very violent during the night in the region north of Montdidier, Northwest of Rheims in the Champagne, and on the left bank of the Meuse, Verdun front, French troops penetrated German trenches at several points, bringing back thirty prisoners and two machine guns. German raids, east of Rheims, in Avocourt Wood and north of St. Die, were without success. There is nothing to report elsewhere.

PARIS, April 4.—The artillery duel north of Montdidier assumed great intensity last night, the French War Office reports to-day. 'Northwest of Rheims, in the Champagne, and along the left bank of the Meuse, French troops penetrated various enemy trenches and took prisoners, the communique says. East of Rheims in the Avocourt Wood, northwest of Verdun, and north of St. Die German raids followed.

LABOUR MEN SAY CHILDREN GIVEN TOO MUCH HOUSEWORK

Dissatisfied with what they object to as too much home-work in the Public Schools, members of the Trades and Labour Council last night asked the Press to obtain from Inspector Mowat the rules (if there are any) pertaining to this work. Several members said that their children had to study two hours at night, and were kept in after four if their work were not completed.

Mr. Mowat and the school principals are attending the annual convention of teachers in Toronto this week.

Will Fight To A Finish

Special to The Examiner:

(United Press.)

(By Carl D. Groat.)

WASHINGTON, April 4. — President Wilson will answer Count Czernin's peace talk with assurances that America "will fight to a finish."

This was clearly indicated by administration authorities to-day who stated the "all peace talk" now is "fake." The "feelers" of the Austrian Minister for Foreign Affairs will be met by an emphatic war message, when the President speaks in Baltimore Saturday night. The President is now preparing for his address.

German Commander Leaves For The West

PARIS, April 4.— Field Marshall MacKensen has left for the west front, according to a Zurich despatch published in the Petit Journal to-day.

UNITED STATES WILL FOLLOW ENGLAND'S LEAD

Non-Essential Commerce, Both Import and Export Will Be Cut to the Bone and Ships Released for War Purposes.

SPEED UP CONSTRUCTION

Special to The Examiner:

WASHINGTON, April 4.—The United States, following the lead of England, is preparing to lock her harbours against trade which serves no war purpose.

Combing the world's ports for added shipping and putting the last sinew into shipbuilding, this country is mapping hitherto undreamed restrictions against non-essential commerce, both import and export. In the work the British government, which already has cut England to the bone on war trade, is lending valuable aid.

WILL RELEASE SHIPS.

Early measures may be expected, releasing for troop transport and supply service more than 6,000,000 annual tons of shipping now engaged in the importation of articles never consumed in this country, but held here only to be re-exported. Such juggling with tonnage, which now means everything to the allies, can no longer be tolerated, government officials here feel.

"LUXURY" SHIPMENTS.

Universal stoppage of "luxury" shipments also will come in the very near future, it is indicated. The War Trade Board following its recent restrictions on eighty-two non-essential articles, is known to be preparing further lists. The last sinew is being put to ship construction. No further ships will be built of less than 5,000 tons carrying capacity. Concrete construction has now virtually been decided on a large scale following the successful tests on a 5,000 tons ship which was recently launched at San Francisco.

USE GREAT LAKES.

The Great Lakes' shipyards, hitherto unused for ocean tonnage owing to what was thought to be the insufficient depth of the Welland Canal to convey them to the seaboard, will now be worked full blast. Engineers have reported to Chairman Hurley of the Shipping Board, that ships may be sent through the canal if turned on their sides. The canal they point out, is forty feet wide and vessels will not measure greater than 36 feet in depth.

THIRTY GERMAN TRANSPORTS HAVE ARRIVED AT HANGO

Official Statement From Berlin Announces Arrival of German Troops To Aid Finland

JEWISH RIOTS

(Associated Press.)

PETROGRAD, April 4.—Thirty German transports with troops, have arrived at Hango, on the southern coast of Finland, south-east of Helsingfors. An official statement from Berlin received in Amsterdam yesterday, announced that German troops had landed at Hango to give help in Finland. The Germans will assist the Finnish troops in putting down the rebels.

Three Hundred Killed.

MOSCOW, April 4. — Anti-Jewish riots have occurred in Turkestan. In Kokand three hundred persons were killed and much property destroyed. Anti-Semitic agitation in Kiev is assuming an acute form.

GET MORE MEN FROM QUEBEC

Better Results Follow Work of New M.S.A. Officials From Province.

OTTAWA, April 3.—A general reorganization of the Military Service Act machinery in the Province of Quebec is under way as a first step towards securing better and more prompt results in the enrollment of men. It is frankly admitted by members of the Government that, owing to the initial difficulties of securing officials from among the French-Canadian population who were really in sympathy with the operation of the Act, mistakes were made in the selection of some of the men entrusted with administrative duties. It is apparent that some of these officials, to say the least, did not exert their influence to secure men for the colours, but rather encouraged applications for exemption and the granting of these exemptions by the Tribunals.

John McMartin Is Seriously Ill

Unionist-Liberal Member is in a Critical Condition.

OTTAWA, April 4. — John McMartin, Unionist-Liberal member for Glengarry and Stormont, who succeeded John Angus McMillan, former member for Glengarry in the House, is reported very seriously ill at his home in Alexandria. Mr. McMartin paid a brief visit to the House at the opening of the session, but has since been unable to leave his bed, and is said to be in a very critical condition from an old complaint.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

THURSDAY, APRIL 4TH, 1918.

A POST OF HONOUR.

The Canadian people should be proud and gratified to realize that the task entrusted to the Canadian Army Corps in the terrible struggle on the western front is to be the defence of Vimy Ridge. That all important position wrested from the Huns a year ago by the Canadians, is a menace to the flank of Von Hindenburg's armies that must be removed before he can attempt to advance farther in his drive towards Amiens and Paris. One attack against Arras and aiming at a turning of the Vimy Ridge position, has been defeated, but the enemy will undoubtedly strike again in the same sector and upon General Currie's men the brunt of the defence will likely fall. It is a tribute to the fighting ability of the heroes of Vimy Ridge, Lens and Passchendeale that the holding of the vital position north of Arras has been left in their hands.

LLOYD GEORGE'S APPEAL.

The intimation that amendments are to be made to the Military Service Act to expedite its operation in the securing of men for overseas service, will be welcomed by the many Canadians who have been dissatisfied with the working of the Act, and who have felt that it has not been carried out in a manner to produce the best results.

It is to be hoped that Sir Robert Borden's promise to the House on Tuesday that the Act is to be administered firmly in all parts of the Dominion will be supplemented by immediate action.

Lloyd George's appeal for speedy reinforcements for the Canadian corps, and his reminder that the last man may count, is a call that can only have one answer. It is the first occasion upon which Great Britain has appealed directly to Canada for assistance, and the Dominion's reply must be prompt and effective.

The amendments proposed, if carried out vigorously, will considerably augment the Canadian reserves. The clause drafting all young men who have become twenty since the Act was passed, and providing that all men shall be automatically included in the first draft as soon as they attain the age of twenty, will add a considerable number of men, and the same result would be achieved if the age limit of the first class is extended to include men over the age of thirty-five years.

The people of the recruiting provinces will hope that the promise of speeding up the hearing of appeals in Quebec will be executed as quickly as possible. The Military Service Act was expected to make it obligatory on those parts of the Dominion which had not done their duty during the period of voluntary enlistment to supply their full share under the compulsory system, but so far has been far from accomplishing that result in Quebec.

A HEAVY BUTCHER'S BILL.

The Germans' early rejoicing over the initial success of their gigantic offensive is already beginning to subside. The official communiques have ceased to boast of vast numbers of prisoners and huge gains in terrain, while the Kaiser's name has been dropped out of the headquarter's despatches. The reaction will be more pronounced as a realization of the terrible price the German soldiers have had to pay for Hindenburg's indecisive success begins to sink in. The tone of the enemy's announcements seem to indicate, as General Maurice bluntly expresses it, that 'Ludendorff is beginning to prepare the German people for a very big butcher's bill." More and more does it become evident that the gains of devastated territory snatched by the Germans has been won at a terrible cost, a full knowledge of which will shake the faith of the German people in the Kaiser's war machine.

General Maurice points out that the enemy has been compelled to withdraw from the lines no fewer than 40 battered divisions (480,000 men), and remarks that the Allies' losses have been much less than those sustained by the Germans.

THE FARM LABOUR PROBLEM.

Let us be frank. More farm labour must be found. It serves no purpose to continually urge the farmer, and repeat "produce more food—produce more food." The farmer did produce more food last year—and he will produce more food this year—all that he possibly can. He is already working to his limit, and that means for many more hours per day than the city man works. The farmer says "I'm willing to put more land under cultivation, if you will send me the labour to do it. And I'm willing to pay the labour good wages, but without labour I cannot do more than I am doing."

Now, farm work is a man's work. Any willing, intelligent man can be of great help on a farm; and besides, there are many men working in offices, stores, warehouses and factories, in towns and cities, who because of their early training upon farms could readily go back to farm labour and become useful workers in a short time. And remember, the financial obstacle should not be magnified, because the wages plus the board, which a farm labourer gets to-day equals, and often exceeds, the wages paid to office, store, factory, warehouse, and other general classes of labour.

"But," says the factory, store and warehouse employer, "I can't spare men. My staff is already reduced to a minimum."

To these employers we say, replace some of your men by women workers. Offer women equal pay for equal work, and in many cases the women will do the work as well as some of the men you are now employing.

BUY COAL NOW.

The people of Peterborough would do well to consider the advisability of purchasing their supply of coal for next winter as soon as possible. The regulations allow them to order their supply at any time after April 1st, and those whose nominal consumption in the winter does not exceed six tons are permitted to order the full amount, while others whose supply is above that figure may purchase up to 80 per cent. of the total.

To buy now is the urgent request of Dr. Garfield, the United States' Fuel Administrator, who says that his organization must have the support and active co-operation, not only of those engaged in production and distribution of coal but of every coal user as well. The two most important ways in which the public can help Dr. Garfield points out, is by ordering coal early and by exercising economy in its use. The prices of coal at the mines has been fixed for the coming season at figures which will give the producer a fair profit and yet are entirely fair to to the consumer.

"Consumers," continues Dr. Garfield, "must buy their winter supply of coal during the spring and summer for storage during the winter if the production is to be maintained at a maximum and the country enabled to avoid a serious coal shortage next winter."

After referring to the intention of the Fuel Administration to co-operate with all communities in an effort to provide storage for reserve stocks of coal, Dr. Garfield said: "But the great storage capacity of the country lies in the bins of the individual consumer, and there the country's coal reserve must be built up during the spring and summer, when coal production is unhindered and the transportation facilities of the country are operating at their highest efficiency."

As we depend upon the United States for our fuel supply, the people of Ontario should as far as possible carry out the suggestion of the American Fuel Controller."

EDITORIAL NOTES.

S—O—S—O S—Save or some one starves.

The Germans in the Lens sector would be delighted to hear that the Canadians have been moved further south. General Currie's men have been giving the enemy no rest.

The attention of the City Council is called to the recommendation of Fuel Controller Magrath recommending municipalities to secure supplies of wood wherever possible. It is not wise, according to the Controller, to depend upon coal next winter.

WHEN YOU DIG.
(From the British Ministry of Food)

Every inch of farm, garden, and allotment must do its utmost to beat the Kaiser. Dig your ground, prepare the soil, sow your seeds, tend your plants with a will for Victory and an Allied Peace. Privates "Spud," parsnip, onion, carrot, leek, turnip, bean cabbage, marrow are wanted for Armies billions strong to take the great offensive in the Food fight. The man who uses his spade and hoe patriotically is befriending the man with the gun and bayonet. He risks his life that you may live unmolested.—Remember this when you dig!

EVERY ONE A PRODUCER.
(From the Regina Morning Leader)

The time has come when every person must be a producer. We cannot any longer afford to maintain and feed slackers at home. In every city, town and village strong organizations are required to mobilize the full available man-power of the community for work on the land. It will be a badge of shame to every urban community whose surrounding rural territory fails to record increased production this year because of the failure of that urban centre to respond to the call.

THE SPIRIT THAT COUNTS.

A Nova Scotia clergyman, replying to a communication from the Canada Food Board says: "Certainly I shall do all that you ask. Last year I was given the use of a small plot of land by one of my friends and upon it I raised over 30 bushels of potatoes. In my own garden I produced all the vegetables we needed, including a large quantity of beans. Our store bill never goes above $10 per month for a family of three and frequently it is much less.

"I have offered twice for active service in any capacity but the doctors said that I am no good and I guess they are right—my health recently confirms their opinion. But I have a boy who was in the artillery and later resigned to join the Royal Flying Corps.

"In our church we have cut out all church socials that would in any way cause waste of food needed overseas. I shall help in every way possible."

THE WORLD OF SPORT

RECORD SCORE MADE ON YEOTES BROS' ALLEYS

Harry Yates, the local returned soldier who a short time ago broke all records for a single game of ten pins on the Yeotes Bros. alleys by rolling 279, yesterday smashed his own mark and boosted the record to 297, which is, as far as is known, the highest score ever made in Peterborough. Yates was only three pins away from achieving the bowlers' supreme dream—a perfect score of 300. In his phenomenal game, yesterday, he hung up eleven straight strikes and when he rolled his last ball had a chance for a possible, but left three pins standing. There is no record of his score of 297 having been beat on any alleys in Peterborough. Yates had a mark of 652 for three games yesterday. His wonderful scores are the more remarkable inasmuch as he had never bowled before returning from the front, where he was twice wounded while serving with the 2nd Battalion.

Annual Meeting Of The Wives' And Mothers' Club

The annual meeting and tea of the Wives' and Mothers' Club was held in the school room of the Salvation Army Temple, Simcoe street, and the report of some of the year's activities showed excellent results.

Six hundred and sixty-seven pairs of socks, each containing a five-cent package of chewing gum, was sent to a number of different units, including: 26th Battery, C.F.A., the original 5th C.M.R., 2nd Entrenching Draft, old original 21st Batt., 4th Battery, C.F.A., 29th Batt. Signallers of 1st Batt., 93rd boys drafted in C.M.R., 1st Can. Transport, 27th Battery, C.F.A., 5th Can. Railway Troops, 19th Batt., 1st Can. Batt., Strathcona Horse, 38th Batt., 2nd Can. Heavy Artillery, group Can. Veterinary Corps, Signallers 20th Batt., 1st Can. Heavy Battery, 39th Artillery, Forestry Draft, 10th Batt., 19th Can. Batt., 2nd Can. Batt., 10th Batt, C.R.T.

They also sent parcels to Peterborough boys in hospital in England, and parcels containing chocolate and cigarettes to men in Mesopotamia. 18 pairs of bed slippers to 6th Clearing Station, France.

This club meets every Friday afternoon at the Salvation Army Temple, Simcoe street, and is undenominational in character. Any wife or mother or other relative of a soldier at the front are cordially invited.

At their last meeting, Adjt. McElbiney gave an address on "Not Being Weary is Well Doing," in which he tried to encourage and cheer the members in their most noble work.

The club have now ready for shipment another 12 dozen socks, which will go forward to different units in a few days.

Claims Quebec Is Law Abiding

"LE CANADA" CALLS ON THE GOVERNMENT TO END ITS "PROVOCATIONS."

Montreal, April 4.—Le Canada today editorially declares that the population of the province of Quebec is law abiding and will obey the law, including the Military Service Act, but declares the right of the province to Sir Robert Borden's protection against the provocations of other provinces.

Le Canada says: "As an example of these provocations as to which Sir Robert Borden preserves silence, approaching complicity, we have only to cite an article in the Kingston Standard of April 2nd, with a title, 'Shoot them Down,' in which it advises the shooting of the French Canadian people of Quebec, and if we advise all our compatriots to obey the law, no matter what sacrifice it may involve, we believe we have the right to ask the Government to end its provocations which have for so long irritated our people and predisposed them to reprisals."

SEEDING IN ONTARIO.

Seeding has begun in some parts of southwestern Ontario, while plowing has been done as far east as Oshawa. Farmers are preparing to do the bit extra required by putting in an extra field of wheat or beans. Inquiry for seed wheat is strong. Marquis and Wild Goose varieties are the favourites. The Huron variety, recommended by the C.E.F. for the east, is not as well known as it should be.

There is also a big demand for red clover, alsike, alfalfa and sweet clover seed. The astonishing thing about the situation is the almost overnight popularity of sweet clover. Everything eats it.

Magistrate Dumble Mentions 65 Years As Mere Yesterday

The blotter at the police station was a blank to-day, but as Magistrate Dumble passed to exchange boating and swimming experience and advice with Sergt. Kidd, he mentioned a regatta he attended at Rice Lake sixty-five years ago. He didn't emphasize the time either, but uttered it as plainly as he might have said yesterday or last summer. And there were at least two rare facts in his statement. One was that he was fifteen years old at that time, and the other that in those supposedly interesting and unprogressive days Rice Lake could boast of a regatta. To-day the Magistrate must be at least eighty, but he looks, walks and generally carrys on with a vigour many men of sixty might envy. Perhaps his Worship might not only have advice to offer on how to avoid untimely ending by canoe upsets, but also how to stretch our span of life to four score years and attain that patriarchal age as fresh and keen, mentally and physically, as he.

Nationalists Win Another Victory

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

DUBLIN, Ireland, April 4. — Nationalists have won another bye-election victory against the Sinn Feiners, T. J. S. Harrison being elected over John Milroy in East Tyronne by eighteen hundred to twelve hundred.

Erzerum Has Been Recaptured

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, April 4.—Erzerum, the principal city of Turkish Armenia, is reported to have been recaptured from the Turks by Armenian corps.

Military News

The response made to the appeal for women for the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps in England, has so far been very encouraging. The figures received from all parts of the country show a total of 1900 application forms received. Arrangements are being made for these candidates to be interviewed by selection boards as soon as possible. It is gratifying to note that a large response has been made by domestic servants to come forward and act as cooks, waitresses, etc.

In addition to the 100,000 women, which the War Office notified to the Employment Department as being required by the end of October, large numbers are wanted for work under the Royal Flying Corps. These women will be required to work in the aircraft repairing depots, both at home and in France. The numbers notified as being wanted immediately by the Royal Flying Corps, are 144 fitters (general machine and turners) 52 instrument repairers, 20 acetylene welders, 30 electricians, 12 draftswomen, 50 painters, 2 tracers, and 145 store keepers.—London Post.

A NEW ORDER.

"Soldiers are not to be included in any draft proceeding overseas later than the fourth day previous to the draft leaving its depot," is the text of a recent order which will insure all documents being fully prepared before the drafts leave. One conducting officer in discussing a trip to England recently said to the Whig: "We have to feed the authorities on nominal rolls after we leave Kingston," so this order is quite necessary."

SPENCE DEFENDS HIMSELF.

"There was not a word in the letter I wrote except the highest commendation of the soldiers overseas," declared Rev. Ben Spence, secretary of the Dominion Alliance, to-day, in reply to the attack made upon him by Rev. T. T. Shields, pastor of the Jarvis street Baptist church, who, in speaking at Brantford, said that Mr. Spence had been guilty "of unpardonable and baseless slander in his tirade against the liquor traffic in England."

"I do not refer to the military conditions, but to the civilian conditions. The great danger and evil does not lie in the camps, but behind the lines. The cold, hard fact is that the men are superb beyond praise, but the conditions are bad beyond description."

Hats incline to the small and medium.

LIST OF BUILDING PERMITS ISSUED

Mr. T. C. Elliot Will Spend $2,000 on the "Beehive"

Mr. T. C. Elliott has taken out a building permit to make alterations to his store, "The Beehive," which will be a distinct improvement to the general appearance of George Street. Deep plate-glass windows set in a marble case will replace the former show windows, while the entrance will be tile. The alterations will cost $2,000, and will be completed on May 15th.

Other Permits.

Other permits of a smaller order issued during the past two weeks are:

John J. Devlin, dwelling, 479 Roger Street—$1,200.

Thomas Smith, clapboard dwelling, Rogers Street—$800.

Mrs. Herb. Scott, repairing walls and verandah, 636 Union Street—$100.

N. Nicholls, garage, 734 George Street—$50.

2,500,000 MEN BY DEC.

Number U. S. Hopes to Raise — At Present 1,500,000 Americans Are Under Arms.

WASHINGTON, April 4.— Reports that the number of the next draft would be raised from 800,000 to 1,500,000 were denied here.

There are now under arms here and in Europe more than 1,500,000 American soldiers. The number will have been raised to about 2,500,000 by the end of the year, counting drafted men, volunteers and special technical forces to be enlisted.

If it is possible to get 1,500,000 men to France by January 1, next, the best previous hopes of the War Department will have been realized and there still will be a force of almost equal size in training here.

OUSTED GREEK OFFICERS.

Hundreds Who Favoured Constantine Were Summarily Dismissed.

A sidelight is thrown upon the effective measures taken by the Greek Government to nip in the bud the pro-German mutiny which occurred in some infantry regiments early in February by the following dispatch sent from the Swiss border on Jan. 22 to the German press:

"The Agence Hellenique reports from Athens that, through a royal decree, sixty-eight Colonels, forty-nine Lieutenant Colonels, seventy-five Majors, 116 Captains, ninety-two First Lieutenants, and twenty-three Second Lieutenants belonging to the various branches of the service, including the gendarmes, have recently been retired from duty or expelled from the Greek Army because of entertaining a feeling of loyalty toward ex-King Constantine. The same order retired Eusratiatis, the Surgeon General of the Greek Army, from the service."

Reports from Athens printed here at the time of the suppression of the mutiny said that no officers were involved.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

RECORD SCORE MADE ON YEOTES BROS' ALLEYS

Harry Yates, the local returned soldier who a short time ago broke all records for a single game of ten pins on the Yeotes Bros. alleys by rolling 279, yesterday smashed his own mark and boosted the record to 297, which is, as far as is known, the highest score ever made in Peterborough. Yates was only three pins away from achieving the bowlers' supreme dream—a perfect score of 300. In his phenomenal game, yesterday, he hung up eleven straight strikes and when he rolled his last ball had a chance for a possible, but left three pins standing. There is no record of his score of 297 having been beat on any alleys in Peterborough. Yates had a mark of 652 for three games yesterday. His wonderful scores are the more remarkable inasmuch as he had never bowled before returning from the front, where he was twice wounded while serving with the 2nd Battalion.

Annual Meeting Of The Wives' And Mothers' Club

The annual meeting and tea of the Wives' and Mothers' Club was held in the school room of the Salvation Army Temple, Simcoe street, and the report of some of the year's activities showed excellent results.

Six hundred and sixty-seven pairs of socks, each containing a five-cent package of chewing gum, was sent to a number of different units, including: 26th Battery, C.F.A., the original 5th C.M.R., 2nd Entrenching Draft, old original 21st Batt., 4th Battery, C.F.A., 20th Batt. Signallers of 1st Batt., 93rd boys drafted in C.M.R., 1st Can. Transport, 27th Battery, C.F.A., 5th Can. Railway Troops, 19th Batt., 1st Can. Batt., Strathcona Horse, 38th Batt., 2nd Can. Heavy Artillery, group Can. Veterinary Corps, Signallers 29th Batt., 1st Can. Heavy Battery, 39th Artillery, Forestry Draft, 10th Batt., 19th Can. Batt., 2nd Can. Batt., 10th Batt, C.R.T.

They also sent parcels to Peterborough boys in hospital in England, and parcels containing chocolate and cigarettes to men in Mesopotamia. 18 pairs of bed slippers to 6th Clearing Station, France.

This club meets every Friday afternoon at the Salvation Army Temple, Simcoe street, and is undenominational in character. Any wife or mother or other relative of a soldier at the front are cordially invited.

At their last meeting, Adjt. McElhiney gave an address on "Not Being Weary is Well Doing," in which he tried to encourage and cheer the members in their most noble work.

The club have now ready for shipment another 12 dozen socks, which will go forward to different units in a few days.

Claims Quebec Is Law Abiding

"LE CANADA" CALLS ON THE GOVERNMENT TO END ITS "PROVOCATIONS."

Montreal, April 4.—Le Canada today editorially declares that the population of the province of Quebec is law abiding and will obey the law, including the Military Service Act, but declares the right of the province to Sir Robert Borden's protection against the provocations of other provinces.

Le Canada says: "As an example of these provocations as to which Sir Robert Borden preserves silence, approaching complicity, we have only to cite an article in the Kingston Standard of April 2nd, with a title, 'Shoot them Down,' in which it advises the shooting of the French Canadian people of Quebec, and if we advise all our compatriots to obey the law, no matter what sacrifice it may involve, we believe we have the right to ask the Government to end its provocations which have for so long irritated our people and predisposed them to reprisals."

SEEDING IN ONTARIO.

Seeding has begun in some parts of southwestern Ontario, while plowing has been done as far east as Oshawa. Farmers are preparing to do the bit extra required by putting in an extra field of wheat or beans. Inquiry for seed wheat is strong. Marquis and Wild Goose varieties are the favourites. The Huron variety, recommended by the C.E.F. for the east, is not as well known as it should be.

There is also a big demand for red clover, alsike, alfalfa and sweet clover seed. The astonishing thing about the situation is the almost overnight popularity of sweet clover. Everything eats it.

Magistrate Dumble Mentions 65 Years As Mere Yesterday

The blotter at the police station was a blank to-day, but as Magistrate Dumble passed to exchange boating and swimming experience and advice with Sergt. Kidd, he mentioned a regatta he attended at Rice Lake sixty-five years ago. He didn't emphasize the time either, but uttered it as plainly as he might have said yesterday or last summer. And there were at least two rare facts in his statement. One was that he was fifteen years old at that time, and the other that in those supposedly interesting and unprogressive days Rice Lake could boast of a regatta. To-day the Magistrate must be at least eighty, but he looks, walks and generally carrys on with a vigour many men of sixty might envy. Perhaps his Worship might not only have advice to offer on how to avoid untimely ending by canoe upsets, but also how to stretch our span of life to four score years and attain that patriarchal age as fresh and keen, mentally and physically, as he.

Nationalists Win Another Victory

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

DUBLIN, Ireland, April 4. — Nationalists have won another bye-election victory against the Sinn Feiners, T. J. S. Harrison being elected over John Milroy in East Tyronne by eighteen hundred to twelve hundred.

Erzerum Has Been Recaptured

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, April 4.—Erzerum, the principal city of Turkish Armenia, is reported to have been recaptured from the Turks by Armenian corps.

Military News

The response made to the appeal for women for the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps in England, has so far been very encouraging. The figures received from all parts of the country show a total of 1900 application forms received. Arrangements are being made for these candidates to be interviewed by selection boards as soon as possible. It is gratifying to note that a large response has been made by domestic servants to come forward and act as cooks, waitresses, etc.

In addition to the 100,000 women, which the War Office notified to the Employment Department as being required by the end of October, large numbers are wanted for work under the Royal Flying Corps. These women will be required to work in the aircraft repairing depots, both at home and in France. The numbers notified as being wanted immediately by the Royal Flying Corps, are 144 fitters (general machine and turners) 52 instrument repairers, 20 acetylene welders, 30 electricians, 12 draftswomen, 50 painters, 2 tracers, and 145 store keepers.—London Post.

A NEW ORDER.

"Soldiers are not to be included in any draft proceeding overseas later than the fourth day previous to the draft leaving its depot," is the text of a recent order which will insure all documents being fully prepared before the drafts leave. One conducting officer in discussing a trip to England recently said to the Whig: "We have to feed the authorities on nominal rolls after we leave Kingston," so this order is quite necessary."

SPENCE DEFENDS HIMSELF.

"There was not a word in the letter I wrote except the highest commendation of the soldiers overseas," declared Rev. Ben Spence, secretary of the Dominion Alliance, to-day, in reply to the attack made upon him by Rev. T. T. Shields, pastor of the Jarvis street Baptist church, who, in speaking at Brantford, said that Mr. Spence had been guilty "of unpardonable and baseless slander in his tirade against the liquor traffic in England."

"I do not refer to the military conditions, but to the civilian conditions. The great danger and evil does not lie in the camps, but behind the lines. The cold, hard fact is that the men are superb beyond praise, but the conditions are bad beyond description."

Hats incline to the small and medium.

LIST OF BUILDING PERMITS ISSUED

Mr. T. C. Elliot Will Spend $2,000 on the "Beehive"

Mr. T. C. Elliott has taken out a building permit to make alterations to his store, "The Beehive," which will be a distinct improvement to the general appearance of George Street. Deep plate-glass windows set in a marble case will replace the former show windows, while the entrance will be tile. The alterations will cost $2,000, and will be completed on May 15th.

Other Permits.

Other permits of a smaller order issued during the past two weeks are:

John J. Devlin, dwelling, 479 Roger Street—$1,200.

Thomas Smith, clapboard dwelling, Rogers Street—$800.

Mrs. Herb. Scott, repairing walls and verandah, 636 Union Street—$100.

N. Nicholls, garage, 734 George Street—$50.

2,500,000 MEN BY DEC.

Number U. S. Hopes to Raise — At Present 1,500,000 Americans Are Under Arms.

WASHINGTON, April 4.— Reports that the number of the next draft would be raised from 800,000 to 1,500,000 were denied here.

There are now under arms here and in Europe more than 1,500,000 American soldiers. The number will have been raised to about 2,500,000 by the end of the year, counting drafted men, volunteers and special technical forces to be enlisted.

If it is possible to get 1,500,000 men to France by January 1, next, the best previous hopes of the War Department will have been realized and there still will be a force of almost equal size in training here.

OUSTED GREEK OFFICERS.

Hundreds Who Favoured Constantine Were Summarily Dismissed.

A sidelight is thrown upon the effective measures taken by the Greek Government to nip in the bud the pro-German mutiny which occurred in some infantry regiments early in February by the following dispatch sent from the Swiss border on Jan. 22 to the German press:

"The Agence Hellenique reports from Athens that, through a royal decree, sixty-eight Colonels, forty-nine Lieutenant Colonels, seventy-five Majors, 116 Captains, ninety-two First Lieutenants, and twenty-three Second Lieutenants belonging to the various branches of the service, including the gendarmes, have recently been retired from duty or expelled from the Greek Army because of entertaining a feeling of loyalty toward ex-King Constantine. The same order retired Eustratiatis, the Surgeon General of the Greek Army, from the service."

Reports from Athens printed here at the time of the suppression of the mutiny said that no officers were involved.

Annual Business Meeting Of Peterboro' County Sunday Schools

Township Conventions Were Arranged For—Officers Elected for the Year—Standing of the Various Townships

The annual general business meeting of the County Sunday School workers was held in the banquet hall of the Y.M.C.A.

Reports were received from the different department superintendents and the work discussed.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

The elections were as follows:
President—Mr. Samuel Armstrong.
Vice-Pres.—Mr. Ed. Hawthorne.
Treasurer—Mr. A. J. Johnstone.
Secretary—Mr. P. H. Robert.
Elementary Supt.—Miss Ella Dewart.
Secondary Supt.—Mr. A. C. Denike
A.B.C. Supt.—Miss Phyliss Borland.
Teacher Training — Rev. R. McEachern.
Home Department—Mrs. J. Riseboro.
Temperance—Miss M. Hanbidge.
Missionary—Mr. A. J. Johnstone.

TOWNSHIP CONVENTIONS.

The township conventions were arranged for as follows:
Monday, May 27th, Belmont; May 29th, Asphodel; May 30th, Dummer; May 31st, Otonabee; June 3rd, South Smith; June 4th, North Smith.

TOWNSHIP STANDING.

The following is the position of the various townships, according to the amount of work attempted and done, and the percentage of schools reporting:

Dummer, first, with 100 per cent. reporting.

Otonabee second, with 100 per cent. reporting.

S. Smith, third, with 100 per cent. reporting.

Asphodel, fourth, with 66 per cent. reporting.

Belmont, fifth, with 85 per cent. reporting.

North Smith, sixth, with 18 per cent. reporting.

The contributions to the Township County and Provincial funds varied: Otonabee $45, Asphodel $16.50, South Smith $13, Dummer, $12.50, Belmont, $9.85, North Smith $4.00.

THE REPORTS.

The reports show an increased attendance at the Schools and more Cradle Rolls and Home Departments at work in the County. Altogether 42 per cent. of Protestant population is actively connected with Sunday School work. 127 Sunday School scholars are reported as having joined the church but according to Sunday School estimates and past experience, this is less than one in every four who should have joined if all the scholars of this country are to be won to Christ.

An endeavour will be made during the coming year through visiting and other methods to link up the schools still more closely in order that there may be a united effort in this noble work.

Voice of The People

Peterborough, April 4th, 1918.

Dear Editor,—In last night's Examiner I noticed a letter in regards to hotelkeepers asking exemption on taxes, light and water, and apparently the party who signs Citizen, has some little grievance against travellers. He states that the citizens don't care to pay for the commercial travellers' hotel fare, and that they should either be producing or in khaki. I wish to inform this party that there are several hundred commercial travellers already at the front, and quite a number have laid down their lives for King and country, and more of the older travellers have sent their boys to fight for the cause.

We don't ask the citizens to pay our hotel fare, and if some of the citizens would ask the hotel proprietor why the traveller has to pay such righ rates he might be able to explain that he has to charge the traveller high, as there are a class of people who might call themselves citizens make use of the hotel accommodations and never leave a cent in the house. We appreciate the good hotels and don't know what the people would do without them, and I believe any man who has travelled can tell you that the hotelkeepers in the majority of towns are not making money, owing to the fact that their expenses are too high. And the hotel employees in most hotels are English-speaking people, and they are the people whom we understand and feel more at home with.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for space in your worthy paper, I remain,

Yours,
TRAVELLER.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,—Mr. Guise-Bagley is "disgusted" with the handling of the M. S. Act in relation to farmers. You comment editorially upon his letter and petition. Mr. G.-B. is a lawyer of standing, etc., but in this case is entitled to his opinion only as a lawyer who has done an enormous business for the farming community wishing to get exemption of help. He was paid for it. As a commentator upon the government's action he is therefore "out of court." While I agree with a lot that he has said, a petition regarding it circulated by him must necessarily have attached to it a supposition (or suspicion) that he is actuated by a desire to get the worth of their money for the claimants), as well as by the patriotic motives of the ordinary citizen. You and he should both of you remember this. He should let somebody else do it. It would look better.

J. H. BURNHAM.

WOULD NOT BE WITHOUT BABY'S OWN TABLETS

Mrs. A. C. Smith, Goodwood, Ont., writes:—"I have used Baby's Own Tablets for the past two years and have found them the best medicine a mother can give her little ones and I would not be without them." The Tablets never fail to banish the simple ailments of childhood. They regulate the bowels; sweeten the stomach and make the cross, sickly baby bright, healthy and happy. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

"Pollyanna" Is Coming To The Grand

Everybody Should See It—The Press, Professional Men and All Theatregoers Stand By It

"Pollyanna," as a comedy, adds to the good cheer message sent around the world by Eleanor H. Porter's optimistic stories upon which it is founded. Catharine Chisholm Cushing, the dramatist, is expert at comedy construction; her "A Widow by Proxy," "The Real Thing," "Kitty McKay," and "Jerry," were very successful. "Pollyanna" comes to the Grand on Saturday, April 13th, matinee and night, with an excellent cast selected by Klaw and Erlinger, and George C. Tyler. Among the well known players are Patricia Collinge, Oswald Yorke, Beatrice Morgan, Joseph Jefferson, Helen Weathersby, Mattie Ferguson, Maud Hosford, Stephen Davis, Harry Barfoot, and Selma Hall. The girl unconsciously inducing everybody to help play the 'glad game develops into a buoyant, well poised young woman with her first romance. The play bubbles with humor and is free from morbidity.

GIFT FROM THE QUEEN.

Norwood Young Lady Honored by Her Majesty Queen Alexandra.

Nursing Sister Gertrude L. Squire, A.R.R.C., Canadian Army Nursing Service, I.O.D.E., Canadian Red Cross Hospital for Officers, Hyde Park Place, London, W. I., received recently a very pleasant surprise in the gift of a book and card from Her Majesty Queen Alexandra. The gift was delivered by messenger and was accompanied by a letter asking her acceptance of the same as a small gift from Her Majesty in recognition of the services rendered by her to the sick and wounded. Regret was also expressed that owing to Her Majesty's absence from London at the time when Sister Squire was invested with the Royal Red Cross she was unable to have the pleasure of presenting the book and card.

MYSTERIOUS MURDER OF NIGHTWATCHMAN

Murdered Man Tried to Use His Revolver, But Weapon Failed to Work

Special to Examiner:

WASHINGTON, April 4.— Mysteriously murdered, perhaps by German spies, James King, aged 60, night watchman for the Committee on Public Information, was found lying in an office building hallway early today.

That he had tried to battle off his assailant, was shown by the fact that the revolver he carried had been snapped four times, but without exploding. King was shot through the side and was dead when found by the Committee employees. The shooting occurred between 4.30 and 5.30 a.m.

Banquet Of Directors And Employees Of The J. M. Greene Music Co. Ltd. Last Night

Announcement of Application to Increase Capital Stock From $75,000 to $300,000—Allotments of Stock Made to Long-service Employees—Prizes to Branch Managers.

A HAPPY OCCASION

The phenomenal expansion of the J. M. Greene Music Company Limited was impressively reflected in last night's banquet at Hooper's, given by the directors of the company to its branch managers and general staff. The occasion provided a pleasant interlude in the daily and yearly round of business, bringing employers and employees together in a happy social re-union, recalling briefly their successful co-operation, and inspiring the co-workers with new ambitions and opening to their prospect broader fields of endeavours.

Among those present, were Mr. J. M. Greene, general manager of the company, who was chairman of the after dinner programme, Mr. R. C. Braund, president of the company, who occupied the seat at the head of the table, and his brother, Mr. J. T. Braund, vice-president, who was opposite him at the foot; also Mr. George Leader, sales manager, and the following branch managers, Mr. Wesley Mason of Lindsay, Mr. James Goodsell of Belleville, Mr. J. Johnston of Kingston, and Mr. W. C. Sills of Madoc. There were also present Mrs. R. C. Braund, Mrs. J. T. Braund, Mrs. J. M. Greene, Miss Aileen Braund, Mrs. Mason of Lindsay, Miss Jessie Waddell, Miss G. Lebar, Miss M. Bennett, Mr. J. W. Hales, Mr. John Morden Mr. W. H. Cunningham and Mr Arnold Claney.

A feature of the gathering was the announcement that the company was allotting shares of stock to its employees on a basis of long and continuous service. One share of stock of $100 is given for three years' service two shares for five years, and one share for each additional five years The first allotment was distributed as follows: Mr. Sills of the Greene Music Company's branch store in Madoc three shares in recognition of his eleven years of service, Mr. Mason of the Lindsay branch two shares for seven years' service, Mr. Hales of Peterborough, two shares for nine years, and Miss Waddell two shares for seven years.

Cash Prizes Awarded.

Cash prizes offered to branch managers who operated last year on the lowest ratio of expenditure in proportion to their sales were won as follows: First prize to Mr. Goodsell of the Belleville branch, and second prize to Mr. Sills of the Madoc store.

The dinner proved a splendid success and a most enjoyable event. The four courses were all that could be desired, the programme of musical numbers and recitations added a delightful feature and the business conference was decidedly bright and encouraging. During the banquet, Edison diamond disc selections were played.

To Increase Capital Stock.

When the J. M. Greene Music Company was organized, it was capitalized at $75,000. Last night, it was stated that the company was applying for permission to increase the stock to $300,000.

This is the present development of the little business Mr. J. M. Greene launched on Water street fourteen years ago. Perseverance and personality were its soundest foundation stones at that time. Mr. Greene carried a general supply of musical instruments, including a few phonographs, which in their undeveloped state at that time, were regarded as musical freaks or curiosities. To-day they are bought as necessities, and are not only welcomed in the best homes, but also accepted into the studios of musicians.

In a comparatively short time Mr. Greene moved his growing business to the Grand Opera House block, and the formation of the J. M. Greene Music Company gave an impetus that has been gathering financial momentum prestige and branches that places it in a position of provincial character and reputation. Its future is as assured as it is practically unlimited. The recognition of the service of its employees, fourteen of whom are working in Peterborough, injects a substantial element of encouragement that should hasten the company's progress in its future operation.

Although Mr. Mason of Lindsay came down for the banquet he was taken suddenly ill at his hotel with what appeared to be appendicitis. He was unable to attend the re-union but under Dr. Neal's care has fully recovered this morning and returned to his home.

THE HOUSE WILL DISCUSS A MATTER OF URGENT IMPORTANCE

Col. John Currie of North Simcoe Will This Afternoon Precipitate a Debate on the Quebec Situation—W. F. O'Connor Has Resigned

(Special to The Examiner.)

Ottawa, April 4.—W. F. O'Connor, K.C., Commissioner of the Cost of Living, and Director of the Department which has produced startling and far reaching reports regarding food prices in Canada, has resigned. No reasons have been announced and the question will probably be brought up in the Commons on Saturday at noon. It is stated that many of his staff will likely follow the example of their chief. O'Connor still holds the position of counsel to the Minister of Justice and Solicitor General.

It is expected that there will be a vigorous discussion this afternoon in the Commons regarding the Quebec riots. Lieut.-Colonel John A. Currie has promised to start something, and will move the adjournment of the House "to discuss a matter of urgent importance."

If the debate is prolonged it is probable that both Sir Robert Borden and Sir Wilfrid Laurier will have something to say.

The question of the general enforcement of the Military Service Act will probably be a big factor in the discussion.

TRADES AND LABOUR COUNCIL OBJECTS TO ALIEN LABOUR HERE

Foreigners Permitted to Fill Positions of Canadians Who Volunteer or Are Drafted For Service in France—Letter Carriers Join the Council.

The Trades and Labour Council received the Letter Carriers into its fold at the regular meeting last night, which was marked by an unusually large attendance.

Reports from the delegates to the Good Friday Convention in Toronto, for the formation of a Federal Labour Party, corroborated the press accounts of this session. It was further stated that there were many evidences of a great fusion of the sentiment of the toilers, and a growing determination to break from the old political parties. Neither of them, it was said last night, were seriously interested in the welfare of the workers.

The employment of aliens in Canadian industries, was referred to by a delegate from the War Veterans. This subject evoked caustic comment of the council. Sir Robert Borden's reply to the G.W.V.A., tantamount to refusal to concript aliens, was regarded as a poor return for the support the returned soldiers had given the government at the December elections. In Toronto, it was asserted, thousands of foreigners are employed at work in which returned men should be engaged. It was also alleged that deliberate steps are being planned to split the Veterans for political purposes.

"The returned soldiers will soon learn, as labor is slowly learning, that they won't get a square deal from either of the old parties," said one member. "Their only hope is in a Labour Party."

A motion to be forwarded to the Prime Minister requested that aliens be conscripted, and not simply permitted to remain behind to fill the places vacated by Canada's soldiers.

Ald. Edgar will be invited to address the council at its next meeting on the electro-thermic question and its possibilities.

ATTENDANCE INCREASES AT THE MARK ST. METHODIST CHURCH.

Increasing attendance, deepening spiritual power, and ready participation in the services, marked the progress of the meetings in the Mark street church from night to night. PROSPECTS OF HEAVY ORDERS BEING CONTINUED IN CANADA THIS YEAR.

OTTAWA, April 3.—While the outlook for a continued flow of munitions orders to Canada this year is still somewhat indefinite, pending further negotiations with the British authorities and more explicit instructions to the Imperial Munitions Board as to estimated requirements, the Board expects that the combination of British and American orders from now until the end of the year will aggregate a continued output of from twenty-five to thirty-five millions per month. The agreement as to specific quantities of shells and other materials required by Great Britain expires on June 1. Although no promise has been given for a continuation of this normal output for the last six months of the year, there is reason to believe that the Imperial Ministry of Munitions will renew the agreement substantially for another six months. Meanwhile the Imperial Munitions Board here have made arrangements for materials required by the shell factories on this assumption.

The Spring Fair A Splendid Event

This Year Will Be Held in Market Hall April 15th to 19th

A spring time event of considerable importance this month will be the Spring Fair which will be held under the auspices of Mount St. Joseph in the Market Hall for five days, from Monday, the 15th, to Friday, the 19th, inclusive. Great preparations are being made. The big Market Hall will be handsomely decorated and finely fitted up throughout with booths for the selling of fancy work, clothing and other useful articles. Indeed, it is said the display of fancy work will exceed any previous display in this line ever shown in the city. The booths and the attendants are to be dressed in the costumes representing the different Allied nations, making a very attractive sight. Dinners will be served each day from 12 to 2 o'clock, as well as Afternoon Teas each afternoon. Heintzman and Co. will furnish music continuously. It will be a big week. Don't forget the dates.

He lots the Hydro-Electric Com- as ready to construct the on Monaghan Road from to Patterson street. He un- d that the city would furnish for the roadbed the same amount of gravel as would be required if the railway were not there. He had recommended an extension on Romaine street from George to Park street, on Park street to Lansdowne, and on Lansdowne street to Lock street.

Mr. Ferguson also informed the committee that he asked for two new cars.

A motion by Ald. Saunders, seconded by Mayor Duncan, permits the cars to stop on the near side of street intersections on paved streets.

The committee recommended the council not to approve the plans prepared by the G.T.R. for the removal of the spur line at the west end of Douro street.

Mr. Ferguson also informed the committee that he asked for two new cars.

A motion by Ald. Saunders, seconded by Mayor Duncan, permits the cars to stop on the near side of street intersections on paved streets.

The committee recommended the council not to approve the plans prepared by the G.T.R. for the removal of the spur line at the west end of Douro street.

With Other Councils

NO OIL FOR STREETS.

It is doubtful whether Woodstock will have its streets oiled this summer, owing to the inability of the Board of Works to secure quotations from the oil companies, which claim that the munition manufacturers require all the oil available, and so from a patriotic standpoint, the council will enter into no contract at present.

PENALTY FOR TAX ARREARS.

The legislature having complied with Hamilton's request and amended the assessment act to permit of a penalty of 6 per cent. for tax arrears compounded monthly, S. H. Kent, City Clerk, said that the penalty would be enforced immediately. The wording of the amendment calls for a penalty of one half of one per cent. per month.

OPPOSED TO MEASURE.

At a meeting of the Simcoe County Council that body went on record as being opposed to the proposed daylight saving legislation.

ERECT A GARAGE.

The Hospital board of St. Thomas, met the Fire, Water and Light Committee of the City Council Thursday, when it was decided to erect a garage at the rear of the fire hall, which was to be in charge of Chief Henderson, and to be used for the accommodation of the new automobile ambulance.

KITCHENER GAS BOOST.

Owing to the increased cost of material, the Kitchener Light Commission has advanced the price of gas from $1.25 to $1.35 per thousand, and the price of coke from $7.50 and $8 to $8.50 and $9 per ton.

CAVAN MAN INSTANTLY KILLED

David Fallis Fell From the Top of a Fifty Foot Windmill

Mr. David Fallis, of Cavan Township, was killed instantly this morning when he fell from the top of a fifty-foot windmill. Mr. Fallis had gone to the top of the windmill for the purpose of making repairs, when he stumbled and fell. He was beyond all aid when help arrived. The scene of the accident is about four and a half miles north-west of Millbrook, on the Fallis line. The deceased, who is about sixty years of age, leaves a wife and family. Reeve A. J. Henderson, of Cavan Township, is a brother-in-law of the deceased.

OBITUARY

MRS. R. D. DUNDAS.

Margaret Grandy, widow of the late Richard D. Dundas, died last night, at the family residence, 86 London street, after an illness of some months' duration. In the death of Mrs. Dundas, the George street Methodist church has lost one of its most faithful members, and a woman whose Christian life has been an example to many.

She leaves of the immediate family one daughter, Marion, at home, two brothers, Joshua and Robert, of Springville, and three sisters, Mrs. Evans of Janetville, Mrs. Taylor, of Minneapolis, and Mrs. Grandy, of Oxbow, Sask.

The funeral (private) will take place to-morrow afternoon at one o'clock. Rev. Mr. Thomas will conduct the service at the house. Interment at the 9th line of Cavan cemetery.

MRS. TORRANCE JACK.

The death occurred in Toronto early on Monday morning of Mrs. Torrance Jack. Deceased was the wife of Mr. Torrance Jack, who is well known in Peterboro through his business associations with the Cordage Company. He is now associated with Mr. E. B. Fowler in the Canadian representation for the Hood-Haggie Company.

INDUSTRIAL EXHIBITION DIRECTORS' MEETING

Large Attendance of Members Last Evening—Work Going To Be Done

A meeting of the directors of the Peterborough Central Exhibition was held last evening in President Denne's office, and all members present agreed that the Fairs should be held throughout the Province as usual.

Mr. Reg. Turner presented a plan of an entrance to the grounds, on which estimates of the cost of the work will be procured and the work proceeded with.

The farmer members of the Board will be in on Tuesday next with their teams, scrapers, plows and other equipment to level the ground on which the midway has been located. It is the intention of the Board to take the pig pens down and build a new covered-in pen farther south, and to run the midway from the street railway gate all along the north side to the grandstand. The main building is also to be moved to another part in the grounds and repaired and decorated.

New Peterborough Citizen Honoured

MR. W. J. FERGUSON WAS PRESENTED WITH A GOLD-HEADED CANE.

LINDSAY, April 5. — A pleasing event took place in the court room of the Independent Order of Foresters, when Vice Chief Ranger, Bro. W. J. Ferguson was presented with a beautiful gold-headed cane by the members, as a token of esteem and a memento of merit for his good work in connection with the Lindsay court.

Bro. Babcock—Our loss will surely be Peterborough's gain. Our Court was never quite so good as now. Bro. Ferguson has always been a great help, especially at entertainments given by the Order. That Mr. Ferguson will be successful in his new position is doubtless.

Bro. C. Hughes—I will stand behind all that has been said of our worthy and reliable member and I will notify Peterborough Court of the abilities of this man so that the Order will be after him down there.

Bro. T. C. Matchett stated that he was one of the old regime and was sorry to see Mr. Ferguson leave town. I am assured that we thoroughly appreciated him, and that is a fine thing to take with him. I wish him every success.

Mr. Ferguson is removing to Peterborough, where he has accepted a position with the A. W. Cressman Co.

ALL THE BULL DURHAM FOR SOLDIERS' MAKIN'S

NEW YORK, April 4—The Government has taken over the entire output of the 'Bull-Durham' cigarette tobacco manufactured by the American Tobacco Company at the Company's factories at Durham, N.C., and will devote it to the needs of the American troops abroad, it was announced here. It was stated that the Government will pay the same price for the goods as domestic jobbers have been paying.

HERE THEY ARE

The Dressy New Spring Footwear that you are looking for and priced a lot lower than you expected to pay. We can show you the biggest values in town:

LADIES' GREY KID BOOTS — Several models, high tops, and the newest style heels. They are in three shades, pearl grey, battleship grey and sky blue. This is the very newest thing in ladies' footwear, and most in demand of any line for this spring. If you have priced this class of boots elsewhere, you will appreciate our very low prices—
$6.98 TO $8.98

LADIES' CHOCOLATE KID BOOTS — A new line of American boots, that got across the line just before the embargo was put in force. No more can come, and to see these is to want them. Better not delay, as our stock is limited. They are plain vamp, high top boot, Louis heel, with the new steel plates. They should sell at $10.00. Our price is only $7.98

LADIES' FINE BOOTS—Just received, a new lot of fine black vici kid boots, with 10 and 11-inch tops, high, Cuban and Sport heels. With the different style heels there is a boot to suit any taste. They sell regularly at $7.00. Our extra special price is only $4.98

MEN'S DRESS BOOTS—In chocolate and tony red, fine calf, Neolin and leather soles, Goodyear Welt, every boot guaranteed. We know you can't buy this boot anywhere else for less than $7.00, but we made a fortunate purchase and our price is only $5.98

BOYS' BOOTS—Just now, when rubbers are being discarded, you want a good solid wearing boot for the hard knocks the boys give them. This is a line of solid grained leather, and stout soles. They will give splendid satisfaction, and our Special price is only $2.98

MISSES' DRESS BOOTS—In high models, made of beautiful chocolate kid. This was the boot that sold at sight last week, just as we said it would, and we are offering it again for Saturday... Sizes 11 to 2. Price $3.98

MISSES BLACK BOOTS—In same style, for the Misses. Price $3.50

Attacks Repulsed.

Canadian Press:

BERLIN, Via London, April 5.—The War Office says the Allies tried to retake the heights around Moureil four different times, but each time were repulsed.

Enemy Made Progress.

LONDON, April 5.— South of the Somme the Germans launched heavy attacks. On the British front the enemy made progress in the direction of Hamel and the Bois De Vaire, the War Office reports.

ENGLISHMAN SAYS HE WAS 'FRAID TO FIGHT.

CHICAGO, April 3.—Mark L. Freeman is an Englishman and a coward. He was held under $10,000 bond by Lewis F. Mason, United States commissioner, after he had admitted it himself.

"I'm a coward, gentlemen," he said. "I was afraid to fight. I ran away from England."

Freeman, about 25 years old, well set up, wearing good clothes and wearing them well, had all the appearances of a prosperous young business man.

When a draft board investigated him, he claimed exemption rights on the ground that he is an alien. They wanted to know from what country he came, and when. He said he came from England in 1915.

Then they wanted to know if he entered this country in an irregular manner and if he was subject to deportation as an undesirable. They got from him that he was not on the "passenger list" of the ship he crossed the Atlantic on, and they satisfied themselves that he was not regularly admitted through Ellis Island.

The technical charge against Freeman is "evasion of the draft." He was told that the charges might be dropped against him if he would enlist. He said that he might enlist in the United States army, but never in the British army.

LABOUR RALLIES TO NATION'S AID

National Executive of the Workers' Unions Support War Cabinet

London, April 4.—While the socialist Independent Labour party has been engaged in Leicester in discussing the questions whether to withdraw its affiliation with the Labour party, and how to upset the War Cabinet, the Parliamentary Labour party, consisting of the National Executive of the Labour party and the Parliamentary Committee of the Trades Union Congress, have been conferring on methods of helping the nation and the government to repel the Germans. The latter announced, in view of uncertainties of the situation on the western front, the joint committee has decided to postpone a meeting which was to have been held in London on Tuesday for the purpose of inaugurating a national campaign in support of Labour's war aims and the policy of social reconstruction.

KRUPPS BUY PAPERS.

Confirmation of a despatch from France received in Washington, on Feb. 21, reporting that a German syndicate had obtained control of the leading newspapers in Bohemia, is found in German and Austrian Socialist papers recently received in London, which say that the Krupps and their fellow war mongers of the German steel and iron industry, not satisfied with bringing important newspapers in Germany within their sphere of influence, are now buying up the Austrian papers.

The Vienna Fremdenblatt and three of its subsidiary sheets, have been acquired, and conquests in the provinces, especially in Prague, are now projected. The Arbeiter-Zeitung, the Vienna Socialist organ, says:

"The policy of all these papers, so far as war or peace is concerned, is henceforth to be directed from Germany."

HUNS TAKE OVER OIL WELLS.

Germany Will Thereby Compensate Herself for Expense of War on Roumania.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—An agreement between Germany and Roumania calling for a German monopoly of the Roumanian oil wells for ninety-nine years as printed in Berlin, was reported to the State Department today from diplomatic sources. Germany thus will compensate herself, the report said, for the expenditure of a billion marks in waging war on Roumania. As a guaranteed Germany reserves the right to occupy the oil fields with her military.

GRAIN MARKET

The market for oats held practically steady at the sharp advances recorded Wednesday. A fractional change of 1-8c. lower marked the close at Winnipeg, cash oats at Fort William making a corresponding decline. Offerings of cash oats are still freely absorbed, and quite a considerable amount worked for export. Corn closed stronger at Chicago. An Ottawa despatch says:

The Canada Food Board has had under consideration the matter of excessive profiteering on the part of some unscrupulous dealers in seed corn. Seed inspectors throughout Eastern Canada are instructed carefully to study any inclination for the taking of excessive profits in the sale of seed of ensilage corn, and promptly to report same to the Canada Food Board.

CATTLE MARKET

Union Stock Yards— Receipts, 53 cars, with 502 cattle, 282 calves, 1,084 hogs, and 6 sheep and lambs.

There was a fair to good demand for choice and heavy cattle yesterday, but a lot of light small cattle in the market were apparently not wanted. Several commission firms had a few loads of light common cattle on hand for which they could scarcely find a bid. The market was very slow for the light stuff at prices 20 to 25 cents lower than earlier in the week.

Hogs were about steady with Wednesday, some of the shippers getting $20.50 fed and watered and a few getting $21. It was confidently stated by representatives of two of the largest packing houses that $20 will be the highest price for next week.

WARNING TO BAKERS.

Ottawa, April 4.—The Canada Food Board has issued a warning to bakers included under the license plan, who have not yet returned their license application forms, that such forms must be returned immediately.

It is now illegal for any person or persons using five barrels or more of flour per month to operate without a license, and unlicensed bakers are liable to heavy penalties, as provided by law. Bakers who have not yet received license application forms, should apply at once to the bakery section of the Canada Food Board.

The responsibility for securing such forms rests on the bakers, and the fact that a baker has not received such a form affords no protection to him against the penalties for operating with a license.

The Food Board also calls attention of millers and other licensed dealers in foodstuffs, to the fact that it is now illegal for them to trade with unlicensed bakers or other persons who are required to obtain a license from the Canada Food Board, but have failed to do so.

AT LAST THE DINNER

CHAPTER XXXIII.

Everything was finished. And it was perfect. Hating Mrs. Sexton as I did, I could not express a little gasp of admiration as I, in response to a call from George, joined him in the dining room a few moments before the arrival of our guests.

The predominant note of the decorations was a sort of bluish mauve. My dress blended perfectly with it. The table was lovely. And it was with something like a thrill of pride—in spite of my resentment—that I remembered I was the hostess. That my guests would not know that I had had no share in all this.

"Very good, isn't it?" George said as he moved a glass a trifle.

"It's beautiful!" I responded thinking to please him.

"I'm glad that at last you appreciate Mrs. Sexton. Thanks to her the dinner will be a success in every way. She is an artist at this sort of thing."

I was saved the necessity of a reply by the entrance of our guests.

As the dinner progressed I felt gratefuI to George for hiring James. He served the various courses perfectly. I had nothing to do but talk to Mr. Loring and "look pretty," as he said, commenting upon the efficiency of my butler.

An Unkind Speech.

Only once during the dinner did anything happen to disturb me, although I never had been so bored in my life. Some one complimented the arrangements of some orchids and Madge Loring said:

"I did not know you were an artist, Mrs. Howard. And it takes an artist to arrange flowers as these are arranged."

"Mr. Howard attends to those things," I replied without thinking.

"I might have known!" she returned, flashing a glance full of understanding at him.

"I knew he was angry with me but he smiled at her and returned. "Mrs. Howard is too modest. She is very artistic in all her ideas,' then changed the subject, and I was not again embarrassed while at dinner.

But when I gave the signal for the ladies to rise — I had been coached by Mrs. Sexton —and we were by ourselves in the drawing room. Madge Loring again referred to both the dinner and the decorations:

"Really was the idea your own, Mrs. Howard, and did you make up the menu? Everything was delicious, and I am green with envy because of the decorations. No matter what I pay, I never have been able to achieve such results."

There was a hush, the women all listening for my answer.

"You heard what Mr. Howard said; but you must not give me all the credit," I said bravely; "he is wonderful in his ideas, and such a help at entertaining." I finished, gaining courage as I went on. Courage, to keep from these women that I had nothing to do with a dinner which now I had to own had been far beyond my capabilities.

But in the same moment that I acknowledged this, I determined that I would learn. That it would not be long before I would be able to give just as wonderful a dinner as could Mrs. Sexton; that I too would learn to be a past master of the art of entertaining.

When the men joined us we were chatting gaily. That is, the guests were. I had scarcely spoken, save to answer some questions.

Music.

Shortly after the men joined us I was surprised to hear Mr. Loring ask if I would not play for them. He had spoken to George. George looked at his watch, then said:

"Yes, there will be just about time." Then, "Helen, Mr. Loring wishes you to play for him. Will you do so?"

I was delighted. That George thought me able to play well enough to entertain his guests, gave me all the confidence in myself I might otherwise have lacked. So I played several selections, then rose from the piano, and was almost overwhelmed by their congratulations.

"It will be a great addition to our crowd to have so finished a musician among us," Julia Collins remarked. "We are so busy, no one has time to keep up their music."

Just then a harpist and violinist, both famous, whom George had hired to entertain our guests arrived; and after a few moments a Spanish dancer came in and piroutted around the room light as a feather, and, stopping before George, blew him a kiss from her finger tips.

I was amazed. No one had even mentioned the fact that we were to have professional entertainers for our guests. Neither George or Mrs. Sexton had thought it necessary. Once again my entire evening was spoiled. The compliments, the praise of my playing was as ashes in my mouth. I had not been considered of enough consequence to be even told of their plans, let alone being consulted.

BE READY FOR EMERGENCIES.

The best way is to always keep a bottle of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine in the house, ready for emergencies. Then when croup or colds come suddenly they can be promptly cured before they have time to reach an acute and dangerous stage. To meet this requirement we have put the syrup up in family size bottles which contain nearly three times as much as the 25-cent bottle and sell at 60 cents.

New Merchant Marine Of the United States Will Create Competition

ONE of the most striking facts suddenly emphasized by the exigencies of war was the wide dependence of the whole world on the British merchant service for its international trade.

The fact had always been there, but so smoothly and efficiently had British shipowners managed their business, that the world was content to leave the bulk of the transport trade across the ocean highways in their hands. Then came the war, and suddenly a large percentage—which has grown in proportion during the last three years—of British shipping was withdrawn from trade and devoted to purposes of war.

Traders in far distant ports suddenly found themselves cut off from their customers for lack of tonnage, and the whole business of ocean-carrying had to be reviewed in the light of the new and unprecedented crisis. Freights went up by leaps and bounds, and the world over wharves and warehouses were stocked with goods which had suddenly been rendered immobile.

The United States was for a time particularly hard hit. Only about 14 per cent. of her international trade was carried by American ships. Of the rest, over 50 per cent. was carried in British ships while the remaining 36 per cent. was carried by the ships of other nations. The bulk of this 36 per cent. was carried in German ships and within a week or two of war the British navy had made the seas particularly unhealthy for them.

Relief was brought to some extent to the critical situation caused in American international trade by this sudden withdrawal of transport facilities by the diversion of British ships from elsewhere to the Atlantic trade. The United States was a source of supplies essential to the successful prosecution of the war and every effort was made to see that sufficient transport was available for the purpose. You cannot provide ships where they do not exist, however, and the strain of war, the destruction of ships and other causes have all had their effect in reducing the amount of tonnage.

To-day the United States is engaged in laying the foundation of a great mercantile marine. British shipowners realize that the efforts now being made are something more than the many agitations which have risen and died down in the United States on this subject during the past twenty years. They realize that after the war British dominance in the ocean-carrying trade of the world will be challenged seriously, and they are wondering what the outcome will be.

It is estimated that during the years immediately prior to the war, the world was paying Britain anything from $500,000,000 to $750,000,000 a year for service. — H. S. Oakley, London Economic Expert.

The Eyes In the Sky.

The first war use of airplanes was for spying upon the enemy. Mounted patrols used to do this work. They would try to gain some height from which they could look down upon the opposing army and size up its forces. But the airplane proved far superior to any other form of scouting, because it gave the scout an unobstructed view of the surrounding country for miles and he could see just what the enemy was doing. He could see whether large forces of men were collecting anywhere for a drive at some particular point. He could locate the artillery of the enemy and discover his weak spots. And so it came about that there was a complete change in warfare. The surprise movements that used to play such an important part in former days are a thing of the past. No general of to-day can expect to spring a surprise on the enemy as long as there are enemy eyes in the sky.

Modern long-range guns are placed far behind the battle-line. They may be as much as five or six miles behind their own lines, well concealed in some wood or back of a hill. The gunners cannot see what they are firing upon, but their aim is directed by a spotter in some observation post, such as a captive balloon or a tall tree. But the best observation post is one that can take wing and soar over the enemy during a bombardment. From such a post the spotter can see just what his own artillery are doing, and he can signal back when a shell goes beyond or falls short of the mark. Such airplanes are constantly prowling around in search of suspicious objects for the big guns to shoot at.—A. Russell Bond in St. Nicholas.

It Pleased His Wife.

Talking of titles and the excuse put forward by those who accept them that refusal would disappoint their wives, the best story on this subject is that told of the Duke of Rutland, who happened to be Irish Viceroy at the end of the eighteenth century. He knighted an inn-keeper named Rafferty with all due formalities in a drunken frolic one night. Repentance came with the morning, and he sent for his late host and told him that it was, of course, "a joke—and let it be forgotten, Pat." "Yer excellency," said Pat, "I don't care a thraneen meself about the ould titl, but Lady Rafferty would not dhrame of dhropping it." And the title had to stand.

Tried Slang.

There is a good story about Dr. Butler and a modern slang expression which, quite unaware of its meaning, he served back on its user in an altogether startling fashion. It was at a meeting addressed by a member of the University Mission in London. Dr. Butler was in the chair, and he dozed off not long after the address had begun, but not before he had heard the speaker say that the men who at athletics could be described as "regular rotters," were often quite successful at mission work. At the close of the address, waked by the cheering, Dr. Butler proceeded to thank the speaker and described him, "to use his own homely phrase," as a "regular rottar" in the subject on which he had been addressing them, an opinion with which he said he felt sure the whole audience would concur. The story goes no further.

MARINE CAMOUFLAGE

SHIPS ARE PAINTED TO MAKE THEM HARD TO HIT.

The Allied Experts Discovered That There Was No Way of Painting the Vessels So That They Would Escape Observation, But They Have Adopted Other Tactics for Naval Protection.

Of all the aspects of war the one that has had the most fascination for the public is camouflage. The word—comparatively little used in France, where it originated—has spread across this country like a new piece of slang.

Camouflage (the spontaneous way in which the word has been welcomed in Canada is seen in the fact that it has long ceased to appear in italics, or with quotation marks, to indicate that it is an immigrant) is of two kinds—landscape camouflage, for the benefit of troops in the field, and marine camouflage, for the protection of ships at sea. It is marine camouflage in which the Canadian public has become chiefly interested, because it is that which is helping in the fight against the German submarine, and it is that which comes nearest home in the piebald and mottled ships which are now to be seen in most of our Atlantic ports.

For some time the public was mystified in regard to the methods and purposes of marine camouflage, but the idea has finally been accepted that the art is to combine colors on a ship's hull so that at a distance they will melt into a hue that will render the vessel invisible against sky and sea. This corresponds roughly to what is known in the animal world as protective coloration.

But just as the public is settling down to this theory, the men who are evolving marine camouflage are coming to the conclusion that the invisible ship is impracticable, and are turning to quite another idea. The uninitiated observer, viewing in one of the harbors of our eastern seaboard, a vessel spotted with great patches of vivid and contrasting color, must have remarked to himself in a puzzled way:

"If that ship is invisible to an enemy submarine, the Germans must have mighty poor eyesight."

The truth is that such a ship is not invisible to a German submarine—and does not pretend to be. The great majority of transatlantic mail and passenger liners—which represent the latest ideas in camouflage—are painted not primarily with a view to making them invisible, but with the object of making them hard to hit after they have been sighted by a submarine. In other words, the unhittable rather than the invisible ship is the goal of the newest camouflage.

The application of scientific camouflage to merchant ships is barely six months old. It followed soon after Germany's announcement of unrestricted submarine warfare and the consequent necessity of protection against it. The first thought was naturally to render a vessel as little visible as possible, but changes in submarine warfare, combined with knowledge gained through experiment, have transformed the art. Two reasons have been chiefly responsible for turning the men engaged in devising marine camouflage from the invisible to the unhittable ship.

The first is the equipping of German submarines with detectors which reveal the proximity of another vessel by the vibrations of its propeller in the water. The microphone had been demonstrated before the war as a practicable means of warning steamships, by means of sound transmitted through the water, of the proximity of lighthouses or buoys in time of fog, but the distance at which the instrument was effective was not great. Within the last six months allied naval officers have become convinced that German submarines are equipped with a highly-perfected detector that reveals the presence of another vessel probably as far away as five miles. This renders largely valueless the effort to disguise a ship so that it can slip by a submarine unseen.

The other reason that militates against the invisible, or as it is technically called, the low visibility ship, is the realization that on a single voyage a vessel is exposed to such a variety of contradictory conditions that no color scheme can hide her except for part of the time. For instance, anybody can demonstrate for himself that when a vessel is between him and the sun—in other words, when the ship is in shadow—it will appear as a dark mass, no matter how it is painted. Strictly speaking, there is only one position when one gets the desired effect from a ship that is painted so as to melt into one color at a distance. That is when the observer is directly between the sun and the vessel. Let the sun move to the right or the left, and shadows will be thrown upon the ship by its deckhouses, boats, funnels, and the like that will interfere with the color scheme by which invisibility is sought.

Still more disconcerting perhaps than the problems raised by the ever-changing position of the sun are those arising from the fact that the sun is not always shining. Obviously it requires a different color to hide a ship against a background of blue sky and sea on a sunny day from that called for in cloudy weather.

What, then, can one hope to accomplish by camouflage?

The latest conception treats low visibility as a secondary consideration, seeking primarily to destroy the form and character of a vessel, and so make her hard to hit, even though her presence may be evident to the waiting submarine. This is accomplished by the use of large masses of contrasting color which at a distance give the impression of shadow where none exist, and distract the eye from those that do exist. Sometimes an attempt is made to give a ship a false bow or stern. Sometimes the aim is to break her in two. The fundamental idea is to destroy all lines and all contour. Vessels so treated frequently look at a distance as if they had great holes in their hulls. They have the aspects of derelicts or ships that have been wrecked by bombardment from enemy guns.

The object of destroying the lines and contour of a ship is twofold:—

1. It makes it hard for the submarine to gauge the distance between her and the vessel.

2. It renders it difficult to determine from the submarine how the steamship is heading.

Apparently German submarines do not use range-finders—the usual instrument for measuring the distance to another vessel. In shelling a ship they depend on "spot firing." That is, they begin shooting their guns until they get them on the target. In any event, it is certain that a range-finder cannot be used when a submarine is submerged and dependent on a periscope. This means that in discharging a torpedo the human eye must be relied upon to estimate the distance of a steamship and also the direction in which it is heading. The latter is of small consequence in shellfire but is essential with a torpedo, which takes an appreciable time to reach its goal, and must be aimed far enough ahead of a vessel to allow for this.

It ought to be said here that the danger to transatlantic vessels from shellfire has been vastly reduced within the last six months. The mail steamships are sufficiently fast and well armed so that they have every chance either to run away or sink a submarine before it can come to the surface and get its guns into action. The slower cargo boats now almost all sail under convoy, and so are virtually immune from submarine attack by means of shell-fire.

SEA-WATER BREAD.

Rolls Made With Sea Water Remain Fresh For a Week.

It has long been a custom in certain parts of France to make up the dough for bread with sea-water instead of using, as is customary, fresh water with the addition of the salt required to make the bread both healthful and appetizing. Mr. Albert St. Serin, a French naval pharmacist of the first class, urges the wider adoption of this practice, which has, according to him, several advantages: The bread keeps moist longer, owing to the affinity for water possessed by the magnesium chloride sea-water contains; it is very wholesome, since it provides not only the chlorides of sodium and magnesium, but other mineral substances which the body can make use of. In a communication to the Revue Scientific (Paris) he says:

"By way of reducing the traffic movement of salt, it is highly desirable that there should be legislation authorizing bakers in coast towns to make use of sea-water. Rolls made with sea-water are said to remain fresh for more than a week. During a journey of five months made from Havre to San Francisco, in a sailing vessel carrying 100 passengers and a crew of 25, exclusive use was made of such bread, and there was not a single case of illness on board."

The water must be collected at a suitable distance from land and should be taken from a depth of six or seven yards, if possible. The yeast must be prepared with fresh water, and the salt water used for mixing the dough. Along the English Channel and the Atlantic Ocean the water is of suitable salt content to be used directly. Mediterranean water, however, has a salt content so much higher that it is advisable to use one part of fresh water to three parts of salt water. The French writer adds:

"Bread made with sea-water, useful for everybody, is to be specially recommended for growing children, for convalescents, and for all those who need to repair the wastes due to fever or to hard labor."—Tit-Bits.

Ancient Plots.

"Cinderella" was originally a solar myth—that is, a story in which the sun our ancestors worshipped was the chief character. It was told to explain why the sun moves across the sky, and was one of the "just-so stories of prehistoric times.

In those days Cinderella was the dawn, with pale-gold hair, and dress like gossamer, trimmed with rainbows.

Every morning she swept over the sky and left no trace of darkness, sweeping it all away into the corners of the heavens. But once she dropped one of her shoes as she went and the sun, who being always behind her, had never seen her, was so enamored of the shoe that he was out to catch the owner. So he has followed her across the sky ever since.

"Little Red Riding Hood" comes under exactly the same category. Originally, the little girl in the "Chapeau Rouge"—the name the French call the story—is the dawn, the little girl with her red bonnet is the sun itself, and the woods and fields she traverses are the heavens, which the sun passes over every day.

It is easy to guess the symbolism of the rest of the story, for it is obvious that the grandmother's cottage is the evening, and the wolf, whose black maw devours granny and child together, is the dark and frightening night.

Use Cocoanut Oil For Washing Hair

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else, that contains too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Just plain mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy, lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at most any drug store. It is very cheap and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.

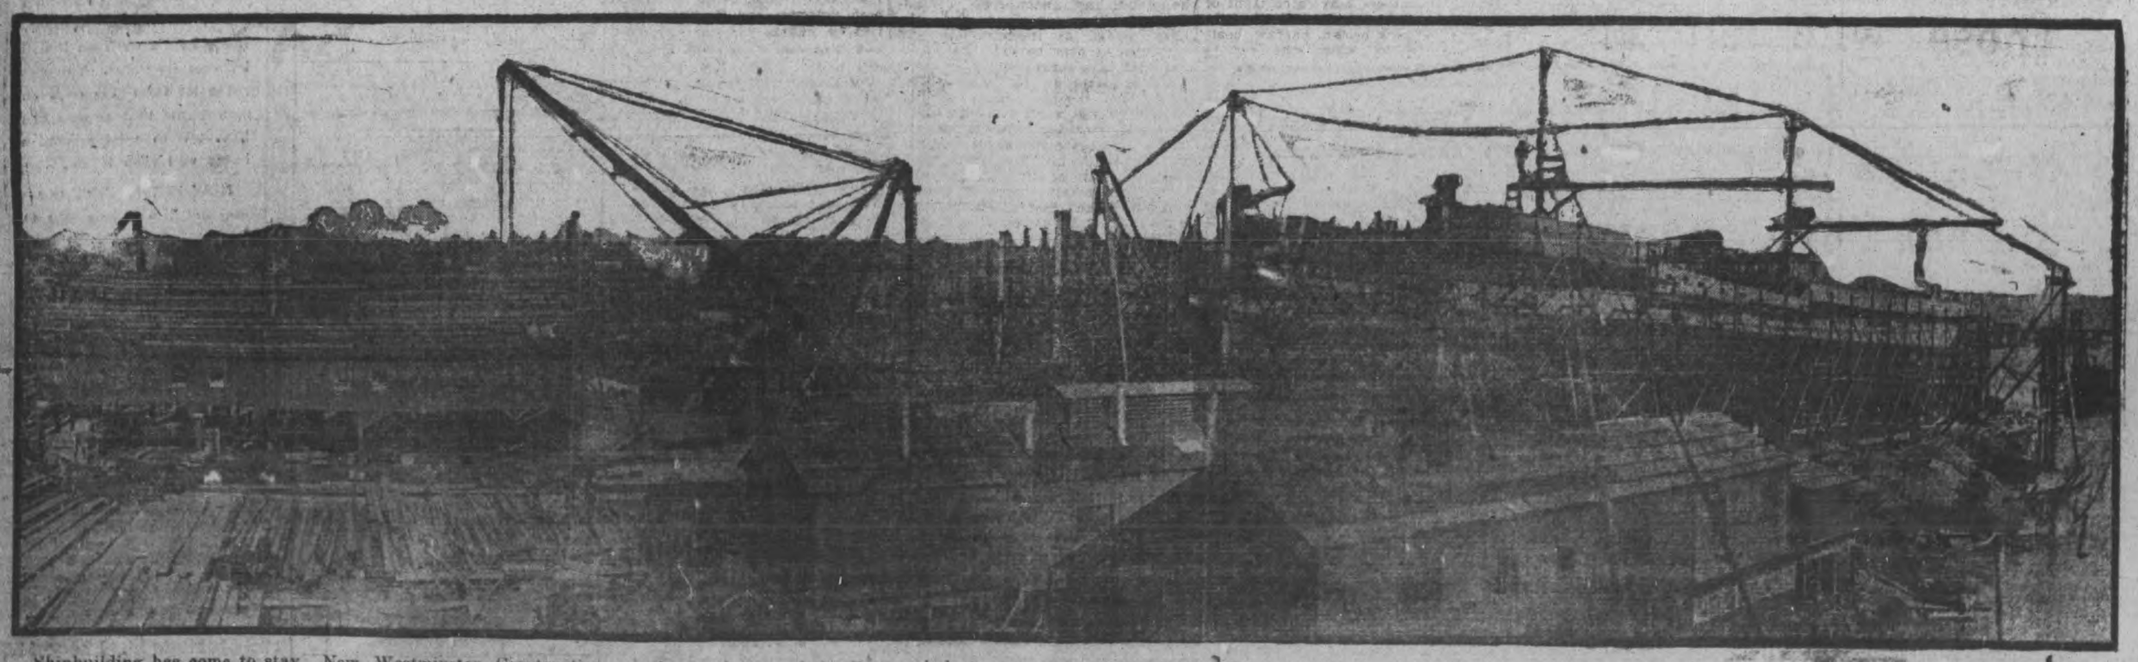
CANADA HELPING ALLIES TO INCREASE SHIPPING TONNAGE



Shipbuilding has come to stay in British Columbia as a leading industry, and amongst the cities prominent in the construction of vessels is New Westminster. The New Westminster Construction and Engineering Company was incorporated on June 13th, 1917. Work was started soon afterwards at the Poplar Island yards, on the north arm of the Fraser River. The company secured the contract from the Imperial Munitions Board for the building of four wooden ships. The infant industry sprung to adult proportions in a very short time, and now it employs 300 men, earning a salary of $78,000 a month. This payroll has swelled the monthly payroll of the city's ten prominent industries to between $225,000 and $275,000. The name of the first of the four vessels to be launched is "War Comox." Its convenient situation and its proximity to the great timber forests of the province make New Westminster specially adapted for the new sphere of activity on which she has embarked.

NEW FOOD RULES ELIMINATE WASTE AND SPECULATION

Produce Merchants Are Limited As to Amounts They May Store—Holding Excessive Quantities After Period of Scant Production Now Illegal.

CUTS OUT HOARDING AND PROFITEERING

OTTAWA, April 5.—New regulations of far-reaching importance, prepared by the Canada Food Board and effective from yesterday, will eliminate the speculative element from the Canadian produce business. The Food Board's order definitely limits the quantities of produce which a dealer may own, or have in storage for his account, to his reuirements and also makes it impossible for him to carry larger quantities of food than are required to provide for his Canadian trade requirements during the season of scant production or supply. The holding of excessive quantities of produce in storage after the expiration of the period of scant production is thus made illegal and subject to heavy penalties.

MONTHLY RETURNS REQUIRED.

Monthly reports giving details of supplies on hand, volume of business, profits, etc., will be required. In thus made illegal and subject to heavy profiteering will be impossible, and the possibility of waste will be kept to the lowest possible point.

The order requires that no person shall own or hold meats, lard or butter in greater quantities than are reasonably necessary to supply the dealer's own Canadian trade requirements for a period of sixty days, unless permission in writing is first obtained from the Food Board.

No person will be permitted after December 1st, in each year, to own or hold more eggs than are necessary to supply his own Canadian trade requirements until March 1st, or this year. On March 1st he must have not more than sufficient for fifteen days' requirements.

Holdings of butter are similarly limited to the quantities necessary to supply the dealer's own Canadian trade requirements until May 1st in each year, on which date he must not have more than sufficient for fifteen days' requirements.

CHEESE, POULTRY RESTRICTED

With cheese holdings are limited to requirements during the period of scant production, that is until June 1st in each year, on which date the dealer must not have more than thirty days' supply.

Holdings of poultry must not exceed the dealer's own Canadian requirements until September 1st in each year, on which date the dealer must not have more than thirty days' supply.

Similar restrictions are imposed on holdings of canned or condensed, evaporated or powdered milk, the period of scant production for the purposes of the order expiring on May 1st.

What Physicians Prescribe For Nerves

THE USE OF ORGANIC PHOSPHORUS.

Something over sixty years ago Pelous, a French scientist, discovered a form of organic phosphorus which when taken into the human system, was quickly converted into nerve tissue.

To-day it is an admitted fact that in the treatment of those ailments, directly or indirectly due to depleted nervous vitality, such as neurasthenia, nervous weakness, premature old age, insomnia, lack of energy, fatigue, nervous debility, thinness, etc., it is unequalled.

Physicians and hospitals everywhere now recognize its merits by its use in ever increasing quantities, and it is therefore a matter of more than ordinary interest to all such sufferers to learn that this organic nerve building phosphorus is now obtainable from McDermid & Jury and good druggists everywhere in the form of 5-grain tablets of pure nitro-phosphate, at a cost so low as to be within the reach of everyone. There are a great variety of so-called phosphates, but the genuine standard nitro-phosphate is composed wholly of the original nerve building substance as discovered by Pelous.

One of these tablets should be taken with each meal, and the results in many instances are little short of marvellous. Dull eyes become bright, sleep is restored to the sleepless, the nerves regain their strength, thin people put on flesh and the whole system becomes charged with that strength, vitality and energy which makes life so truly worth while.

DRIVING CATTLE BY MOTOR

Stock Dealer Introduces Innovation Which May Sooner or Later Relegate Broncho to Background.

A new use for a motorcar has been found by a cattle dealer in one of the middle western states, whose business compels him to drive extensive herds of meat on the hoof along the roads, says an exchange. During the hottest part of last summer this purveyor determined to drive his animals by night in order to spare them the inevitable suffering that attended such operations in the middle of the day. Getting in his car, he started the herd ahead of him in the road, and by throwing the searchlight before and honking his horn he kept the animals moving quickly in the compact mass.

There are instances of the use of the motorcar in round-up work in the far West, so that the traditional picture of a cowboy astride a bucking broncho may have to give way to one of that leather-breeched gentleman cuddled down into the wheel of a flexible runabout, his lasso presumably dangling over the windshield.

ABOUT THE PRAIRIES

JACK CANUCK'S 1,000-MILE-LONG FARM.

A Part of Our Dominion That Has Been Over-exploited, But Which Can Be the "Granary of the World" — It Is Not Beautiful But Contains Riches.

ALPHONSE KARR, that delightful master of irony and and sentiment, of fancy and good sense, used to say of the little Mediterranean town, where he wintered that it was the proscenium to the Riviera. In the same way Port Arthur of the mighty grain elevators is the proscenium to the Canadian prairies, or John Canuck's thousand-mile-long farm. The West sends to this treasure house its golden grain, and the grim walls and bastions of these monster structures swallow whole trainloads of the golden harvest. Dust rises in clouds through iron gratings. Big wooden frames, fitted with hoppers, shed wheat like molten gold. Trays, on which the grain keeps up a wild jig, move ecstatically to and fro to cleanse it of all impurities.

For countless miles beyond stretches the prairie on its long journey to the setting sun. The road that threads it is lined by a strip of wire fence, under which the defiant prairie grass creeps into the roadway and cheerfully sprouts all over it. The ground in the offing rises and falls in huge, faintly roseate undulations, narrowing one's horizon down sometimes to the limits of a ten-acre field, or widening it to infinitude. At times, limp wire, twisted into the travesty of a gate, swings a thin thread of prohibition across one's path. In places, however, the road expands into a broad, field-fringed highway, leaping straight as an arrow across the illimitable plain. Unconcerned as to the town, farmer or the humble homesteader, housed in his lonely shack by the ploughed fire guard, it seems conscious of being some harbinger of empire, a link in the chain of highways with which Britain has sought to belt the world. A hundred or more feet wide, neither settlement nor town can stop it, as, bursting with space and dominion, it careers through the heart of a town. But at last there comes a day when its fortunes are temporarily halted by the bane and the glory of the prairie, gumbo mud!

Gumbo, black, sticky, unfathomable! Gumbo of the stored-up wealth, gumbo that will grow anything and go on growing it for years and years without rotation of crops or fertilizer! Gumbo of which the illuminating story goes that a head was seen moving along the highway, just above the level of the mud. An innocent "newcomer," astonished by this extraordinary spectacle, demanded of the head whither it was going, only to receive the somewhat bored explanation: "Can't you see, I'm riding horseback to Winnipeg?"

Land values have gone up by leaps and bounds since the exhilarating days when the prairie was pegged out for the citizens that were not and the town of canvas sprang up in a night. To-day, the comfortable brick residence and the trim garden dominate cities like Winnipeg. They seem to have been consciously built for a future of which the present has not got the measure. The streets are wide and smooth, and the broad avenues are boulevarded with rows of trees. There are no mean thoroughfares, and soon there will be no such things as a shanty amid the palatial hotels and Government buildings.

Outside the town, on the open prairie, where the gumbo may remorselessly lurk, wheat as far as the eye can see! Wheat that seems to march forever and ever from the dawn to the land of the golden sunset. Nearby, perhaps, is a tangle of bush and swamp, here and there alkali outcroppings, that cause the earth around a small pond or "sloo" to glisten white in the tempered sun. At one moment one congratules himself on the dryness of the region, at another one is splashed from head to foot by the generous prairie mud. Now and again there are patches of virgin prairie, dotted with bushes of the barberry kind and carpeted with the ever rarer prairie grass, through which run the tracks of wheels marking the typical, neglected trail of the pioneer. Crossing it at right angles, the observant eye may catch sight of that wonder of wonders, the buffalo "trace," a dark brown, narrow, beaten path along which the buffalo marched in single file from "wallow" to grazing ground.

But it is the primitive trail that is the fascination, the glory of the prairie. Sometimes it runs into the stubble or takes a peep into the back door of the lonely homesteader. But always it makes its impression on the imagination, lifting a man above any littleness that may be clinging to him. For it is the virgin path along which the coureur de bois gayly took his way and which the pioneer christened by toil. Gamboling gophers scamper on every side to their holes by the burrowing badger, prairie chickens rise with a wiry sound of their wings or run into cover of a dell, a coyote skulks along in the mid-distance, and a porcupine waddles along the trail in search of his quarters for the night.

At last the march of the prairies is at an end. The indigo ramparts of the Rockies impose their will. For all those thousand miles there has been little but the gold of the wheat, the silver of the prairies, and the wondrous rise of the ever flanking hills. Hardly a moment more, and the transformation will come. The prairies themselves will narrow and focus upon the black, forbidding passes to the higher plateaus, leaving behind them that unforgettable panorama of farm and ranch, but and the "sloo," the gopher and "chicken," which make up the "granary of the world."

George Lane of Alberta

JUST as people may say truthfully that some men have woven the fabric of their country's history, and that the story of their lives is the truest record of a nation's growth, so it is equally true that other great men, known sometimes as builders, are the products rather than the moulders of their land, and to understand them is to feel the spirit of the forest, or the field, or the sea. Canada, which is still a country of pioneers, owns largely the latter class. Of the greater part of this vast Dominion may it still be said:

"Wild and wide are my burdens,
stern as death is my sway;
And I wait for the men who will win me—and I will not be won in a day."

It is not inappropriate, therefore, that Canadians should be introduced to a man who is a pioneer in the distant foothills of Alberta, and one to whom that expansive region of the country has spoken "as a mother speaks," and given lavishly of its treasure. He is a great, tall, lanky man, who, even at sixty years of age, appears more at home in the saddle than on foot. He usually wears an old, battered Stetson hat, which completely hides a remarkable brow and a shrewd, twinkling pair of blue eyes. Expressive lines mark a face of strength and character, born of the solitude and power of that massive, scenic country which lies along the eastern slopes of the Rocky Mountains. This is Mr. George Lane, the millionaire rancher and farmer of Alberta.

Pauline Johnson, the Indian poetess, has described the far western rangeland in colorful words:

"Foothills to the Rockies lifting,
Brown and blue and green;
Warm Alberta sunlight drifting
Over leagues between."

I always think of that verse when the picture of George Lane comes into my mind. He suggests in some indescribable way the breezy prairie and the wide rolling hills of his own Bar U ranch, which lies some twenty-five miles west of the little town of High River, almost within the shadow of the first range of the mountains. There are over forty thousand acres within the bounds of the Bar U ranch, and coursing through the very centre of it, fresh from the ice and snow of the Rockies, is the Pekisko River. Thousands of cattle and hundreds of horses, sheep and swine feed upon the rich pasturage and crops of the Bar U every years. Beautiful pure-bred Percheron horses, whose sires were brought from the famous La Perche Valley in France, are the pride of the ranch. Mr. Lane's hobby has been Percheron horses, and he has now the largest individual establishment of these animals in the world. It is not necessary to enumerate the various possessions which go to make up his great heritage. He has grain farms as well as cattle ranches, and grows thousands of bushels of wheat and oats every season. He is the ruler of an estate which would form a kingdom in the eyes of the old world of feudal lords.

And just thirty-four years ago this man was a cowboy, herding cattle on the hills of southern Alberta for other people. At sixteen years of age, young Lane trecked across the plains from his home in Kansas to Montana, in the trail of a ranching outfit. Before railways had cut across the west, and fences were built to mark the boundary lines of new farms, he had ridden across the border into Canada to work on the fresh, sweet grass ranges of Alberta. As success is rated, he has been phenomenally successful. Alone, and by dint of sheer ability, this producer of meats and cereals climbed the ladder of achievement. Unsupported by any organization, he dealt with railways, banks and factories, all of whom have their systems of protection and aggression in the competitive field of business. His experience during the past thirty-four years is eloquent of the possibilities of Canada as a place where men of keen brains and energy may succeed.

If one were to ask George Lane to-day his prescription for success, he would say undoubtedly, "Vigilance and hard work." At sixty Mr. Lane works as industriously and carefully as ever he did. But he is now largely a supervisor of the work which experts do for him on his farms and ranches. He is a close student of the world's markets, and the wide extent of his trading has made him regard the whole world as his friend. To him, free trade is the precious elixir of life. In the large eastern financial centres of Canada and the United States, which he always visits at the outset of each year, this man of the land is well known and well received. Parliamentary honors have been offered to him in the west, but he has avoided them. In his own Alberta country no man is more honored or respected, and it is his particular boast that he has never been engaged in a law suit.

As a successful Canadian, George Lane pays due homage to the country which has given him all he owns. Alberta has made him, and in return that portion of Canada receives the benefit of his devoted patriotism, which is not the brand known as "the last refuge of scoundrels."—The Globe.

He Was Unlucky.

Private Jones was doing his first guard duty. An officer approached and Jones failed to salute. The officer halted and said pompously, "My man, do you know who I am?" Jones admitted his ignorance. "I'm a colonel," the officer said. Jones grinned and said, "Gee, you were lucky. They made me just a private."

DON'T FRET ABOUT TRIFLES

Magnifying Petty Mistakes and Troubles Weakens One's Ability to Master Bigger Problems.

Some of us rather overdriven women get into a habit of magnifying the petty mistakes or troubles of disagreeable events of the day, the business day and making them out very big and terrible. The result is a loss of energy, for magnified troubles bring worry and anxiety, which is a sort of poison to the mind and even to the body, writes Jessie Roberts in the Houston Post.

Don't hang on to the mistakes of yesterday. Today's will be easier to manage if you haven't that drag on you, and by a little more firmness you can soon get to the point when the annoyance of the moment gets itself settled in that moment and then is dropped.

We would think it a fool thing to feed our body poison, even in the minutest particles; but we feed our nerves poison, even though it be in small quantities, when we deliberately fret and worry over small things, making them huge and important by the mere turning of them over and over.

These are strenuous days. Don't weaken your strength by unnecessary and harmful fussing over trifles. After you have done whatever can be done to remedy what has gone wrong, turn your mind away from it. Refuse to be dominated by small mistakes. Few of us, by the way, are terrified by a really big thing. We rouse up and meet it definitely and firmly, unless we have a yellow streak. But the small thing often breaks down our nerves—and then our nerve.

Honored Their Comrades.

A few days ago Canada in France paid reverent tribute to the memory of the Canadian gunners who fell in action during the Vimy Ridge operations, Gen. Currie unveiling a memorial erected to the gallant dead by the Canadian corps artillery.

Jerusalem's Great Walls.

After 1244 Jerusalem was under the rule of the sultans of Egypt until the year 1517, when Selim I conquered both Palestine and Egypt, taking the title of caliph, and carrying off the sacred banner of the Moslems to Constantinople. Selim's son, Suleiman the Magnificent, once more built the great walls about Jerusalem. These walls of Suleiman are the present fortifications of the city. But the great walls of Suleiman the Magnificent are only the last of a long series of walls which, time after time, have been built only to be destroyed. The most tragical destruction not only of the walls, but also of the whole city, was that which was carried out by the Roman armies of Titus, in the year 70 of our era, in the reign of the Emperor Vespasian.

THE EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

The Patterns Are Guaranteed to Give Excellent Satisfaction

LADY'S SURPLICE WAIST.

A very unusual way of setting in a vest is shown in No. 8752. The fronts of the waist are cut out to form a square, and the vest fills in this space and appears again above the point of the collar. The fronts of the waist extend into the girdle, which buttons at the back. The narrow shawl collar matches the vest. The long sleeves are set in without fulness and they are gathered into deep cuffs which have graceful points extending over the hands. The short sleeves may be used if preferred. Taffeta, charmeuse, crêpe de Chine or silk poplin will be suitable for this waist.

The lady's surplice waist, pattern No. 8752 is cut in four sizes—36 to 42 inches bust measure. As on the figure, the 36 inch size requires 2½ yards 36 inch, 2 yards 36 inch or 1¾ yards 40 inch material, with one-half yard 36 inch contrasting goods.

This Pattern Can Be Obtained From the Examiner Office on Payment of 15 Cents.

USED FOR SHAVING.

Many men are troubled, more particularly in the cold weather, with a sort of roughness of the skin or eczema caused by shaving. The application of Dr. Chase's Ointment after the shave soon cures the trouble and by using it after each shave you keep the skin soft and prevent irritation and soreness. Because of its antiseptic qualities this ointment prevents and cures Barber's Itch.

ANDREW WILSON & CO. TORONTO AND MONTREAL

GERMAN EAST AFRICA.

One of the Youngest Colonies In the World.

As far as annals are concerned, German East Africa is a very young country. Until the middle of the nineteenth century only the coast and of the territory was known, either to Europeans or to the Arabs. The Arabs, indeed, were the first people in possession, and when the Portuguese, stretching out hands of dominion in all directions, as they did during the fifteen and sixteenth centuries, arrived in due course, on the east coast of Africa, they found the Arab everywhere in power. The hold of the Portuguese on the country was never firm, never extended very far over the vast unknown hinterland to the west, and when they finally took their departure, in the early years of the eighteenth century, the Arabs returned, like water to an old water course. All the coast towns, north of Cape Delgado, the present southern limit of German East Africa, fell under the sway of the Arabs of Muscat, and, later on, under that of the Sultan of Zanzibar.

Now, the Arabs of Zanzibar were apparently more enterprising than the Arabs of Muscat. They had a strong penchant for exploration. From about 1830, or even earlier, they began to penetrate inland, and, by 1850, had established themselves at Ujiji, on the eastern shore of Lake Tanganyika, a name which has figured prominently in the events of the last two years. The Arabs also penetrated as far as Nyasa to the south, and the result of all this was that the Sultan of Zanzibar began to make vague claims to include all this vast country within his dominions.

In those days it was nobody's business in particular, but, of all the powers, the United Kingdom was, of course, most nearly concerned, as Zanzibar was in a state of semi-dependence on India. When, however, the Sultan Bargash, through Sir William Mackinnon, offered to lease the whole territory to Great Britain, the offer was declined. Shortly afterwards, largely owing to the explorations of Stanley, a movement was set on foot for the partition of Africa amongst the powers. Germany desired territory on the east coast, but British influence was so strong at Zanzibar that the German Colonization Society determined to accomplish its purpose secretly. The result was the famous exploit of the three young Germans, Karl Peters, Joachim Count Pfeil, and Dr. Juehlke. Making their way inland, they got into touch with the chief Usambara, and induced him to sign a treaty with them, and to declare his independence of the Sultan of Zanzibar. Other treaties quickly followed, and, early in 1885, the German Emperor granted a charter of protection to the Colonization Society. Zanzibar assented the movement, but it was acquiesced in by the British Government, and finally, after much negotiation, between the United Kingdom, and France, the Sultan of Zanzibar ceded absolutely to Germany the mainland territory for 4,000,000 marks.

Meanwhile, German companies had begun to exploit the country. In 1888, the German East Africa Company took over the administration of the Arabs, and thereafter quickly followed the first of those periodic risings, whether of the Arabs or the natives, against the Germans, which dogged the steps of German rule in the country for many years. The story of how some of these risings were suppressed is one of the blackest in the history of German colonial administration. Ultimately, after some twenty years of struggle, Germany made good her hold on the country, but development was slow, and it was only during the eight years or so immediately preceding the war that adequate measures were taken to develop the resources of the colony.

THAT CHANGE IN WOMAN'S LIFE

Mrs. Godden Tells How It May be Passed in Safety and Comfort.

Fremont, O.—"I was passing through the critical period of life, being forty-six years of age and had all the symptoms incident to that change—heat flashes, nervousness, and was in a general run down condition, so it was hard for me to do my work. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended to me as the best remedy for my troubles, which it surely proved to be. I feel better and stronger in every way since taking it, and the annoying symptoms have disappeared." — Mrs. M. GODDEN, 925 Napoleon St., Fremont, Ohio.

Such annoying symptons as heat flashes, nervousnass, backache, headache, irritability and "the blues," may be speedily overcome and the system restored to normal conditions by this famous root and herb remedy Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If any complications present themselves write the Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for suggestions how to overcome them. The result of forty years experience is at your service and your letter held in strict confidence.

FACE NOTHING BUT RUNNING SORES FROM

ECZEMA

No rest day or night for those afflicted with that terrible skin disease, eczema, or, as it is often called, salt rheum.

With its unbearable burning, itching, torturing day and night, relief is gladly welcomed.

There is no remedy like Burdock Blood Bitters for giving relief to such sufferers; no other remedy has done, or can do so much for those who are almost driven to distraction with the terrible torture. Apply it externally and it takes out the stinging, itching and burning, and promotes a healthy healing.

Take it internally and it gets at the source of the disease in the blood, and completely and permanently drives it out of the system.

Miss Mary V. Chambers, Anagance Ridge, N.B., writes: "I used Burdock Blood Bitters for eczema. I had it when an infant, but it left me. Two years ago it came back. I used doctors' medicine, but it did good only while I used it. At last my face was nothing but a running sore. I saw in the paper what B.B.B. did for people. I took it, and to-day I am free from that terrible disease."

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

Taking the Wickedness Out of Them

By RUTH GRAHAM

In a part of Siberia where the population is very sparse there lived a man named Lavinsky, who married a woman, and they had a son named Paul. When Paul was still a baby his mother ran away with a man from Moscow and her husband never saw her again. This embittered him against all women.

Not far from his abode lived a woman, Anna Varenska, who had been similarly treated by her husband. Lavinsky and the woman met one day and comparing notes each decried the opposite sex.

"My son," said Lavinsky, "shall never see a woman. Before he becomes a year older I shall build a high wall around my estate. He shall never go beyond the wall and no woman shall come within it."

"And my daughter, Vera," said Madam Varenska, "shall never see a man. I too will build a wall around my estate to keep her away from your detestable sex."

These two people carried out their plans so well that until Paul was eighteen years old he had seen only those of his own sex. Then one day, tired of his captivity, he tunneled under the wall that held him and went wandering. When he had gone some distance he came to another wall on which sat Vera Varenska. Paul stared and wondered. Vera looked down at Paul and wondered likewise.

"What are you?" asked the girl.

"A boy," was the reply.

Vera crossed herself and started to get down from the wall. "Where are you going?" asked Paul.

"To get away from you. My mother tells me that boys are monsters."

"Are you a girl?"

"Yes."

"My father says girls are devils."

"Do you believe him?"

"I don't know. I wish to see for myself. Stay where you are and I will get some wood together from which I can mount to you."

Having built a pile he mounted to a place beside her and they looked at each other curiously. Paul took a comb from her hair and her locks fell on her shoulders. She passed her hand over his face that had a soft down on it.

"What a funny place for hair to grow," she said.

"What do you let your hair grow like that for?" was his reply. "I should think it would be in your way."

"So it would if I didn't do it up and keep it done up."

"I don't see anything vicious about you." He put his finger on her lips to see if she would bite it. When she did not he added: "I couldn't do that with some dogs. You can't be as vicious as a beast anyway."

She took hold of his hand and pressed it against her lips.

"Wherein lies the deviltry in you?" he asked. "It is surely not in your lips; and yet father has told me that what comes out of a girl's mouth is poison. She speaks only to deceive."

"Mother tells me that a man can never speak the truth."

"Those two statements are diametrically opposed; aren't they?"

"We must both be wicked."

"I don't feel conscious of being wicked; do you?"

"No."

"Are you going to tell your mother you met me?"

"Are you going to tell your father you met me?"

"No."

"Perhaps that is what they call wickedness. I didn't know before that wickedness was so nice."

She ran her fingers through his hair. This brought their faces near together and their lips met.

"... your lips are wicked," he said, "as father declares they are, may Satan possess me from this moment."

"And I wish never to be good again."

The dialogue lasted till the day was fading when they agreed that their parents had been mistaken. She took him home with her to convince her mother that there was a boy who if he was wicked she—the girl—was wicked too. When the mother saw them coming hand in hand she groaned.

"Mother," said Vera, "you have always told me to beware of a man's lips, that they are poisonous. This one's are not. I have tried them with mine."

"Heavens!" cried the mother.

"Hers are as sweet as the perfume of the rose," said Paul.

"Are you Lavinsky's son?" asked the widow.

"Yes."

"Vera, go into that room and wait until I come."

She shoved her daughter into a room and locked the door. In an hour she returned with Lavinsky and a priest.

"Father," said Paul, "I have met a girl. There is no poison in her lips. They are delicious."

The widow let Vera out of the room in which she had locked her. The boy and the girl were made to stand up side by side, the priest asked them a lot of questions they did not understand to which they answered "Yes" and he pronounced them man and wife.

"What have you done to us?" asked both the youngsters at once.

"Taken the wickedness out of you," was the reply.

Sewing Machines in Arabia.

The sale of sewing machines in Arabia has increased since the war beg owing in part to the demand of Red Cross organizations. A recent shipment of 600 American machines, according to a correspondent, will be disposed of as follows: One hundred in Aden, 200 in Abyssinia, 100 in Red Sea ports and 200 in the Persian Gulf district. There is also an increased demand on the part of the natives. Germany formerly supplied the territory with cheap machines, but the stocks of these are low, and American products now lead. Foot-power sewing machines are in growing preference over the hand-operated type, but electrically-driven machines cannot be sold, as there is no general electric service plant in Aden. Dust and rust are difficulties experienced in the use of the machines in the Arabian climate.

Stalling It.

"Darling," she said, "you know we really ought not to fuss with each other. Now, I want to make an agreement with you that we will never say a harsh word or have a single dispute."

"All right, I'm with you," he agreed, "but before we begin, I'd like to know where in thunder you put those blankety-blank clean socks you said you darned."

CHASE & SANBORN, MONTREAL

How Willie Jeopardized His Job.

Addressing the Overseas Club Lieut.-Col. McKelvey Bell, A.D.M.S. at Halifax, said that on the morning of the great disaster an artillery officer, leaving home, told his aged mother: "We are going to have artillery practice this morning, and if you hear explosions don't be afraid it's all right." Half an hour afterwards the Mont Blanc blew up. The old lady was thrown across the room and out of a door. When she recovered sufficiently to speak she said: "If Willie carries on like this he will lose his job."

SUFFERED TERRIBLY WITH HER HEART

Would Wake Up Smothering

The terrible smothering and choking up sensations and sinking spells, the feelings of dizziness and faintness that come over those whose heart and nerves are deranged causes the greatest distress of both mind and body.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills give prompt relief and effect a complete cure in cases of such severity.

Mrs. A. M. Powell, Norval Station, Ont., writes: "I cannot speak too highly of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. I suffered five years with my heart and nerves, but the last two years I have suffered terribly. If I went to bed I would wake up as if I were smothering. I did not get one night's sleep out of seven. I got so very weak that the doctor was called in, and he said it was my heart, and that I must take great care of myself. I saw your advertisement in your almanac for Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and said I would try them. I have only taken two boxes of them and I feel a new woman. I will recommend them to anyone afflicted with heart trouble."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c a box at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Through the Danger Zone.

One night we entered the danger zone. There had been an entertainment in the little salon which, packed with passengers, had gradually achieved the temperature and humidity of a Turkish bath. For the ports had been closed as tight as gaskets could make them, the electric fans, as usual, obstinately "refused to march." After the amateur speech-making and concert pieces an Italian violinist, who had thrown over a lucrative contract to become a soldier, played exquisitely; and one of the French sisters we had seen walking the deck with the mincing steps of the cloister sang, somewhat precariously and pathetically, the Ave Maria. Its pathos was of the past, and after she had finished, as we fled into the open air, we were conscious of having turned our backs irrevocably yet determinedly upon an era whose life and convictions the music of the composer so beautifully expressed. And the sister's sweet withered face was reminiscent of a missal, one bright with color, and still shining faintly. A missal in a library of modern books!

On deck a fine rain was blowing through a gap in our burlap shroud; a phosphorescent fringe of foam hissed along the sides of the ship, giving the illusory appearance of all our deadlights being open and ablaze, exaggerating the sinister blackness of the night. We were, apparently, a beacon in that sepia waste where modern undersea monsters were lurking.

There were on board other elements which in the normal times gone by would have seemed disquieting enough. The evening after we had left New York, while we were still off the coast of Long Island, I saw on the poop a crowd of steerage passengers listening intently to harangues by speakers addressing them from the top of a pile of life rafts. Armenians, I was told, on their way to fight the Turks, all recruited in America by one frenzied woman who had seen her child cut in two by a German officer. Twilight was gathering as I joined the group, the sea was silvered by the light of an August moon floating serenely between swaying stays. The orator's passionate words and gestures evoked wild responses from his hearers, whom the drag of an ancient hatred had snatched from the peaceful asylum of the west.—Scribner's.

"Say Doctor, This Prescription Works Like Magic"—Physician Explains Why Nuxated Iron

Quickly Increases the Strength and Energy of Men and Brings Roses to the Cheeks of Nervous, Run Down Women

Ask the first hundred strong healthy looking people you meet to what they owe their strength and energy and see how many reply "Nuxated Iron."

Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly Physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept) of New York and the Westchester County Hospital says: "Thousands of nervous, run-down, anaemic people suffer from iron deficiency but do not know what to take. There is nothing like organic iron—Nuxated Iron to quickly enrich the blood, and thereby put roses in the cheeks of women and give men increased strength and energy.

Unlike the older forms of iron, Nuxated Iron does not injure the teeth nor upset the stomach, but is readily assimilated, and you can quickly recognize its action by a renewed feeling of buoyant health.

No matter what other iron remedies you have used without success if you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to make the following test:

See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired; next take two five-grain tablets of Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained. To be absolutely sure of getting real organic iron and not some form of the metallic variety always ask for Nuxated Iron in its original packages. Nuxated Iron will increase the strength, power and endurance of delicate, nervous, run-down people in two weeks' time in many instances.

Over Three Million People Annually Are Taking Nuxated Iron

NOTE—Nuxated Iron recommended above by Dr. Sullivan can be obtained from any good druggist, with or without a physician's prescription, on an absolute guarantee of success by its manufacturers or money refunded. It is dispensed in this city by McDermid & Jury and all good druggists.

Why Kerensky Was a Failure

SO much space has been devoted to explaining the situation in Russia and advancing theories to fit some of the facts that there has not been room to make the simple announcement that Russia quit the war because Russia was licked. Had the Russian armies not suffered the most tremendous defeats in history the Czar would be still on the throne. Had the Russian armies not received a bad mauling in the regime of Kerensky, Kerensky would be now the big man in Russia. This fact has been grasped by Lenine and Trotzky. They realize that the only chance they have of retaining control is to save the Russian armies from further defeats. As logical men they have concluded that the armies that will not fight cannot be defeated. Therefore they have made peace, and thus prolonged their reign. We cannot believe Trotzky and Lenine to be anything better than traitors or maniacs, and yet they may be simply recording facts instead of expressing opinions. They may know that if they did not make peace they could not remain in authority an hour, and that the elements that now control Russia would recognize no authority that did not immediately withdraw Russia from the war.

Kerensky fell because he did not understand the forces that were dominating the Russian people. This is made plain in the course of a series of articles in the New York Sun by Lieut. Borts Shumansky, who was one of the officers who believed in him, fought for him, and as finally obliged to admit that Kerensky was absolutely wrong in his diagnosis of the Russian situation. Kerensky thought that the Russian army was loyal to the revolution, and when he thought of the revolution he thought of his own revolution. He believed that the agitation of the Bolsheviki in Petrograd was a mere ripple on the surface of Russian feeling. When the disorders became so serious that he had to flee for his life, he clung to the notion that the armies at the front were absolutely devoted to the ideals he represented, and that he had only to call upon them and they would destroy the Trotzky and Lenine gang. He found to his cost that the armies at the front were even more anxious than the Socialists in Petrograd to make a peace.

Kerensky appeared to have Russia behind him when he led the revolution that overthrew the Czar, and as long as he was content to do nothing but denounce the former regime he found plenty to applaud and support him. When, however, sobered by responsibility, he announced that whatever was to be the fate of Russia the immediate duty was to oppose the Germans, he alienated a great number who had helped on the revolution. His quarrels with responsible generals like Brusiloff and Korniloff, antagonized that section of the Russian army that wanted the war to be fought out. Lieut. Shumansky believes that Kerensky made his fatal error when he seemed to desert Korniloff, or failed to support the general when he had planned to strike a powerful blow at the forces of Prussianism and anarchy that were at work in Petrograd. This betrayal cost Kerensky the support of Cossack troops at a time when they might have extirpated the Bolsheviki. Kerensky was opposed to shedding the blood of Russians until it was too late. When he desired to shed blood there was none to be shed except his own, and that of his supporters.

When the Bolsheviki rose against him and the Red Guards seized the city, Kerensky fled to Gatchina. He was disguised as a sailor, and, although the train on which he travelled was stopped and searched more than once, he was not discovered, which is another illustration of the fact that a man may be known by sight by everybody in one Russian city and absolutely unknown to anybody fifty miles away. In Gatchina there was a garrison of 5,000 soldiers devoted to his revolution. He thought that if he reached there, put himself at the head of the garrison and communicated with some of the troops at the front, he could raise a force that would rid Petrograd of the Bolsheviki and re-establish his own Government. From Gatchina a message was sent to the front for a few regiments, but Kerensky stipulated that none should be sent back to his assistance save those that could easily be spared. He appears to have kept uppermost in his mind the necessity of fighting Germany.

When the regiments came back, according to orders, it was found that the Cossacks among them had little heart for fighting in behalf of Kerensky after the Korniloff episode. This seriously reduced the forces at his disposal; but with a few thousand men he set out for Petrograd. In the meantime, in order to encourage his friends at the capital, he had caused aeroplanes to drop messages in the town announcing its imminent deliverance. The Bolsheviki knew therefore what to expect. They tore up the railway line on which he expected to advance, and, outnumbering his forces by ten to one, planted artillery and troops at points he had to pass. When it became apparent to Kerensky that he had no chance of taking Petrograd with his army

MARCH TO VICTORY

Courage is a matter of the blood. Without good red blood a man has a weak heart and poor nerves.

In the spring is the best time to take stock of one's condition. If the blood is thin and watery, face pale or pimply, generally weak, tired and listless, one should take a spring tonic. One that will do the spring house-cleaning, an old-fashioned herbal remedy that was used by everybody nearly 50 years ago is still safe and sane because it contains no alcohol or narcotic. It is made up of Blood root, Golden Seal root, Oregon Grape root, Queen's root, Stone root, Black Cherry bark—extracted with glycerine and made into liquid or tablets. This blood tonic was first put out by Dr. Pierce in ready-to-use form and since then has been sold by million bottles as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. If druggists do not keep this in tablet form, send 50 cents for a vial to Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., or branch in Bridgeburg, Ont.

CENTRAL BUTTE, SASK.—"I have used Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for a number of years and am pleased to recommend it as a blood purifier. I know it has no equal, as I used it for my boy. My neighbors and friends were surprised with the results; in fact, I do not think he would be alive to-day had it not been for the 'Medical Discovery.' I also keep it on hand for coughs as it differs so from other medicines, instead of upsetting the stomach as cough syrups do it is good for the stomach. I only wish I had known about Dr. Pierce's medicines sooner."—MRS. PERCY WOOD.

Had Headaches Was Always Tired

Sleep or Rest Was Impossible, For Nervous System Was Greatly Exhausted and Irritated

Jordan, Ont., March 15. — As the result of Mrs. Thwaites' happy experience with Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, many people in this district have put this great food cure to the test and proven its exceptional restorative powers.

This was an extreme case of nervous exhaustion and the cure effected was so thorough and radical that there could be no doubt of the value of this treatment. This is how Mrs. Thwaites describes her cure, and her statement is certified to by her pastor.

Mrs. Stephen G. Thwaites, Box 205, Jordan, Ont., writes: "For about a year I was troubled with nervousness, and took doctors' medicine, but it did not seem to relieve me. I could not sleep nor content myself to do anything. I had severe headaches, was tired all the time, and afraid to stay alone. I also tried several nerve medicines until almost discouraged. At last I discovered Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and found relief in this. I had only taken one box when I began to feel better. I continued using this treatment until my nerves were restored to perfect health. I think the Nerve Food splendid for nervous troubles of any kind, and cannot recommend it too highly."

Rev. S. F. Coffman, Vineland, Ont., states: "This is to certify that I know Mrs. Thwaites, and her statements are correct."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, a full treatment of 6 boxes for $2.75, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Do not be talked into accepting a substitute. Imitations only disappoint.

TORPEDOES ON FOUR WHEELS

Explosive Propelled Toward Enemy Trenches and Controlled by Means of Wires Attached to Works.

La Domenica Del Corriere, Italy, reports a new war device, the invention of an English engineer, Strafford Talbot. Literally, it is a torpedo on wheels which may be propelled toward the enemy trenches and controlled from the starting point by means of attached wires.

The explosive is mounted on a metallic box which rides on four wheels. Attached to the box is a contrivance consisting of a dynamo which propels the wheels. The entire machine is electrically controlled, permitting the explosion of the charge at the desired moment.

Two parallel wires connect the torpedo with the control station. These are carried on spools and unwind as the machine advances. The power is derived from accumulating batteries at the starting point. When it is desired to fire the charge all that is required is to push a button. According to the inventor the total cost of this contrivance is about $150.

What He Wants for "Plain Food."

Do you know this man, have you ever heard of him—the man who likes plain food? His tastes are of the simplest; a little clear soup yourself, clear consomme the color of pale sherry: Take a knuckle of veal and four pounds of lean beef . . . goes the sympathetic recipe. (Notice, you "take," you don't "buy.") "Fry, to a tender brown, carrots, onions," etc. So goes on this tender, delectable process until you finally "clarify." The time the cook spends upon the simmering, the frying, the clarifying, and the straining is not of course taken into account. "The man who likes plain food enjoys roasts of meat, joints and ribroasts."—Exchange.

Dandruffy Heads Become Hairless

If you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.

ACIDS IN STOMACH CAUSE INDIGESTION

Create Gas, Sourness and Pain How to Treat.

Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning, gas, bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach and not as some believe to a lack of digestive juices. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, digestion is delayed and food sours, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well.

Artificial digestents are not needed in such cases and may do real harm. Try laying aside all digestive aids and instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This sweetens the stomach, prevents the formation of excess acids and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and is the most efficient form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

Voting In Europe.

In the interesting debate in the British House of Commons respecting the amendment inserted by the House of Lords in the new Electoral Bill which would have the effect of including in the franchise Dominion soldiers serving in England, Mr. Herbert Samuel, late Postmaster-General, pointed out that any Canadian which had been here six months would, as the bill stood, be enfranchised, and would even have the ballot papers sent to them if in France. "If our soldiers were quartered in Canada for six months would the Canadian Government give them a Dominion votes?" he asked.

Mr. H. A. L. Fisher, Minister of Education, thought that as the new electoral register would be a war register we should not have a worse Parliament because some thousand overseas soldiers participated in the next election.

Mr. Percy Harris thought Mr. Fisher's argument remarkable. Canada, for example, had prohibition. "Would Canadians who happen to be training here be entitled to elect a prohibition candidate, although the English electors held very different views?" he asked. "It would really prove a negation of representative Government, creating a bad feeling instead of good."

Mr. Fisher said that he thought at first that the clause was merely desired to cover soldiers and sailors resident here, but who were paid by the Dominions. He saw now this little parasol perhaps turning into a big umbrella.

Eventually the clause was referred for reconsideration, the understanding being that the House of Commons would welcome the clause enfranchising Dominion soldiers genuinely residing in England.

Birds Disappearing.

Up to the present there is no evidence of a single quail living, surviving the fierce snow blizzards that have fallen over Southwestern Ontario. Hungarian partridge are one of the few species that nature has prepared to battle severe elementary attacks, and in one of those favorable localities adjoining Point Pelee, Essex County, known as the reclaimed lands, Hungarian partridge were introduced a short time ago, and have proved their adaptability to their environment, but through lack, evidently, of attention in official duty, the song as well as the game birds and other valuable wild life have fallen before the cruel guns of the pot-hunting and merciless foreigners, who fearlessly combed out the last living being that was cherished by the sportsmen and a future asset to the farmers of that community.

Ginseng.

Ginseng, the greatest product of Korea, is unrivalled throughout the world for its quality. Lately, however, owing to the spread of a disease peculiar to ginseng and from robberies, the industry was brought to a standstill. Methods likely to give good results are being adopted, however. The area under cultivation is about 1,381,748 kan. The annual amount of medicinal ginseng has grown to 30,000 kin.

STORIES OF AIRMEN

ANECDDOTES TOLD BY AN AVIATOR FROM CANADA.

He Tells How a Democratic Fellow-Countryman Greeted King George During One of His Visits to France—Other Adventures of the Men at the Front.

HERE are some of the stories going the rounds among the airmen at the front who are fighting with the allies:

In the spring of last year, when the Fokker was doing its greatest damage among some of our slower machines, Lieut. A——— was out on a reconnaissance flight. Unfortunately he was unable to get back with his information as he got into a fight with two Fokkers and in his less speedy machine he was no match for the two of them. A bullet went through his gasoline tank so that he was forced to land. It happened that he got down into a German aerodrome. Naturally the first thing he attempted to do after getting out of his machine was to set it on fire, so that it could not be used by the enemy. He was in the act of carrying this into effect when a German officer appeared on the other side of the machine and in very good English remarked: "When you have finished with that foolishness you might come in and have lunch; your old machine is of no use to us!"

Last summer when King George visited the troops at the front he inspected among others a certain squadron of the flying service. During the inspection several officers had the honor of being presented to him. As he passed down the line accompanied by the officer who was making the introductions, the latter momentarily forgot a certain Canadian officer's name. This Canadian not wishing to have the King go by without knowing him, stretched out his hand to shake the King's and said: "Bamwolt, sir; glad to meet you, sir." Report sayeth not what the King's thoughts were. (It is only right to acknowledge that "Bamwolt" was not the officer's name.)

My friend, Lieut. G———, was just a youngster. He even looked younger than he was. I remember the day previous to his going over to France he explained to me that the reason his mother called him Reginald was because he was born in 1897, the year of Queen Victoria's jubilee, and Reginald was derived from Regina, Queen. He seemed so young to go.

However, he had not been at the front two days when he flew over the lines on his first raid. Unfortunately, something went wrong with his engine, so, as he knew he must be near Holland, he glided in that direction with the hope of being able to land there. Having got down safely and thinking he was in Holland he was just congratulating himself when he saw some soldiers in grey uniform running toward him. It was not until then that he realized that the Dutch border was still one hundred yards away. He had no time to destroy his machine, as it is said, established a new record for the "100 yard dash." However, he got safely over, so is now interned in Holland.

Flight Lieut. R———, of the Naval Air Service, was out on morning patrol off the east coast of England last spring. He sighted a number of warships near the land which he took to be British from the height at which he was flying. Thinking to entertain the Jack Tars, he proceeded to do some fancy flying, including spirals, vertical banks and a loop. During these "stunts" he came down from 8,000 feet to 1,500 feet. Suddenly the air seemed filled with bursting shells — they were German cruisers! Flight Lieut. R——— managed to get back to his station, but with a broken arm and the wings of his machine showing visibly his contact with the enemy. However, he was able to hand in a very valuable report as to the position of the enemy ships.

Adjutant B———, of the French Air Service, got lost when on a flight over the enemy territory. He managed to get back safely over the lines, but could not be sure in what section of them he was when he saw our aerodrome. He decided to come down and make sure of his whereabouts. As he was about to land he noticed some Germans working on the aerodrome. Thinking that he must have been mistaken and that it was really a German aerodrome, he went through some marvelous evolutions at only 500 feet up in order to confuse any gunner who might fire at him. However after two or three minutes, when he did not hear any shots fired, he took another look and saw some machines with our distinguishing marks on the planes, which confirmed him in his original supposition, so he landed. The Germans were merely prisoners.

When going on long raids into the enemy country many of the pilots get dressed in their very best uniforms, etc., the reason being that in this branch of the airman's work an engine failure means being made prisoner, so that one wants his very best clothes since they may have to last a long time. Also some can be seen taking along a safety razor and brush, a comb, tooth brush, etc., and one chap I know always takes a manicure set!

Height Effects in Aeroplaning.

Some effects of airplane flights at very high altitudes are described in a recent English report. "Height effects" begin to be felt at 10,000 feet and become marked in most cases from 17,000 feet up. The principal difficulties are cold and lack of oxygen. Strange to say, no airplane has yet been devised on a plan which deliberately utilizes the heat of the engine to keep the passengers warm, although any tractor model has this effect to some extent. The matter of oxygen is solved by taking a supply in a container, which the aviator mixes with air when he feels oppressed. It is feared that flying at very high altitudes, to be made possible in the future by further development of models, may produce a trouble analagous to the "bends" experienced by workers in compressed air caissons due to the extreme pressure changes.

Climbers Imprisoned Atop Fuji.

The wisdom of erecting huts on Fuji for refuge in case of sudden storms of snow and rain was proved recently when a violent fall of snow and hail burst upon the crest of the sacred mountain. During two days more than 10,000 climbed the mountain and sudden arrival of the storm caught several hundred of them upon the hilltop. They sought safety in the numerous refuges. When the storm burst the police compelled all excursionists to wait for better weather at Gotemba and Tarobo. Relief parties were sent out but were unable to get through the drifts. Anxiety was felt for the food supply, but the adventurers came down safely. For two days the people in the snow were incommunicado, owing to the destruction of the telephone wires. These will be buried before next season.

AN OLD RECIPE TO DARKEN HAIR

Sage Tea and Sulphur Turns Gray, Faded Hair Dark and Glossy

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle of this old time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients at very little cost. Everybody uses this preparation now, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

THE BRITISH HAVE BEEN PRESSED BACK A SHORT DISTANCE

Heavy Fighting Yesterday Afternoon And Evening

The Enemy Delivered Repeated Assaults Against The British

British Pressed Back, War Office Announces

British Retired a Short Distance East of Amiens—Enemy Concentrated Strong Forces Early This Morning.

ARTILLERY ACTIVE

Canadian Press Despatch:

LONDON, April 5. — The British have been pressed back a short distance on a front east of Amiens to positions east of Villers-E ettonneux, the War Office announces.

The Germans concentrated troops early this morning near Albert. The British artilery took them under its fire. In the neighbourhood of Bucquoy and in the Scarpe Valley, there was active artillery fighting during the night. The Germans hurled large bodies of troops against the British between the Luce and the Somme Rivers, making repeated assaults. For the most part the enemy was thrown back with losses.

To-day's statement follows:

Between the Luce River and the Somme heavy fighting continued yesterday during the afternoon and evening till a late hour. The enemy employed strong forces and delivered repeated assaults on our positions. These attacks were beaten off with loss to the enemy, but our troops were pressed back a short distance to positions east of Villers-Brettonneux, about nine miles east of Amiens, which they now maintain. North of the Somme the enemy's artillery have been active during the night in the neighbourhood of Bucquoy and in the Scarpe Valley. Hostile concentrations early this morning in the neighbourhood of Albert were engaged by our artillery.

The Fighting Has Eased Up A Little

Despatch From William Simms Covers a Later Period Than Communiques

(United Press Service.)

Special to The Examiner:

(By William Philip Simms.)

3 O'Clock Despatch.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FRANCE April 5.—Big guns are shelling German troops seen massing on the road running south-west from Albert, parallel to the railway from the city of Amiens.

It is not yet apparent whether the Germans will storm the embankment, but such an attempt is ardently desired by the British.

Reports from the south of the Somme indicate that the fighting has died down after the German "grab" toward Amiens on Thursday, when they massed troops on Corbierd, in the Ancre Valley. The British along the railway embankment prevent any serious westward advance via Corbie.

Simms' despatch, filed to-day, indicates that at the time of filing the heavy fighting described in to-day's British and French official statement, had died down, at least temporarily. The despatch evidently covers a later period than the communiques. Both London and Paris specifically mention fighting as under way Thursday afternoon, evening and night. Simms' referred to the German attack of Thursday as an action already concluded.

Corbie is eight miles east of Amiens, on the Albert-Amiens railway.

WORKING ON THE NEW WAREHOUSE

CONSTRUCTION WORK HAS RECOMMENCED AT THE QUAKER OATS.

Work has commenced on the construction of the new warehouse for the Quaker Oats Company which will extend from the end of the present building to Hunter street. A large gang of men are employed on the work and the end of July will likely see its completion. The plant, when complete, will be one of the largest of its kind in Canada. A portion of it will be in operation in the course of a few weeks.

MacKenzie Forces Gather At Ottawa For A New Fight

Railway Knights Seek Disallowance of Act Passed by Provincial Legislature Relating to the Hydro

WILL BE OPPOSED

(Special to The Examiner.)

Ottawa, April 5. — The Mackenzie forces have gathered at Ottawa for a new fight against the Hydro. Their lawyers and their negotiators, also their electrical experts, are here. The object of the present onslaught is to procure the disallowance of an act passed by the Ontario Legislature in 1917.

Under this act judges were appointed to investigate the water powers of Ontario and say whether any electrical companies are developing more than their rightful share of power. The report is not yet made but the act provides that if excess power is found to be in process of manufacture the companies must turn the same over to the provincial Hydro Commission. Apparently the Mackenzie forces do not like the prospect for they are seeking the disallowance of the measure.

Applications such as this one are dealt with by the Government in Council. The Minister of Justice, with two other Members of the Cabinet may either hear what the parties have to say, or may assist, as is usually the case, and decide application, without hearing oral argument.

A British Columbia application and the Ontario case were ready for a hearing yesterday, and Hon. Messrs. Carvell and Sifton turned up to assist Hon. Charles Doherty. A Cabinet Council was called, however, and the hearing had to be postponed.

The Hydro had representatives here to oppose the Ontario application for disallowance but it is not certain when a hearing can now be secured or whether the Minister will think it necessary to hear the parties before coming to a decision.

OVER TWO THOUSAND "B" MEN IN THIS DISTRICT

Just as soon as the necessary forms are made out, Major H. P. Cooke, the district registrar, will have his staff sen dout the notices to report for service to all men in Category B, who filled out the report for service forms when the proclamation was issued last year. Men who at that time asked for exemption and received it because of their categorization, will go before the tribunal of the county judge and have their cases reviewed. They may then present evidence to show that medical categorization is not the only grounds for their exemption from military service.

There are 2,424 men in Category B in this military district. This number will receive either of the two notices immediately.

It is understood that these men will not be used as combatant soldiers. They will be drafted into railway construction or forestry work behind the lines, but in the present big battle the despatches show these units were under fire.

CANADIANS HELD HUNS

Sir Robert Borden Gives Out Official Cables Describing Glorious Part Played By Canadians

FOUGHT FOR DAYS

Canadian Press Despatch:

OTTAWA, APRIL 5.—Sir Robert Borden this morning gave out for publication official cables from Roland Hill, Canadian Government eye witness in Flanders, graphically describing the glorious part played by the Canadian cavalry brigade and the Canadian Machine Gun Corps in holding the Huns back in the recent operation when the Germans made their big smash. Hill describes how the Canadians, some of them without rations for days fought on and on against the dense masses of German infantry thrown against them inflicting terrible casualties on the Germans, and suffering severe losses themselves. The Germans were simply mowed down like wheat by the Canadian machine guns and Canadian armoured machine gun cars moved here and there like lightning and arrested the enemy at every approach. Cavalry acted gallantly, both as mounted troops and infantry.

REV. W. L. ARMITAGE MOVES TO LONDON

A farewell to Rev. W. L. Armitage, formerly of All Saints' church, Peterborough, who is leaving for a new field of service in London, Ont., was held at St. Mark's Church schoolhouse, Toronto, last night. Rev Mr. Armitage and his wife were presented with a purse of gold and overwhelmed with warm expressions of regard. Mr. Armitage goes to London this morning and will be inducted at St. James church this evening.

Vienna Statement Upholds Foreign Minister Czernin

AMSTERDAM, April 5.—An official announcement made in Vienna today reiterates the assertion of Foreign Minister Czernin which was denied yesterday by Premier Clemenceau of France, that a conversation concerning peace has been held between Austria-Hungary and France.

THREE CHILDREN LOST IN A FIRE

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

TORONTO, April 5.—Three children of Pte. Wm. Hoskins, who is overseas with the 127th Battalion, are believed to have lost their lives in a fire which destroyed their home in Mimico near here this morning. They were two girls, aged 4 and 6 years, and a boy, aged 9. Their mother had come into the city with the fourth child when the fire broke out.

Next Effort May Be Greater Gamble

The Roads to Paris and Amiens Are Not Bordered—Artificial War Spirit of Germans Has Broken Down

NEW ACTORS CALLED IN

(United Press Service.)

Special to The Examiner:

(By William Philip Simms.)

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES, April 4.—Hindenburg's rollicking and battle glad soldiers no longer are rollicking and no longer are glad. They commenced the battle with a spirit higher even than before the Marne. The disillusionment was driven home to some that day. Later the truth dawned upon Germany that the roads to Paris and Amiens are not rose bordered.

LACK OF SUCCESS.

Hindenburg's hosts have been buffetted and hammered. Lack of success, exposure and heavy casualties have broken down the artificial war spirit. Razed and shattered divisions—greater in number even than at first suspected—have been dragged from the line and new actors called in.

Hindenburg has been forced to remake his plans. Meantime Foch and Haig are in perfect accord with Pershing, who is standing back ready to take no small part in the scrap wherever the war gods will. This the Kaiser's next try will be a greater gamble than the first.

LAST DAY OF P. BLACK'S SPRING SALE

To-morrow will be the last day of P. Black's successful sale, for which some great offers have been prepared for shoppers that will be worth going for. UNWHOLESOME FOODSTUFFS

Their Destruction Provided for in Bill to Be Introduced.

OTTAWA, April 4.—The confiscation and destruction of unsound or unwholesome foodstuffs found in packing houses or cold-storage warehouses is provided for in a resolution of which notice has been given by Hon. T. A. Crerar, Minister of Agriculture, on which a bill will be based. The resolution provides that abattoirs, packing houses or other premises where foodstuffs are kept, shall be brought under the provisions of the Meat and Canned Foods Act. It provides also for inspection and marking of foodstuffs imported or exported.

PEASANTS ARE DISSATISFIED

Enemy Efforts to Requisition Grain Meets With Resistance—Will Continue the Fight

GERMANY'S ASSURANCE

MOSCOW, April 5.—A press despatch from Kiev says the Ukrainian Rada has passed a resolution favouring the continuation of military operations against the Government of Soldiers' and Workmen's Deputies, although the President of the Rada, Professor Grussevski, urged that peace be concluded because of widespread dissatisfaction among the peasants with the Rada's policy. Repeated requisitions of grain by the Germans are being resisted violently by the peasants. One village was destroyed by artillery because its inhabitants offered armed opposition to a third requisition. The R la passed a resolution after the German military representative, Col. Von Kulberg made an address pointing out the successes of the German and Ukrainian troops saying that the capture of Kharkov and Yekaterinoslav was imminent and giving assurance of Germany's support in future against the Bolsheviki.

Permanent Railway Policy Shelved

A Short Session is Predicted—Temporary Measures to be Adopted

Canadian Press:

OTTAWA, April 7.—Present indications are that a permanent railway policy will not be adopted by the government this session and that action in connection with the railways will be confined to temporary measures already announced. At the present time a short session is predicted. Were it the intention of the government to further extend nationalization or control of railways a lengthier session than is now anticipated could not be avoided.

POLICE TAKE TOLL FROM AUTO DRIVERS

For passing a street car from which pasengers were alighting, Delma Douglas, Alphonse Fontaine and Robert Edwards, were each fined $7.60 in the police court to-day.

John Anglesey had a new marker in his car but not on it. $7.60.

CHICKENS $7 EACH IN HUNGARY AND SHOES SELL AT $83 A PAIR.

Rome, April 4.—The Hungarian press complains bitterly of the price of shoes. They are selling for $83 a pair, and it costs $23 to have a pair re-soled. Shoemakers refuse to make any for persons unknown to them because the law forbids the making of leather shoes but the wealthy public disdain wearing the clogs, which are the common footgear of the poorer classes. The Hungarians affirm that Austrians pay only a fourth, and the Germans only a sixth of this exorbitant price, which is due chiefly to profiteers. A goose costs $8 to $9, a chicken $7.

DYESTUFFS PAID FOR SUB.

New York, April 5.—Not only did American dollars pay for the dyestuffs brought to America by the German submarine merchantman Deutschland on her sensational voyage, but the profits exacted by the owners of the craft was enough to pay for the cost of the boat, according to the testimony of Lieut.Colonel Herman A. Metz, former comptroller of New York City, who was a witness in the wool invesigation here.

SWISS OFFICIAL KILLED IN PARIS

AMSTERDAM, April 5.—Berlin official statement to-day says that the bombardment of Paris was suspended on Wednesday because of the funeral of the counsellor of the Swiss Legation in Paris, who was killed in a church on Good Friday by shells fired from the long range guns.

Forty-Six Men Have Been Released By The Military

Civil and Military Authorities Believe Last Possible Danger of Renewal of Rioting in Quebec Has Been Removed

ELEVEN MEN HELD

(Canadian Press.)

Quebec, April 55. — Forty six men held by the military since the rioting here last Monday, were released this morning after they had been examined by the Military Service Act doctors and found to be unfit for duty. With the release of these men the last possible danger of a renewal of the rioting, it is believed by the civil and military officials, has been removed.

Yesterday several of the men engaged counsel to procure writs of habeas corpus for them. At one time it looked as if there would be a clash between the civil and the military authorities, but it was avoided by the discharge of the men to-day.

Eleven men against whom the military authorities have laid serious charges have been turned over to the Attorney General's Department for prosecution, and will have their preliminary trial this afternoon.

SENSATIONAL ARRESTS.

Three Rivers, April 5. — Two sensational arrests have been effected by the Federal Police, who arrived here yesterday from Quebec. Two brothers, Leo and Alfred Mercier, boilermakers, have been taken in charge for disturbing the public peace, and making seditious remarks in a public place. The brothers are alleged to have addressed gatherings at Shawinigan and Grande Mere on the situation in Quebec. On the way to the station the brothers tried to get the citizens aroused and attempted to strike a Federal policeman but a colleague came to the rescue. The brothers were lodged in a cell in the police station.

"LE CANADA" SAYS.

(Special to The Examiner.)

Montreal, April 5.—The Ottawa correspondent of Le Canada says he understands the Prime Minister will announce to-day very important changes in the Military Service Act, which will certainly not soften the existence of same. The measure will be one more concession to the win-the-war element and covers a political move, related without doubt, to the recent events in Quebec. Sir Robert Borden will thus respond to the blows aimed at him, and we shall have two censors instead of one. The troubles in the ancient city serve admirably the ends of the government.

Frank Jenne Says:

The gentle stir of a spring morning—the call to be out-of-doors, the desire to be comfortably clothed and hatted. Oh! Spring. Spring and new clothes. Jaunty hats, natty neckwear, soft new shirts, swagger suits, and fine hose, are in your thoughts these days, and you want to make some purchases. Select your crisp, new clothes at the "Semi-ready clothes shop." "Come to me."

The French Lines Have Held Below Amiens—Entente Line Holds Firm—Germans Lose Heavily.

HEAVY FIGHTING

Canadian Press Despatch:

NEW YORK, April 5.— The French lines have held below Amiens and the Germans have been defeated with great losses in probably what has constituted their most desperate efforts yet to break in and cut off communication with this important base from the south. Similarly, to the east of Amiens, the British have maintained their steadfast defence and prevented the Germans from making any important headway here. This battle, which raged yesterday and virtually all last night, was fought along a line of approximately thirty miles south of the Somme. To-day, according to unofficial despatches, the Germans switched their attack to the north of the river and engaged the British along a front of some seventeen miles, but again were unable to make any progress except a slight advance near the river. As a whole the Entente line may be considered, as the French official statement puts it, maintained in its entirety.

FRENCH OFFICIAL.

PARIS, April 5. — German forces continued their attacks during the night, says an official statement today by the War Office. Despite superiority of the German efforts, which the statement says, were spent recklessly, the Teutons were unable to reach their objective, which was the railway from Amiens to Clermont. The French regiments, by their resistance and counter-attacks maintained the line in its entirety, the War Office announced. The French troops conquered the greater part of Epinette Wood, north of the town of Orvillers-Sorel. All German efforts to dislodge the Frenchmen were in vain. The French captured St. Aignan farm, south-east of Grivesnes and held it against all assaults. In the north the French withdrew their positions to the west of Castel. They threw back the Germans from Arriere-court Wood, west of Mailly-Rameval.

The Official Statement.

PARIS, April 5.— The text of the War Office statement follows:

"The Germans continued their attacks during the night with undiminished violence, throwing fresh forces into the battle. We have identified fifteen divisions on this part of the front, seven of them fresh ones.

"Notwithstanding the market superiority in the strength of the enemy forces, which the Germans used up recklessly, they did not obtain their objective, which was the railway from Amiens to Clermont, as is shown by documents found on prisoners. French regiments resisting step by step and counter-attacking energetically, maintained their line in its entirety and inflicted cruel losses to the enemy.

"Meanwhile in the north the French withdrew their positions to the west of Castel. They ejected Germans Arriere-court Wood, west of Mailly-Rameval. Southeast of Grivesnes, a brilliant counter attack gave the French St. Aignan Farm, which they held against all assaults."

"Between Mondidier and Noyon, artillery fighting became very intense. French troops attacked German lines and obtained possession of the greater part of Epinette Wood, six hundred yards north of Orvillers Sorel. All efforts of the Germans to dislodge the French were in vain.

"Further east a local operation enabled the French to enter their positions north of Mount Benaud, which the Germans, notwithstanding their false statements, were never able to take from the French."

PARIS, April 5. — French forces drove the Germans back in the neighbourhood of Moreuil and recaptured several important positions to the south, the French official communication says to-day.

"We advanced to the west of Castel, (two miles north-west of Moreuil, toward Amiens), and drove the enemy back from Arrirecourt Wood," the statement said.

"By a counter attack south-west of Grivesnes, we occupied Staignan (two and a half miles north-west of Montdidier.) We captured most of Epin-

THE NEW PEACE MOVE.

The launching of a new peace drive by Austria-Hungary at this time when the great battle in France is far from a decision should be reassuring to those who have inclined to grow pessimistic over the falling back of the allied line and Berlin reports of heavy capture of men, guns and material. Count Czernin's intimation that a non-annexationist peace would, in all probability be accepted by Austria-Hungary, coming, when it does, in the strongest kind of evidence that that country is not very confident of the result of Von Hindenburg's efforts on the western front.

However welcome the offer may be on that account, it nevertheless will not be considered by the Allies, because an acceptance would involve the abandoning by France of all claims to Alsace-Lorraine—an impossible condition not only from a French, but from a British standpoint. As surely as Hindenburg's attacks have, and will fail to put the British and French armies out of the war, so will Count Czernin's peace move also fail.

A COSMOPOLITAN ARMY.

The cosmopolitan nature of Uncle Sam's army, is indicated by the report of the Provost Marshal General on the first draft under the Selective Service Act, 1917. Among the interesting figures are those dealing with the allied neutral and enemy aliens, who were called out under the draft system. In all 1,243,801 aliens registered, 457,713 were called, and 76,545 were accepted for service. No fewer than 47,258 young Canadians had to register, and 2,983 have been placed in the army. 2,159 Englishmen, 2,201 Irishmen, 611 Scots and 120 Welshmen were also accepted for service. Russians have furnished the largest quota among the aliens, 18,131 being in Uncle Sam's draft army, while the sons of Sunny Italy come next with a total of 15,348.

Neutral countries are well represented, with 5,794 Mexicans, 516 Danes, 249 Hollanders, 1,004 Norwegians, 1,355 Swedes and 224 Swiss. The Far East contributed 220 Chinese and 554 Japanese.

Even the countries at war with the United States and allied with the enemy, have added their share to the American army; 13,233 natives of Austria-Hungary have been accepted for service, with 923 Germans, 1,600 Turks and 302 Bulgarians.

THE NEED OF THE HOUR.

If some easy-going men object to being shifted out of their comfortable jobs, when actual national needs must be met, it is high time they should be made to feel that great issues cannot be settled without inconvenience to many. The farmer has also been inconvenienced.

Our faith is that Canadian women will gladly do the work of these men who ought to go on the farm, as when given an opportunity, they filled the places left by many men now overseas.

We even believe that women would gladly and efficiently collect fares on street cars, take over bread and milk routes, act as clerks in grocery and general stores, etc.

We are down to elementals to-day We either must win, or bow down in serfdom to the German. If we don't send our Allies sufficient food we won't win.

But make up your mind to this—Canada cannot stop short in any effor for food production—Food our Allies must have, and every true Canadian is determined that food they shall have.

We ask employers, in all respectfulness, to look over their men to-day and get ready to comb out every one that is able-bodied, even though his muscles are soft, who is doing work that could and should be done by women in war time. Line them up and say: "Some Canadian farmer needs you more than I do. Go!" There's no use evading the issue—Do it.

DISLOYAL NEWSPAPERS.

People in Ontario, where citizens are fined for having in their possession publications which they had secured only because of religious beliefs, and not through any disloyalty to the country, where other men are jailed for careless statements about the Canadian soldiers, and about the Victory Loan, are at a loss to understand why in other sections of the Dominion newspapers and individuals are allowed to give utterance to sentiments that if not actually pro-German, are at least anti-British, and anti-ally. Certain French-Canadian papers have been permitted to conduct a propaganda that has been openly and frankly against the British cause. Day after day seditious articles have appeared until it is no wonder that we have had the spectacle of armed men resisting the enforcement of the Military Service Act.

French Canadian journals are not the only offenders. It is claimed that recently a western paper which is printed in German, gloated over the fact that Canadian-born Germans were as zealous as recent arrivals from Germany in their devotion to the cause of the German people.

How many papers printed in English are being circulated in Germany just now and how many journals printed in German would be allowed to publish articles reflecting on the Teuton cause?

Th laxity of the Ottawa Government in this respect is causing general dissatisfaction. If party politics is, as alleged, the cause, the Union government, which was supposed to be powerful enough to defy party politics, is proving a failure in this respect, as it has already proved in some others.

Every paper in Canada, French-Canadian, German or whatever it may be, which publishes disloyal sentiments, should be suspended, if individuals in Ontario are to be punished for much less serious offences.

MR. DUNNING'S ADVICE.

The advice of Hon. C. A. Dunning, Director of Food Production to the Government, has placed the Union Government in a rather awkward position. Mr. Dunning, it must be remembered, was appointed by the Government as the most suitable man for the position that could be found, and in view of that fact, his counsel cannot be lightly disregarded. And yet to carry it out means to run foul of the Conservative standpatters and of the manufacturing interests.

Mr. Dunning's recommendations are simple. He asks the government to guarantee a minimum price for the wheat crop and to place agricultural implements on the free list as far as import duties are concerned.

The latter is the stumbling block. It is all right to urge greater production, but when the means taken to ensure it begin to affect the pockets of the representatives of the manufacturing interests in the House, there is likely to be a conflict between greater production and greater profits.

Hon. Mr. Dunning, chosen to direct the campaign for more food from Canada, says the most effective way to produce results is to remove the duty from agricultural implements. Sir Robert Borden admits that the food crisis is "grave and urgent beyond possibility of exaggeration." Is the Government prepared to accept the advice of its own expert? Or will it yield to the influence of the interests, and take the responsibility of disregarding the recommendations of Mr. Dunning? Hundreds of farmers are watching the developments with interest.

NEED FURLOUGH, TOO.

There is much that appears reasonable in a complaint received by the Examiner from a Peterborough soldier who went overseas with the 2nd Canadian Division and who for thirty months has been on duty in France, where incidentally, five brothers of his are also serving. His grievance is over the question of furloughs, and while he thoroughly approves of the three months' holiday for the Original Firsts, who have been at the front, he points out that furlough to Canada has been granted to many who did not see France, while married men of the 2nd Division who have for two years and a half been continuously in the danger zone have no opportunity of coming home. The Peterborough man expressed it as follows:

"I hear all married men of the 1st who have been away over three years from their wives get leave to Canada, and there are hundreds in England who never saw France, who have gone, so I am told. I am an old boy of the 2nd and have been in France thirty months without a break. I have had two leaves and was in hospital for two months, but still I was in the country, and do you think that a man who has not seen a shell burst or has never seen France is entitled to leave ahead of me? I left my wife three years ago this May. I am quite willing to stay here and do my bit, but I would like to see my wife and two children. What I am complaining about is that I don't like to see other fellows getting something they are not entitled to. There are only eleven of the old boys here and I am one. I would like a leave and would be willing to return when it was over."

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The cheerful announcement that the submarine losses for the past week were much smaller than usual, is coincident with the statement that 161,174 tons of new shipping were built in British ship yards during March.

The gift of half a million dollars from the American Red Cross to the Canadian Red Cross is a generous and warm-hearted tribute by our neighbours to Canada's war efforts.

The Quebec press persists in saying that Ontario troops should not have been sent there. Wonder what would have happened if a draft of returned soldiers had been sent down.

The Mail and Empire says: Up to March 20, 320 men have been ordered to report in Quebec military district. Not much less than 10,000 have been called from this military district. People up here wonder what the Quebec rowdies have to riot about.

Though war is contrary to the doctrines of the Doukhobors, the members of this community at Brilliant, B.C., have made a gift of 20,000 pound of jam to the Military Hospitals Commission, for use by the convalescent soldiers in the Western hospitals. The fruit, including strawberries, raspberries, peaches, plums, etc., came from the Kootenay Valley and was canned at the Doukhobors' model factory.

In turning down the Veterans' request for the conscription of aliens, the goverment said that opposition of the Labour Unions was responsible for this action. The Peterboro Trades and Labour Council's action, in endorsing the Veterans' programme, does not seem to bear out the Premier's contention.

How To Help Rural Schools Subject Of Address By Mr. Duncan Walker At Toronto

TORONTO, April 4.—"How to keep boys and girls in the country and how to keep the teacher in the rural school are outstanding school problems of the day," said D. Walker, Peterborough. Better schools for the pupils and better salaries for the teachers would help towards the solution to the supervising and training section of the Ontario Educational Association's convention. He also advocated special rural departments in the Normal schools to train the rural teacher, as by the present system the teacher was trained in the rural school, but for urban service.

"Larger Units of Administration," was the subject of the address of Inspector R. Lees, of Peterborough. He advocated township or county organizations rather than the present local boards.

HISTORY OF D—

When the "man on the street" says "d—" this or that, using the little word glibly as almost every part of speech—now as a verb, now as a noun, now an interjection, now an adjective and now an adverb, with barely an inflection, he is practising a primeval barbarism as extensive as heathendom, said Dr. W. Sherwood Fox, of Western University, London, Ont., in an address before the classical section of the O.E.A. on "Cursing as a Fine Art." Although disclaiming all intention of following the example of a certain modern author who investigated an allied subject and entitled his lucubrations "A ursory History of Swearing," he gave a most interesting history in brief of the curse and the place it has held since time immemorial.

He told of the diabolical curses used by the early Greeks and Romans and inscribed on leaden curse tablets examples of which brought peals of laughter from his audience, and following the curse down to the present time he gave a select specimen which appeared in a daily newspaper of Nancy, France, in March, 1910.

TO STUDY AGRICULTURE.

Prediction that ere long agriculture might be made a compulsory course of study was made by Inspector J. B. Dandeno, who has supervision of agricultural classes in the course of an address to the Trustees section of the Ontario Educational Association.

"Agriculture is sufficiently important to invite the special attention of boards of trustees of rural schools and of schools in cities and towns. Progress will not be rapid unless the teaching of the subject is backed up by a strong public opinion, and the boards and trustees' must assist in creating that opinion. When such supporting public opinion is assured, the subject may then be made compulsory.

"The importance of such a course is seen when one realizes that perhaps 3,000 pupils enter the Normal schools from the High schools each year and it is quite apparent that such pupils should have had instruction in agriculture in the High schools. Moreover, the usefulness of the High schools would be immensely increased with respect to country pupils who never expect to enter the professions. The High schools should not be, as they now are, a direct means of attracting boys and girls from the farm."

ABSENTEES IN RURAL SCHOOLS

Dr. S. Silcox, principal of Stratford Normal School, told the Trustees' section that there was a tremendous loss of schooling by irregular attendance. He was speaking more particularly of rural schools.

"The requirements for modern rural schools were asserted to be: 1. A greater expenditure for buildings and equipment. 2. Improved sanitation. 3. A wider use of the school by the ratepayers. 4. Longer tenure of office by the teacher, with better training in agricultural activities. 5. Improved health of pupils, secured if necessary by medical inspection. 6. An increase of 20 per cent. in average attendance, the loss at present in rural schools alone amounting to over five million days of schooling yearly; or, supposing that all the schools in Ontario are 10 per cent. lower in average attendance than they should be, there is a loss of nearly nine million days in schooling yearly. 7. A larger unit of administration, township or county, in place of the section. 8. Smaller inspectorates, one inspector to fifty teachers. 9. The course of study to be interpreted in terms of the needs of rural life.

"While education is of primary value in developing intellectual power and moral character, a comparison of communities shows that the expenditure on education has a close relation to production. For example, the expenditure in Prince Edward Island is $2.22 per capita per annum and its production in all lines $156 per capita; in New Brunswick $2.57 and $210; in Nova Scotia, $2.70 and $243; in Quebec, 3.78 and $254; in Ontario, $5.43 and $393. Again, Ontario and Quebec have an approximately equal rural population, but the agricultural products in Ontario are double those of Quebec, corresponding to the higher expenditure for education in Ontario.

THE CROP OUTLOOK IN PETERBOROUGH COUNTY AS REPORTED BY THE FARMERS

Fall Wheat Has Been Killed Out in Many Places and May Have to Be Ploughed Up—Situation is Fairly Good in Douro Township—Mr. Harold Baptie of Springville is Optimistic.

LABOUR IS SCARCE

The crop outlook is fairly good, according to the reports received from a number of farmers in Peterboro County. In some cases the fall wheat and clover seed. In some land may have to be ploughed up, but summarizing the reports, it would seem that the situation does not substantiate the pessimistic rumors that have been circulated regarding the cond on of the fall crops, such as wheat and clover seen In some localities throughout Peterboro County severe damage has resulted, but in others, the crop has come through all right with little material damage. There is scarcely ever a season when the fall wheat and clover is not hurt to some extent.

Mr. Harold Baptie of Springville, who returned this week from a three days' trip to Cobourg, has a very encouraging report to make on farm conditions. A number of farmers interviewed this morning regarding the situation, have the following observations to make.

BRUCE JOHNSTON, NORTH MONAGHAN TOWNSHIP.

Mr. Johnston states that the fall wheat is not very good, the frosts having killed much of it. He also says on account of the scarcity of help and the super-abundance of last year's crop, not as many vegetables will be planted this year. More grain will be planted this year, although seed is very dear.

HAROLD BAPTIE, SPRINGVILLE

Mr. Baptie is very optimistic as regards the farm situation. He said his fall wheat and clover seed will turn out very well although there were some heavy frosts. He had been to Cobourg and along the front this week and all the farmers down there comment very favorably on the crop outlook. Although there is not very very much help the farmers are relying on the school boys to help them out. On the whole he regards the situation as better than last year.

E. J. ALLAN, DOURO TOWNSHIP

The land is drying up well, although no spring ploughing has been attempted yet. The clover seed and fall wheat turned out well, especially the wheat, which was the best in years. The prospects of help are good as most of the farmers have kept their farm hands all winter. Much more grain will be grown this year than last year.

JAMES GRANT, BRIDGENORTH.

Mr. Grant says that no spring ploughing or cultivating has been done around that part of the country. Although the clover seed has turned out fair, the fall wheat has been very poor, much of it being killed out by the severe frosts, especially during the last week. About the same acreage will be planted this year as last, says Mr. Grant.

J. O. BALL, CAVAN TOWNSHIP.

The fall wheat will have to be ploughed up again, the severe frosts especially of last week, killing most of it on the high land. No ploughing or cultivating has yet been started for the spring crops.

W. R. DOUGLAS, NORTH MONAGHAN TOWNSHIP.

No cultivating has yet been done by Mr. Douglas or his neighbours. There has been a great deal of frost in the township, and the fall wheat looks very poor. The land is drying up well. The farmers are held up for the want of help.

F. J. SHAPLES, NORTH MONAGHAN.

A little spring plowing has been done in the district. The clover seed seems to be very good, but all the fall wheat is frozen and will have to be plowed up if this weather continues.

Mr. Staples states that nearly all of his farm is going to be put under the plow to help greater production. Just at present they are working in the sugar bush. He thinks that farm conditions are more favourable than they were this time last year.

W. GRANT, COMMUNICATION ROAD.

No ploughing or cultivating has been started yet. The clover seed and fall wheat has been nearly all frozen, especially during the last three nights. It is very difficult to get help around here. The acreage of grain will be about the same.

J. FITZGERALD, OTONABEE.

No ploughing or cultivating has been done in this neighbourhood. The clover seed and fall wheat turned out very poor, most of it being frozen. The frost was very severe in the vicinity especially during the last week. It is very hard to get help but they are relying on the city boys.

SPLENDID SERVICE IN MARK STREET

TEN DECISIONS FOR THE CHRISTIAN LIFE WERE MADE LAST NIGHT.

A still larger congregation attended the service in Mark Street Church last evening. A strong appeal made by Commandant McElhiney resulted in ten decisions for the Christian life. The service will be remembered by those who attended it as a time of great spiritual blessing. It is hoped that the Church will be crowded for the meeting to-night. Let as many as can come at 7.40 o'clock for the service of song and prayer. Rev. A. J. Thomas, M.A., D.D., of George Street Church, will speak. Shall we not save the hour at the close of the day for prayer, for our Empire, our boys, and citizenship in the kingdom of Christ.

PETERBORO' GIRLS PREFER TO WORK ON FRUIT FARMS

There has been considerable activity in enlistment amongst the girls of the city to fill the places of soldiers of the soil on the market gardens. The young ladies who have aired their views on enlistment have now a chance to enlist in a sphere of work behind the lines which is to-day as important to the success of the allies as active service, and are now taking their chance to do their bit.

Prefer Fruit Farms.

The only difficulty of the recruiting sergeants, Miss Rush and Miss Pearce, is the string the girls put in their enlistment. The majority of the girls have a decided preference for work on fruit farms, and some do not know exactly what they could do.

Gardeners Pleased.

The market gardeners, who have been interviewed, are enthusiastic over the offer of help and are making conditions as favourable as lies in their power to do.

The Spring Drive Of 57th Band Meets With Unusual Success

About Half of the New Members Are Veterans of the Great War—Open Air Concerts in the Park

The big spring drive of the 57th Regiment Band for new members and incidentally, increased efficiency, although only in its second week, is meeting with continued success. Already thirteen capable musicians have made application for membership, and it is confidently expected that double this number will be available before the end of the month. One particularly pleasing feature in this connection is the large percentage of Great War Veterans throwing in their lot with the 57th—even former 57th men fighting in France, or on furlough in England, in recent letters received, have expressed a desire to again enroll in the 57th on their return to Canada. This spirit of loyalty to the oldest musical organization in this section of the Province is undoubtedly very encouraging to the present management, who are commencing to feel very optimistic as to the future. Even the ladies of the city are lending a helping hand, and a dance and military euchre on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings netted quite a substantial sum for the 57th Treasury, while a cheque for $100.00 from the local chapter of the Daughters of the Empire was another much appreciated donation. The following is a list of the new members:

NEW MEMBERS.

Mr. Geo. Knipper, Warrant Officer, cornet; late Bandmaster Canadian Engineers, overseas. From London, Ont.

Mr. W. G. Benson, flute and piccolo, Woodstock, 75th Regt. Band, overseas.

Mr. D. Briscoe, cornet, 93rd Band, overseas.

Mr. P. Doughty, clarinet, 93rd Band, overseas.

Mr. W. Tamblin, baritone, 59th Band, overseas.

Mr. F. Stemoff, B. B. Bass, Philadelphia, Pa.

Mr. McDonald, cornet, Ingersoll, Ont.

Mr. W. Clarke, cornet.

Mr. J. Hartshorn, snare drum.

Mr. J. Coboco, horn.

Mr. A. Thirnbeck, horn.

Mr. F. Green, cornet.

Mr. Ed. Hanrahan, horn.

Tuesday night's rehearsal was very successful, both as to attendance and work accomplished, and it is expected to-night's rehearsal at the Armouries will be even more successful.

A number of this season's musical successes including "Furs and Frills," "Katinka," "Pom-Pom," "Oh, Boy," and "So Long Letty" will be featured in the 57th's Park concerts during the summer. These open-air concerts this season, it is confidently expected, will far surpass anything of the kind heretofore attempted in this city.

Many Thousands Of Hours For Greater Production From Daylight Savings And 9-Hours

What will be the effect of the Daylight Savings Bill on the greater production campaign in Peterborough this summer.

It may be taken for granted that the extra hour of daylight will not be wasted in sleep. Some may devote it to pleasure, boating, automobiling, tennis, summering at Stoney Lake or sheer idleness. A few may follow the progress of the war more closely by devoting the new found hour to reading the papers as they have never done heretofore. Most of the people, however, are seemingly anxious to contribute some effort, beyond armchair leadership of the allied armies, in producing food for home consumption, thereby increasing the supplies needed by the men on the fifing line, and their families in the allied countries overseas. Hence the earnest, patriotic citizen may scorn the pleasure-loving shirkers and leave them to their fate.

Omitting Saturday from the problem, the bill the farmers tried to kill provides five extra hours of daylight that can be devoted to garden work. Supposing 10,000 persons engage in the production of vegetables in this city, they will contribute 50,000 more working hours than in the same week last year. To arrive at the grand total, consider the period from April 15th to the end of August, twenty weeks. The number of hours saved by the hypothetical 10,000 S.O.S. in Peterborough would be—50,000 times 20 equals 1,000,000.

The value of one million hours spent in gardening is beyond one's imagination, and agricultural experts would be hard put to reduce it to concrete terms. But, every person must be convinced that, if Peterborough puts those 1,000,000 extra hours into the growing of potatoes, beans, and other vegetables above the food content of green onions and lettuce, the harvest should surpass the wildest estimates of peace times.

The Nine-Hour Day.

Three local factories have established the nine-hour day. Supposing there are 1,500 potential gardeners in their combined payroll, they alone could throw into the campaign 15,000 extra hours a week or 300,000 hours upto the end of August. These workers will not only have the hour the Daylight Bill gives them, but also the hour provided by the nine-hour day. This summer they will cease work at what would have been four o'clock if the Bill did not pass, and it has already received its third reading. It has been said that figures can be manipulated to support any estimate, and there is almost no limit to the dazzling totals of the hours open to greater production in this city alone. Try it on your Burroughs.

Fire Destroyed House In East City

Origin of the Fire is a Mystery—House Was Vacant

A fire, the origin of which is a mystery, destroyed a frame, metal-covered house at 168 Hazlett street, owned by ex-Fireman Suddards, last night.

The alarm was rung in at 12.25 from Box 57. When the Fire Department arrived, the flames, which evidently originated in the wood shed, had gained rapid headway and ignited the roof and window frames of the house. The Chief laid down 1,100 feet of hose and fought the blaze until 3 o'clock, confining the loss to about $500. The house, which is worth $1,400, was partly covered by insurance.

House Empty.

The Chief is puzzled over the cause of the fire, as the house has been vacant since last Wednesday. The electric wiring seems to have been intact.

The Police Report.

The police report on this fire states that the house was vacated on Wednesday, April 3rd, by Mr. Edwards, brother-in-law of Mr. Harry Suddards. It adds that Edwards was put out for non-payment of rent, and is now living at Downer's Corners. The fire was discovered by Mr. E. Bedding, next door, who was awakened by the bright light of the flames. Apparently it originated in the wood shed. The rear rooms were badly burned, but the front section is intact. The house was sheeted with tin. Mr. Suddards, it was stated, visited his house on Wednesday night.

Four More Grass Fires.

Four more grass fires were added to the chain of such blazes since yesterday afternoon. At 7.15 last night the fire department was called to the river bank above the Smith street bridge; at 644 to Richard Hall's residence, at 11.58 this morning to Park and McDonnel, and at 1.52 to Lansdowne street.

Two Chimney Fires.

The Department was called at 8.03 to the corner of Lock and Gladstone avenue, and at 11 o'clock to Park and McDonnel streets to chimney fires. No damage was done.

"Just Tell 'Em To Come And See Me"

Toronto Engineer Wants Everybody To Know About His Improvement

"Out of all the treatment and medicines I have taken in the past twelve years, I have never found anything that did me any good until I started taking Tanlac," is the remarkable statement made a few days ago by Joseph Walker, stationery engineer at the Continental Life Building, who resides at 49 Huntly street, Toronto.

"Rare words couldn't describe the way I have suffered for more than ten long years," he continued. "My trouble started with a complete breakdown that left me in a terrible condition. My nerves and stomach seemed to be torn up in such a way that no matter what I did for myself I couldn't get well. I never had any appetite, and it seemed almost as much as my life was worth for me to try to eat meat or vegetables, for they would lie like a hard lump in my stomach and torture me for hours. I'd bloat up with gas that choked me and made my heart flutter and skip and I would get so weak all over that I would reel from side to side when I started to walk. Then rheumatism set in and I began to have sharp cutting pains through my legs and finally got so bad I could hardly go at all. One treatment after another failed to help me and I lost faith in medicine almost and was so blue and despondent I didn't much care whether school kept or not.'

"But that's only one side of my story, and I sure want everybody to know the other side. I read what so many people said about the good Tanlac was doing that I finally persuaded m self to give it a trial. I have taken three bottles of Tanlac and am now on my fourth, and I'm like a brand new man. I can eat just anything I want—pork, pickles—it doesn't seem to matter what, and everything digests easily and I never have a sign of the stomach trouble. The gas has disappeared, and my heart acts natural again and the rheumatism is gradually leaving me. I feel stronger and better and have more energy and vigour than I have had before in years, and I can do more work now than I have been able to do in a long time. My wife is taking Tanlac now after seeing how it has helped me and is delighted with the results. I'll certainly back up everything I say about Tanlac, and if anybody wants to know how I feel about Tanlac, just tell them to come and see me."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Drug Co. Ltd., in Havelock by A. C. Denike, in Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co., Ltd., in Fowlers' Corners by W. A. Hunter, in Gelert by A. J. Scott, in Westwood by G. Pringle & Son.

Germans Defeated

ette Wood and extended our positions to the north-ward of Montrena."

Made Slight Gains.

LONDON, April 5.— The Germans this morning attacked the British forces on a front from Dernacourt, a few miles south of Albert, to Moyenville, north of the Somme, according to a statement published by the Evening Standard. The chief points in the attack, the newspaper says, were Derancourt, Menine, Breumont, Hamel, Briegury and Moyenneville. The Germans were repulsed with heavy losses except at Dernacourt where they made slight gains. There has been no attack south of Somme so far to-day, the statement says.

CITY WILL NOT BE ABLE TO SECURE OIL FOR STREETS

Manufacturers Are Reluctant About Quoting Prices—Embargo on the Supply

MAY USE WATER

The prospects of this city securing a supply of road oil for use on the city's streets, are very remote. The manufacturers are not falling over themselves to quote the city prices on the dust-defying product. Letters that have been received by the city's engineering department quietly hint that the oil is needed for munitions, and it may be the city will have to take the hint and revert to the old method of using water on the streets as a dust layer. There is an embargo on the supply coming from the United States, and at present there are no indications of it being lifted. At present it looks as though the Council will have to authorize Ald. Weir, chairman of the Board of Works, to prepare plans for using water on the city thoroughfares in place of oil.

Inspector Mowat Replies To Query Of Labour Men

Homework is Assigned By Teachers For Average Children—Some Pupils Require Longer Time For Study

Inspector Mowat, on being questioned regarding home work in the Public Schools, made the following statement:

The Regulations of the Board regarding the amount of home work are:

1. Primer Grade, no home work.
2. Book I Grade, not to exceed 15 minutes
2. Book II Grade, not to exceed 30 minutes
3. Book III Grade, not to exceed 45 minutes
5. Book IV Grade, not to exceed 60 minutes

The difficulty in assigning home work is that some pupils will do as much in twenty minutes as others in forty. The teachers have to consider the average child and, if parents find that their children are given more home work than can be done in the above periods, they should notify the teacher, and she will accept the notification, and in no case exact more time than the Regulations stipulate.

I find that few teachers require as much time for home work as the above Regulations permit, and in the exceptional cases where mistakes are being made, if the parents would confer with the teachers concerned, and the Principal of the school, the matter should easily be remedied.

A good Public School education is a matter of supreme importance, and the teachers and parents should co-operate more and more in the work.

A reasonable amount of home work for Public School pupils is, in my opinion, absolutely necessary if a good foundation is to be laid.

Pupils must have more time for thought, for self-help, and for forming the habit of study. They cannot hope to take up the harder work of the High School with any degree of success, if they have not formed the habit of studying.

Detention after four is a form of punishment that should be resorted to only on rare occasions, but it is difficult to overcome it altogether. The Regulations of the Board do not permit the detention of a pupil later than twenty minutes after four.

Market Clerk Is Aggrieved At The Closing of Arcade

The hundreds of women who attend the Saturday market are reminded that the old approach through the Arcade to the stairs has been closed. As a result they will be considerably inconvenienced by having to go around to the rear entrance. Those coming from the north will find the sidewalk at the rear of the burned block, buried in debris which obstructs the entire lane. Hence they are advised to make the Charlotte street or Water street detours. Mr. Walter Fisher, market clerk, feels aggrieved at the city's closing of the arcade for two stores. He has paid $100 more than last year for the tolls. His year began on April 1st and he states that the city has seriously hampered the public's approach the market, and will likely demand compensation. The walks at the rear of the stores in that block are obviously too narrow for the crowds that used to spread across the wide arcade.

BOLSHEVIK MOVES FOR CONSCRIPTION

LONDON, April 5.—The Bolshevik Government has resolved to introduce compulsory military service, according to an Exchange Telegraph despatch from Petrograd, and has agreed to discuss a proposal for the conclusion of peace from the Central Ukranian rada of iKev.

It is reported that the Germans and Ukranians will attempt a fresh advance on Kharkov from Poltava.

ENOUGH STEEL FOR SHIPS.

WASHINGTON, April 5.—Replying to-day to charges made before a Senate Committee yesterday that shipyards are short of steel the War Industries Board in a statement today declared enough steel had been shipped to the Emergency Fleet Corporation in the last three months to build ships at the rate of 550,000 tons month or more than 6,000,000 tons a year.

Cash-And-Carry At Mervin's Meat Mart

To-morrow the "Cash-and-Carry" System will be introduced by Mr. John Mervin in his large meat market business.

The credit and delivery service in connection with his business have increased in a corresponding degree with the increase in his large trade, until it has become a most difficult matter to handle them satisfactorily.

The "Cash-and-Carry" system has appealed to him as being worthy of a fair trial. It has proved a remedy for the credit and delivery troubles of other lines of business, and why not meat business? Reductions will be made on all Cash-and-Carry orders, averaging from two to three cents per pound off the retail prices of meats and other produce. Large orders can be arranged to be delivered in cases where the customers have no conveyance.

Mr. Mervin's desire is to do away with the credit and delivery systems as far as possible, and trusts his customers and the customers will assist in giving it a fair trial and generous encouragement.

A Big Increase In All Fire Insurance Rates Now Under Consideration

Peterboro's Share of the Increased Revenue to Be Provided For the Insurance Companies Will Be In the Neighbourhood of $187,500 a Year—Cancel Existing Rates

Special to the Examiner.

TORONTO, April 5.—An increase of from 25 to 50 per cent. on all fire insurance rates is now under consideration by the Canadian Fire Underwriters' Association. Already the Association has announced fifty per cent increase in rates to factories working twenty-four hours a day, the advance to take effect April 15th. It is understood the Association, in its new plan for increased revenue for the eighty insurance companies under its control, will cancel all existing rates on wood-working factories, woollen mills, canning factories, cereal mills, and munitions plants not in first-class condition, rolling mills and pulp and paper plants on April 15th, thus eliminating their most hazardous risks. The executive is in session in Toronto to-day over the proposed increased rates.

Under existing conditions the C. F. U. A. has practically unlimited control of the fire insurance business in this country. They control eighty per cent. of business in Ontario, and are equally strong in other provinces. The only competition the Association has are the non-tariff companies both licensed and unlicensed, and the New England mutuals, but these have not been powerful enough to exercise any check on the operations of the Canadian Fire Underwriters' Association.

PETERBORO'S SHARE.

Assuming the increase to be twenty five per cent on general risks, Peterborough's annual contribution to the revenue of the insurance companies will be in the neighbourhood of one hundred and eighty-seven thousand, five hundred dollars. At the present time this city pays out in the form of premiums something like seven hundred and fifty thousand dollars a year.

GOING TOO FAR.

(St. Thomas Journal)

Germany has issued new paper money for circulation in Russia. Aren't they carrying this scrap of paper idea rather too far?

RED TAPE IN EXCELSIS.

(London Daily News)

A private, home on leave, was travelling with his wife inside a 'bus, when a wounded officer entered. The Tommy at once offered his seat, only to be met with the remark: "You have no right in here." Is there a regulation to that effect? Must he, simply because he is in a private's uniform, leave his wife and travel outside?

LOST OPPORTUNITY.

(Kansas City Star)

A traveller in the far back region of the Arkansas Ozarks came upon an ancient man sitting in the doorway of his cabin. After learning the direction, in which he should go, the traveller politely asked, "Well, what do you think of the war?"

"Which—p'tu—war?" was the counter question. "Has the Civil War done busted loose ag'n?"

"No. The war with Germany. It has been going on for more than three years, and—"

"Well, I'll be dogged! That's what a feller gits for living way off yur. Never heered a word about it. It's too durn bad, for I seed a couple of gents down there in the holler yesterday that mought a-been Germans. Could a-killed 'em just as easy as not."

It is remarkable how many persons have known all along that it is easy enough to make a gun that will shoot seventy-six miles. Their silence was phenomenal.

A PROTECTED BOURASSA.

(London Advertiser)

Bourassa has been protected at Ottawa as a gambling house is protected by a corrupt police force. As the French paper, L'Evenement says, the articles of the fiery Montreal distator have been of the most seditious character. His crazy doctrines have influenced a great many people in Quebec, and the mob outbreak of the last few days may be laid at his door. It is not the misguided victims of his ultra intolerance of Britain who should have to stand the punishment. The fountain head of this stream of rebellion is to be found in the editorial offices of Le Devoir. And he sent the poison forth with the toleration of the Government.

Rivals.

(Chicago Tribune.)

"We have grievously shaken England's army by God's help."—Der Kaiser.

This persistent praise of Von Gott will eventually make Von Ludendorff sore. Perhaps that is the kaiser's intention.

What Was Needed.

(St. Thomas Journal.)

Had Sir Robert Borden had the courage to put Bourassa and Lavergne in their places three years ago, we venture the opinion that there would have been no riots in Quebec last week.

Think of the Compensation.

(Providence Journal.)

It may be a little hard at first, to get up an hour earlier in the morning to save daylight, and to go to bed an hour earlier at night. But there will be no difficulty at all about knocking off work an hour earlier in the afternoon.

Put Down Mobocracy.

(Ottawa Journal.)

Mobs are vicious and dangerous under any circumstances whatsoever. They are particularly vicious and dangerous when inspired by antagonism to just laws sanctioned by a majority of the nation. There can be some excuse for mobs driven to lawlessness through unbridled antagonism against those who violate laws. There can be no shred of excuse for mobs indulging in terrorism and murderous assaults upon those who try to uphold laws.

FARM SPECIALISTS.

A teacher, who doesn't know how to teach,
A preacher, who doesn't know how to preach,
A painter who can't paint very well,
A printer who doesn't know how to spell,
An odd jobs man with never a job,
A cobbler who doesn't know how to cob,
A miller who doesn't know how to mill,
A butcher who doesn't know how to kill,
A racer who doesn't know how to race,
A mason who doesn't know how to mace;
A clocksmith who cannot mend a clock,
And a doctor who doesn't know how to doc;
And since none of these are busy men
You will find them again and yet again,
Ever anon and a few times more,
'Round the stove in Mendolsen's store,
Each talking freely and through his hat,
Doing the one thing they are expert at—
Giving advice to farmers.

SALE OF OLEOMARGARINE.

Reasons Why Government Permitted Importation.

OTTAWA, April 4. — The reasons which prompted the Government to pass the order-in-Council permitting manufacture, importation and sale of oleomargarine in Canada, were given by T. A. Crerar, Minister of Agriculture, in the House of Commons. He stated that in the year 1913 Canada had exported 150,216,000 pounds of cheese; 828,623 pounds of butter, and 335,849 pounds of condensed milk. Four years later, in 1917, the exports of cheese had grown to 180,733,436 pounds; those of butter to 7,999,000 pounds, and of condensed milk to 15,858,000 pounds. The imports of butter into Canada in 1913 were 7,869,000 pounds, and in 1917 only 997,000 pounds.

HEAVYWEIGHT BOUT IN DENVER BALL PARK

Seating Accommodation Could Be Had for 20,000 Spectators.

NEW YORK, April 5.—The world's championship heavyweight scrap between Jess Willard and Fred Fulton will, according to present indications, be held either in Denver, Col., or New Haven, Conn., with the balance considerably in favour of the Western city.

Col. Joseph C. Miller, who matched the ponderous mitt wielders, as a matter of fact, is seriously considering becoming the one and only commander-in-chief of the forces who will stage the bout, inclining to Denver because he believes he can get sufficient local backing to make the affair a success.

Denver possesses two suitable places for the bout—one indoor stadium and a huge outdoor enclosure. The indoor spot has practically been passed up, so, if the bout goes to the mile high city, it undoubtedly will be in the Denver baseball park. This park is of major league proportions. It has a grand stand that will comfortably seat 10,000 persons, with a small sized bleachers off to one side. Around this could be erected temporary seats to accommodate 15,000 or 20,000 more persons.

Colonel Miller is confident the attendance at the fight will amount to just as many seats as he is able to group around the ring. Prices may have to be run up, he declared, to hold the attendance down to the capacity of the arena.

"I haven't talked a lot about offers," Colonel Miller said, "because a lot of small town offers have been made simply to get advertising. This bout isn't being auctioned off at all. In fact, I rather believe I want to do the whole thing myself, with probably some local help."

ROMANOFF FAMILY IS ILL

Petrograd, April 5.—Several members of the former Imperial Russian family, now at Tobolsk, are ill, and the Red Cross has petitioned the Bolshevik Government to allow the family the ordinary rations instead of that allotted to soldiers. It has been decided to give the Romanoff family an allowance of 300 rubles a month.

MR. JAMES G. GUISE-BAGLEY REPLIES TO MR. J. H. BURNHAM

Peterborough, April 4, 1918.

Dear Editor,—Mr. Burnham's letter provokes a reply. The last time I wrote to the press he slammed me very hard and suggested that I was actuated by financial motives, but the public found out who was right; now he writes all the way from Ottawa to slam me again and destroy the force of my attempt to right a wrong by again suggesting that I am actuated by similar motives. Does he think it impossible for a lawyer to be honest or hold an honest opinion? Or is he afraid somebody will benefit by the righting of a wrong and I shall get the credit? I am not looking for credit—I shall not even get thanks, much less, pay, for the stand I have taken. You, sir, also know that I have not changed my ground from first to last. I have always said that the National interests are paramount, that Europe looks to Canada for food as the nearest point, as well as the most important producer, and I stood on the same platform as the Premier when he said that food production of all kinds was essential. I stand there yet. I thought Mr. Burnham stood there too. I thought we could rely on the Minister of Militia carrying out out his promise to discharge any bonafide food producers that got drafted in error. Mr. Tucker, the agricultural representative at Kingston says there are hundreds of cases, and the Minister seems to me to have repudiated his promise. If he had seen that the farms were well supplied with labour to put in the spring crop, by sending bona fide farm hands without exception as soldiers on leave to the farms, and then had called out the other categories and sorted out the farming men from them and sent these as soldiers to take the places of the "A" men, the national interests would have been well served, the farms would have produced to their utmost, and the troops raised too. The farmers as a class have no more right to exemption than any other business, but the nation must have food, and the error is that many farms in this county will now go uncultivated.

Mr. Burnham says I have been paid for these sentiments. That is not fair, and it is not true. He would be surprised if he knew how little I have got out of the business. All I am trying to do is to bring to the knowledge of the Government the serious state of affairs, and if Mr. Burnham would assist in this, or better still, take the lead in it, he would do better national service than by slamming me, and discounting my efforts. Can it be that he does not realize the danger to the state that exists to-day? Conscription is all right, but conscript all alike. Use every man where he will do most good for all the nation. See that every man is engaged in that which will bring the best results. The mechanic to munitions, the farmer to the plow, the other fellow to the trenches, etc. I know of several farmers, owners of farms that have within the last week been taken from their lands and those lands will grow weeds instead of food in consequence. The Director of the Military Service Council told me that if I heard of any such cases it was my duty as a citizen to bring the case before the military authorities with a view to the man being sent back to his occupation of a farmer. I have done so. I told the Minister of Militia personally that there are such cases, and he replied that the Leave of Absence Boards are doing the investigation. But the Leave of Absence Boards have their hands tied, and besides, are military tribunals that lean to getting the men. There has been a lot of perjury, but no one is punished for it and the oath of a man is discounted every time.

As for me, I can do no more than I have done, my duty calls for no less. I am only doing my part as a citizen, and the historian will be judge. There is a great fight against autocracy just beginning in this country, I thought Mr. Burnham was the champion of democracy and would as such figure big in opposing the high handed way in which the M. S. Act is being handled. He says let somebody else do what I have tried to do; I am willing and anxious to hand it over to him if he cares to accept the opprobium one gets for one's pains. I have not in any sense been remunerated for the work and time and expense I have given to the effort to preserve to the farms the skilled workers in the interest of food production, and I can only regret that there has not been the backing of a better man.

Yours, etc.,
Jas. G. Guise-Bagley.

58 Workmen Who Trespassed On C.P.R. Due For $4.60 Fine?

Of fifty-eight citizens summonsed to appear in police court charged with trespassing on the C. P. R. John Anglesey, this morning, was the first. Magistrate Dumble relieved him of $4.60. The other fifty-seven are scheduled for Tuesday, and they will be well advised to provide themselves with a five dollar bill.

Mr. George Greenham, C. P. R. detective, made his annual swoop through the local yards on Tuesday, April 1st, and held up fifty-eight trespassers west of the station. They were nearly all workmen taking the short cut to the Henry Hope and C. G. E. factories.

CANADA ON RATIONS WITHIN THREE MONTHS.

Winnipeg, April 5.—D. A. Ross, M. L. A., for St. Clements, this afternoon stated that he had been informed that after July 1st there would be no more grain for the flour mills and that it would be essential to put the country on rations.

DUSTLESS SWEEPER CLEANED THE STREETS DID GOOD JOB

The citizens who wondered at the unusually clean appearance of the business streets this morning will find an explanation in the fact that the big new sweeper of the Dominion Dustless Sweepers Company took a trial run over the paved section of George street last night with results that were apparent this morning. The new sweeper does its work cleanly, speedily and effeffectively. It is understood that it will be shipped to New York in the near future. The other sweeper constructed by the company is still available for use here if called upon.

Lull In Grain Traffic Until Boats Get Busy

Grain freight traffic from Midland and Tiffen over the G. T. R. has reached a low ebb. The elevators there have been emptied of their food contents, which have been transported to Europe, or at least to Atlantic terminals. The grain haulage will flow again when the boats begin to arrive at Midland from the Fort William elevators. The Great Lakes Navigation season is expected to open a week or ten days earlier this year, and the first movement will soon be reported.

CAMBRIDGE STREET LOT USED FOR GRAZING.

Messrs. Thirnbeck and Cronin Had Planned to Cultivate It.

After securing the Council's permission to use the unopened section of Cambridge Street, west of the Bonner-Worth factory, Messrs. John Thirnbeck and T. Cronin discovered that this strip of land had been previously allotted to Mr. John Steward, of North Monaghan, for grazing purposes. It is 66 feet wide, and extends northerly through the entire depth of the lot. Messrs. Thirnbeck and Cronin had planned to use this land in response to the call for greater production, and were doubtless prepared to work every corner of it. They have questioned the comparative value of cattle grazing on a city lot.

THE FUNERAL TOOK PLACE THIS AFTERNOON.

The remains of the late John Braden were laid at rest this afternoon in the Little Lake Cemetery. Service, conducted by Rev. Mr. Thomas, was held at Comstock's Undertaking Parlours at 3 o'clock. The pall-bearers were: Messrs. A. E. Dixon, Robert Fair, John Nugent, Mr. Junkin (Toronto), G. W. Mulligan, and J. Mills.

WINDOW CURTAINS WERE ABLAZE.

Defective Wiring Set Fire to Curtain at Residence of Dr. Moir.

John Hall, 766 Water Street, while passing the residence of Dr. Moir, 196 Brock Street, noticed the window curtains blazing and notified the doctor. The Fire Department was called and extinguished the blaze with chemicals. The fire was caused by defective wiring. No serious damage was done.

SPORTING COMMENT

Terry Turner, the veteran Cleveland infielder, will start his fifteenth season with the Indians on April 16th.

Jock Malone is the latest St. Paul boxer to make a bid for fame. Malone looks like a comer and he may in time share fistic honours with the other Minnesota stars, Fulton, Artle, O'Down and the Gibbons brothers.

Penn State's wrestlers, the intercollegiate champions, won six of seven classes in their first competition in an intercollegiate meet.

Despite his 42 years, Kid Elberfeld is still able to fill a regular pastiming job. The "Tobasco" wonder is player-manager at Little Rock this season.

AMERICAN TROOPS TAKE OVER NEW SECTOR SOUTH OF VERDUN.

With the American Army in France —April 4.—American troops are now occupying a new sector of the Meuse Heights, south of Verdun.

This announcement was released for publication to-night simultaneously with a statement that the enemy raided one of the listening posts in this sector, following a heavy bombardment.

MILITIA OFFICER TAKEN FOR DRAFT

Toronto, April 5.—A Toronto militia officer was a compulsory addition to the army to-day, through the agency of the Dominion police, because he had failed to comply with the regulations of Military Service Act. The officer in question had neglected to register and apparently thinking he was not liable to be drafted, did not heed the warnings of the Dominion police, as a result he was taken into custody on Monday and was turned over to the military authorities.

TOWN SENDS ALL BUT TWO UNMARRIED MEN TO ARMY

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., April 4.—Every unmarried man in Mound, Minn., of military age except two are in service, voluntarily enlisted, and the two others have been placed in Class 1 by the draft board and are awaiting call. When the two remaining men have gone, Mound will have fourteen men in the military service. War savings societies have been organized in Mound to "get behind the boys," Jacob Hohl, Village Recorder says.

Still at Liberty.

(London Advertiser.)

It is said that the gathering in of the ringleaders in Quebec's rioting is an object dear to the heart of the authorities. Yet they have Henri Bourassa's address and he remains at liberty.

TOLD TO MOVE ON, THEN ARRESTED

"Take a walk," or something to that effect, P. C. Deannard ordered two farmers who were hanging on the brass rail at the Turnbull building this morning. A resident of Keene was one of them. When the constable had moved out of hearing he is said to have ejaculated a double-barreled expletive that is never heard in Sunday school. Whatever he uttered, it shocked Detective Newhall, who was standing nearby. The latter reached out an arm, and with "a walk with me," took the man to the police station. He was to appear before Magistrate Dumble this afternoon.

A PRESENTATION TO BONNER-WORTH EMPLOYEE.

SENDING MONEY BY MAIL.

London, April 4.—A necessary precaution has been circulated amongst the Canadians in this country about the comparative insecurity of the overseas mails nowadays. In view of the frequent losses of registered mail all ranks are warned that money should not be sent by mail, even if registered. When postal orders are sent by mail, care must be taken to fill in the name of the payee in order that the postal note cannot be made payable to bearer. It is important that this warning should be noted by the correspondents in Canada, of all ranks.

He is now Serving with Forces Overseas.

Lieut. M. M. (Bobby) Robinson, who left Hamilton with the 86th Machine Gun Battalion, and until recently has been serving with different machine gun units in England, is now in France.

U. S. REQUISITIONS RUSSIAN VESSELS.

NEW YORK, April 5.—The United States has requisitioned for use in the entente service a number of Russian ships formerly engaged in transporting supplies between America and Russia, according to authoritative information received in shipping circles here.

The vessels are those which were detained in American ports when the present Russian Government came into power. They will continue to fly the Russian flag. It is understood they will be operated by the Russain volunteer fleet, which, representing the former Russian Government in the United States, is still intact.

FOOT POWDER USED INSTEAD OF FLOUR.

Sounds Improbable, but Sammies Reported to Have Tasted It.

Foot powder is not good for making pies, doughnuts or bread. The Quartermaster's Department, has made experiments, and knows. A ton of foot powder was received at one of the American headquarters in France, and looking exactly like flour, and bearing no label, it was taken for granted that it was flour. As flour is scarce there was a great demand for the newly arrived ton of foot powder, and within twenty-four hours bags of it were causing temporary delight to scores of army bakers. It would be impossible to tell all that has since happened. Protests came in from every quarter. The Quartermaster's Department was all but mobbed.

No one knew what was the matter with the flour. It was thought merely that some one had sold the government a bogus article, but the climax came to-day when an official appeared at the quarermaster's place and insisted that the ton of foot powder be produced. So far as is known the powder is quite harmless. Just how much of it was eaten is problematical. The partly emptied sacks now are being rounded up and sent out where they will be of more service than in the bakers'kitchens.

DEBATE ON QUEBEC OFF TILL FRIDAY.

Ottawa, April 5.—Crowded galleries were disappointed yesterday afternoon when the expected debate on the Quebec situation was postponed until Friday.

The premier advised this course, as the government had certain information and proposals to lay before the House which were not ready yesterday.

Col. Currie, who had moved the adjournment of the House to bring on the debate, accepted the suggestion of one day's delay.

WHAT LONE BANDIT DID.

CINCINNATI Ohio, April 3.— A lone bandit pointing a revolver, held up and robbed the First National Bank of Masonville of $4,000 at noon to-day. Walter Stevens, bookkeeper, and Frank R. Miller, who was taking the place of the cashier during the noon hour, were locked in the bank's vault.

WEDDING BELLS

IRWIN—WHITTET.

At the residence of Mrs. McKinley, 493 Aylmer street, this afternoon at 4 o'clock the wedding was solemnized, Rev. Mr. Pogue officiating, of Helen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Whittet, Scotland, and Corporal Robert Irwin, of Kingston formerly of Peterborough, who returned last year from the front, having been wounded twice while serving with the 21st Battalion. The bride, who was becomingly gowned in grey silk, with corsage bouquet of white carnations, was attended by Miss McKinley who wore a brown silk dress with touches of pink satin. Mr. John McKey supported the group.

The groom's present to the bride was a handsome pearl necklace, to the bridesmaid a pearl and emerald pendant, and to the best man gold cuff links.

After the wedding a wedding breakfast was served to the large number of friends present.

Corp. and Mrs. Irwin will leave shortly for the East.

SHIPPING PLACED AT THE DISPOSAL OF BRITISH GOVT.

Melbourne, Australia, April 5. — Twenty seven overseas and 34 coastal ships have been placed at the disposal of the British government, it was announced to-day.

The coastal ships mentioned probably include those plying between Adelaide and Brisbine, most of which range in tonnage from 5,000 to 8,000. Many of the oversese ships are considerably larger.

TRIPLE LINK SOCIETY HELD A SOCIAL

The Triple Link Society euchre and social at the Oddfellows' Hall last night was a most enjoyable event, and the committee in charge are highly satisfied by the general success of the affair.

Miss Tucker won the ladies' first prize at the progressive euchre, Miss Hann was second. Mr. Londerville held the highest score for the gentlemen. Mr. Curry was second.

Social Evening.

After dainty refreshments, provided by the Lady Rebeccas, were served, a most enjoyable social evening with music, provided by Tucker's Orchestra, was spent. The guests departed at about 2.30.

RUSS ARMY OF 1,500,000.

Moscow, April 5. — Russia will form an army of 1,500,000 men, not inferior in power and equipment to the Germans and the Japanese, M. Podvoisky, assistant Secretary of War, declared to-day at a conference in Moscow of the various military department heads. This would be the first step in arming the whole Russian nation.

Not Wanted.

(New York Herald.)

From time to time it has been reported that Quebec would be glad to annex itself to the United States. While nobody on this side of the border has taken that talk seriously it is recalled by recent events in that Province. Permit us to say—"No thank you."

North Monaghan Vegetable Growers Form An Association At Meeting Held Last Night

Mr. Fred Wilson Will Head the New Organization as President—Other Officers Elected—Local Speakers Deal With Vital Subjects of the Day—Ditching Machine For the Municipality.

TWO GREAT PROBLEMS

The "North Monaghan Vegetable Growers' Association" had its inception last evening at a largely attended meeting that was held in May's school house. The President of the newly formed organization is Mr. Fred Wilson, Councillor of North Monaghan. Other officers elected were Mr. Charles Kitney, secretary, and Mr. John Williams, treasurer.

The meeting, which was presided over by Reeve John McIntosh, was attended by a representative gathering. A battery of local speakers dealt with such problems as greater production and the labour problem and urged the producers present to make still greater efforts this year in support of the cause for which the allies are fighting.

Two Great Problems.

Mr. F. C. McRae gave an interesting address on greater production. He said that the two great problems of the day was the labour situation and the scarcity of seed.

These problems are not only local, but world-wide in their scope. He said one way to overcome them was by uniting. As an instance he referred to the United Farmers' Club of Lambton County, which transacted three quarters of a million dollars worth of business last year. He informed his audience that although he had heard nothing definite from the government, he believed that the services of a ditching machine could be procured.

Uniform Price.

Mr. Rush of Humber Bay, Toronto, was the principal speaker of the evening. He represented the Ontario Vegetable Growers' Association, and is a vegtasble grower of considerable experience. He showed that by uniting the vegetable growers would be able to fix a uniform price and not glut the market in any one locality. He said the expense was very great in the Humber Valley owing to heavy taxes and the cost of labour, yet the association made a substantial profit. He said that owing to the Vegetable Growers' united front and their increasing importance, the Ontario government had appointed Mr. Reeves, past president of the Vegetable Growers' Association of Ontario to investigate:

(1) No. of acres of vegetable lands.
(2) No. of market gardeners.

He said the Vegetable Growers' Association received a discount of 15 p. c. on fertilizers, for instance nitrate of soda, which is now $120 a ton.

Miss Pearce.

Miss Pearce, representing the farm branch of the Women's National Council was also present. She said they were enrolling girls for work this summer, some of whom were present—Miss Agnes Neill, Miss Ethel Morrison and Miss Rush. The girls expect to receive 15c. an hour on the farms.

Mr. G. A. Gillespie.

Mr. G. A. Gillespie, M.P.P., who was the next speaker, was of the opinion that flax could very well be grown in this district. He said the War Board of Britain especially requested that as much as possible be grown because it is used in the manufacture of aeroplane wings. Mr. Gillespie said that three ordinary Collegiate boys could pull an acre of flax in a day.

Mr. Joseph Wearing.

Mr. Joseph Wearing said that the Germans were able to fight so long because of the organization and co-ope ration of the whole population of Germany. He said that school boys as likely workers on the farm was thought preposterous a year ago, but this year they will be in great demand. Already one hundred and sixty boys have enrolled. The Government is trying to get 15,000 boys on the farms this year, which shows that they recognize Canada's great national asset. He said that we must keep up our enthusiasm and not allow it to wane. He heard that Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., was contemplating growing an acre of onions, but he hoped that Mr. Burnham would not attempt it.

Mr. H. B. Cowan.

Mr. H. B. Cowan, of the Farm and Dairy, also spoke and informed the audience he was one of the originators o fthe Ontario Vegetable Growers' Association. The Association, if one was formed in this district, could meet in the office of the Farm and Dairy if they wished.

It was then moved that a local association be formed and the following executive was elected:

President—Mr. Fred Wilson.
Secretary—Mr. Kitney.
Treasurer—Mr. Williams.

MUSIC AS RECREATION

Recreation is essential for the health and well-being of the family, and music is essential for a recreation that is totally relaxing and instructive.

Are you doing without music in the home because no one plays? In these days of marvelous inventions, that is no excuse for the lack of music.

There are people who have been wise enough to purchase player-pianos, organs and phonographs, slightly used, therefore cheaper, by securing them through Heintzman Hall, Peterborough, Royal Bank Buildings, Hunter Street.—B. H. Britton, Manager. 'Phone 258.

STARS ARE RETIRING FROM BIG LEAGUES

Not Holding Out or Quitting Temporarily, But Out for Good.

NEW YORK, April 2.—Voluntary retirements from baseball are unusually numerous this year. In this connection no reference is made to those players who give up baseball for war work, or to pronounced holdouts, but simply to those who have announced that they are through with the game.

Frank Allen and Eddie Fitzpatrick of the Boston Braves have notified George Stallings that they intend to devote their time to farm work in the future. Dave Robertson of the Giants is another to give up the game, while Plank and Marsans of the Highlanders both are showing signs of stickings to their determination to retire. George Foster and "Chet" Thomas of the Boston Red Sox are others who have announced that they have had enough of the diamond pastime, and, of course, Hans Wagner is positively retired this time.

While so many are giving up the game, Rube Oldring, one of the most is planning to stage a comeback in the big show.

A Clergyman's Wife Wants Women to Know Advantages of Internal Bathing

If women could only see the thousands of letters Dr. Tyrrell has received from grateful women in all parts of the world, thanking him for his wonderful invention for Internal Bathing, they would soon discard the medicine bottle and look to the cause of their trouble. 95 per cent. of all human ills are due to accumulated waste in the Colon or Large Intestine. Warm water, properly used with the "J. B. L. Cascade," will relieve the cause of your troubles and perfect health will follow.

A Winnipeg clergyman writes: "My wife is naturally sensitive about having her name appear in public print, yet is anxious that others should know what the 'J. B. L. Cascade' has done for her. It has really given her a new lease of life. For years she had been doctoring for Constipation, which became worse each year. Since using the 'J. B. L. Cascade', first about 4 years ago; she has not been sick a day, and has become robust and strong again. Should any person wish this letter confirmed, you are at liberty to give my name in private."

The "J. B. L. Cascade" is an invention perfected by Dr. Chas. A. Tyrrell of New York, and has done more during the past few years to restore health and lessen disease than all other means combined.

The "J. B. L. Cascade" is shown and explained at Wurne Drug Co., Peterborough. Ask for Booklet explaining all about Internal Bathing and what it has done for others. It is free.

MILITARY GIVEN POWER OVER CIVIL AUTHORITIES

Drastic Regulations Advocated by Government For Suppression of Rioting Provides That Military Orders in Affected Areas Shall Be Obeyed by Civilians

COURT-MARTIAL FOR ANY OFFENDERS ARRESTED BY THE SOLDIERS HEREAFTER

Ottawa, April 6.—Strict regulations for the suppression of rioting, have been advocated by the government. The order-in-Council to give the regulations effect was read by the Prime Minister in the House yesterday afternoon. It recites, in the first place, the opposition in Quebec to the enforcement of the M.S.A., and intimates that the civil authorities made no request for military assistance. It affirms the legality of the military intervention which actually took place and for the future, authorizes the officer commanding a military district to intervene with troops under his command, and to "Use such force as he may determine to be reasonably necessary to quell and suppress rioting, insurrection or civil disturbance, and to restore peace, whether or not any requisition be made upon or order given to such officer or to any military authorities by any civil magistrate or civil authority."

Ottawa, April 6.—The orders-in-Council read in the House this afternoon whereby the government legalizes what has been done by the militia in Quebec, and provides for the control of future outbreaks, do not explain what is to become of the Dominion Police who have been rounding up defaulters, in that province and who were temporarily scattered after the recent trouble. Sir Robert, when asked how these police are affected by the new regulations, said, "They are given proper military protection."

"But they are at present disbanded," the Premier was asked.

"Yes," assented the Premier, "but the militia are doing the work." He gave no indication as to how long this will be the case.

LOSE RIGHT OF HABEAS CORPUS.

One of the most radical provisions of the new order-in-Council is that which takes away the right of habeas corpus from persons in military custody in any "designated" area. That is they cannot escape out of the hands of the militia into the custody of the civil courts. While even Quebec is not at present "designated" area, the clause provides for the situation there by removing the right of habeas corpus from all persons taken into military custody for riot or insurrection, whether within the "designated" area or not. As the habeas corpus dates back for seven centuries its suspension in this regard is a decided step toward the subordination of civil to military rule.

MILITARY OFFICERS RULE.

It is to be noted it is no longer necessary for the mayor or civil magistrate or other authority to call out the militia when a riot takes place. As such authorities may sometimes be in sympathy with the rioters, an officer commanding a military district can take action to put down a riot "off his own bat."

The expression "designated area," of which there are at present none in Canada—means one in which there has been a disturbance, and the troops have been called out, and in respect to which the Cabinet sees fit to order the jurisdiction and power of civil courts suspended in part or in whole. The population have to obey the militia, and are subject to court martial for disobedience.

The Woman Who Changed

By JANE PHELPS

A SLEEPLESS NIGHT

It was after one o'clock when our guests went away. The latter part of the evening had been very gay. But in spite of that and of my love for music, I had been miserable. I felt that I had been grossly insulted—that the fact of the professionals being engaged should have been mentioned to me. It was wonderful that I had not made a faux-pas, that I had not blurted out my surprise in some unconsidered speech. Had I not been playing up to their arrival, I probably should have done so.

"Why didn't you tell me?" I asked when George and I were finally alone.

"Tell you what?" he asked, hiding a yawn.

"That you had engaged those musicians! It was insulting! I suppose it was some more of that Mrs. Sexton's doings! She probably told you not to let me know! It might make me feel that I had some share in the home I live in." I stormed, my anger and hurt gathering strength with speech.

"I am sleepy. We will postpone any discussion until another time."

The tears started. I was smarting under an indignity; and he would not listen to me.

"Going to weep about it! If you are, good night!" he passed the adjoining room and slammed the communicating door. Had he gone in there at first, I should have thought nothing of it, as he frequently, when he remained out late, or when he was very tired, occupied that room. I was not a quiet sleeper, and I often disturbed him. But to-night it was an added indignity that I was to be left alone. And the tears fell fast as I undressed, a process unnecessarily prolonged. At every stage I gave myself up to brooding over what had happened; then would listen to see if George might not repent and come back to comfort me.

WHAT USE TO TRY.

When finally after listening at his door and assuring myself that he was asleep, I slipped in between the sheets, acutely conscious of the hurt caused by George's indifference.

At first I felt that nothing mattered. What use to try to please, when my feelings were considered in no way? Then the lethargy of my wretchedness overcame me and I gave up thinking of it and slept.

But when I awoke in the morning it was with a dull headache, accompanied by an intense distaste for seeing anyone, when I realized that I had again offended Georg. But he always liked me to be down to breakfast unless I were really ill. It was the only old-fashioned notion he had. I used often to tell him. So I bathed and dressed, and though looking pale and wan, I was down before he appeared.

"You shouldn't have got up to breakfast," he said as I wished him "Good morning." And he said it so kindly that I almost cried again. "You better go back to bed and take another nap after breakfast."

"I couldn't sleep," I said wearily.

"Of course you can't if you make up your mind to lie awake. You look as if you could sleep. Your eyes are very heavy."

That was one aggravating thing about George. Nothing escaped him. He never failed to know, and seldom failed to speak of, anything out of the usual in my appearance.

AN EXPLANATION.

"I didn't sleep much, but I'll be all right after my coffee," I returned.

"Why didn't you sleep?" he demanded, and I couldn't tell whether he had forgotten my anger of the night before, or if he were leading me on so that I might get it over with.

"Because I felt so badly over the way you had treated me. As if I were a child who couldn't be told things."

"You are referring to the musicians, I take it," he said coldly. "I am sorry you consider it anything to fuss over. It was an oversight that it was not mentioned to you. Now we'll say no more about it."

He had said he was sorry I resented the lack of consideration—not that he was sorry that I had suffered because of it. Yet I dared say nothing further, and comforted myself with the thought that I soon would have a dinner all my own; and that he had promised me to remain at home.

I must be sure and give him plenty of advance notice when the dinner was to be, so that he would have no other engagement. I should be so mortified if he absented himself. Evelyn and the rest would think it a direct insult, I was sure.

I felt a singular distaste to the discussion of the dinner of the night before, and answered coldly when George spoke of it.

"I shall be inclined to think you are jealous of Mrs. Sexton's ability," he finally remarked, "and I hope you are. It will spur you to greater effort on your own behalf," he added as he rose from the table.

Monday—Evelyn sympathizes.

HOW TO LIVE LONG.

JUMPS FROM AEROPLANE LANDS BY PARACHUTE

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, April 4.—Rodman Law, balloonist and aeronaut, now attached to the Fifth Aero Squadron, today jumped from an aeroplane at a height of 2,500 feet, and with the aid of a parachute landed safely. He was taken up in the plane by Edward Stinson, an instructor at Kelly Field. Law is making a series of experiments to demonstrate the feasibility of jumping from an aeroplane. He is a brother of Ruth Law and Edward Stinson is a brother of Katherine Stinson.

TROUBLES IN AUSTRIA.

Dissatisfaction Is Growing Among Prussia's Unwilling Vassals.

Two aspects of the situation in Austria go far to explain the marked pacific tone of Count Czernin's recent speech: the disaffection of the Austrian army and the hopeless outlook of the dual monarchy in the matter of food.

When the Austrians began their sudden offensive last fall they were relying on German aid. The German strategists persuaded them that under German leadership, with a stiffening of German storm troops, it would be easy to break through the Italian lines. For a time the plan succeeded, but the splendid rally of the Italians and the prompt Anglo-French aid held up the invaders, and the Austrians found their badly-clothed and badly-fed troops committed to a mountain campaign in the winter, while their ally is dreaming of new worlds to conquer. This has led to some coolness between the Teutonic allies.

The extent of the food shortage in Austria is shown by the necessity of reducing the bread ration by half. This step, taken within five months of the end of the harvest, implies the bitterest suffering. A writer thus pictures Austrian conditions in "new Europe":

"For many months past there have been all-night queues for the barest necessities of life, and the medical profession has been loud in its complaints of fatal injury caused to the health and morale of women and children. Salt, butter, eggs, sugar, etc., have been often unobtainable. The milk supply of Vienna has dropped from 900,000 to 170,000 litres per day. Horseflesh has become a regular article of consumption for the middle classes. Then output of beer is only six per cent. of the pre-war period. Fodder is hard to procure, and there have been dangerous reductions of live stock in consequence.

"As the Neue Freie Presse admitted last November, Vienna has been living from hand-to-mouth for almost two years, and this applies to other urban districts. Numerous diseases due to bad food or starvation are increasingly prevalent. The rise of mortality is only less alarming than the falling birth rate. Reduced capacity for work caused by underfeeding is openly admitted. Tuberculosis is rampant at the front and in the rear."

The food shortage is having important political effects. It made Austria welcome peace with the Ukraine, in the hope thereby of securing wheat from the Russian steppes, and is causing ill-feeling between the Austrians and Hungarians.

There is little doubt that the hopes of the Russian supplies will be disappointed on account of transportation difficulties. But the irritation between the two parts of the dual monarchy is likely to increase. Hungary produces more food than Austria, and the latter thanks that both countries should share equally. The Hungarians would rather have enough to eat than satisfy their neighbours' desires, and several disputes have arisen and are likely to continue.

The Slav nations are also growing more self-assertive, and the Vienna Government has, in the midst of its military and economic trials, to face the possibility of a breakdown of its political form of government.

Woman Horse Nurse.

In London Messrs. MacNamara, who employ about forty woman drivers, have put their horse hospital entirely in charge of women. Mrs. Pary, the superintendent, says they have thirty to forty patients a day. She and three assistants do all cleaning, grooming, feeding and administering of medicines prescribed by the veterinary surgeon. The animals, she says, are grateful and companionable, and she has no doubt that women will want to keep on with this work after the war. "We do not baby the horses," she says. "Somehow we reform the worst cases of temper, and the women can do anything they like with even fractious, nervous and suffering horses. The effect on the nerves of the horses, and consequently on their value, is noticeable."

QUIT MEAT WHEN KIDNEYS BOTHER

Take a glass of Salts if your Back hurts or Bladder Troubles You

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which excites the kidneys they become overworked from the strain, get sluggish and fail to filter the waste and poisons from the blood, then we get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, dizziness, sleeplessness and urinary disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, stop eating meat and get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and in a few days your kindeys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate the kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.

Our Fish Eaters.

The Fish Committee of the Food Controller's department aims to educate the people in Canada in the use of fish, so that the amount consumed will be one pound of fish per person each week. At present the amount of fish used in Canada per capita during a year is 29 pounds, and the object of the campaign is to raise it to 52 pounds. In England the amount of fish used is 59 pounds per capita in a year. In Canada the catch of fish during a year is 112 pounds per capita, so that people could easily use 52 pounds per capita and still leave a large surplus for export.

Alcohol for Fuel.

A committee of Australian scientists is investigating the possibilities of commercial alcohol in place of gasoline as a fuel for internal combustion engines, notes a correspondent. They find that an engine can easily be run on alcohol and that its thermal efficiency, when so run, is somewhat higher than with gasoline fuel. However, they also find that alcohol must be far cheaper by the pound than gasoline, and somewhat cheaper by the quart, if it is to be as economical a fuel in terms of dollars and cents. Moreover, an engine will not start from a cold condition on alcohol.

Speed Was Justified.

Police magistrates have heard that stereotyped excuse of speeders—that something must be wrong with their speedometer—so often, when they are hailed to court for stepping too hard on the gas, that they welcome any new stuff, relates a New York correspondent. "You are charged with speeding 28 miles an hour," said the magistrate of the traffic court to a road-burner. "That, sir, is a very dangerous speed. Death and disaster lurk where a motorist travels with such disregard of the law." "Now, judge," said the man at the bar, looking into the eyes of the magistrate like a spanked baby waiting for the next blow. "I had heard where I could buy some sugar, and I was in a hurry to get there." There wasn't much the magistrate could do in the face of that, so he fined the defendant $25.

The Difference.

The cantonment commander is a very unpretentious-looking officer, so when a rookie approached him with a question and failed to salute he merely smiled, answered the question, and then said in a kindly tone, "Do you know that you are supposed to salute an officer?" The rookie stared, then stammered, "Gee, mister, I didn't know you was an officer." The general smiled quietly and said: "You should be thankful that I'm just a major-general and not one of those newly-commissioned second lieutenants."

Von Hindenburg a "Junker."

"Junker" is philologically akin to "Jonkheer" and has a quasi-equivalent in the English "Squire." The Junker is a man of some birth and of inherited property, especially land, says an exchange. The word is used to describe that large class of Prussians who come of noble, seminoble or at least old and "good" families and whose worldly possessions are such as to give them an appreciable stake in the government. Von Hindenburg is a fine example of the Junker; Ludendorff, his collaborator, is not a Junker by birth, however much a one he may be by taste.

Capital Punishment.

Capital punishment prevails in all the states of the Union except Kansas, Maine, Minnesota, Rhode Island, Washington and Wisconsin. In Michigan the only crime punishable by death is treason. The death penalty was abolished in the state of Washington in 1913, in Iowa in 1872 and restored in 1878, in Colorado in 1897 and restored in 1901. Hanging is the ordinary mode of execution, but in Indiana, New York, Nebraska, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Arkansas, Vermont and Virginia electrocution is the legal method. In Nevada hanging or shooting is optional with the condemned person.

Doctor Tells How To Strengthen Eyesight 50 per cent In One Week's Time In Many Instances

A Free Prescription You Can Have Filled and Use at Home

Do you wear glasses? Are you a victim of eye strain or other eye weaknesses? If so, you will be glad to know that according to Dr. Lewis there is real hope for you. Many whose eyes were failing say they have had their eyes restored through the principle of this wonderful free prescription. One man says, after trying it: "I was almost blind; could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without any glasses and my eyes do not water any more. At night they would pain dreadfully; now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy with or without glasses, but after using this prescription for fifteen days everything seems clear. I can even read fine print without glasses." It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time and multitudes more will be able to strengthen their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and expense of ever getting glasses. Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited by following the simple rules. Here is the prescription: Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Drop one Bon-Opto tablet in a fourth of a glass of water and allow to dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eye two to four times daily. You should notice your eyes clear up perceptibly right from the start and inflammation will quickly disappear. If your eyes are bothering you, even a little, take steps to save them now before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have been saved if they had cared for their eyes in time.

Note: Another prominent Physician to whom the above article was submitted, said: "Bon-Opto is a very remarkable remedy. Its constituent ingredients are well known to eminent eye specialists and widely prescribed by them. The manufacturers guarantee it to strengthen eyesight 50 per cent in one week's time in many instances or refund the money. It can be obtained from any good druggist and is one of the very few preparations I feel should be kept on hand for regular use in almost every family." It is sold in this city by The Warne Drug Company.

GREAT FIGURES REPORTED BY THE SUN LIFE

THE TOTAL INSURANCE IN FORCE IS NOW $311,870,000.

The Sun Life, amongst Canadian companies, is in a class by itself. Its business in force increases every year by a greater amount than the total new business of most other companies, and its new business itself is more than 50 per cent. greater than that of any other Canadian company. Last year its new business paid for was $47,811,567, and the addition to the business in force was $30,436,245, or well over 60 per cent. of the new issue. The Company adds to its assets every year more than the total amount of the assets of most individual Canadian companies. Last year the addition to the assets was $7,211,178, bringing them up to a total of $90,160,174, and the end of the year will thus see them near the $100,000,000 mark, even if they do not pass it. The company's increase in annual income was greater than the total income of most native competitors, the increase being $789,866, and the total income $19,288,998.

It is astonishing to read that the Sun has already paid to its policy holders, $69,094,316, and that last year alone it paid them $8,840,245.

The Company's new Head Office building which adorns Dominion Square, Montreal, is now in occupation, and is unquestionably one of the finest insurance buildings in North America. It will no doubt materially assist the efficient handling of the Company's vast affairs.

HE GAINED PREMIER'S EAR

Man Disrobed With Others to Receive Free Treatment, and Appealed for Position for Sister.

Clemenceau, beneath his brusque, masterful, sarcastic and oft-cutting speech, and in spite of the vitriolic character of his writings, possesses an exceedingly kind and charitable heart. He is not rich, and therefore cannot afford to give away much. But he has made a point, both when in office and out of it, to devote a couple of hours each day to free medical advice to the poor, never consenting to take a fee, writes a Paris correspondent. His specialty is skin diseases, and his consultation room is always crowded with poor patients. One day when last in office as premier, being in a hurry, he instructed his servant to tell the last batch of his male patients to strip in his ante-chamber, so as to save the time of the undressing in the consulting room. One by one they were rapidly prescribed for and sent on their way, until only the last remained. He presented himself in due course in an extremely decollete condition—without a stitch of clothing, and with every appearance of nervousness.

"M. le President," he began, with a low bow.

"Well, what is the matter?" asked the doctor-premier.

The man stammered inarticulately.

"Come! Come," exclaimed Clemenceau with impatience. "Out with it! Your skin seems perfectly healthy. I can see nothing wrong."

"There is nothing the matter with me," said the poor man at last, recovering his voice, "but—I don't know—it is all strange—I only came to ask you, M. le President, for your powerful influence with the government to procure for my widowed sister a place as postmistress at Clermont."

GRAND COMPLEXION IMPROVER BETTER THAN COSMETICS

When its so easy to bring back the bloom of youth to faded cheeks, when skin disfigurements can be removed, isn't it foolish to plaster on cosmetics?

Go to the root of the trouble — remove the cause—correct the condition that keeps you from looking as you ought. Use Dr. Hamilton's Pills and very soon you will have a complexion to be proud of. How much happier you will feel—pimples gone, cheeks rosy again, eyes bright, spirits good, joyous health again returned. Never a failure with Dr. Hamilton's Pills, get a 25c box to-day.

VOICES MUST BE PLEASANT

Hospital Nurses Undergo Course of Training in Some Institutions to Cultivate Refined Speech.

"If the success or failure of a physician is, in some cases as least, determined by his tongue, how much more important is this matter of speech to the nurse, who must be constantly with the patient, and whose every look and gesture are watched—targets for criticism, silent or open," writes Dr. Irving W. Voorhees in the Nurse. "It is said that in some hospitals this question of refined, pleasing speech has become a part of the nurse's course of training, and that she is demerited for disregard of the principles as set forth by her teachers. Although I have no personal knowledge of these hospitals, it is certainly a consummation devoutly to be wished that every one who comes into the sick room should know how to speak softly and agreeably."

Doctor Voorhees says European nations realize the importance of the nurse's voice and insist upon it far more than we do. And any woman who plans to become a hospital nurse and has not a pleasing voice already should start at once to cultivate one.

The sick are very sensitive to voices; the blind are especially affected by harsh voices, so much so that some wealthy blind men will not permit a person whose voice is not pleasant to come near them.

Returned.

One night a noncommissioned officer of the Second Canadian contingent (now in France), when entering the gate of Exhibition Camp, Toronto, was mistaken by a new recruit on sentry go, who immediately saluted him. The noncommissioned officer returned the salute—blissfully ignorant of the fact that his colonel was an eye witness. Next morning he was ordered to report to Col. B—, and he was asked why he returned the salute, knowing full well he was not entitled to it.

He promptly answered: "Sir, I always return everything I am not entitled to."

The colonel, pleased with his ready wit, dismissed him.—Exchange.

BOY ROBBER LOST HIS NERVE

Youth Reported Alleged Visit of Bandit, But Later Was Induced to Produce Stolen Jewelry.

A thrilling story of guns, masks and robbery, which had stirred a country neighborhood by its recital, melted into the make-believe of a yello-back novel, once investigators were on the job, says the Indianapolis News. A talk between two persons, which is said to have occurred behind a farmer's barn, led to the recovery of loot in the form of jewelry and a confession from a boy, who reluctantly dragged from his trousers pocket the remains of a dollar bill.

Sheriff Coffin was called in by neighbors after the boy, whose name is purposely withheld, had communicated to persons with whom he lived that a very dark man, wearing a mask over his face, had visited his home while he was alone; that he had been threatened with a shotgun and, after rifling the house, had forced the boy to leave with him. About a mile from the house, the boy related, the stranger gave him 25 cents and told him to "keep his mouth shut." A duck and a Belgian hare also were taken, the boy declared.

When the sheriff arrived there was a consultation behind the barn, and when it had been concluded the boy dug the jewelry out of the ground, told his friends that he had sold the duck at a nearby grocery for some money; that the Belgian hare escaped while he was on his way to the grocery, and that the masked man was the creation of his own imagination.

"Give him another chance," the sheriff told the guardians of the wayward boy. "He won't do it again."

The boy nodded confirmation.

FOOD ORDERS ARE OBSERVED

Meatless and Wheatless Menu in Connection With Lord Mayor's Annual Banquet at Mansion House.

At last the gaunt figure of famine has stalked into the Mansion House and edited the menu of the lord mayor's banquet. There, everybody who knows anything about English history or about good eating, knows that the center, the very palate, of gourmandise is situated, according to a London correspondent.

The British empire is ransacked for edibles and potables to furnish forth this aldermanic holiday. And when the occasion's star guest, the premier, rises to shake the pillars of the world with his address, the guests are often in such a state of torpor that they have to scan the morning papers to find out what he really said. But war has changed all that. When the time for this year's banquet approached, London's sensational press began to shout for a war menu so loudly that his lordship had to come out and assure the reporters of the meatlessness and wheatlessness of the coming feast. Another of England's glories vanished!

Old Winter Coughs Now Easily Cured

A New Remedy Now Cures Without the Use of Cough Syrups or Drugs.

Just think of it—you can clear away that hard, racking cough, drive it completely out of the system, make yourself perfectly well by the new breathing cure that employs no medicine at all.

You wonder how; very simple, indeed; you simply breathe in through a Catarrhozone Inhaler, rich balsamic essences that heal and soothe away the cough in a few hours' time.

In using Catarrhozone you bathe the lining of the nose and throat with that powerful antiseptic of the Blue Gum Tree of Australia, which is probably the surest cold and cough cure in the world to-day.

Clarence E. Cromwell, writing from Medicine Hat, says: "To cure a sneezing cold in about ten minutes the one thing I know of to do it is Catarrhozone. To relieve an irritated throat quickly, nothing can excel Catarrhozone. It simply eats up a cough or cold of any kind. I know of colds that have hung on for months that Catarrhozone cured quickly. Nearly every man I know carries a Catarrhozone Inhaler with him day and night, and in this country it makes a wonderful protection against all winter ills."

Get the dollar outfit, including the hard rubber inhaler, and medication to last two months; medium size 50c., sample size 25c., at all storekeepers and druggists, or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

Lantern on Broadway.

The dimming of the white lights in New York has brought the jokers to the fore. Recently after the current had been turned off a man walked up the big street with a lighted lantern. He wended his way across Broadway, and after swinging the lantern about his head much after the fashion of trainmen signaling, he continued up the street. He had sown seeds that began to sprout in many directions and a few minutes later rival humorists appeared with lanterns, electric flashlights, and one optimist tried to keep a candle going as he walked down toward Times Square.

Why Not Wear a Sign?

Pat, being on his holidays, was one day strolling through the streets of New York, when he saw the figure of a man standing before a shop. There was a card pinned to the man's coat on which was written, "Reduced to $5."

Pat somewhat carelessly approached the figure and exclaimed: "Begorra, sir, you're safe enough; I'm reduced to 30 cents."

BURNING UP CANADA.

Terrible Losses Caused In Recent Years by Forest Fires.

At one time it was the proud boast of Canadians that in the forests of the country was a supply of commercial timber practically unlimited in extent. We are now awakening to the fact that we were largely living in a fool's paradise. The investigations which have been carried on during the last few years have demonstrated the fact that while our forest resources are still enormous they are by no means unlimited. In fact, so far as timber for lumber-producing purposes is concerned, we are told that we are gradually approaching the danger zone.

The root of the trouble is not that the liberality of nature was underestimated. It is simple waste. Much of this waste is ascribed to ignorance of practical methods in lumbering operations. But waste from this cause is nothing compared with that through fires. Year after year millions of dollars' worth of commercial timber has been destroyed in this way. In 1915 alone ten million dollars' worth is estimated to have been wiped out by fire. An expert who has made a personal inspection of the forest resources of Northern Canada is authority for the statement that in that part of the country 16,000,000,000 feet, board measure, of spruce and pine has been destroyed during the last thirty-year period. Through fire waste alone more timber had been destroyed in the Dominion than had been felled by the woodsman's axe for ordinary commercial purposes. This is nothing short of appalling when we take into account the fact that the primary forest products of the country have a value of approximately $175,000,000 annually, and the output is being imperiled through a waste that is largely preventable.

No less an authority than Senator Edwards, the well-known lumberman, has more than once declared within the past year that "it will be only a few years when lumbering will be so reduced that, except west of the Rocky Mountains, it will be a very small industry indeed in Canada."

White pine, which was long the leading commercial tree of Canadian forests, is supplying less lumber than it did five years ago by over forty per cent., while its proportion to the total cut of all kinds is only about one-fifth. Oak, which was at one time one of our "standbys," is steadily diminishing in supply. A year ago the cut was about sixty per cent. smaller than it was five years previously, and furniture manufacturers are now dependent upon the United States for their necessary supply. White oak, the most valuable of the species, is disappearing even more rapidly than the other descriptions.

Now, after some of our best "horses" have been stolen, we are attempting to lock the stable door. Federal and Provincial Governments are taking an increasingly active interest in both fire prevention and afforestation, but, strange to say, Ontario has been the slowest of all the provinces to fall into line. As over 97 per cent. of the woodlands in Canada are estimated to be Government owned, the situation is largely under their control.

But the unfortunate part about the forest situation is that we cannot reproduce trees with the facility that we can grain, as, according to Prof. Fernow, it takes 60 to 120 years for a forest crop to mature. As some sixty per cent. of the land area of the Dominion is held to be more suitable for tree production than agriculture, there is ample room for forest cultivation. While the present generation of Canadians will not be the beneficiaries, that twice or thrice removed will be. At any rate, because of our waste, we owe something to posterity.

A War-time Story.

The Ontario Legislature saved $2,000,000 by deferring the Provincial general election until one year after demobilization of the Canadian army is complete." This is the estimate of a prominent Government official, who stated that previous to the declaration of a political truce until after the war he had been busy preparing for a war-time election, to be held in June next. It was also learned that the political parties had acted very wisely in calling off the election, because arrangements for taking the vote could not possibly have been completed before June, the month decided upon by the Government for the verdict at the polls.

The Government still has power to bring on an election any time, notwithstanding the extension legislation, for the arrangement to put off the day of reckoning until after the soldiers come home is, after all, only a "gentlemen's agreement." This is proved by a clause inserted in the bill extending the life of the Legislature, which is to the effect that the extension act "shall not be taken or deemed to affect or abridge any prerogative of the crown or power of the Lieutenant-Governor to dissolve the Legislative Assembly at an earlier date than the one mentioned in section one" of the bill. Section one is the part respecting extension until one year after full demobilization.

GOOD OLD WINTER

Cold Wave Makes Humanity Warm Up to Every One.

Zero Temperature Brings Out Diversified Discussion Around the Stoves in Favorite Meeting Places.

After all ther's somethin' fine an' humanizin' about a good stingin' cold snap. It seems t' bring us closer t'gether an' cause a friendlier feelin' all around. Most any o' us are willin' t' let bygones be bygones before we git a square from home on a zero mornin', fer ther's somethin' about a cold wave that makes us want t' warm up t' th' first feller we meet. We jest seem t' feel that we must release ever'thing on our minds that's pleasant an' frothy, says Abe Martin, in the Indianapolis News.

Around th' grocery stove, in th' close, ill-smellin' depot, in th' stuffy crowded car, or wherever folks are wont t' huddle, like marooned sailors, in zero weather, we find th' best o' fellowship. We hear o' ole winters in th' seventies; we hear a lively exchange o' views on th' probable extent o' th' cold weather; we learn th' inner workin's o' th' homes o' others; we're brought face t' face with resurrected overcoats an' muffs o' doubtful vintage.

We gather highly illuminative information regardin' th' respective claims o' th' various heatin' systems; we learn valuable facts about th' heat units o' this coal or that; we find out who gits up first in th' homes of others; we hear pitiful stories o' destitution 'n how th' pumps an' water pipes have stood th' sudden drop in temperature; we learn th' thickness of our neighbors' underwear, an' almost allus there's somebuddy in th' crowd who has jest received a letter from a friend in Florida an' we gain much interestin' information about th' climatic conditions in th' Southland.

"We burned twenty-on[illegible]ns o' coal so fer an' we have t' live in th' dinin' room," says th' blustery little man, with an icicle danglin' from his goatee.

"We heat our house fine an' we're on our seventh ton o' coal," says th' tall, faithful clerk with a purple nose.

"I let my wife run th' furnace," says, the frail bookkeeper with watery eyes.

"Th' only trouble we have is shootin' hot air in a southwest bedroom," says a tall man o' commandin' appearance an' buckled overshoes.

"I stayed at Aunt Ella's house last night. She has' th' steamed heat an' her house is jest like toast," says th' narrow-gaged stenographer, with bare powdered throat, transparent shins an' ponderous goat muff.

"If you're goin' t' heat a house, you've got t' burn coal. I don't care whether it's steam or hot water or hot air, you've got t' loosen up an' pile on th' coal. I never knowed that till this winter. We used t' spend our winter evenin's in th' nickel the-aters," says a round, positive feller, wearin' an ole reversible ulster.

"Our friend is right. You've got t' have a fire. You can't put any o' that economical stuff over on a furnace. No economical wife ever made a good cup o' coffee. There's two things you've got t' use liberally if you want results, an' them's coal an' coffee," says a fierce lookin' man with thin red whiskers an' a prehistoric fur cap.

But zero weather clumps an' crowds are allus friendly, fer ther' seems t' be somethin' in th' cold, bitin' winds that warns us t' keep off o' politics an' confine our observations t' th' more homely topics.

Chemistry Recognized Science.

Chemistry has been accorded an almost formal recognition as the science at the heart of modern warfare. The British ministry of reconstruction has pointed out that Germany selected the chemical industry for especial nurture in making its war preparations, especially that part of the industry dealing with coal tar derivatives, in which field the imperial government gradually won a temporary world monopoly. The minister of reconstruction has appointed a committee of six chemists to investigate the situation in England and to recommend a plan for making the British chemical industry self-sustaining and equal to any call upon it during and after the war.

OLD NIAGARA FALLS.

Historic Happenings In the Great Popular Resort.

The following letter written the New York Evening Post by Samuel Barber is taken from the editorial page of that paper, and will interest those who know old Niagara Falls:

The destruction of the International Hotel at Niagara Falls revives many memories of a noted resort that—like the neighboring Cataract House, with rear piazza overlooking the water, and Clifton House, on the Canadian side, commanding a view of the Falls — is replete with associations, and well known to tourists, who will recall the light, neat apartments, the colored waiters, the orchestra at dinner, the evening and the pleasant weekly "hop."

The visitor, the couple on a bridal tour, and the European tourist alike, to Niagara always came away, not only with pieces of cut stalactite, maple sugar, and strings of Indian beads, but with a sweet and lasting impression of the beauties of this fairyland of nature. A sublime sight were the rays of the moon on the water—painted by Gignoux in the famous Niagara by moonlight—and also the "Cave of the Winds" and the foamy cataract covering the greensward and falling on the rocks below. Residents never hear the cataract. The loss of the International recalls the following Niagara reminiscences:

1838, December 28.—The steamboat Caroline, the first boat ever built by Commodore Vanderbilt, seized by a party of insurgents, who crossed the river at night to Fort Schlosser, on the Canadian border, was set afire, and cut loose from her moorings, drifted out on the Niagara river, where people, rushing from their beds, ran to the banks to view the spectacle. Caught by the current, she soon entered the rapids, the illumination bringing Goat Island into view, and, slowing submerging, was carried over the Falls, breaking to pieces on the rocks.

1852—"The Hermit" lived alone in a small hut on Goat Island, and each evening, at sunset, would walk the length of a beam looking down over the water. One evening, losing his balance, he fell overboard and was drowned. His name and identity were always a mystery.

1853—A drowning accident occurred when a New York Methodist clergyman's wife, who, at the side of her husband, stood on the (American) corner, and, looking down, fell and was carried over the Falls.

1853—A sad accident occurred on Goat Island when a party from Buffalo visited the Falls. A gentleman, one of the party, lifting a little girl, named Avery, up in his arms on the ledge of the rocks, said playfully, "I will throw you in!" The child wriggled from his grasp into the water, when her companion sprang to her rescue into the rapids. Both were carried over the Falls.

1856, July 26—The Clifton House, Niagara Falls, was the spot chosen for a duel between Col. Preston S. Brooks and Anson Burlingame, of Massachusetts, arising from a speech delivered by Mr. Burlingame in Congress. The challenge was sent, though the duel never took place.

1857—On the completion of the Suspension Bridge at Niagara, the engineer was the first to drive a buggy over the structure, while anxious crowds stood on the banks fearing his fate. This bridge has since carried daily many trains of cars.

1859—Monsieur Blondin walked over the water on stilts at the base of the falls, and also crossed the chasm to the Canadian side on a tight rope. Thousands lined the shores on both occasions.

1860—One of the Niagara trips was to don a waterproof and sail around the "Horseshoe" in the Maid of the Mist. The steamboat was finally taken by the pilot, engineer, and fireman, who had carefully studied the current, and all in the pilot house, passed, zigzag, safely, avoiding the rocks, down the lower rapids, each man receiving $500 for the feat. The steamer then became an excursion boat at Lewiston, N.Y.

1864—The Peace Commissioners of the Confederate States, composed of Clement C. Clay, of Alabama; Jacob Thompson, of Mississippi; Prof. James P. Holcombe, of Virginia; George N. Sanders, of Kentucky, proceeded to Canada to endeavor to negotiate terms of peace between the North and South. On July 20, Horace Greeley and Mr. Hay, Mr. Lincoln's private secretary, proceeded to Canada, and met Messrs. Clay and Holcombe at the Clifton House. No understanding, however, was reached.

1873—The old "Terrapin Tower," though deemed unsafe and closed for a long time, was destroyed by dynamite and a new tower was built.

1875—A man was closed in a barrel, with only an air-hole, and attempted to float through the lower rapids. Later he was found dead.

IS YOUR HAIR SLIPPING?

The presence of dandruff and falling hair conveys a warning which it is best to heed. At first the loss of hair may be so slight as to be hardly noticeable. But no matter how little may be the fall each day, it is working toward the same and inevitable result, and that is total baldness.

You may have hair enough today, but how about tomorrow and the day after? Dandruff and falling hair mean baldness sooner or later and demand the immediate regular and energetic use of Newbro's Herpicide. It keeps the scalp free from dirt and dandruff and allows the hair to grow abundantly and naturally. By this means total incurable baldness may be prevented.

Herpicide does not stain or dye and has a most exquisite fragrance which makes it especially pleasing to the ladies. It stops itching almost instantly.

You may be told that there are remedies "just as good as Herpicide." You cannot afford to take chances with nor can you expect to obtain results from "an off brand" article. Insist on having genuine Herpicide, the Original Germ-Remedy for Dandruff.

You can get a sample of this delightful hair dressing and a booklet on the care of the hair by sending ten cents in silver or postage to The Herpicide Co., Dept. S, Detroit, Mich. Try Herpicide once and you will never be without it.

Sold everywhere in 50 cent and $1.00 sizes and guaranteed to give satisfaction or money refunded.

Don't Flatter Yourself.

"Somehow I was always different from other people," is a common saying among men, even among those who lay no claim to any special virtue, observes Los Angeles Times. Indeed, the statement is often made by those who pretend to be ashamed of their vices, but who are really almost proud of them. To feel like that and to admit it is only a confession of the egotism common to humanity. Whoever you are, you are only different from others in personality. You belong to the race and probably are neither better nor worse than any one of the vast majority. Everybody thinks that he is different from all the rest. He ain't!

To Save Tin Now Wasted.

A small electric furnace has been installed and operation begun on the volatilization of tin from scrap at the Northwest experiment station of the United States bureau of mines at Seattle, Wash., says the Engineering and Mining Journal. An extensive series of experiments will be carried out there with the idea of saving the tin now wasted in discarded containers and other forms of scraps.

Experienced.

When the very young offer suggestions to the aged they must be prepared to have their offerings received without much enthusiasm. Gen. H. C. Lowther, in his recent book, "From Pillar to Post," tells the following story, which is to the point:

One day Li Hung-Chang, the Chinese statesman, was discussing with a distinguished Canadian a question of local self-government.

"I wonder," said the Canadian, "why you have not adopted in China some system of decentralization and of delegation of power to municipal and local authorities — such as we have in the British Empire."

"We did try an analogous system," replied Li Hung-Chang. "It was—let me see — about seventeen hundred years before the Christian era. It did not prove to be entirely successful, and we have not since reverted thereto."

Typewriting on Parchment.

It has been found that typewriting on parchment deeds is not durable. In deeds deposited within very recent years many lines are illegible and several lines have completely disappeared.

Stock Food Substitutes.

In the search for substitutes for live stock food a German scientist made analytical tests of materials suggested for the purpose. He found dried rhubarb leaves better than hay as a fodder for hogs; kelp may be fed to cattle and pigs, but it has little nutritive value; ground straw, which is selling at from 28 to 50 marks the quintal, is not good for any animal, nor are ground pea pods. He advises against cornstalks and cobs. The seeds of beets are nutritive, those of parsley too exciting, those of raisins, if ground before the oil is extracted, are as good as hay. Oil cakes made from beech or other nuts are excellent for cattle.

Strategic Economy.

"So you are tending your own furnace?"

"Yes," replied Mr. Meekton. "And I rather like it. When Henrie to starts an argument it is something of a convenience to go down cellar and rattle the[illegible] around a bit."

TIRED AND DISCOURAGED

Mrs. Warren Randles, Rothesay, Kings County, N.B., "I have three small children and had to stay in the house all winter. So when spring came I was all run down doing all my work and looking after the children. I felt all tired out, and looked on the gloomy side all the time. I decided to try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and the results were most satisfactory. I feel fine now, and am recommending the Nerve Food to others."

Schools for Farmers.

In the course of an address before the Arts and Letters Club of Ottawa, the Hon. Sidney Fisher, who was a Cabinet Minister during the last Laurier regime, said, speaking as a farmer, that "we must see to it that a goodly number of equipped schools be established in the different farming sections of the country, in order that men equipped for the farm shall be available, and not have the farmers depend on unskilled labor. Most people suppose that anyone can work on the farm, but the plain fact is that it takes a man skilled in several lines to be a good farmer."

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

How a Family Climbed the Social Ladder

By EUNICE BLAKE

In the town of L., in the Berkshire hills, where the country residences of fashionable people shone in the summer sun, dwelt Mrs. Obrien and her daughter, Marguerite. The family name had been O'Brien, but when its founder left his widow and daughter a couple of million dollars, made in a western gold mine, and they departed for the Atlantic coast to begin to climb a social greased pole they Frenchified it into Obrien, and the daughter, who had been named for her native state, Missouri, became Marguerite.

The Obriens had built a palatial residence in L. and begun their climbing, but the pole had been so well greased that they had made very little headway. One morning at a tennis tournament Marguerite suddenly caught her breath, then said in a low tone to her mother:

"Oh, my goodness gracious, if there ain't Tom Oldershaw!"

Several years before, when the O'Briens had not become Obriens and were living on a small ranch in the west, a young Englishman, a neighbor of theirs, had fallen in love with Missou O'Brien. Missouri was a pretty girl and knew how to captivate a man. Oldershaw was a refined fellow, and nothing saved him from a marriage with Missouri but the fact that news came that Mr. O'Brien had "struck it rich." Visions of being wealthy had induced the girl to turn down Mr. Oldershaw, and she had never seen him since the evening when she had given him his quietus.

And now here he was at L., hobnobbing with the elite of the place, remembering them as the O'Briens, they having become the Obriens, and Missouri had become Marguerite. And how had this Britisher, who when they had known him was riding about like a common cowboy in woolen shirt and trousers in boots, suddenly become a gentleman in fashionable attire? There were two shocks, the one a fear that he would give away their change of name, the other that he had an entree to the circle from which they were excluded. Besides, it at once occurred to Marguerite that she might have made the mistake of her life in throwing him over her shoulder.

The meeting with the O'Briens, as he still supposed them to be, was as much of a shock to Missouri's former lover as it was to them. Put a man in a strange country where he sees no women of his own station and there is no folly he may not commit with one of another class. Thus Oldershaw had begun to recover from his infatuation for Missouri as soon as separated from her and when restored to his proper social sphere had shuddered at his narrow escape. As soon as he caught sight of the mother and daughter dressed in the latest fashion the situation flashed upon him. They were in L. That meant that they were ambitious to become members of the social swim. He would be called upon to help them, and since his disillusion he knew very well that they had no place there.

But Oldershaw was true blue. They had been so far his friends that he had offered his hand to Missouri. Now that the scene had changed he would not go back on them. He marched straight up to them and greeted them, though with embarrassment. Marguerite gave him one of those looks that in the wild west had enslaved him, but saw that now it was without effect. During the interview she slid dexterously from Missouri to Marguerite and from Miss O'Brien to Miss Obrien.

Oldershaw's name had also changed in the meanwhile. His father, who was an English baronet, had died, and the son was now Sir Thomas Oldershaw. However, his family, which was a very old one of extremely blue blood, was poor, and the young man's income was barely enough to enable him to maintain his social position. As soon as Marguerite Obrien learned of the change she was smitten with regret. Had she accepted him when he was a ranchman she would now have been Lady Oldershaw and her fortune would have enabled the two to climb to the very top of the social pole.

She would have hoped that it was not too late had she not been made to understand by the reception of the look by which she wished to test her power over Oldershaw that it had vanished.

The summer was passed by the Obriens with the saddest of words of tongue or pen, "it might have been," constantly ringing in the ears of mother and daughter. Then came rumors of Sir Thomas' engagement to one of the most modest and retiring of the L. social circle, one whose fortune was a mere bagatelle compared with the millions of the Obriens. Meanwhile the young baronet had gradually withdrawn from association with the latter, though he always greeted them pleasantly when he met them and granted them any introductions for which they asked. When he was married he invited them to his wedding, and, although it was a bitter pill for Marguerite to swallow, a place among so many distinguished persons was not to be refused, and she bore herself like a grenadier marched out to be shot.

That was years ago. Sir Thomas and Lady Oldershaw live a quiet life, partly in England and partly in America. Mrs. Obrien has passed away. Marguerite is still unmarried. She climbed so high in the social circle that she could only be content with a duke or an earl, and she has not yet made a match. She has now passed the bloom of youth.

HOW TO END CORNS

Which Way for You?

Above are pictured three ways to treat corns.

Blue-jay is the most certain. It is safe and gentle.

Yet the unknowing ones experiment with harsh, mussy liquids or the dangerous razor.

These two ways are temporary. But Blue-jay is scientific. The spot of medicated wax, discovered by a great chemist, soothes while it works.

Place a Blue-jay Plaster on your throbbing corn tonight.

Relief is instant. The soft felt pad stops the pain by relieving the pressure.

In 48 hours the medicated wax has saturated the corn—undermined it to its roots—and it comes off painlessly, completely. Nature responds quickly to such a gentle, corrective treatment.

Hardly a corn can resist. Of course once in a while there is an old stubborn corn which requires a second or third application. But such are rare.

Blue-jay Plasters are made by Bauer & Black, the great surgical dressing house.

Try a Blue-jay Plaster now. Join the pain-free thousands who rely on Blue-jay.

Once you know Blue-jay, you'll never consent to have a corn again, nor to coddle it with temporary ways.

The cost is slight, the application simple.

Remember, we promise immediate relief and a defenseless corn.

Blue-jay Plasters are sold by all druggists—25c per package. Also Blue-jay Bunion Plasters.

AN OFFICIAL STORY TELLER

Libraries in Canada Find Special Feature for the Entertainment of Children Is Worth While.

In several of the public libraries of Canada story telling to children has for some years been a special feature, says an exchange. Each Saturday morning from fifty to one hundred children assemble at the library in a room set apart for the purpose and called the "Children's Room." The ages of the children vary from six to fourteen years.

At St. John, New Brunswick, story telling has been continued now for three years. This year it has been found advisable to divide the children according to age and to hold two classes of half an hour each. The work has steadily grown in interest, and the demand for books of a less trivial type justifies the work of the committee in charge. During the summer, when opportunity offers and a story-teller of note is a guest of the city, notice is given to the library, and it is often possible to have a special session.

Arrive and Depart.

"Arrivals" and "departures" have a definite place in French trench philology. When the American troops first entered the trenches their French comrades were very anxious to have them distinguish accurately between the noise of "arrives" and "departs." "I thought they were talking barber clearances at first," said one Yankee lad. "Then I heard a low, whining sound and a shell exploded behind us. 'Un arrive,' said my companion. He signified that it was a present from the Germans. Soon there was a louder, sharper sound. It was a responsive roar from our own batteries. 'Un depart,' he said with great satisfaction. 'Voila!' we had it. The exchange of artillery fire is, after all, a matter of 'arrivals' and 'departures.' Needless to say, the 'departs' enjoy the wider popularity."

Pencils in Japan.

An unthought-of result of the war has been the creation of a lead-pencil industry in Japan. In 1911 Japan imported 85,000,000 pencils, most of which came from America and Germany. But with the opening of the European conflict German sources of supply were cut off and native manufacturers, who had been producing only in comparatively small quantities, seized their opportunity and made the most of it. In 1914 Japan exported over nine million pencils and in 1916 the number had increased to 168,000,000. There is strong indication, observes a writer, that many of the markets won by the Orientals will be held by them after the war, for they have the advantage of very cheap labor. Most of the lead which they use is imported from India and this country.

The Duke's Telescope.

The Duke of Wellington's telescope, "which he used at the Battle of Waterloo," was the description of one of the Peel heirlooms sold early in December, but the claim finds a disputant in Evelyn, Countess Stanhope. In a letter to the Times Literary Supplement she says that "the precious relic" is in her family's possession, and gives the story of its presentation to Catherine Lucy, Lady Stanhope, at Deal Castle, on Oct. 18, 1836. Gazing from a window of the castle on the shipping, Lady Stanhope exclaimed: "I must get myself a telescope, for I cannot see." At that moment the Duke of Wellington walked in from Walmer, and said: "Do you want a glass? I will bring you one." The next morning he arrived with a big and heavy telescope under his arm, saying: "Here's a glass for you; know it is a good one." "Have you carried it on your campaigns? Did you use it in the Peninsula?" he was asked. "Yes, yes," was the duke's answer in his short, abrupt manner; "used it in the Peninsula; know it's a good one." "Did you use it at Waterloo?" "Yes, yes, used it at Waterloo; know it's a good one," after which he turned on his heel and went out. Fortuitous circumstance has served the public well in giving opportunity for this vivid little anecdote.

Army Medical Department.

There are now more than 18,900 officers engaged in the work of the medical department of the army, including regular army officers and the four officers' reserve corps—medical, dental, veterinary and sanitary—connected with the work under Surgeon General Gorgas, says the Medical Journal. It is estimated that at least 24,000 physicians will be included in the personnel of the department when full strength is reached. Every step in caring for the physical welfare of the soldiers from the time they are sworn into service until they are discharged comes under the medical department. In this work is included inspection of foods to be served soldiers, sanitation, care of the sick and wounded, the operation of field base and convalescent hospitals, "re-education" of the permanently crippled, handling the supplies for all this work, etc. The total number of hospital beds will be on a basis of 25 per cent of the strength of the army.

SENIOR OFFICERS IN THE LISTS OF KILLED.

LONDON, April 4.—Many officers of high rank are named in the lists of casualties now appearing and which are the first including casualties sustained during the great German drive. Among the killed are: Major-Gen. E. Feetham, Brig.-Gen. E. Sarnett Barker, Lieut.-Cols B. H. Cthrlton, J. Collings Wells, G. F. R. Cooke, Brigade Major S. Paget, son of the Bishop of London. The units which suffered most are the Royal Garrison Artillery, Royal Inniskilling Fusiliers, North Staffordshires, Royal Irish Fusiliers, Royal Fusiliers.

TROUBLED WITH CONSTIPATION
From 16 to 20

Constipation is one of the commonest ills of mankind, and one too often allowed to go unlooked after until some serious complication sets in.

If the bowels are properly looked after there will be no constipation, jaundice, sick or bilious headaches, heartburn, coated tongue, sour stomach, floating specks before the eyes, etc.

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills will keep your bowels so regulated that in no time the constipation will disappear entirely.

Miss Emma E. Melanson, Halifax, N.S., writes: "I am now 20 years of age, and since I was 16 I have been greatly troubled with constipation, so much so that at times I would be in bed 3 or 4 days a month. I tried all the old-fashioned remedies, castor oil, cascara, etc., with only temporary relief, until my sister-in-law gave me some of Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills. From the first they seemed beneficial, and I gave them a fair trial. This was two years ago, and with an occasional dose I have kept entirely free from constipation for the period mentioned."

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are 25c a vial at all dealers, or mailed direct

The All-Seeing Aviator

THE aeroplane upset many old ideas of Military Strategy. Surprise tactics of the enemy, once so effective, are now impossible so long as our aviators rule the air.

The movements of troops, the placing of batteries to "strafe" our lines—in fact, all enemy activities are observed by our airmen, who communicate the information they obtain by wireless to the Commanders on the ground.

Young men who show skill as aerial observers achieve rapid advancement. Their work is of such importance as to attract the attention of the highest military authorities.

Clear-headed, keen young men, 18 to 30 years of age—those possessing fair education, and sturdy physique, will be accepted as cadets and trained for the service. Cadets receive $1.10 per day while qualifying for their commissions.

Men who come within the provisions of the M.S.A. are eligible only after having joined their Depot Battalion, when they may, with the consent of their Commanding Officer, be discharged for re-enlistment in the R.F.C.

THE EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

The Patterns Are Guaranteed to Give Excellent Satisfaction

GIRL'S ONE PIECE DRESS.

If you are doing the spring sewing for the family now you will surely want to include this clever little design in your young daughter's outfit. No. 8759 shows the new convertible dress for girls—a very sensible and practical idea, for it has a double front closing. The dress may be opened all the way down, making it very easy to iron if it is made of wash material. A wide belt of contrasting material is attached to the panel. The large square pockets have loose flaps to match the other trimmings. The sleeves may be long or short.

The girl's one-piece dress pattern No. 8759 is cut in five sizes, 6 to 14 years. As on the figure, the 8 year size requires 3 yards of 27 inch material or 2¾ yards of 36 inch, with ⅝ yard 36 inch contrasting material.

This Pattern Can Be Obtained From the Examiner Office on Payment of 15 Cents.

GRAIN MARKET

The cash demand continues to be the dominant feature of the situation in both corn and oats. So far as weather and crop statistics are concerned these, logically, should be strong bearish factors. But against that tendency is the comparatively small cash offerings, and their ready absorption in a market where export bids are steadily forcing higher premiums. Cash oats at Fort William, and Ontario oats remain steady and firm. In the local market corn is a little firmer, holders asking $1.85 to $1.90 for No. 4, kiln dried, track Toronto.

Manitoba wheat—No. 1 Northern, $2.23½; No. 2, $2.20½; No. 3, $2.17½; No. 4, $2.10¼, including 2½-cent tax, in store, Fort William.

Manitoba oats—No. 2 C.W., 94 1-4c; No. 3, 90 1-4c.; extra No. 1 feed, 89 1-4c.; No. 1 feed, 87c., in store, Fort William.

American corn—No. 3 kiln dried. U.S.A. War Board prohibits importation.

Ontario oats—No. 2 white, 92c to 93c, nominal; No. 3 white, 91c to 92c.

Barley—Malting, $1.72 to $1.74.

Ontario wheat—No. 2 winter, $2.22, basis in store Montreal.

Peas—No. 2, $3.60 to $3.70, according to freights outside.

CATTLE MARKET

The cattle market has held fairly steady to firm all through the week for choice fat butcher cattle and heavy steers. Of these grades there was an early advance of 20c. to 25c. over the previous week the advance holding good right up to the closing market. In the meantime there was a gradual weakening in the market for the light half-fat steers and heifers, too many of these being shipped, until by the end of the week there were evidences of congestion in the fact that it became more and more difficult to get even bids of any kind for the light stuff, and quite a few pens were full of held-over cattle at the close of Thursday's market. Prices on these commoner grades were anywhere from 25c. off, with practically no demand. For choice, well finished cattle, any weights, the market continued strong and active.

The stocker trade is very quiet, though there is a good, steady demand for choice stock and short-keep feeders. Prices, however, are generally so high for the best grades that trade is kept within comparatively small limits.

Calves have been in good, strong market all week.

Sheep and lambs almost negligible, so few coming in.

The hog situation developed a weaker tendency towards the end of the week, after having held firm for several markets at the recent high record levels. It was very positively stated, however, that owing to certain developments in reference to the export bacon trade prices will in all likelihood be lower next week.

Cattle Receipts.

Union Stock Yards—Total receipts this week: 363 cars, with 4,973 cattle, 2,082 calves, 8,866 hogs, 169 sheep and lambs and 117 horses.

City Cattle Market—19 cars with 250 cattle, 137 calves, 245 hogs, 61 sheep and lambs and 97 horses.

Great Gold Region.

The first gold deposits found in Iceland Alaska were in the Yukon-Tanana region, which lies between Yukon and Tanana rivers west of the international boundary. The earliest of the pioneer prospectors crossed the Chilkoot Pass about 1880 and began mining in the interior of Alaska six years later after finding gold in the Yukon-Tanana region. Since then this region has produced gold to the value of about $100,000,000. A number of reports have been issued by the U. S. Geological Survey, Department of the Interior, bearing upon this area and others adjacent in the Yukon basin, and among the reports still available is Bulletin 538, on the portion of the region known as the Circle quadrangle. This quadrangle owes its chief present importance to the placer mines, which, though worked in a small way, have produced gold to the value of over $6,500,000.

The town of Circle is one of the oldest white settlements on the Yukon. It was located before the surveyor had determined that the town was not on the Arctic Circle be regarded as indicative of ice and snow, it should be noted that there are neither glaciers nor permanent snow in the Yukon-Tanana region. It is indeed a land of fertile valleys and grassy slopes, and during the short but warm summers vegetation thrives, many grains can be ripened and vegetables grow luxuriantly. Of course the establishment of adequate railroad transportation facilities may be expected to develop this region greatly.

Health for all the Family

MODERN, artificial methods of life make it absolutely necessary to use medicines occasionally to ensure the regular and healthful action of the liver, kidneys and bowels.

In the great majority of homes Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are recognized as the most satisfactory regulating medicine for all the members of the family.

This medicine is not in any sense a cure-all, but its use occasionally, as required, ensures the activity of the liver, kidneys and bowels, the cleansing of the system, and the purifying of the blood.

For this reason you can depend on Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to prevent and cure constipation, torpid liver, indigestion, kidney derangements and resulting painful ailments, such as backache, rheumatism and lumbago.

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are so universally used that you can obtain them at any store where medicines are sold.

Conservation of Health An Important Duty

CARE IN DIET SAVES BOTH FOOD AND HEALTH

The Use of a Tonic to Keep the Blood Built Up and the Nerves From Being Undernourished Strongly Recommended at This Season

Nature is always fighting to keep us well. Under normal conditions the forces of health within our bodies keep the disease germs in subjection. They are not expelled entirely, but they are kept harmless. Some indiscretion in diet and the digestion is upset; overwork and worry disturbs the nervous system, the blood gets thin and watery and the ever-present disease germs assert themselves. The blood fights the body's battles, but the blood can only keep you healthy when it is rich, red and pure. That is why it is of the greatest importance that thin-blooded people, people with pale faces, or those troubled with skin blemishes, or indigestion, or rheumatism, or any of the many ailments due to poor blood, should fortify themselves with a safe and effective tonic like Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills purify and strengthen the blood and bring good health and efficiency to weak, ailing men, women and children.

PALE AND WEAK.

The blood is responsible for the health of the body. If it is bad disease is bound to appear. One person may be seized with rheumatism and sciatica, another with anaemic, indigestion, heart palpitation, headaches or backaches, or unstrung nerves. There is just one certain, speedy cure—Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They make new, rich blood, and this good blood strengthens the whole system and brings good health and happiness. Miss Devina Laliberti, St. Jerome, Que., says: Last year I seemed gradually to grow weak and run down. I did not sleep well, had a poor appetite, and grew pale and generally languid. I consulted a doctor who told me I was anaemic and give me a tonic. This I took faithfully for some time, but it did not help me, and I appeared to be growing worse, and finally I was hardly able to go about the house and almost wholly incapacitated for work. While in this condition a friend advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I got several boxes. It was not long after I began their use when I could see an improvement, which first manifested itself in an improved appetite and better rest at night. From this on the improvement was rapid and I was not long in regaining perfect health. I think Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a real blessing for all weak girls."

NERVOUS BREAKDOWN.

Nourish your nerves — that is the only way you can improve life's worst misery — nervous exhaustion. The fits of depression and irritation, the prostrating headaches, the weakness and trembling of the legs. The unsteady hand and the imperfect digestion that mark the victim of nerve weakness, must end in nervous breakdown if neglected.

Your nerves are crying out for pure blood and the mission of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is to make new, rich blood. This explains why these pills have proved successful in so many cases of nervous disease that did not yield to ordinary treatment. For example, Mr. Wilfrid Donald, West Flamboro, Ont., says: "Before I began the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills I was in a serious condition. I was not only badly run down, but my nerves seemed to be completely shattered. I slept badly at night, and when I got up in the morning was as tired as when I went to bed. I seemed to be on the verge of a nervous breakdown. At this stage I began the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. In the course of a few weeks I felt much relief, and continuing the use of the pills they completely restored my health. I can now sleep soundly, eat well, and am enjoying complete freedom from the old nervous troubles."

INDIGESTION CURED.

Thin, pale people who complain of indigestion must improve the condition of their blood to find relief. The most active blood builder in such cases is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They make the rich, red blood which quickly restores the digestive organs to their proper activity, and the dyspeptic who has hated the sight and smell of food now looks forward to meal time with pleasure. Miss Edith M. Smith, R. R. No. 4, Perth, Ont., says: "I can honestly say I owe my present good health to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. My stomach was terribly weak and I suffered from indigestion and sick headache, and was always very nervous. I was troubled this way for nearly three years, and in that time took a great deal of doctors' medicine, which, however, did not help me. I could not eat anything without experiencing the most agonizing pain. My sick headaches were most violent and I could not rest night or day. I was asked one day by a friend to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and consented to do so. After taking them some time I found they were helping me, and I continued to take them steadily for several months, until I found that I was completely cured. While taking the pills I gained both in strength and weight, and I feel it impossible to praise Dr. Williams' Pink Pills too highly."

Do not be persuaded to take a substitute. See that the full trade mark name "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People," is printed on the wrapper around the box. If you cannot get these Pills through your dealer they will be sent by mail at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, by The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

OUR DIVORCE LAWS.

Some of the Objections to the Present Code.

A great many Canadians do not know why it is that we hear constant complaint about the divorce laws of the Dominion. Here are a few of the criticisms levelled at the code as it now exists. The chief objection to the present system comes from the western provinces on the ground of the expense. A divorce brought by anyone from the west is a most costly process, as the expense of bringing witnesses runs into hundreds, if not thousands of dollars. In addition to the objection of the cost, which it is claimed makes it a rich man's luxury, objection is taken to the mode of the court. It is claimed that Senators are not a suitable body to hear cases and that they, as well as members of Parliament, are swayed often by lobbyists.

It is also claimed that there should be uniformity throughout the whole of Canada. In 1869, when Confederation was formed the three Maritime Provinces had divorce courts of their own. They were allowed to retain these courts, and they still sit. British Columbia also had a divorce court and entered the union in 1871 on the understanding that its court would be retained. Ontario and Quebec not having divorce courts decided to have their cases reviewed by Parliament. Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta also have no courts, and applications must be made to Parliament through the Senate Divorce Committee.

Opponents of any change in the system claim that divorce courts, with less expense, would increase greatly the number of cases. Statistics would seem to bear out this contention. Outside of Prince Edward Island, which has an almost spotless record, in proportion to the population, there have been far more divorces granted by the divorce courts of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and British Columbia than by the Dominion Parliament. Prince Edward Island has granted but one divorce from 1868 to the present time. This was in 1913.

Since 1868 there have been granted by the Nova Scotia divorce court, 221 divorces. New Brunswick has granted 145 applications and British Columbia no less than 256. In recent years the crop of divorces in British Columbia has been growing. From 1909 to 1916 there were granted no less than 145. In addition in British Columbia there have been granted 13 judicial separations. Since Confederation the Dominion Parliament has authorized 298 divorces. Of these, 191 were to Ontario parties, 53 from Quebec; 21, Manitoba; 18, Alberta; 9, Saskatchewan and 6 were granted before the formation of Saskatchewan and Alberta as provinces.

A Huge Saving.

A Parliamentary committee has found that the production of all of London's electric power in a few central stations would save 6,000,000 tons of coal a year and greatly lessen the smoke evil.

FIRST YEAR OF WAR COST $9,000,000,000

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 4.—Nine billion dollars is the approximate cost to the United States of one year of war.

More than one-half has gone in loans to allies and will be repaid eventually. Over one-third has been spent for the army and military establishments, one-tenth for the navy, and one-fifteenth for shipbuilding.

Just one-sixth of this big war cost has been raised by taxation and other ordinary sources of revenue, and the balance has come from sale of Liberty Bonds and certificates of indebtedness.

GOT WET FEET TOOK AWFUL COLD

COULD NOT SLEEP FOR COUGH

A bad cold accompanied by a distressing cough that keeps you awake at night is most aggravating, and unless it is attended to at once may develop into something very serious.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is the remedy you should take. It heals the mucous surfaces, relieves oppression and tightness of the chest, removes the accumulation of phlegm, quiets the most obstinate and distressing coughs, and secures rest and sleep at night, not only to the sufferer, but to others whose rest would be otherwise broken.

Mrs. Ezekiel Acker, Lake Pleasant, N.S., writes: "I got wet feet and took an awful cold; could not sleep at night, and would do nothing but cough. My husband got me a bottle of medicine, but it was not worth bringing home. I was going to call the doctor in when a friend asked me to try Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. I told her I had little faith in it, but she urged me to get a bottle. I did, and I must say that of all the medicine I ever took, it is the best, and relieved me the quickest of anything I ever saw."

"Dr. Wood's" is put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price 25c and 50c; manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

THE ENEMY ATTACKED IN CONSIDERABLE STRENGTH WITHOUT FURTHER SUCCESS

British Improved Positions in Counter Attacks--Struggle Continued All Day--French Repulse Violent Attacks Along the Avre--Fighting Increases In Intensity.

THE BRITISH OFFICIAL STATEMENT

LONDON, April 6.—German attacks in "considerable strength" on a twenty-mile front north of the Somme throughout yesterday and this morning were repulsed, Field Marshal Haig reports to-day.

"North of the Somme there was heavy fighting everywhere south of Ayette (eight miles south of Arras and twenty miles north of Corbie on the Somme) until late yesterday evening," the statement said.

"The enemy attacked in considerable strength without further success during the morning.

"South of the Somme, in the neighbourhood of Hangard (a mile west of Demuin and nine miles south-east of Amiens) there was local fighting yesterday afternoon. We improved our positions in counter-attacks.

"Along the whole front, below Ayette, in the sector north of the Somme, the struggle continued with violence until late yesterday evening. Although the Germans made incessant attacks they met with no further success than attended their efforts in the morning."

ENEMY IS ADVANCING IN DENSE WAVES.

LONDON, April 6.—The Germans at daybreak this morning attacked the little town of Corbie, in the valley of the Somme, Reuter's correspondent reports. The enemy advanced in dense waves. The outcome was not known at the time the despatch was filed. The main German thrust, says the correspondent, appears to be west of the Vaire Wood, toward the principal Amiens road.

The British improved their positions east of Fonquevillers, north of the Somme, in their successful attack yesterday morning. The weather has improved, and the barometer is rising, although the aviators continue to be handicapped by very poor visibility.

THE FRENCH OFFICIAL COMMUNIQUE.

PARIS, April 6.—German raids in the Souzey and the Vaux Les Palameix regions were repulsed last night, the French War Office reported to-day. There was mutual artillery firing along the right bank of the Meuse and in the Apremont Wood.

Souzey is seven miles north of St. Michile and fourteen north-east of Verdun. Vaux Les Palameix is two miles north of Souzey.

The German attack along the French sector of the battle front has ceased. To-day's official statement says there was violent artillery fighting last night north and south of Avre, but that no infantry actions occurred.

GERMANS ARE HURLING GREAT MASSES OF TROOPS FORWARD IN ATTEMPT TO CAPTURE THE PARIS-AMIENS RAILWAY.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, April 6. — Heavy fighting is developing for the possession of the Amiens railway embankment in the region of Albert and the Valley of the Ancre—and astride the Somme. Just outside Corbie (on the north bank of the Somme), eight miles east of Amiens, particularly desperate assaults are being made. The Germans are hurling great masses of troops forward.

At 5.30 this morning the enemy was seen advancing in waves west of Vaire Wood (a mile and a half east of Corbie). Fighting is continuing southwards from the Heights.

Vast numbers of Germans are falling on British bayonets or are being shattered by the British guns.

At the time this was filed it is too early to give definite results of the battle.

GERMANS ARE WITHIN ONE AND A HALF MILES OF THE PARIS-AMIENS RAILWAY—A PROBLEM THAT FOCH WILL DEAL WITH.

ENEMY IS RUSHING BIG GUNS UP FOR ANOTHER OFFENSIVE

Artillery Fire Preceding Shock of Second Battle Will Be the Greatest of the War

ATTACK IN PROSPECT

(By Henry Wood.)
(United Press Service.)
(Special to The Examiner.)
(10 O'clock Despatch.)

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES IN THE FIELD, April 5.—A violent artillery duel, usually presaging an attack is under way on the entire front south of the Somme.

Nevertheless the Germans apparently plan a vastly greater artillery concentration before risking the main drive towards Amiens.

After the original thrust in the first half of the week the enemy rushed up many 150 millimetre guns, and on Thursday their first 210 millimetre appeared. Still heavier cannon are expected.

If Germans Persist.

Heavy rains beginning Thursday are unquestionably increasing the enemy's difficulties. On the contrary the French railways are working with the same precision that characterized the 1914 mobilization and have completed the French concentration. From a personal tour where the artillery concentration is the heaviest, I have ever witnessed, I am convinced if the Germans persist against Amiens the artillery fire preceding the shock of battle will be the greatest of the war. Indications are plentiful that the Germans are preparing a second offensive elsewhere for which the French have taken adequate measures. Following the decision of the American Government regarding the use of its troops, the French general staff declared the American forces will make their weight felt in the present gigantic contest.

THE IRISH SITUATION

The Future of Ireland Has Reached a Critical Stage With Conclusion of Convention

WAR MEASURES

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, April 6.—The question of Ireland's future has reached a critical stage with the announcement that the Irish convention has finished its work and decided upon the report to be made to the Government. While it is not permitted to reveal the convention's proceedings for the present, the nature of this report and the general work of the convention is well known to public men in England and Ireland. Premier Lloyd George declared when the convention was organized that if it agreed upon any plan for a government its plan would be embodied in a bill and placed before Parliament. Whether a mere majority report in favour of some home rule plan if such a report is presented by the convention will be considered an agreement warranting legislation based on it, remains to be seen. Premier Lloyd George also strongly intimated that the Government might proceed to a settlement of the Irish problem by legislation even if the convention failed to find some ground for a settlement "by consent." Therefore new Irish developments are expected in the near future, although the first business before the Government must be in dealing with urgent war measures, chiefly that for increasing the army.

Bishop Cooke Says States Should Have Entered the War Earlier

Special to The Examiner:

NEWARK, N.J., April 6.—Count Von Bernstorff and his aides should have been hanged at the time of the sinking of the Lusitania, Bishop Richard J. Cooke, of Helena, Montana, declared to-day in addressing the Newark Methodist Episcopal Conference. America should have entered the war "when the water was fine," as it would have heartened Belgium, England and France he added.

"But we are now in to stay, and the only peace the American nation will endorse will be a peace coming from unconditional surrender. The house of Hohenzollern has been, from its beginning the house of thieves, and the scoundrels that never respected the laws of God or man."

DIPLOMATIC DRIVE WILL BE HARMLESS

Canadian Press:

WASHINGTON, April 6. — The French statesman's repudiation of the Austrians' claims that it was he who made overtures is regarded as the blow that will make the diplomatic drive on the Teutonic Foreign Offices comparatively harmless. But it is believed similar efforts will be continued in one way or another to create in the minds of the peoples at war with the Central Powers the impression that the blame for the war's continuance rests wholly on the Allied governments.

JAPANESE AGGRESSION

"Japan Will Bear Watching" Declares George A. Warburton "Feathering Her Nest"

THE EASTERN RACES

(Special to The Examiner.)

WINNIPEG, Man., April 6.—Prospective trouble on account of Japanese aggressiveness between the Entente Allies and Japan was forecast by George A. Warburton, General Secretary of the Y.M.C.A., of Toronto, in the course of an address on conditions in the War East, delivered at the Canadian Club. "Japan will bear watching," declared Mr. Warburton. "While that country has been helping the Allies in this war she has been feathering her nest at every possible opportunity." Warburton has just returned from an extended tour of China, Japan and India. While in the Orient he studied economic conditions at close range. "In Japan there are 85,000,000 people, in China 40,000,000, and in India 320,000,000," he said. "We in Canada must keep our eyes on the Orient. These people are our neighbours, time has gone when western races can dominate the world absolutely.

"Liberty Day" Being Celebrated Throughout The United States

This is the First Anniversary of Entry of the United States Into the War—What America Has Done In That Time.

A BIG EVENT

Special to The Examiner:

WASHINGTON, April 6. — America closed to-day one year of war.

With a greater force in Europe than the Government dreamed could be sent across by now, with the navy doing much to choke the U-boat menace, with troops movement spurred to the limit and America pledged to the end, the Government looked ahead confident. The army stands at about 1,800,000, with a portion on guard at the front and the vast assignments going with the utmost speed. The navy forces are doing a valiant task on the storm-torn, U-boat infested waters of the Atlantic, the airplane programme, though running behind schedule, promises strong development by fall, shipyards are under orders to produce, with no excuse, the army is being filled by a new draft of 65,000, under way now, and 150,000 more soon. Ordnance supplies of all kinds are being turned out to the capacity of every mill. The cost has been vast—approximately $8,000,000,000.

A SURPRISE IN STORE.

Canadian Press:

LONDON, April 6.— Premier Lloyd George, telegraphing to-day to the Mayor of Toronto on the occasion of a luncheon given to celebrate America's entry into the war, said: "During the next few weeks America will give the Prussian military junta the surprise of their lives."

Defence of Liberties.

Canadian Press:

LONDON, April 6.— Replying to a telegram sent to the Lord Mayor of London and his guests at a luncheon at Mansion House, to celebrate the anniversary of the entry of the United States into the war, King George said: "American troops are daily taking their places in the battle line and this increases more than ever the confidence with which we patiently look forward to the ultimate victory of our united efforts in the defence of rights and liberties of civilization.

"Liberty Day."

Canadian Press:

WASHINGTON, April 6. — In one hundred and thirty-two shipyards, from Maine to Florida on the Atlantic coast, along the shores of the Gulf and the Pacific, and on the Great Lakes, to-day is being celebrated as "Liberty Day," the first anniversary of the United States' entrance into the world war, in which ships are playing a dominant part. The raising of the new flag of the United States Shipping Board was made the central event in the programme of patriotic exercises.

IMPORTANT CLASHES WITH THE ENEMY YESTERDAY AND TO-DAY

Germans Are in Plain Sight of the Paris-Amiens Railway--Very Heavy Fighting Yesterday

ARTILLERY ACTIVE

(By William Philip Simms.)
(United Press Service.)
(Special to The Examiner.)
(9:30 a.m. Despatch.)

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FRANCE, April 5.—The fighting is speeding up to-night. After fairly important clashes yesterday and to-day the Germans ocupy a Wedge-shaped ridge at the confluence of the Roye and Avre from where the main line of the Paris-Amiens railway is in plain sight a mile and a half away. This position overlooks truck gardens which supply Amiens and part of Paris.

The Germans also hold a wedge between Avre and the Luce, and another between the Luce and the Somme.

At 2 o'clock Friday morning southwest of Albert after two hours' heavy bombardment, six divisions of German infantry (72,000) men, attempted to storm the railway embankment. Dernancourt was the centre of the attack. The fighting is continuing.

Want High Ground.

Like the fighting to the southward this is an effort to gain the high ground which Hindenburg desperately needs before the next kick-off. The German artillery is increasingly active in the back areas of this region showing that heavier pieces are coming up. A few shells in Amiens previously only bombed from the air, will expose its famous cathedral to the same fate tsa that of Rheims.

CARD OF THANKS.

A CRY FROM THE BATTLE LINE TO THE WOMEN OF PETERBOROUGH

A very urgent appeal has come to the Red Cross Society, asking the workers to make, as quickly as possble, 5,000 McNaught head bandages, so that they may be shipped at the earliest possible moment, and then for us to continue to ship some regularly each month.

The work-room of the Public Library will be open every afternoon at 2 o'clock.

It is hardly necessary to press home this appeal and ask the women of Peterborough to respond whole-heartedly, for no woman capable of realizing what the terrible offensive of the last fortnight has meant in casualties will fail to come and say, "Thank you" to the men who have stood between us and the overthrow of everything which makes life worth while. Many appeals have been made by the Red Cross, but never one which should rouse women to be "up and doing" more than this one to-day. Fill the work-room on Monday and the succeeding days, and prove that we are willing to play our part enthusiastically and do our little bit to sustain and help those fighting.

In view of the work-room being opened Monday and every afternoon, the Executive will meet at seven p.m. instead of 3.30, as formerly announced.

We append Col. Hodgett's monthly report of the special needs: Marshall, Toronto. March 28, 1918.

On Sunday morning, March 24th, one of our stationary hospitals situated near battle area rang up Boulogne Depot, saying they were doing casualty clearing station work, that they had sixteen hundred patients with only six hundred beds, and that they needed immediately 2,000 pairs pyjamas, 1,000 sheets, 500 pillows, 200 hot-water bottles, 8,000 utility bags, sterilized surgical dressings, roller, triangular and many-tailed bandages, 1,000 flannel night shirts, 1,000 day shirts, 2,000 pairs socks, 1,000 bed socks, irrigating tins and rubber tubing, besides miscellaneous articles, such as biscuits, soap, soup, cigarettes, feeding cups. Inside an hour five lorries loaded with these supplies had left Boulogne for the front, and everything delivered to hospital within eight hours of request for help, despite Society's lorries were delivering supplies to every Canadian hospital in France On Tuesday afternoon, March 26th, there was not a single unfilled request on the society.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

SATURDAY, APRIL 6TH, 1918.

A DRASTIC STEP.

The order-in-Council read in the House of Commons yesterday and inspired by recent events in Quebec, is one of the most drastic and far-reaching ever passed in Canada, because it suspends the habeas corpus, the foundation of British liberty, and is a long step towards the subordination of civil to military law. The right of habeas corpus, dating back for seven hundred years, is taken away in the case of persons in military custody in any designated area in Canada, making it impossible for them to have their cases heard by civil courts.

Officials in charge of military districts are given wide power under the new order. They are permitted to act on their own initiative in dealing with disturbances without waiting for an apeal by the Mayor or a Magistrate for their services. The people in any district in which there is rioting or disturbances come under martial law and have to obey military orders under pain of court martial, while the power of civil courts is practically suspended in such districts.

MR. O'CONNOR'S CASE.

Has the resignation of Mr. W. F. O'Connor, Cost of Living Commissioner, been brought about by pressure from those interests to whom Mr O'Connor's frank methods were a menace? That is the question that is being asked all over the Dominion, and it is sincerely hoped that the subject will be threshed out in the House, so that the public will be able to get all the facts.

There is no doubt that Mr. O'Connor's reports upon matters he was requested to investigate, have been along new lines. They revealed to the public hard, cold facts about some industries—facts that those concerned with such industries had up to the time of Mr. O'Connor's investigation been able to conceal. It has been stated several times that demands had been made for the removal of of Mr. O'Connor; officials of his stamp were consdered dangerous.

The public would like to know everything there is behind his resignation.

MORE BLUNDERS.

The necessity of some one reading the riot act to the staffs of the Separation Allowances and Assigned Pay branches at Ottawa and at Kingston, is becoming more and more evident. A few days ago The Examiner referred to the frequency in which mistakes were made in these departments, mentioning one instance of a soldier's wife, who for over two months had received no separation allowance, the cheque sent her while marked "Assigned Pay and Separation Allowance," only bearing the value of the assigned pay.

This case is one only of many, as an explanation from the Secretary of the Patriotic Fund, published elsewhere in this issue, will show. Several dozen soldiers' wives in this city have encountered the same experience during the past couple of months, and have had to get along as best they could without the separation allowance. Their cheques, while marked "Assigned Pay and Separation Allowance" were only for the amount of the assigned pay. The result is that there has been a great deal of anxiety and distress, and Mr. Dobbin has had to take the cases up with the Department, although the secretary of the Patriotic Fund has plenty of worries on his hands without having to undertake additional labour because of the inefficiency of Government departments.

There does not seem to be any justification for such mistakes and certainly there is no valid excuse why the errors should not have been speedily rectified. Some women have been without separation allowance for two months and, as The Examiner pointed out in reference to the matter a few nights ago, it seems utterly impossible for a soldier's wife to get any information from the Department. She might just as well write the German war office for some facts about the new long range gun as to ask the Government authorities here for an official statement about her allowances.

Some business methods are sorely needed in the Departments. Imagine the accounting department of any big business concern making so many mistakes as the Government officials have and are making! And imagine also how long a business would last if correspondence was neglected, as apparently it is being ignored in the Government departments!

There is a callous carelessness about the whole thing that is lamentable. Officials should always remember that soldiers' dependents rely upon their cheques for the necessities of life. The rent must be paid, the children clothed and fed, and the home kept running and, and goodness knows, financing these expenditures is a difficult enough matter when the monthly income arrives promptly, without being deprived of the $25 separation allowance for two or three months.

MR. GUISE-BAGLEY'S ROUND.

The second round in the Guise-Bagley-Burnham contest, over the working out of the Military Service Act, has been fought, and regarding the matter from a neutral standpoint it looks as if this was distinctly Mr. Guise-Bagley's round. In his second letter on the subject, he refutes the idea that he is actuated by a mercanary spirit and then proceeds to suggest a course of action that sounds reasonable, and that undoubtedly would have produced better results than have so far been achieved under the Military Service Act. Briefly, his plan is to use every man where he can do his best for the nation, the mechanic at munition-making, the farmer on the land, those of unessential employment to the trenches, etc.

Incidentally, Mr. Guise-Bagley's portrayal of present conditions arising out of the Act, will be echoed by many farmers in this district. To quote Mr. Burnham's late agent:

"I know of several persons, owners of farms, that have wthin the last week, been taken from their lands, and these lands will grow weeds instead of food in consequence. The Director of the Military Service Council told me that if I heard of any such cases it was my duty as a citizen to bring the case before the military authorities with a view to the man being sent back to his occupation of a farmer. I have done so. I told the Minister of Militia personally that there are such cases, and he replied that the Leave of Absence Boards are doing the investigation. But the Leave of Absence Boards have their hands tied, and besides are military tribunals that lean to getting the men."

THE QUEBEC SHOWING.

Dissatisfaction with the operatons of the Military Service Act is becoming greater each day, as the people of the Dominion, outside of Quebec, realize that the sorry showing that that province made during the period of voluntary enlistment, has been duplicated under the compulsory system. When it is considered that out of 117,104 unmarried men of military age in the whole province of Quebec, not more than 3,000 have so far been put into uniform, it is no wonder that there is a steadily growing demand for a more vigorous enforcement of the Act.

The figures are astonishing. For instance, No.3 Military District which includes Peterboro, has supplied twelve times as many men under the draft system as the whole military district of Quebec, which comprises all that part of the province east of and including the city itself, containing a million population. In fact the Quebec district has as yet failed to yield half a battalion of draftees, where the Toronto district, after furnishing twenty time as many volunteers as the Quebec district, has actually been supplying fifty times as many under the Military Service Act.

There has been a wholesale exemption of men in Quebe. Any trivual excuse was enough to furnish the tribunals an opportunity to grant exemption. Employers put in lengthy lists with the explanaton that the taking of the men named would be an inconvenience, and the tribunals would simply, it is stated, exempt the whole list. It is true that the military representatives have appealed many of these decisions, but so far the authorities have not shown any record-breaking celerity in getting the cases before the Central Appeal Judge, and the result will be that some of the Ontario draftees will be in the trenches before many of the Quebec men called out at the same time, are in uniform.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The new motor chemical truck has already justified its purchase by its work in the past few days.

The Government is evidently gong to sidestep the railway problem until the next session.

The administration of the Military Service Act has cost so far $1,427,785. 32,000 men have been drafted, so that the average cost per recruit has been about $44.

Another Toronto man goes to Burwash Reformatory for unparriotic utterances. And Bourassa is still at large!

Kingston golfers are going to grow potatoes this year. Some of the new golfers will likely be used to do the digging.

Cash-and-Carry Plan At
JOHN MERVIN'S
Meat Shop 234 Hunter Street

On and after this date, we will conduct our Meat Business on the Cash-and-Carry Plan. This will mean much to our patrons in dollars and cents, as they will now be able to buy their Meats from us at from TWO to THREE CENTS LESS per pound.

It costs money to say "Charge It," in the meat business, and deliver it, too. But cash means lowest prices to you and puts us in a position to secure supplies which spot cash always commands.

Our customers can also help us to cut down the delivery business by carrying all small parcels.

Munition Plants Will Be Hard Hit By Increase In Fire Insurance Rates

One Manufacturer is of the Opinion That a Large Percentage of Insurance Business Will Go Over the Line—"An Outrageous Imposition" Declares an Insurance Broker.

PUBLIC WILL HAVE TO PAY

(Special to The Examiner.)

TORONTO, April 6.—Those who will be hardest hit by the impending boost in fire insurance rates will be munition factories, chemical and explosive works engaged in war work day and night, according to the plan of super-charge already announced by the Canadian Fire Underwriters' Association. Industries for permission to work during evenings not later than 10 o'clock must pay after April 15th an additional fire insurance premium amounting to 20 per cent. of the original premium. If the plant carries on until midnight the super-charge will be 30 per cent. of the premium, and for working a 24-hour day, the concern will be taxed an additional 50 per cent. over and above the existing premium.

An "Imposition."

Commenting on this phase of the situation one of Toronto's prominent insurance brokers declared it was an outrageous imposition. "Such a system constitutes an handicap upon the industry of the country, particularly in its war effort. Munitions plants will be hard hit."

"They will drive us out of the country to seek insurance protection," declared Robert Bury of Robert Bury Lumber Co., commenting on the proposed general increase in rates. "We consider we are paying high enough at present. Much lower rates are prevailing in the United States, and we are negotiating at present with New York brokers to have our insurance placed through that source. If the rates go up the first thing the Canadian Fire Underwriters' Association will know from 25 to 50 per cent. of business will go over the line."

Public Will Pay.

"It only means that the prices of some commodities are going to go up," said another manufacturer. "Increase in the insurance bill simply means that overhead expenses are so much more and the price of manufacturing products will have to make up for it proportionately. The public will ultimately pay as usual."

Opinions were expressed in several quarters that the commissions to insurance agents were generally too high, as a result the cost of insurance was far above that which it might be. One manufacturer declared that the commissions particularly on large blocks of insurance often added as much as 25 or 35 per cent to the cost of insurance. The whole system of the business was built on a plan too expensive to the insurer, he declared.

Another manufacturer advanced the view that the excessive high insurance rates might result beneficial to the country in that many firms rather than pay high premiums will so improve their plants as to quality for insurance with some of the mutual reciprocal companies and thus greatly reduce their annual insurance bills.

"For three years, I suffered great pain in the lower part of my body, with swelling or bloating. I saw a specialist, who carefully examined me and gave me several tonics to take, which did not help me. Then he told me I must undergo an operation. This, I refused to permit.

I heard about 'Fruit-a-tives' and the wonderful results it was giving because this medicine is made from fruit juices, so decided to try it.

The first box gave great relief; and I continued the treatment, taking six boxes more. Now, my health is excellent — I am free of pain and swelling—and I give 'Fruit-a-tives' my warmest thanks".

MORE SHIPPING FOR THE UNITED STATES

One Hundred Thousand Tons Available At Once

Special to The Examiner:

WASHINGTON, April 6.—One hundred thousand tons of Swedish shipping is to be chartered to the United States under a temporary trade agreement already completed, it was learned at the War Trade Board to-day.

Negotiations now are going on for a permanent war agreement under which the country will get charters for much more tonnage in return for ample supplies of food and badly needed war materials.

HOW THE TROUBLE STARTS

If more people knew how Rheumatism and kindred ills started there would be infinitely less suffering.

It should be a matter of popular knowledge that the blood stream completes the circulation of the body in approximately three minutes, gathering up waste matters. It is the function of the Kidneys to remove these impurities or poisons from the blood and eliminate them from the body. Should there be any derangement of the Kidney action the poisons are not eliminated but are carried around again in the blood stream, to accumulate slowly and occasion sickness and distress. Then follow pains in the back, in the region of the Kidneys, Rheumatism, constant headaches, and the many complaints arising from derangements of the Kidneys or Bladder. First, the Kidneys must be put in order and until these organs are healed and regulated no real health is possible. Gin Pills contain the medicinal and tonic properties that the Kidneys require.

You can get Gin Pills at all dealers—50c a box or 6 boxes for $2.50, or a sample will be sent free upon request to the National Drug & Chemical Co. of Canada, Limited, Toronto, or to the U. S. address, 202 Main St., Buffalo, N.Y. 124

LATE MR. BRISBIN FORMERLY RESIDED IN EAST CITY

"The Pilot Mound Sentinel," Manitoba of February 23rd. refers in the following terms to the death of Mr George F. Brisbin who, prior to moving west nine years ago, resided on Burnham street, East City.

(Pilot Mound Sentinel)

On Saturday evening, Mr. George Fields Brisbin, (better known as Mayor Brisbin of Pilot Mound) town passed peacefully away after an illness o five months' duration, Bright's disease being the cause of death.

The late Mr. Brisbin was 63 year of age, and was born in Roseneath Ont., coming west and settling on hi farm in this district some nine year ago. His death occurred on the 42n anniversary of his wedding to Mary Brown, who, with six children, sur vives to mourn his loss. The childre are: Mrs. H. Phyllips, Toronto, Mis Carrie and Miss Pearl, at home, Mr Jas. F. Brisbin, Abernethy, Sask G. W. Brisbin, (Mayor of Pilo Mound) and Harry Brisbin at home All were at the bedside with the ex ception of Mrs. Phyllips, the eldest who with her little son, arrived a da too late to see deceased before h died. A brother, J. P. Brisbin, was also present at the beside.

The late Mr. Brisbin was a life-long Methodist; he was of a kindly retiring disposition, and everyone who knew him is counted amongst his host of firm friends.

REV. J. W. GRAHAM WILL PREACH AT TRINITY

Rev. J. W. Graham, D.D., of Toronto, will preach in the George Street Methodist Church to-morrow morning. In the evening the pastor's subject will be What Does It Mean To Be Saved?" There will be ten minutes of song at the beginning of the very night of the coming week, except Saturday. They will open at 7:45 o'clock, and will be in charge of the pastor and local ministers.

FUNERAL TOOK PLACE YESTERDAY

The remains of the late Morgan Whattley, who died suddenly this week were laid at rest yesterday afternoon in the Little Lake cemetery. A service was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dredge, 389 London street, at one o'clock, and at St. John's Church at two o'clock, conducted by Rev. Mr. Grobb. Mrs. Whattley is at present in England; also Mr. Whattley's only son, Henry. His daughter, Mrs. Franklin, of Detroit, was present at the funeral. The pall-bearers were Messrs. Dredge, Franklin, Maidwest, Crollope, Knight and Sergt.-Major Dawes of Kingston.

Nine-Hour Day At Peterboro' Lock Co. Begins On Monday

On Monday the Peterborough Lock Company will inaugurate for its employees the nine-hour day. The factories which have granted this concession to its workers are as follows:

Canadian General Electric Co.
The De Laval Co.
The Bonner-Worth Co.
The Colonial Weaving Co.
The Peterborough Lock Co.

The Lock Company not only grants the nine-hour day, but also maintains the wages as they have been paid for ten hours. This is the nine-hour-work, ten-hour-pay idea. The Lock Company's recognition of their employees' service will be fully appreciated at this time when every serious-minded citizen is determined to use his spare time in the greater production of food stuffs for which the world is calling.

Why Spring Brings Out Freckles and Eruptions

The sudden appearance of freckles, slight eruptions or fine lines at this season is attributed by scientists to the "actinic ray," which is unusually active during the spring months. Where the skin is so affected by this influence, if one will procure an ounce of common mercolized wax at any drug store, apply a little of it before retiring, like cold cream, she can easily overcome the trouble. When that wax is washed off next morning, minute flaky skin particles come with it. The entire outer cuticle is removed in this way in a week or two, with all its defects.

No bleach could so effectually remove freckles or blemishes. The new surface is smooth, clear, fresh looking. No pain or inconvenience accompanies this simple treatment.

CLASS HELD A BIRTHDAY PARTY

St. James' Church Sunday School Class Has Made Rapid Growth

The members of the 'King's Own' Class of St. James' Methodist church held their annual meeting at the home of their teacher, Mrs. E. J. Hotston, 173 Wescott street, on Wednesday evening.

The class organized one year ago with a total membership of nine. The roll has extended since that time till it now contains thirty-two names.

During the evening the officers for the coming year were elected. They are as follows:

President—Clara Robinson.
Vice-President—Dorothy Yardley.
Secretary—Jennie McIlwain.
Corresponding Sec.—Florence Saunders.
Treasurer—Lily Hiscox.
Librarian—Alberta MacDonald.
Teacher—Mrs. Hotston.

Convenors.

Membership committee—Vera MacInnes.
Missionary committee—Edna Bingham.
Social and Literary committee — Mary Lesurf.

Following the election of the officers a short time was spent in games, the concluding item on the evening's programme being luncheon, served in the dining room which was decorated in the class colours, blue and gold. The table decorations, flowers and refreshments all carried out the same colour scheme.

The central attraction of the table was a birthday cake with thirty-two lighted candles illuminating it.

SPRING WEATHER HARD ON BABY

The Canadian spring weather—one day mild and bright; the next raw and blustery is extremely hard on the baby. Conditions are such that the mother cannot take the little one out for the fresh air so much to be desired. He is confined to the house which is often over-heated and badly ventilated. He catches cold; his little stomach and bowels become disordered and the mother soon has a sick baby to look after. To prevent this an occasional dose of Baby's Own Tablets should be given. They regulate the stomach and bowels, thus preventing or curing colds, simple fevers, colic or any other of the many minor ailments of childhood. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Tiring, Ceaseless Back-Ache Can Be Rubbed Away To-night

Relief Is Almost Unfailing From Even the First Application

RUB ON NERVILINE

Cold has a vicious way of finding out aching muscles or weak joints. How often pain settles in the back, causing inflammation and excruciating soreness. Stiffness and aching all over follows:

An application of Nerviline at the start gives immediate relief and prevents worse trouble.

When the pain is very acute, Nerviline has a chance to show its wonderful penetrating and pain-subduing power. It strikes in deeply, and its strike-in-deep quality quickly proves its superiority to feebler remedies. Then this goodness is magnified by its strength, easily five times greater than most liniments.

Surely so powerful and curative a liniment as Nerviline offers perfect security against pain.

Nerviline is the only guaranteed pain remedy sold in Canada. Forty years of success in many countries warrants its manufacturers saying. If it does not relieve, get your money back.

No curable pain, not even neuralgia, lumbago, sciatica or rheumatism can resist the magic power of Nerviline. Try it to-day. Rub it on your tired back, let it ease your sore muscles, let it take the swelling and stiffness out of your joints. It's a marvel—thousands say so that use Nerviline.

The large 25c. family size bottle of Nerviline is very economical. Buy the larger size to-day. Sold by dealers everywhere, or the Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Canada.

Explanation Of The Changes Made In The Issuance Of Assigned Pay And Allowance

Some of the Cheques Have Been Coming Through to Peterborough Dependents Improperly Marked—Department Explains the Blunder.

During the last four months some changes were made in issuance of the Separation Allowance and Assigned Pay cheques from the Departments, at Ottawa. It was announced that a part of the cheques would be issued from Kingston, to the dependents in Military District No. 3, which is the Kingston District.

In addition, instead of issuing one cheque for the Assigned Pay and another for the Separation Allowance, the two amounts were combined in one cheque, and such cheques came forward for two or possibly three months.

During the last month, especially, dependents receiving cheques have been disturbed in that the amounts of the cheques have not corresponded with the amounts expected under the rules. In addition there was ground for uneasiness, in that the cheques received were marked, in printed letters, in red, as for "Separation Allowance and Assigned Pay," when plainly the amount of the cheque was that of the assigned pay only.

Were Advised.

Women were uneasy. Assuming that if they accepted and used the cheque it might be claimed that the using of the cheque was a valid acceptance of that amount for both pay and allowance. They flocked in to the Patriotic Fund office, so many as seven to ten in a day, asking for advice and explanation. They were advised, in fact in all cases, to make or have made, or was made for them, a careful copy of the creque, showing number, amount, etc. Then to use the cheque. The matter was at once taken up with the Department pointing out the inconsistency of sending assigned pay on a cheque that should have been used for remittance of both sums, and asking for explanation.

Some one had blundered. The wrong blank cheques had been used. The Department writes, in answer, under date of April 3rd.

"Of course, you can assure these women that if there is anything wrong with their accounts it will be adjusted and that the statement on the cheques will not be binding, if it is found not in accordance with the facts.

"If you will be good enough to write, in each particular case where the woman is only receiving one amount and she is apparently entitled to two, I shall be glad to investigate at once, and advise you."

Following this suggestion it is asked that all women who have received cheques for the assigned pay only, when the amount should have included the Separation Allowance, to advise the Patriotic Fund office, so soon as possible, and the facts will at once be transmitted to the department. This will ensure, so far as possible, prompt attention to the matter while it is fresh in the attention of the Department. Those interested will be prompt in advising with regard to the deficient cheques.

"Pollyanna" Has Universal Appeal Say Judges, Physicians And Clergy

"Glad" Play Recommended to Young and Old by Professional Men —Physicians Prescribe It—Clergymen Preach Upon It

Seldom in the history of the American theatre has a play exerted such universal appeal or secured such unanimous endorsement by professional men of national importance, as has fallen to the lot of "Pollyanna," the "Glad" play, which has become one of the most important features of the metropolitan theatrical season, and will be the attraction at the Grand Saturday, April 13th, matinee and night.

The play comes here with a New York, Boston and Chicago record, and after an engagement at the Broad Street Theatre, Philadelphia, which broke attendance of forty years standing at that historic playhouse. Nearly 100,000 persons viewed the play in the Quaker City. But after 75 performances of the play the management was compelled, on account of previous bookings, to take it to other cities leaving many clamoring for tickets.

Since the initial presentation two seasons ago "Pollyanna" has fortified herself with endorsements of men of national importance in law, the church, diplomacy and medicine.

Here is a summary of "Pollyanna's" record in Philadelphia:

Sermons on the play were preached by 176 clergymen.

It was endorsed publicly by more than 50 physicians.

Viewed by 92 clubs, lodges, church choirs and other organizations.

Inspired the formation of 17 "Pollyanna" Clubs.

Seen by all the little cripples from the Philadelphia Home of Incurables and patients from hospitals for the blind and the deaf.

Attended by students of 76 private schools under the guidance of their teachers.

In one of the first audiences which saw the play in Philadelphia, was Dr. Wilmer Krusen, a physician of national importance, professor in the Temple University School of Medicine and director of the department of Health and Charities of Philadelphia.

"'Pollyanna' is a charming blending of pathos and humor," said Dr. Krusen. "The optimistic and hopeful strain which characterizes every utterance of the "Glad" girl conveys a lesson to every auditor. The medical man is impressed with its psychotherapeutic aspect—the influence of the mind upon the body. One only has to watch the faces of the audience to realize that this play emphasizes the text that "a merry heart doth good like medicine," and the day after one finds himself trying to play the glad game and finds out how the good things of life really overbalance the disagreeable and unpleasant."

Dr. J. Allan Jackson, chief of the Philadelphia Hospital for the Insane, said: "If people would adopt 'Pollyanna's' gladness there would be only a few persons in such institutions as that with which I am identified."

Dr. F. C. Hammond, of the Samaritan Hospital, Dr. Albert Bech, of the same institution, Dr. William J. Ross of West Philadelphia, were among the numerous other physicians who enthusiastically endorsed the play.

Many distinguished visitors in that city publicly endorsed this play. The Marchioness of Aberdeen and Marquis were among its supporters.

"Seeing 'Pollyanna' is a climax to a most delightful visit," said Lady Aberdeen, "and we shall never forget our experience this evening I think 'Pollyanna' ranks with the very best of modern dramas."

Eduardo Carrasco, chief of the Burea of Commerce, of the Department of the State of Chili, was another distinguished patron of the glad play. With characteristic Latin warmth of diction he pronounced "Pollyanna" a "benediction." He expressed the wish that his fellow citizens might have the opportunity to see the play.

Further extension of the comments of the play is impossible on account of consideration of space. Brief sentences from the sermons of some of the most prominent clergymen who preached on the play during its stay in Philadelphia, follows. Mr. Jos. Krauskopf, Rabbi of Keneseth Israel Synagogue:

"What people need is the 'Pollyanna' treatment. Let them take it, and no matter how deep rooted their real or fancied troubles, no matter how many the attempted cures that have failed, no matter or joyless or hopeless the outlook seems, the dark horizon will brighten, and in time it it will stand out resplendent in the message, and be glad."

Dr. Howard Preston McHenry, of the Mariner's Church:

"If I could preach a sermon as does the girl in gingham, I should have to employ a stenographer to reply to the calls for my services."

Dr. Daniel E. Weigle, of the Messiah Luther Church:

"If anyone sees 'Pollyanna' without becoming better men and women there is surely something very much the matter with their lives."

John W. Patterson, judge of the Common Pleas Court, No. 1, said that "Pollyanna" stands in the vanguard of the influences which are raising the modern theatre to a high moral and artistic level.

Both the Catholic Theatre Movement and the Drama League, have given the play their heartiest endorsement on the same ground and in every community in which it has appeared it has left its mark in a higher moral tone and a truer spirit of "Gladness."

ALD. DOBBIN HAS ANOTHER JOB—IS FUEL COMMISSIONER

The Council last night appointed Ald. Dobbin Fuel Commissioner, with the powers and duties defined in the Fuel Controller's Act.

Ald. A. A. McIntyre voiced an aggressive objection to taking this advantage of the Act now, and was supported by Ald. Malcolm McIntyre and Ald. Saunders.

Ald. Worth made a vigorous plea that the city appoint a commissioner. Through this official's hands would pass the statements of receipts and sales of coal, and the quantities delivered to citizens. It was a protective measure in the interests of all the citizens.

Replying to Ald. A. A. McIntyre he said: "Surely if the government has deemed it necessary to appoint a Fuel Controller, and the Province to appoint a Fuel Commissioner, we are not making a mistake in nominating a commissioner."

For the present no office help will be provided, but when spring delivery reaches its peak load, some clerk will have to be engaged if the city wishes to secure full advantage of the local control that is conveyed through the Fuel Controller's Act.

Citizens are permitted to obtain 70 per cent. of their normal requirements of coal for the period ending March 31st, 1919, excepting those who do not need more than six tons. The latter consumers may purchase their full requirements up to six tons.

The Fuel Commissioner is a salaryless position, it was intimated last night.

ARTFUL DODGER HAS NO CHANCE

Put a few drops on that old touchy corn then lift it out without pain

Ouch ! ? ! ? ! ! This kind of rough talk will be heard less here in town if people troubled with corns will follow the simple advice of this Cincinnati authority, who claims that a few drops of a drug called freezone when applied to a tender, aching corn, stops soreness at once, and soon the corn dries up and lifts right out without pain. A delightful surprise awaits all who try this.

He says freezone is a sticky substance which dries immediately and never inflames or even irritates the surrounding tissues or skin. A quarter of an ounce of freezone which will cost very little at any drug store, is said to be sufficient to remove every hard or soft corn or callus from one's feet. Millions of American women will welcome this announcement since the inauguration of the high heels.

You are Invited to Inspect our Attractive Array of Early Summer Fabrics

THE NEW MATERIALS for summer wear are now being shown in our dress goods and staple departments, and they are more lovely than ever before, let us show them to you, and you will readily agree. There are beautiful new textures from our own producers as well as rare importations. And these new fabrics present a veritable riot of colors, wonderful colors, one would almost lose one's head over such an elegant collection of shades.

Most careful attention has been given in our selection of silks, they are elegant and the materials alone will make any gown beautiful and distinctive.

And the new voiles and ginghams, they are full of daintiness and charm, such quaint pretty designs and soft pleasing shades. You must see them for yourselves and price them to appreciate their full value.

American Lady Corsets will Protect and Preserve Your Good Figure

IT IS A PERFECT CORSET for the busy woman. She works in it, plays in it, and when she takes it off at night, it is the same delicate, flexible, durable piece of feminine apparel. She wears it in the morning under a house dress, decides in haste to go shopping, dances at night — the very same American Lady she put on in the morning adjusts itself to every whim, to every movement of her body.

Are you practicing corset economy? Real corset economy depends upon the actual service given by the corset you buy. And real service includes not only wear, but style and comfort. The surest way to have these qualities is to wear American Lady Corsets. If you are slender, stout, of medium figure, or hard to fit, there's an American Lady model exactly right in style and price for you. Let us show you the new spring models. From the first day you wear an American Lady you'll appreciate its style and comfort. The prices range from $6.00 to $2.00 and even less.

Council Makes Enquiry Into Extent Of Its Power To Help The Local Hotel Proprietors

Alien Question in Restaurant Field a Factor That Has Aroused the Hotelmen to Ask For Assistance Against What They Say is Unfair Competition.

MET COUNCIL LAST NIGHT

The restaurant question is the irritant that has driven the hotelmen to ask the Council for relief from the unprofitable conditions which, they state, are largely created by the business conducted by foreigners. This fact was explicitly stated last night by the deputation of hotel proprietors that reiterated to the Committee of the Whole Council the complaint and appeal for help they presented on Monday night.

"Suppose we could close up the restaurants," Ald. Worth suggested, "would you want any financial assistance then?"

"Not one cent," replied Mr. G. N. Graham of the Empress Hotel.

Mr. Gus. White summarized the attitude of the deputation, and briefly sketched the difficulties the hotel men are struggling against.

"I'm not crawling on my knees for help from the city," he said. "I don't need to. I can live without my hotel, and can make my money easier than by staying up until two o'clock in the morning to meet travellers from the night trains and then getting up at 8 o'clock. I spent seven or eight thousand dollars fixing up the White House. I wanted to make it a good, small hotel. If it is not a benefit to Peterborough then I'll close it up."

It had been suggested that the deputation might obtain data showing the cost of doing business, and what assistance, if any, was given to hotels in other cities.

"You don't need to go out of Peterborough," Mr. White replied. "The Dickson Estate might tell you how much they lost in the Oriental. Mr. Brand closed the Snowden House, and all I was offered for rent was $40 a month. And there are no better hotels in Canada for the size of the city. Travellers don't need to go to bed with their fur coats on, as they told me they did in Lindsay. The hotels up and down the country were not buying coal last winter. When we can't keep our hotel warm for the public, we will close. There is only one hotel in Port Hope, and travellers have to sleep on the floor. I had a man at my place yesterday sick from having spent a night on the floor in the Port Hope hotel with a blanket to cover him."

HOW RESTAURANTS HURT.

Mr. White told the Council that many persons take their meals at the restaurants, then go to a hotel, pick up the newspapers and spend the interim until train time.

"A man and his wife," he continued, "may come from a restaurant, go up to the ladies' sitting room and enjoy the comforts provided without paying a cent for this accommodation. It often happens. Make the restaurants put in sitting rooms where the public may remain after their meals, instead of having to get out into the street and end up at the hotels. Put them on an equal and fair basis with us, and I don't care how many restaurants there are."

Mr. White added that six out of every ten persons using the lavatories in the hotels contribute nothing to their upkeep.

Mayor Duncan enquired whether such persons could not be kept out.

Mr. White—"The standard licensed hotels are open to the public. Besides we don't wish to turn transients out. We are giving them a service they can't get at the restaurants, and we want the restaurants put on the same basis."

Ald. Edgar—"We haven't the power. That is a question the Hotel Association should take up with the Government."

"There is not an Hotel Association" Mr. White replied.

RAISE ROOM RATES.

Mr. Graham stated there were now only three and one-half day's business out of the seven.

"But we have the same expenses for the whole seven. The travellers used to be here from Monday until Friday noon. Now they come on Monday and are gone by Thursday noon. The house is idle until the following Monday. Our rates are only fifty cents more than in 1915, and a dollar more than 1913. We charge $1.25 for a room without bath and $1.75 with bath room. Somebody wrote about Toronto hotels. There is not a hotel in Toronto making money and they have seven days a week. You can't compare us with them. Men from Montreal coming here during the week usually spend the week end in Toronto."

Ald. Worth said that the Empress should charge city rates, $2 without a bathroom and $2.50 with.

Mr. Graham—"From my experience I know what we can charge here. I don't want to "soak" a man $2 or $3 who comes in at midnight and goes the next morning."

Ald. Worth—"Travellers' expenses are paid by their firms. They would pay the increased rates."

Mr. White—"They would go to Lindsay and stay there. Lindsay hotels have only one staff. Their last train is in at 9 p.m. and there is nothing moving until 6 a.m. We have to keep night and day staffs. You find us meeting the midnight and 2 a.m. trains, and our men are out again to meet the early train from the east."

WOULD OPEN RESTAURANTS.

"Give us a chance," Mr. Graham requested, "and we'll guarantee to put in restaurants. We want to learn to make hotels pay independent of "booze." I'll turn the bar into a restaurant, any day; but we can't compete with foreigners, who sleep like pigs. They don't pay wages, but "divvy" up among themselves. It's not all the travelling public that eat at restaurants. We can't compete with them. We'd starve to death."

Mr. Graham said he believed the Council could restrict the sale of local option beer to the hotels. It had been done elsewhere, he asserted. Although the hotels had been promised protection they had not received it.

"They took away the bars and said they would do this, that and the other, but show me anything they have done for us. Every little shop is selling the two and one-half per cent. beer."

"Orillia," he said, "had granted billiard licenses only to hotels."

Ald. Dobbin — "You should have come to us a year ago."

Mr. Graham—"We were trying to get along on an independent basis. We find we can't, so we made a bolt for here."

Ald. Dobbin—"Our rates are fixed for this year We should have been informed earlier"

THE HOTELS' TAXES.

City Clerk Armstrong read a statement, showing the hotel taxes for this year as follows: Empress $1,653.07; White House, $604; Grand, $817; King George, $377.68; Montgomery House, $597.65; American, $348.72; Munro House, $744.88; Windsor, $225.75, Albion $112.18; Montreal House, $133.94. Total—$5,615.

Mr. Hatton, who introduced the deputation, stated that Belleville had fixed the assessment of the Bay of Quinte hotel. It was an attraction that brought trade to the town that would not otherwise have gone there.

The business of the hotels had been confiscated with no relief whatever given. Rates were such that the public was fighting shy of the hotels.

WILL GET INFORMATION.

After the deputation departed the Council decided to obtain detailed information before proceeding with the hotel men's petition.

City Solicitor Gordon will be asked whether the Council can prohibit the sale of two and one-half per cent. beer and similar beverages except at Standard Licensed hotels, can compel restaurants to provide sitting rooms apart from their dining rooms and other accommodation, can restrict the number of restaurants and billiard rooms or confine them to Standard Hotels, and also whether fees for restaurant licenses can be graded according to the sizes of the restaurants or to the number of tables.

Secret of the Pandora Magic

NO other range has a flue system just like that of the Pandora.

The flue system of the Pandora Range makes the almost magical efficiency of the Pandora oven—conserves the heat in the range to do its maximum of work under the covers, in the oven, in the reservoir and in the warming closet.

The Pandora flue system is the secret of the Pandora baking efficiency, the Pandora fuel economy and the complete control which makes baking and cooking a pleasure and lightens all the other kitchen work.

Note how the Pandora flue system carries the heat to every part of the range, surrounding the oven in walls of heat under perfect control.

See how the heat passes the length and depth of the hot water reservoir.

Note how it passes under the six-hole top in a current which gives the Pandora five "boiling" holes.

Allied Offensive May Be Delayed

Hindenburg Will Be Permitted to Lead His Troops Into Further Slaughter.

Special to The Examiner:
(By J. W. T. Mason, Written For United Press.)

NEW YORK, April 6. — General Foch's confidence in the ultimate outcome of the combat on the western front should not be interpreted as necessarily meaning an early resumption of the offensive by the Allies. There is still room for much defensive enticement of Von Hindenburg into the further slaughter of his troops. It is becoming interestingly evident that Gen. Foch plans to let Hindenburg wear himself out in this manner before he attempts even a large scale counter attack. Local operations to protect the Amiens-Paris railway may compel Gen Foch to drive forward for a short distance but this is all that can reasonably be expected for the time being.

Feet Dry and Trim--- No Rubbers

Neolin
Better than Leather

In wet weather, with leather-soled shoes, you have always to wear unsightly rubbers or have damp feet. But there's no such trouble when you wear shoes with Neolin Soles.

These modern soles are waterproof. They keep out the wet—unless you walk in puddles or deep snow—guarding your health, yet not hiding the trim lines of your shoes.

They're comfortable, too, from the very start—easy as an old shoe, and they wear evenly and very slowly. With all these good qualities—Neolin Soles cost no more than leather.

The Minstrel Show At St. James' Church Was Big Success

Hall Was Crowded to Capacity —A Good Evening's Fun

The Brotherhood of St. James' Methodist Church, last night presented a minstrel show in the Sunday school, which was a credit to the enterprising spirit of the young men. Clever and witty jokes, funny songs, and amusing sketches, well presented, composed an evening which may well long be remembered, as a thoroughly successful entertainment.

THE CAST.

The cast was: End men, Mr. Morphet and Mr. A. Cartner; interlocutor, Mr. M. Stazicker; minstrels, Messrs. Henry Carter, H. Turner, W. Wright, A. E. Prest, H Anderton, W. Yeates, H. Snowden, A. MacLaren, J. Sanderson, J. C. Drummond, M. Campbell, E. Lander, E. Baldry and F. Hartshorn.

THE PROGRAMME.

Perhaps the most amusing item on the programme was the sketch, "The Sale of a Coat," by two Jews, Messrs Hartshorn and Turner. This item was received with great applause and a demand for an encore.

Other items interspersed by jokes were: Solo, "Dem Golden Slippers," W. Wright; solo, "Never be Born on Friday," F. Hartshorn; solo, "Virginia Lee," H. Turner; solo, "Sweethearts," H. Anderton; male quartette, "Aunt Margery," Messrs. Turner, Wright, Baldry and Hartshorn; chorus, "Where do we go from here?" sketch, "Seeing Stars;" banjo solo, Frank Clarke; sketch "Home to Let," song, "Russian quartette," Turner, Wright, Baldry and Hartshorn.

CONCERT SUCCESSFUL.

The Sunday school was crowed by an audience who departed well pleased wih the novel entertainment.

"Fake" Proclamation Posted In Montreal

(Special to The Examiner.)

MONTREAL, P.Q., April 6.—Several copies of a "fake" proclamation announcing the abandonment of the Military Service Act and the "Re-Establishment of Freedom" were stuck on walls and windows on St. Catherine and Bleury streets last night. It is safe to say that few persons read them as the erst-while bill posters were evidently too timid to stick the proclamation in prominent places, choosing vacant premises and hidden corners for their work of publicity. The proclamations themselves were only foolscap size written by hand with ink about as thin and watery as the sentiment conveyed, and apparently struck off a copying press of ancient design. The thing which was in English was headed: "Proclamation—Military Law Abolished"—then followed a number of clauses with an attempt at lengal phraseology, whereby the Government convicted itself of a series of heinous crimes and concluded in a humble and penitential way with the words—"For these reasons we decided to abolish the conscription law and re-establish freedom—Dominion Government."

None of the storekeepers in the vicinity has seen any one put the sheets up and indeed most had not even known of the presence of the "Proclamation." The police have been on watch for some time for bill posters with seditious leanings.

Food Regulation Has Been Amended

Two Ounces of Wheat Product May Be Served at Each Meal.

(Special to The Examiner.)

TORONTO, April 6.—The Canada Food Board has amended its recent ruling that only one ounce of a wheat product may be served at the morning or evening meal. It is understood that through the representations of the Retail Merchants' Association, an amending order will be promulgated allowing restauranteurs to serve two ounces of wheat product at these meals instead of one. The regulation that only one ounce of wheat product may be served at the noon meal remains unchanged.

Baby's Itching Burning Skin Quickly Soothed by Cuticura Ointment.

It's wonderful how quickly a hot bath with Cuticura Soap followed by a gentle anointing with Cuticura Ointment relieves itching, burning eczemas, rashes and chafings, permits sleep for infant and rest for mother, and points to speedy healment in most cases when it seems nothing would do any good. MURRAY STREET BAPTIST CHURCH

SERVICE TO-MORROW WILL BE OF UNUSUAL INTEREST

On Sunday evening at Murray street Baptist church the service will be of an unusual character and of the greatest interest to all who love the old heart-reaching hymns.

The work of the choir will be in connection with two pieces which have found their way into millions of hearts, and which have carried blessing wherever they are known. These are, "Almost Persuaded," by P. P. Bliss, and "It is Well With My Soul" by Spafford and Bliss. The congregational hymns will be, "Nearer My God to Thee," "Jesus Lover of My Soul" and "The Ninety and Nine." Mr. Webb will speak on "The History and Message of These Hymns." The choir will be augmented for the occasion and several instruments will be used.

At the morning hour the monthly communion service will be held and new members will be received into the church.

Quebec Bars Close Earlier

Closing of Refreshment Booths A Precautionary Measure

Canadian Press:

QUEBEC, April 6.—The closing of the bars here two hours earlier than usual gave rise to rumours of further outbreaks here last night. No trouble took place, however. The closing of the bars was a precautionary measure, applying to civilians and military alike. Yesterday afternoon eleven men who still remained in custody from among the sixty-two arrested last Monday night, appeared in police court and eight of them were admitted to bail of $1,000. Those men, who had been caught with revolvers in their possession were refused bail.

GROCERS TO MEET WEDNESDAY NIGHT

Centralized Delivery is a Real Live Question With Them

From May 1st, the grocers are compelled to do business under government licenses and there are some matters which they feel should be debated in the interest of Patriotism and Production.

The Cash and Carry System will of necessity have to be reckoned with, and every grocer in the city is asked to attend the meeting in the Y.M.C.A. on Wednesday evening at eight fifteen to give united consideration of these issues especially in view of the fact that unless the grocers take action regarding centralized delivery, they may expect government intervention

THE MOTOR SHOW FOR THE RED CROSS

Needs Are Greater, Consequently There Will Be a Bigger Effort For the Show

The success that was attained by the committee in charge of the motor show last year it is expected will be more than duplicated at the big event to be conducted in the armouries on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, April 16th, 17th and 18th.

In addition to a grand display of motor cars of every description, kind and price, there will be a thirty-piece orchestra under the leadership of Mr. R. Gliddon, which will give a fine programme each evening. All manner of attractions will be conducted by the ladies of the Red Cross and a very pleasant and profitable time for an extremely worthy object can be had by attending any or all the afternoon or evening sessions of the show.

A Recital In George Street Last Evening

An evening with David Copperfield was most enjoyably spent by a big audience in George Street Methodist Sunday School last night, the entertainment given by Miss Winnifred Parker's Sunday School class. With the aid of colored slides reproductions of original Dickens illustrations from the famous E. S. Williamson collection, Miss Parker told and read the immortal story in so interesting a manner that it will long be remembered by all who heard.

Musical Evening.

Added to the story a pleasing little musical programme was given, Miss Outram acting as chairman. Solos by Miss Lottie Saxby, Mr. Edminson, and a duet by the Misses Gardiner, were greatly enjoyed. The proceeds of the entertainment will be devoted to Sunday School improvements.

BUDGET BY THE END OF APRIL.

Lieut. Humphries of Otonabee Is Flying Skilfully in Italy

The experience of Flight Lieutenant Kenneth Humphries of the U.S. Aviation Corps in Italy is related in the Hontrose, Colo. Press on March 29. Its local interest applies in the fact that he is the son of Mr. A. N. Humphries, formerly of Otonabee, and nephew of Mr. Adam Humphries of Otonabee. The young officer enlisted at Denver, Colo., where his father resides, and conducts a store at Montrose. Lieutenant Humphries was assigned to the Italian front. Returning from a flight, and at an altitude of 4,000 feet he ran out of gasoline and his engine stalled. He skilfully volplaned a long distance and landed his machine without injury. Lieutenant Humphries was roundly congratulated upon his coolness and success and given a holiday leave in Rome. His feat was regarded difficult for even seasoned aviators.

Presentation To Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Turner Last Evening

On the occasion of their silver wedding a decidedly unique entertainment was given to Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Turner, 491 Water street, when about twenty-five of their friends and relatives surprised them at their home. The guests who were costumed to represent the style of twenty-five years ago presented a most attractive appearance. In recognition of the occasion a suitable presentation of sterling silver was made to the "bride and groom," who acknowledged this gift with a few gracious words. Dainty refreshments were served and the merry-makers spent the evening in cards and music.

MR. C. E. ADAMS ON FARM.

Will Work the Bennett Property in North Monaghan.

Mr. C. E. Adams of Ashburnham, has moved to the Bennett farm in North Monaghan and will apply himself to greater production as assiduously as he has advocated it in the meetings of the Trades and Labour Council. Before winter relaxed he tried to organize a party of men to go west and work government land for $1.10 a day until the war was over on the condition that the government then gave them the land.

Mr. Adams was strongly moved to patriotic effort and has abandoned his position as machinist at the C.G.E. to get out on the land

Desire Sunday Work Cut Out

Employees of Henry Hope Co. Petition This Be Done

The employees of the Henry Hope & Sons have petitioned the management for five nights a week work, cutting out Sunday night from 6.30 p.m. to 6.30 Monday morning. In response the company has asked the men to vote on three different propositions which they have submitted, the object of which would be to put into operation the one that received the strongest support from the employees.

THE SPRING FAIR WEEK AFTER NEXT

Will Be Resplendent With a Great Assortment of Hand-made Articles

Workers by the dozen are busily engaged making preparations for the big Spring Fair that is to be held in the Market Hall, under the auspices of Mount St. Joseph, from Monday, April 15th to Friday, April 19th. The entire floor will be occupied with booths containing articles for sale of hand-made fancy work, ladies' and children's clothing, candy and other useful articles.

Music is to be supplied continuously by Heintzman & Co. Dinners will be served and afternoon teas. There will be no admission charge.

TO-DAY'S WAR NEWS

Headquarters, announcing that the Germans are now within one and a half miles of the Paris-Amiens Railway, means that the traffic along this line is under fire from the German artillery. The Germans will have to be pushed back from their present positions before the safety of transportation of the Paris-Amiens main line can be assured. It is probable that General Foch's immediate activity will be centered on this work.

There are other railways behind the direct Paris-Amiens route that can serve adequately for transportation work, but it is highly desirable, for reasons of French morale, that the Paris-Amiens line be cleared of the German menace. This line, which connects Calais with Paris, is the most famous in France, and its severance would undoubtedly cause much short-sighted rejoicing in Germany.

In face of this problem, General Foch's optimistic outlook is encouraging. Nobody knows the meaning of the situation about Amiens better than he does. If he feels a sense of security, it must be because he knows the Allies are in a position to remove the present danger to Amiens and its railway.

A Big Tract Of Timber Wanted

An American Syndicate Willing to Negotiate For 15 to 25 Million Feet

The Examiner is in receipt of a communication from the representative of an American syndicate which desires to purchase a timber limit that will produce from 15 to 25 million feet of hardwood and hemlock, to be situated conveniently to railroad, or on a stream where the lumber can be rafted down to a shipping point, the whole not to exceed in acreage, if possible, more than 5000 or 6000 acres. Any parties possessing such properties are asked to communicate with the Examiner.

Now Is The Time To Buy A Ford

How Government Tax May Necessitate an Increase in Price

Since the first of the year over two hundred and sixty-one Ford cars have been sold by the Duffus garage. Those who are contemplating the purchase of a car would be well advised to place their order early, as the new tax to be imposed by the Government will necessitate an increase in price. The same thing applies to the Ford truck and the Smith form-a-truck, both of which are finding a ready sale in Peterborough and are giving absolute satisfaction. A Ford car will give the purchaser more value for his money than any other car on the market.

Council To Buy 30,000 Gallons Of Tarvia For Roads

An order for 30,000 gallons of Tarvia B, with an option on an additional 10,000 gallons, for oiling the streets this year, was approved by the committee of the Whole Council last night on a motion by Ald. Worth, seconded by Ald. Jones. The price of Tarvia is 13 3-4c. a gal. f.o.b. Toronto, plus 1 5-8c. a gal. freight from Toronto to Peterborough, a total of 15 5-8c.

Ald. M. McIntyre moved, seconded by Ald. Saunders, that 36,000 gallons of road oil at 13.45 cents a gal. f.o.b. Peterborough be purchased. Ald. McIntyre stated that the difference in cost would be $668, the saving of which would be considered by the Council.

Tarvia gets the city's call, however, and is expected to be shipped early.

City Engineer Parsons pointed out that road oil was not used until May 20th last year, and June 1st in 1916.

Ald. Edgar suggested that oil be dispensed with, and the money used for patriotic purposes.

"It would put our streets on the bum," Ald. M. McIntyre observed.

Ald. Worth—If the city doesn't oil the streets we'll put a car on McDonnel street in front of our factory. The dust blows in the windows and injures the machinery. It is unbearable already this year.

Ald. Langford favoured the use of water, and asked Mr. Parsons to report of the cost of repairing the carts.

City's Motor Truck For Collection of Paper

Ald. Malcolm McIntyre requested the Council to place the Board of Works motor truck at the disposal of the Women's Patriotic League of Ashburnham for the collection of waste paper on Wednesday, April 10th. Ald. Saunders moved seconded by Ald. A. A. McIntyre, that the request be granted, and the motion carried.

"I see all kinds of trouble," remarked City Engineer Parsons, whose wife is President of the Ashburnham Association. "I want to make it clear that I have nothing to do with this request. There are bound to be applications from other societies."

Ald. M. McIntyre silenced the Engineer's scruples and half-hearted objections by stating that it made no difference who was President.

Mayor Duncan expressed his fear that this act would be a precedent for others, but the truck will not be loaned unless it can be spared.

ODDFELLOWS WILL HAVE FIELD DAY.

Monday will be joint field day of Peterboro and Otonabee Lodges, I.O. O.F. All district lodges will be represented, and the three degrees conferred. The meeting is called for 8 o'clock sharp.

HIGH ROLLERS 2 DE LAVAL 1

The High Rollers and the De Laval clashed last night in a league match at the Water street alleys. The match was a hard fought one from the start to the finish. The total pinnage was—De Laval 2,518, High Rollers 2,508.

Hard spares were made by Byers and Solomon. McDonnel made the 4-7-8-6-10, which is an exceptionally hard spare.

The leaders for the De Laval were: W. Fitzgerald 549, Barrette 525, and Ruiter 513. W. Fitzgerald also had high single of 216.

For the High Rollers, Solomon, Kelly and McDonnell were the leaders with 510, 508 and 506 for three-game totals.

The scores were as follows:

To-day Mrs. Alexander Robertson, 406 Aylmer street, received word that her brother, Pte. F. S. Self, of the 20th Battalion, has been killed in action. The late Pte. Self, who enlisted in Kingston, is one of three brothers who have joined the Canadian Expeditionary Force and served in France.

Debate Dragged Through Until This Morning

MOTION TO DISCUSS QUEBEC RIOTING WAS WITHDRAWN THIS MORNING

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

OTTAWA, April 6.—The debate on Col. John A. Curris' motion to adjourn the House of Commons to discuss the Quebec rioting and the Military Service Act enforcement, dragged through until nearly five o'clock this morning when the Colonel withdrew the motion and permitted the introduction of the Government resolution to provide five hundred million dollars for war purposes. This was given a first reading without discussion after that the Government announced that the discussion would be in order on the second reading of the resolution.

10 Per Cent. Increase For The City's Labourers

The wages of the city's labourers were increased 10 per cent. by the Council last night, and the minimum fixed at 27 1-2 cents an hour. City Engineer Parsons stated that the wages had ranged from 20 cents to 30 cents an hour. Some of the men had become discontented.

Mayor Duncan remarked that the street sweepers were paid 25 cents an hour, and that this was too small for men to live on.

Ald. Worth suggested a general increase of ten per cent., and Ald. A. A. McIntyre moved the motion embodying this. Ald. Edgar seconded it, appending the 27 1-2 per cent. minimum.

Loyal Orange Lodge Held A Basket Social

In addition to all the fun of a basket social at the Loyal Orange Lodge 2440 last night, a good programme was given which kept the evening decidedly lively. Mr. Burns made a most acceptable chairman.

The Programme.

The programme which included several selections by Gazley's Orchestra was well chosen and well presented. Mr. Spence gave some splendid comic songs which were enthusiastically encored. Master Percy Luther gave a couple of lively military recitations.

Miss Dot Spence's recitation of the Holy City was well received. A recitation by Miss Colan entitled "A Child's Idea of High Society," was warmly applauded and an encore insisted upon. Mr. J. John, whose ability as an entertainer makes him indispensable to an evening, gave a most amusing recitation on a Back Woods Man's Idea o a Rupbenstein Recital. A vocal duet by Misses Cooper and Crawley was an acceptable feature.

The Auction Sale.

Mr. Spence made an enterprising auctioneer of the dainty baskets, and ran the sales up from 50c to $2.6?. After supper Gazley's Orchestra played for a pleasing social evening and dance.

PTE. LEGGATT DIES IN FRANCE

Word has been received of the death from wounds in No. 42 Casualty Clearing Station, of Pte Harrison Leggatt, of Peterborough. Pte. Leggatt, who was previously reported wounded, is now officially reported to have passed away on March 28th. He had been suffering from a gunshot wound in the abdomen. Pte. Saturday Farmers' Market Report

Maple syrup was fairly plentiful on the Saturday market and high prices asked, ranging from 55 to 65 cents a quart. Potatoes have taken a drop in the right direction and come down to $1.95 a bag, with slow sales at that.

In the inside market butter was more plentiful than for many weeks, and more reasonable in price.

Butter sold at 48 to 52 cents per pound.

Eggs sold at 40 to 45 cents a dozen.

Chickens sold at 28c. per pound.

"Unity at Last."

SEPARATION OF AMIENS WILL NOT SUCCEED SAYS FOCH

German Thrust at Amiens Has Been Shattered But Enemy Continues Attack With Waves of Troops

WEEK-END BULLETINS

(Canadian Press Despatch.)
(9 a.m. Bulletin)

LONDON, April 8.—Col. Repington says General Foch has given his word that the separation of the British and French armies at Amiens by the Germans will not succeed.

GERMANS CONTINUE OFFENSIVE.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, April 8.—After a battle of unexampled ferocity, Haig satters the thrust at Amiens, but the Germans are continuing their plunging with waves of troops.

ARTILLERY ACTION.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, April 8.—Violent artillery action is proceeding between Montdidlier and Noyon.

AERIAL FIGHTING.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, April 8.—Thirteen German aeroplanes were brought down in fighting with the British on Saturday, eleven disabled, and two shot down by anti-aircraft guns.

ANOTHER OFFENSIVE SOON.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, April 8.—Reuter's correspondent says all indications point to another big thrust by the enemy on a larger scale than ever, very soon.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)
(Sunday, 6 p.m., Bulletin)
(PRISONERS TAKEN.)

LONDON, April 8—An official statement says: In counter attacks yesterday, the British recaptured all their former positions in the Avelny Wood on the west side of the Ancre River north of Albert. The British captured one hundred and twenty prisoners and several machine guns. South of the Somme we improved our positions and took forty prisoners

BOMBARDMENT OF PARIS.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, April 8—The bombardment of Paris with a lone-range gun began at three-thirty this afternoon.

MARCHING ON SEAPORT.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PETROGRAD, April 8.—German troops are reported marching across the ice at the mouth of the gulf of Bothnia, in the direction of Abo, a seaport on the southern coast of Finland.

TWELVE MEN ARRESTED.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

QUEBEC, April 8.—Another batch of twelve men were arrested yesterday afternoon after an outburst of sentiment in a saloon. All is quiet today.

RENEWED ATTACKS.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)
(Sunday, 12.45 p.m., Bulletin)

PARIS, April 8.—The Germans renewed attacks last night on the French positions in the region of Chauny and Barisis on the Oise front. West of Noyon they gained a footing in an advanced French line but later they were driven out.

THREE PERSONS WOUNDED.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, April 8.—Long range bombardment of Paris district continued throughout the day, yesterday. Three persons were wounded.

JAPS. HAVE LANDED.

MOSCOW, April 8. — (Associated Press).—The British as well as Japanese have landed forces at Validvostock, yesterday. The authorities had no warning of this action.

ENEMY DRIVEN OFF.

PARIS, April 8.—The Germans attempted a raid yesterday morning on the American position north of Toul, but were driven off by artillery and machine guns.

HEAVY CASUALTIES.

LONDON, April 8.—A Copenhagen despatch says in the battle at Tammerfors, two thousand white guards were killed or wounded, while twelve thousand of the red guards suffered a similar fate

CONTINUED ATTACK.

With the British Army in France.—The Germans continued the attack on the Albert Amiens railway until six o'clock last night. They held a small section of the railway, but the gain of ground was comparatively small.

TEN DIVISIONS USED UP.

(Sunday, 11 a.m., Bulletin)

LONDON, April 8.—The War Office reports the Germans yesterday used up ten divisions in unsuccessful attacks on the British line, north of the Somme. Severe fighting continues along this front.

WERE EJECTED.

PARIS, April 8.—The French War Office reports that the Germans renewed their assaults in the region of Chauny and Barisis. Further enemy attacks in the region of Grivesnes were repulsed. German detachments, which gained a foothold in French trenches, west of Moyen, were ejected by a counter attack.

ARTILLERY ACTIVE.

Both artilleries were very active between Montdidlier and Noyon. The Germans violently bombarded the City of Rheims last night.

RUSSIANS WILL RESIST.

HARBIN, Manchuria, April 8.—A despatch says the Russian Soviet has ordered armed resistance to the Japanese and British forces landed at Vladivostock.

STEAMER SUNK.

(Saturday 7 p.m. Bulletin)

AN ATLANTIC PORT, April 8.—The American tank steamer "Atlantic Sun" twenty-three hundred tons, was sunk in the war zone.

HEAVY FIGHTING.

With the French Armies in France. April 8.—There has been heavy fighting along a six mile front all day. Two villages fell into the hands of the Germans. The French made vigorous counter attacks. Prisoners say the German losses were terrible.

Advance News Of Spring Styles

Spring Designs For Silks and Satins

Choose Your Spring Bonnets Early

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.— Spring has taken New York by storm. Perhaps it is the thaw we have been having that has turned our thoughts that way: perhaps it is the numberless hints we see in the shop windows. At any rate, we must do business.

Conservation—conservation—conservation! The word is on every one's tongue. We are conserving the necessities for the well-being of our nation, and there is a glow of work well done after we have done something worth doing. The workless Monday is hard on every one, but, oh, the added zest one feels upon seeing the gay Fifth Avenue shops, in all their glory on Tuesday!

Suits or Separate Dresses and Coats

From Palm Beach comes tidings of suits for spring. There are so many ways we can save material, even in the more elaborate afternoon costume. Navy braid is being used a great deal to bind the edges of the beige serge or gabardine suit, thus saving the material that would otherwise have to be turned under and hemmed. Surprising, isn't it, the little things that count? And yet, when one sees a suit braid bound, all one thinks is, "Oh, how very smart." It is only the very few who realize the hidden motive of this fashion. Deep hems are fast being put into the discard. They are unnecessary, so why have them? The big pocket has almost vanished from the separate coat.

Where Bordered Material Acts as Trimming.

There are two sides to the question of the suit versus the coat and dress. The coat may be worn with many different dresses, silk or cotton . . . but the suit does not take as much wool in the first place as the coat and separate dress of wool.

Simplicity for Spring.

There is one absolutely certain thing; styles are very, very simple. And they are practical, too. What could be more fetching than the little dress illustrated here? And it certainly is simple and practical. There are two materials used plain and bordered, and when one says that, it is the last word in fashions. Of course there is no trimming—where would one put it? The waist has one of those smart boleros, with a straight lower edge, making it practical for the bordered goods. The crushed gridle is cut in one with the front panel, and can be tied in a bow in the back, or fastened with buttons. The lower edge of the tunic is also straight, so here again the bordered material may be used very nicely.

About Spring Bonnets.

The latest news from Paris says that the crowns of the Spring hats will be much lower, that the poke type is to be much featured, and that flowers and feathers will be much used. The Easter bonnet will be a most deceiving thing. At first glance, it appears untrimmed . . . and then you discover a tiny bunch of flowers here or a wing there, until you come to the conclusion that it is a much-trimmed affair! The colours, too, will be gay and Springlike. There is not the donning of straw hats this year that there usually is, though of course there are many to be seen. These warm days are bringing them out overnight, like mushrooms.

POLICEMAN MURDERED.

Constable Snowden, of the Winnipeg Force, Battered and Shot.

WINNIPEG, April 8.—Constable B. W. Snowden, of the Winnipeg police force, was murdered here. He was found dead at the back door of the store of one Rosenblat, 631 Main street, with a skull wound, the result of a blow from some blunt instrument, and a bullet wound in his back. There were no marks of a struggle.

NORTH MONAGHAN FARMERS HELD A MEETING SATURDAY

Horse Breeders' Association Will Be Formed—Farmers Urged to Raise Sheep

ANOTHER MEETING

At a meeting of North Monaghan farmers held Saturday afternoon in the City Council chamber, it was decided to form a Horsebreeders' Association. Mr. Fred Wilson, who occupied the chair, explained the aims and objects of such an association which has for its special mission the raising of a better grade of horses and the elimination of scrub sires.

Mr. F. C. McRae, district representative, showed the advantages of such an association. Federal assistance would be made it certain rules were adhered to. He also urged the raising of sheep. It would be very profitable as the farmers would almost certainly receive 60c. a lb. for wool. Last year some of the local farmers sold their wool for 35c. a lb. If they had sent it to the Guelph Fair, which is held annually, they would have received 60c. or more, as this was the average price obtained last year.

It was then decided that another meeting would be called, one which was more representative of the farmers of the county, and a local Horse Breeders' Association formed.

RUSSIA'S RESOURCES WILL BE DEVELOPED

MOSCOW, April 8.—I had a long talk with N. Larin, an economist who was the initiator of the annulment of loans, and has been steadily at work from the first preparing for a new industrial future for Russia. He is responsible for the preservation of the War Industry Comittees, and it is due to his efforts that the leading organizers and leaders of industry under the old capitalistic regime now now enter the serivce of the Socialist Government in the development of Russia's resources.

These resources, as Larin points out, are so great as in the long run to make the German conquests negligible. Larin is a member and the guiding spirit of the Commission for Foreign trade. He said:

"We do not know how long the Ukraine will remain separate from Russian ow. However, our relations with her will be, we must reckon with the possibility that, owing to German occupation of the Ukraine, we are deprived for some time of all the resources of the Donetz Basin, excepting anthracite deposits in the east, which alone are not in the Ukranian territory. I the long run this is not serious.

I the course of the next five years it is hoped to complete works which will make the great industrial centres of Moscow and Petrograd less dependent on long-distance transport. Petrograd factories are to be electrified, using the waterfall between Lakes Ladoga and Onega and the waterfall on the River Volkhov. The work already has been begun. Moscow will be electrified on the basis of peat fuel from the enromous deposits near the neighbourhood.

"You ask where we will get the money for these works, many of which were planned under the old Government, but were shelved from lack of funds? We get money for this by the cessation of two kinds of nonproductive expenditures: the milliards which were lent on old army expenses and the payment of interest on foreign loans will now be applied to the improvement of our industrial resources."

"Do you propose, in spite of the annulment of loans, to invite foreign capital?" I asked

Larin replied:

"Certainly. But we want it not in money or in manufactured goods, and are willing to pay for it on the spot. For example, we don't want rails, but wen want machines with which to make rails ourselves. We want tools, not products, from America, England, Germany, or whoever is willing to supply us. We are prepared to pay part in materials and the rest in gold. We propose to deal with foreign countries through a Central Buying Committee, so that there will be a state monopoly of foreign trade."

These are the main facts Larin told me. They are enough to show that Russia has not ceased to exist as a factor in the world.

America, as I have reason to know, has already realized this, and is preparing to deal with Russia on the Russian terms. Germany, of course, will find it advantageous to do the same if we allow ourselves to be prevented by the Russian annulment of loans, we risk throwing sovereigns after pennies.

Future for Armless Men.

Mechanical arms, with which it is possible to thread a needle, sew on a button, use a typewriter, and light and fill a pipe, were exhibited in London recently. The device is the invention of M. Cauet, and all these actions were performed with ease by Lieut. Levat, who has lost both arms.

The arm weighs only 1½ pounds, and can be fixed in a few seconds.

The various actions are produced on the Bowden brake principle, the movement of the shoulders regulating the springs of the arm, and the movement of the chest causing the opening and closing of the fingers. With this invention a maimed man can pick up a pin or wield a sledge-hammer. Lieut. Levat showed how easy it was to write with artificial hands.

These arms are being supplied in large numbers to the French army, and many officers who have been fitted with them are now in the trenches, whilst an officer of the Flying Corps continues to pilot his machine with the aid of one of them.

They are being manufactured in this country—by armless men.—Tit-Bits.

EVELYN SYMPATHIZES

CHAPTER XXXV.

George had been gone but a few minutes when the telephone rang. It was Evelyn.

"May I come over and hear all about your party, or are you too tired?" she asked.

"Oh do come over!" I returned.

In about half an hour she came. We went up into my room and shut ourselves in. Evelyn had brought a box of home-made fudge, and, as usual, we perched ourselves on the couch with the box between us.

"Now tell me all about it!" Evelyn said. "I expect it was a wonderful dinner. Didn't it go off nicely?"

"Ye---es, but I didn't have a very good time."

"You didn't! Why?" her mouth full of fudge.

"Oh, it was all so stilted. So much formality about it. I enjoyed your dinner twice as much."

"But mine was such a crazy sort of an affair."

"I know, but I had SUCH a good time. The table looked lovely, last night, and the food was delicious; but I hated it all, every bit of it. It was Mrs. Sexton's dinner, not mine. And do you know, Evelyn, I had all I could do to keep from saying so right before everyone; Madge Loring suspected something, I am sure."

"Why?"

"Oh, she complimented me about the arrangement of the flowers, especially some orchids arranged in a sunken bowl. I gave George the credit and he immediately told her I had good taste, that I was artistic."

"You are. That was all right."

"But I hadn't a thing to do with the dinner or the decorations. Scarcely knew what they were to be, until half an hour before the guests came."

"How mean! I don't wonder you resent it. I am beginning to do so for you."

The Crowning Outrage.

"Yes, but that isn't all," I continued, encouraged by her sympathy to give vent to my outraged feelings.

"What else?"

"After dinner I played for them. I had no more than risen from the piano than a harpist, a violinist, and a Spanish dancer made their appearance"—

"How lovely!"

"You wouldn't think so if you hadn't been told they were to be there."

"You don't mean"—

"Yes, I mean just that! I knew no more about it than you did. I never felt so insulted in my life. Even if they hadn't thought it necessary to consult me, they might have TOLD me. But I never knew a single thing about it until they marched into the drawing room."

"That was rather horrid."

"Rather horrid! I should say it was more than that! I simply felt insulted. It spoiled everything for me, and then to make it worse, I almost quarreled with George about it, and—Mrs. Sexton," not even to Evelyn would I confess how George had acted when I resented being so ignored.

"You certainly hate that women."

"You bet I do. I'd do anything in the world to get rid of her."

Good Advice.

"The best way to lose her is to learn all she knows, then Mr. Howard will have no excuse to keep her."

"I believe you are right! I will learn as much as I can. I am determined to me the mistress of my own house, or else"—

"You wouldn't leave Mr. Howard because of her?"

"I was going to say, or else go home and stay with my mother until George was willing to let me manage my own house. It's unbearable."

I yearned for sympathy, for the comfort of being understood. Else I should not have told my troubles to Evelyn. But she was a girl like myself, a country bred girl who had married a big town man. She would understand when another would not — would only think me a complaining wife.

"I know, Helen. It is awful! I had a good deal of the same thing, minus Mrs. Sexton. I still have it. But I love Kurtz so dearly I am willing to TRY to please him in every way, no matter how distasteful. He loves me now, and I am determined to keep his love. And I don't believe I could be if I antagonized his people."

"But George has no people — where they bother me. He just thinks I don't know anything."

"But you do. And when he finds that you are equal to the social demands his position makes upon you, he will be very proud of you. I am sure of it, Helen."

To-morrow—George Goes Away.

Politicians Ruined Allied Offensive

MR. WYTHE WILLIAMS, the representative of the New York Times in Paris, charges in a special article in a recent issue of Collier's Weekly that French politicians ruined the 1917 offensive of the allies, and enabled the Germans to cling to the so-called Hindenburg line, although they were in the very act of falling back to the Meuse.

It is a sensational story, although Mr. Williams tells it simply and with all the detail necessary to make it convincing.

Complete plans had been made, he says, for a combined allied offensive which would have the effect of forcing the enemy to withdraw to the Meuse. The main attacks were to be by the British on the front from Lens to Arras and by the French in the valley of the Aisne. Secondary attacks were to be made by the British before Bapaume and by the French between Roye and the Oise. The enemy withdrew along the front where these secondary attacks were to have been made, and these preliminary objectives were gained without firing a shot. On April 9 the British advance began at Vimy Ridge, and the French advance on April 14. But the French political leaders feared that the German retirement in the centre had upset the Nivelle plan of campaign, and they felt that he should have dropped the whole project in consequence of that change in the situation. So far from that being true it was the view of Gen. Nivelle and Gen. Haig that their position had been greatly improved. The offensive continued up to April 16, but grossly exaggerated reports were circulated of heavy French losses, and Mr. Williams says the only reason the German lines were not broken is that "by nightfall of the 16th of April the French armies were no longer under military authority, but were in a domain purely political." He asserts that on the morning of that day, April 16, 1917, a group of a dozen French Senators and Deputies arrived at military headquarters to view the spectacle of the attack. They saw for the first time in their lives a real battle of blood and steel and were by night in a mad panic. They sent messages to Paris demanding that the offensive be stopped. It was not stopped instantly, but it was interfered with and hampered, until it petered out in spite of the protests of Lloyd George and Gen. Haig. Gen. Nivelle was deposed from his command, although it is claimed history will vindicate him in every particular.

It is asserted by Mr. Williams that at a conference in London preceding the big offensive M. Painleve, the French Premier, asked that the complete military plans for the offensive be explained. Gen. Nivelle thought this inadvisable, as the fewer who knew the plans the better. One of the British Ministers asked Gen. Haig if he knew the plans and concurred in them; he said he knew them and approved thoroughly. The British Government considered that sufficient and—this is not generally known—Gen. Nivelle was placed in supreme command for the big offensive over the entire western front. Then, as the great operation got into full swing, the charge is that French politicians in a panic from a too near view of actual war upset everything. Later on, in local and indecisive engagements, France lost much more heavily than she did in the Nivelle offensive which, if not interfered with, would have pushed the enemy beyond the Meuse.

The politicians responsible for this have been discredited in France. The command of the allies in the field is no longer to be subject to the interference of politicians who come sightseeing in the war zone. But the tragedy of it all as regards the offensive of 1917 remains.

Napoleon's Joke.

Lady Ressborough, a clever Englishwoman of the last century, travelled in France soon after the downfall of Napoleon. Among the many anecdotes she tells of the fallen conqueror in a recent book giving extracts from her correspondence is this: While he was in exile on the Island of Elba, a workman who was making repairs on his chateau fell from the roof and was instantly killed in the presence of Napoleon. He gazed at the lifeless figure and said: "A fall does not always kill. I have fallen farther than that."

Catarrh or Colds Never Quickly Cured By Swallowing Drugs

Cough Syrup, Tablets, etc., go to the Stomach, Perhaps Sicken It, But Don't Kill the Germs of Catarrh.

The Direct Breathing Cure is Best.

To cure an ailment in the throat or chest, to rout out Catarrh or Asthma, it is essential that the medicine be conveyed direct to the affected parts. This is why no other remedy has achieved such world-wide success as Catarrhozone, which alone can be breathed in one second to every air cell in the breathing organs. The healing vapors of Catarrhozone mix with the breath and descend through the throat, down the bronchial tubes, to the deepest air cells in the lungs—all parts are saturated with the rich piney essences that ease, heal and cure.

"No one ever contracted a more obstinate attack of nasal catarrh than I suffered a month ago," writes Mr. G. E. Root, a well-known resident of Bridgetown, W. I. "My head ached terrifically, I sneezed about every three minutes, but still my nostrils were entirely closed and I couldn't breathe through them. Ten minutes inhaling Catarrhozone gave me a little relief, so I continued to use Catarrhozone every hour, and before the day was out I had improved. Catarrhozone quickly cured me. I am well ever since."

There is no remedy so certain and safe as Catarrhozone, but being a good remedy it is imitated. Beware of the substitutor. Large Catarrhozone lasts two months, price $1.00; smaller sizes 25c. and 50c. At all storekeepers and druggists, or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

The Making of British Tars.

"Well might the First Lord dilate in the House of Commons upon the vast responsibilities which at this moment rest upon the British fleet. Its role goes far beyond the defence of our shores or even the protection of our world-wide commerce. It is indeed, an 'international' fleet, the mighty bulwark of the grand alliance now waging war against the Central powers of Europe. Here is a fact which should not be lost sight of if we are to realize the part our sailors play in the present upheaval.

"There are no reporters at Sir David Beatty's headquarters, no photographers to record stern episodes of the long watch and ward kept by our now enormous navy. It is essentially a secret service, with quick-changing methods of offence and defence, of strategy, tactics and communications. It differs fundamentally from the army, and in this connection let me cite," writes J. F. Rendall in the Windsor Magazine, "a German admiral who was also a sound seaman, with some of the old Ritterlich traditions. I refer to the Graf von Spee, whose squadron Sir Doveton Sturdee sent to the bottom off the Falkland Islands.

"'In a seafight,' Von Spee records in his diary, 'the tasks of sailor and stoker are incomparably harder than those of the rifleman and gunner in trench. Frantic fervor means much to the landsman, especially in attack. But with us such sentiment may be a downright danger. Icy calculating reason must weigh in the unimaginable inferno of modern naval war. The naval officer's task is not to rouse or kindle his men, but to keep them cool throughout.'

"They are highly-specialized men, let me add. So much so that when their ship sinks, taking down with her two millions of the nation's money, it is not the mighty machine we regret, but its crew of co-ordinated experts. For the seamen-gunner is a British asset not to be reckoned in cash—though even so, his training costs the country thousands and may cover six or seven years.—Family Herald.

PATRIOTISM OF THE STOMACH

Neither Fried Chicken Nor Biscuit Found by Hungry Hunters on Farmer's Table.

There are all kinds and varieties of patriotism—almost as many as there are pickles of a certain variety. There is the patriotism of speech, the patriotism of arms, or money, of service and so on. But of them all the hardest for the average individual is the patriotism of the stomach. So thought a bunch of Indianapolis men who invaded Brown county for a day of hunting, says the Indianapolis News.

After a day of hiking and tramping over the hills, in which a nice string of rabbits was the prize, these "tired business men" adjourned to the farmer's house where they had planned on a big "feed." You can imagine their surprise and disgruntled feelings when on seating themselves at the table they found neither meat nor bread. The expected fried chicken and hot biscuits were missing. Of course, no one said anything, but a good many thoughts made the air quiet.

That evening as they were leaving for the train the old farmer friend pointed to a small placard in the window, and said: "Well, boys, the next time you come down we'll have that fried chicken and biscuits. Mary said we was a member of the United States food administration now, and what was the use of havin' a pledge card if you didn't keep the pledge."

They had chosen the wrong day. Besides bringing home a lesson to some of the party it served to call their attention to the fact that almost every home down there, no matter how humble and how far back in the hill, had a food administration pledge card in the window.

BANANA FLOUR AND BREAD

Green Fruit, Full Grown, Is Peeled, Sliced and Dried, Then Ground in Ordinary Corn Mill.

At a meeting of the Horticultural club of Trinidad, samples of banana flour and bread were exhibited and the method of preparation described. It was explained that the bananas from which the flour and bread were made had been taken from trees only five days previously, the 'silk fig' small variety of bananas producing the best results, reports Henry D. Baker, American consul at Trinidad:

The process was described as follows: "Full-grown green bananas should be selected. Peel, slice and dry quickly, preferably on a galvanized sheet, then grind in ordinary corn mill. From 68 pounds of green bananas 16½ pounds of flour had been obtained in the specimens shown. The bread, which was very palatable, had been made from two parts of banana flour and one part of wheat flour. The banana flour could also be used as a substitute for oatmeal porridge and also for making puddings.

In France.

The experiences of a party of Canadian, British and American soldiers during a trip to Versailles are amusingly recorded by a woman who regularly conducts such parties of sightseers. Coming into the grand ballroom, "of a size and splendor never equalled in the history of the world," a laconic trooper remarks, "Some dugout." At the dainty luncheon a Canuck says that the napkins would make good souvenirs. "The English," he says, jocosely, "fight for honor, the French for glory, and the Canadians for souvenirs." When the waiter presents the bill, a jolly trooper glances at it, falls back in his chair, and screams, "Quick, quick, give me my gas mask!" The young woman who led the party above referred to is ingenious in her methods of amusing the men. In the park at Versailles she stops and says: "Boy, the French have a pretty saying, 'The smaller the ivy leaf, the dearer the love.' So I want one of you to find the tiniest leaf possible and send it to the one that's waiting at home." The men set out to search for the smallest leaf. "The joker of the party comes to me with a perfectly enormous leaf, which he informs me he has plucked for his mother-in-law!" Another sarcastic young fellow brings a leaf even larger, and when asked what loved one is to have that tiny leaf, he says, "It's for the Kaiser!"

FEW FOLKS HAVE GRAY HAIR NOW

Druggist Says Ladies Are Using Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur

Hair that loses its colour and lustre, or when it fades, turns gray, dull and lifeless, is caused by a lack of sulphur in the hair. Our grandmother made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her locks dark and beautiful, and thousands of women and men who value that even colour, that beautiful dark shade of hair, which is so attractive, use only this old time recipe.

Nowadays we get this famous mixture improved by the addition of other ingredients by asking at any drug store for a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which darkens the hair so naturally, so evenly, that nobody can possibly tell it has been applied. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also brings back the gloss and lustre and gives it an appearance of abundance.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite to impart colour and a youthful appearance to the hair. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

VOCATIONAL TRAINING.

Some of the Work Being Done For the Soldiers.

The system of vocational training for returned soldiers which is enabling men to learn new occupations and in many instances to go back into civil life prepared to earn more than they did before they enlisted was the subject of an address by W. E. Segsworth, administrator of vocational training for the returned soldiers under the Military Hospitals Commission, before the Canadian Credit Men's Association in Toronto.

Mr. Segsworth stated definitely that learning a new trade would have no effect on a soldier's pension, and that whether pensioners or not returned soldiers were eligible for the re-educational courses.

The idea kept to the fore in the vocational training was to follow the lines of the man's old occupation so he would go back to his old environment. For example a bricklayer, prevented through injuries from following the same occupation might be trained to be an architect or draughtsman, a carpenter may become a cabinet maker, a lineman become an armature winder, or a moulder a pattern maker.

As many occupations are taught as possible among the returned men, otherwise there would arise competition difficulties.

An investigation by the hospitals commission had shown that there had been thirty-four soldiers blinded by wounds and it was pointed out that this was a much smaller number than was generally supposed, one doctor in "guessing"— before the inquiry—having made an "estimate" of 1,000.

An important point brought out was that, although warned that soldiers would be exploited, the commission now had the men receive part of the training right in the factories of the country, with very successful results. Before this was done, however, an industrial survey was made.

The instructing of the returned soldiers was divided by the commission into two broad classes, vocational training and vocational re-education. Vocational re-education was for the men who were so seriously injured or affected in health that they could not go back to their old occupations. It meant practically the teaching of a new trade. In quite a percentage of cases, the returned men after concluding their courses earned larger wages than before going to the war. Some of the "bed patients" were taught such things as the operating of special hand looms. Textiles they had woven had been sold in Montreal for as high as $8 a yard. The goods were sold without being marked in any way to indicate their being the output of soldiers.

At the present time investigations are being made to ascertain just what disability a man can suffer and still continue in a given trade. When investigation into this question has been concluded there will be no possibility of mistakes being made. To avoid error, the speaker said, the greatest care must be exercised. Not only must the man be consulted and his inclinations ascertained, but his medical history must be gone into with minute care, so that his physical and mental qualifications may be ascertained.

Mr. Sedgsworth prefaced his address by pointing out that the success of the endeavors being made to restore the returned soldier to civil life will have a big effect upon the industrial life of Canada. If the incapacitated men were merely thrown back into civil life to live on their pensions the country would lose their industry. This would have far-reaching effects. Their families would be brought up in an atmosphere of charity and idleness.

Correct.

AFTER SICKNESS THEY GAVE HER VINOL

And She Soon Got Back Her Strength

New Castle, Ind.—"The measles left me run down, no appetite, could not rest at night, and I took a severe cold which settled on my lungs, so I was unable to keep about my housework. My doctor advised me to take Vinol, and six bottles restored my health so I do all my housework, including washing. Vinol is the best medicine I ever used."—Alice Record, 437 So. 11th St., New Castle, Ind.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

The Girl at the Window

By DONALD CHAMBERLAIN

When I was a young man I went to a Western city to engage in business. I left my office every afternoon at five o'clock and walked to my room. It was winter and the climate was cold. Each afternoon I passed a house in which was a window on the ground floor, and I could see by the light that there was a bright coal fire burning in the room. Being in a strange city, with no associates, I often wished to go into that room and sit before that fire. For I lived in a cheerless hall bedroom in a boarding house.

One afternoon when I passed that house a very pretty girl sat in the window. I could only see her head and shoulders, the rest of her body being below the window sill. She seemed to be using her hands at some kind of work, but I could not see what it was. Her eyes were not fixed upon it except occasionally. I inferred it might be some kind of knitting. Her presence in the room made me yet more desirous of entering it.

Now and again when I passed the house on my way from business I saw the girl in the same position, and using her hands, so far as I could see, in the same manner. Once she turned her head and seemed to be looking at me, but I could not be sure. All that winter I passed the house every day, always in the evening looking for the girl in the window.

Whether or no a man can fall in love by sight alone, I do not know, but I certainly yearned for that girl. The more I yearned for her the more I believed she had conceived an interest in me. Since I was a stranger to her I could not make advances. I wished that I might smile at her; but to such cheap flirtation I did not care to descend. There seemed something too pure in the innocent face, on which there was a tinge of sadness.

One day I met her on the street, walking, her hand on the arm of a young man. The likeness was so strong between them that I was sure he was her brother. She did not notice me; but as I passed her she was speaking to her escort and I believed that her being interested in something else was the cause of her not noticing me. I would have given worlds for one glance from her beautiful eyes.

When summer came the house that interested me was shut up and it was evident that the family was away. The next winter a married lady with whom I became acquainted took pity on my loneliness and offered to introduce me to the social life of the city of my adoption. I told her that there was one person whom I wished especially to know; that I did not know her name, but I could give her the address. The lady took a memorandum of the latter and promised to make an investigation. Though I did not say as much, she knew that I had fallen in love with the girl in the window.

Mrs. Withers, the lady who had offered to serve me, made no report for several weeks. Then one day, while calling on her, looking into my eyes with great seriousness, she told me that she had learned all about the girl who had charmed me. I begged her to introduce me at once. She witheld her consent and when I insisted told me that I must give up my fancy; there was a reason why I should not go further with my infatuation. I had better put the girl out of my mind.

I went to my lonely room, resolved to take my friend's advice; but when it came to putting it into practice, I failed. That Madonna face with a tinge of grief upon it would not leave me, though I tried for weeks to banish it. Mrs. Withers introduced me to many young ladies, but I took no interest in any of them. At last she gave up trying to assimilate me with girls who complained to her that I was cold as a stone.

My sponsor informed me that she had told the girl I worshipped at a distance that she had inspired a young man unknown to her with love for her. The girl was naturally interested to know who her lover was, and all about him, but owing to the blight that rested upon her approved of Mrs. Withers' refusal to present me to her.

This only made me more eager for the introduction. I wrote Mrs. Withers a note in which I said that I would never have another love and if I could possess the girl I craved I would gladly bear the blight, the nature of which had not been imparted to me. I wrote the note expecting that Mrs. Withers would tell her its contents, and she did. She told me what mingled pain and pleasure it had given the girl for whom it was intended.

Some months later I received a glorious surprise. Mrs. Withers told me that the blight from which the girl I loved had suffered had been removed. She had been born blind and her sight had been restored by an operation.

It was not long before a meeting was arranged between us. What transpired cannot be expressed in words. There was a very short courtship; indeed a long one was immaterial. My devotion before she had known me was sufficient.

Later I asked her what she was doing when I had seen her by the window. She said that she was reading a book for the blind, the letters being raised.

HOW MRS. BOYD AVOIDED AN OPERATION

Canton, Ohio.—"I suffered from a female trouble which caused me much suffering, and two doctors decided that I would have to go through an operation before I could get well.

"My mother, who had been helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, advised me to try it before submitting to an operation. It relieved me from my troubles so I can do my house work without any difficulty. I advise any woman who is afflicted with female troubles to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial and it will do as much for them."—Mrs. MARIE BOYD, 1421 5th St., N. E., Canton, Ohio.

Sometimes there are serious conditions where a hospital operation is the only alternative, but on the other hand so many women have been cured by this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, after doctors have said that an operation was necessary—every woman who wants to avoid an operation should give it a fair trial before submitting to such a trying ordeal.

If complications exist, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for advice. The result of many years experience is at your service.

Brought Home to Him

By ETHEL HOLMES

Judge Weatherly of the criminal court having finished his day's work sat in his private office smoking a cigar, as was his invariable custom after holding court, when there was a ring at the telephone. Taking up the receiver he recognized his wife's voice.

"Come home at once. Something has happened."

"What has happened?"

"Ella has been arrested for theft."

"Great heavens!"

Without stopping for an explanation the judge hurried home, to find a policeman awaiting his arrival. Mrs. Weatherly was all of a tremor, while Ella, the daughter, sat in a sort of stupor.

"What's this all about?" the judge demanded.

"Your Honor," said the policeman, "a brooch has been missing from the jewelry store of Larkins and Swift. I was ordered to come here and make a search of the room of the young lady. I found the brooch in one of her bureau drawers. Here it is."

The policeman produced a lady's watch, it's case studded with jewels.

"Why, that's one of the watches," he said. "I looked at in Larkins and Swift's store not long ago, when I was hunting for a birthday gift for Ella. I was tempted to buy it, but the price was very high and I bought one at another store."

"Likely you can explain the matter to the court," said the policeman.

"Give me time to think," said Judge Weatherly.

The policeman gave him the desired time, but it availed nothing; he was as much in the dark at the end of half an hour as before. A cabman was called and the judge, his daughter and the policeman went to the station. There the judge gave bail for the accused girl, and father and daughter rode home.

That his daughter was guilty of the theft charged never entered the judge's mind. Some person or persons had conspired to injure her or more likely him. He was constantly receiving threats from criminals he sentenced, but thus far none had materialized. He finally settled down to the opinion that a hardened criminal to whom he had given the extreme penalty of the law and who had threatened to be even with him in time, had been the perpetrator of the outrage.

That afternoon a message came to the judge that Mr. Larkins of Larkins and Swift, would like to see him at his store. Judge Weatherly hurried to the store and was invited into the private office of the head of the firm. Mr. Larkins then handed him a letter received during the day. It read:

"I see by the papers that a daughter of Judge Weatherly of the criminal court has been arrested for the theft of your goods. This is the judge, I believe, who sentences people on flimsy circumstantial evidence. Not long ago he sentenced Ralph Edmonds to the penitentiary for ten years on the eve of his wedding. If Judge Weatherly will secure Edmonds' liberty the finding of a watch in his daughter's possession will be explained."

The letter was typewritten and without signature. At first thought the judge fancied it might be used as evidence to secure his daughter's acquittal, but it soon occurred to him that in law it would not be received as testimony. Besides the judge wished his daughter exonerated, and he decided that a full explanation could only be gained by acceding to the terms of the writer of the letter.

The attorney who had defended Ralph Edmonds was notified by Judge Weatherly that he had grave doubts of the propriety of his charge to the jury in the case of their client, and if they would move for a new trial the judge would assist them to secure it and alter his charge.

The attorneys took the hint and Edmonds was brought into the court for a new trial. He was a fine looking fellow with a countenance that no one would consider as belonging to a rogue. His mother was in court and with her a young girl to whom the prisoner was to have been married. Only a short time was required for the trial which consisted in the judge's charge to the jury and was naturally an order for the jury to acquit the prisoner. This they did without leaving their seats.

The acquitted man embraced his mother after which he and his fiancee were locked in each others arms. Then the young lady went to the judge and said:

"I determined after the conviction of my betrothed who I knew was innocent as you doubtless knew, your daughter was innocent, to bring his imprisonment home to you. I was present at his first trial and knew you by sight. One day I saw you go into a jewelry store and look at some watches. I stood at the same counter and when the clerk's back was turned, purloined one you had examined. Had you or the clerk seen me I would doubtless have joined Ralph in the penitentiary.

"The next move was to watch your house and one day when it was left unprotected I entered it. I found myself in a room. I knew by the articles it contained to be your daughter's. I left the watch in her bureau drawer. Then I informed the police where to look for it. I also wrote the letter to the jeweler. Now that I have attained my object I am ready to make an affidavit to what I have told you."

Don't Diet Yourself TO CURE DYSPEPSIA IT ISN'T NECESSARY

The sufferer from dyspepsia and indigestion who has to pick and choose his food, is the most miserable of all mankind.

Even the little he does eat causes such torture, and is digested so imperfectly that it does him little good.

What dyspeptics need is not dieting, or artificial digestants, but something that will put their stomach right so it will manufacture its own digestive ferments.

For forty years now Burdock Blood Bitters has been making weak stomachs strong, and curing severe cases of dyspepsia and indigestion that other remedies were powerless to reach.

It restores the stomach to a normal healthy condition so that the food no longer causes distress, but is thoroughly digested and assimilated, and goes on its way making rich, red blood.

Mrs. Henry Shaw, Campbellton, N.B., writes: "I was for five years troubled with a weak stomach, and could not eat any food that would agree with me. I tried different medicines, but could not get cured. A friend advised me to take Burdock Blood Bitters. I took four bottles, and now I am in perfect health."

India's Part in War Must Win Admiration Of the Other Dominions

As soon as the war is over, India's demand for a larger share of self-government will have to be considered. Some such political reform is generally conceded to be long overdue, and the important part she has taken in the war has greatly strengthened her claim.

Most persons do not realize what India's contribution has been almost insuperable. Her army at that time consisted of 78,000 British and 158,000 native troops. How confidently Britain relied on her loyalty is shown by the fact that practically the whole of these troops were sent to various fronts as soon as possible. India, for a time, was almost denuded of soldiers, with the exception of some British territorials in training, who were used to guard the border.

Since the struggle began she has contributed at least half a million men, most of whom have been employed in Mesopotamia, Egypt and South Africa. Many thousands have also been in France, where they did excellent service, but where the climatic conditions were found unsuitable for them.

There was much fear lest the alliance between Germany and Turkey might strain the allegiance of Britain's Mahommetan subjects, but this idea proved to be entirely without foundation. The Jehad, or holy war, proclaimed by the Sultan, seems to have had about as much effect among Mahommetans as the Pope's peace proposals among Christians.

Financially, also, India has done well. She has paid the cost of her own military expeditions and she has donated half a billion dollars to the general expenses of the war. In addition, her ruling chiefs have testified their devotion by munificent gifts. In view of these facts it will be hard to deny her whatever degree of self-government her people may desire.

CHILDREN MUST BE PROTECTED

The children must be safeguarded, for, if they do survive the frequent coughs and colds, it is often with the lungs so weakened that they become chronic sufferers from bronchitis or consumption. Being composed of simple ingredients of undoubted value, Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine is admirably suited as a treatment for children. It is pleasant to taste. So much so that children delight to take it on this account, as well as because of the quick relief it affords them.

BACK FROM GERMANY.

Montreal Man Tells of Civilian Prisoners' Life.

Back on British soil after nearly three and a half years of German internment camp life, Mr. A. E. Schippel of Montreal, was the only Canadian civilian among the lot of repatriated Britishers who arrived a few days ago at the little old Lincolnshire seaport of Boston on the shores of the North Sea. The Toronto Telegram's representative met him in London. Though born in Germany and of German parentage, the returned man has lived nearly all his life in Canada, of which he is a citizen. A wife and several boys eagerly awaited his return.

"We left Ruhleben Camp about 9 in the morning, after having been made to stand on the railway station platform for about two hours. It was bitterly cold and the train was absolutely unheated. My feet became numb with cold. I became quite ill on the journey. We reached the Dutch frontier about 10 that same night and there got into railway carriages that were heated."

"And how did the German country look coming through?" enquired the visitor.

"Very dreary and depressed," declared Mr. Schippel. "The whole place seemed to have a deserted air. It was very quiet and with little sign of life. England is a delightful change after Germany, and what a tremendous contrast, crowds of people, everything going on and plenty of food. They are really terribly short in Germany. Of course, I got little chance to see life outside Ruhleben Camp, but I heard what was going on. Some of the prisoners occasionally were allowed to visit friends outside the camp and the reports they brought back were not rosy accounts of living conditions. Coal, as well as food, is terribly scarce in Germany."

"And what about food and treatment in the camp?"

"The German rations are awful. Hardly any of us touched the rations. We relied almostly entirely on our food parcels from England. I lived on mine from the first. Oh, yes, we did apply for the potato ration several times a week. The awful stuff called coffee is disgusting. I dont' know what it is composed of. The small portion of bread is mostly potato, I think the Germans slice up white turnips into cubes and serve them boiled, as a vegetable. Of meat there is none, the only traces I saw being a few small lumps floating about in an occasional pot of a sort of stew. As most of us scarcely touched the rations, the unfortunates who got few or no parcels were able to obtain extra rations from the German surplus.

The bread sent us by the British authorities from a neutral country was splendid, and the relief canteen established in the camp was a wonderful institution. They kept a big stock of biscuits and one could always obtain a box of these if one ran short. Those biscuits are an excellent idea, they save the great wastage that used to occur from bread going mouldy."

Mr. Schippel had a long, weary voyage to England, it took four or five days, the ship having to stop and anchor off both coasts to comply with some absurd stipulation made by the Germans, who, I am told, have bargained that this inconvenient port of Boston be made the debarkation point, largely from the motive of throwing dust in the eyes of their German fellow-countrymen, whom they would have believe that Hull and and other harbors have been destroyed by the Teuton forces.

"My wife, her father and I were all over in Germany on a two months' holiday, when the war broke out," declared Mr. Schippel.

The Germans were nearly crazy, crying out that the Russians were slaughtering the women and children in East Prussia. If I wasn't an old man I would like to get even with the Germans by going into the trenches. But my eldest boy in Montreal is getting ready. He is nearly 18 and drilling hard, and my wife writes to say that he looks fine in his uniform."

Use of the Walnut Tree.

Most of the oldest Walnut trees in England were originally planted, not for the sake of the fruit, but because the wood makes the best gun-stocks, being light, strong, and not easily warped. The largest walnut grove in England is at Kempston, near Bedford. It contained at first three hundred and sixty-five trees one for each day of the year, which were planted about a century ago by the then owner of the farm, who remarked that wars would never cease and the timber would always be wanted for gun-stocks.—Family Herald.

German Medals.

Specimens of twenty-one out of twenty-nine medals issued in Germany during the present war have been presented to the British Museum. They include a large cast-iron medal representing an air attack on London in August, 1915, with Zeppelins over the Tower bridge.

Pains Followed The Nerves

From the Feet to the Top of the Head — Could Not Attend to Business For Five Months— Gaining Strength Every Day.

Bowmanville, Ont., Feb. 16.—A great number of people in this district have been trying out Dr. Chase's Nerve Food with splendid results and none are more enthusiastic than Mr. Allen.

His nervous system had become so completely run down that he had to give up his usual occupation and he suffered keenly from neuralgic pains which would dart along the nerves, causing keen distress.

But he found a cure and does not hesitate to recommend it to others. This is his letter.

Mr. Samuel Allen, Coleman Street, Bowmanville, Ont., writes:

"Last summer I suffered from a severe attack of nervousness. I was laid up, unable to attend to my business, for five months. I would be taken with pains which commenced in my feet and ran right up to the top of my head. I had frequent dizzy spells, sometimes so bad that I would fall over from dizziness. At last I commenced a treatment of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and they proved of such benefit to me that before long I was able to return to work. I am still using the Nerve Food and gaining strength every day. I can heartily recommend them to any one suffering from nervous trouble of any kind."

This letter is endorsed by Mr. John Lyle, J.P.

IS EVERS THROUGH?

WACO, Texas, April 4.—Johnny Evers, the famous little Trojan, who has been one of the leading lights of baseball for many years, has probably closed his career as an active player. This is not only the belief among the Boston Red Sox, with whom Evers has been training this spring, in an effort to re-establish himself, but it is the belief also of the little second base man, himself.

Evers was taken very ill on the train from Little Rock to Dallas and at Texarkana it was necessary to hold up the train was a doctor was called in to attend him. He had a fever of 102 and the doctor told him that his nerves had again gone back on him. He was sent to bed immediately on arriving at Dallas.

Though he was better to-day and may continue on this tour, he will not play again in the series, and it is doubtful if he will make an attempt to remain in baseball. Had his illness been just a fever caused by cold, he would not have considered it the closing mark to his career, but the fact that he is again experiencing trouble with his nerves and that he is worn out, has indicated to him that he is through, and he is not desirous of attempting to go further than nature will permit.

THE EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

The Patterns Are Guaranteed to Give Excellent Satisfaction

MISS' OR SMALL WOMAN'S DRESS.

The simple little frock shown in this number, 8746, is very girlish in effect. The waist is bloused over the narrow girdle and the one piece skirt is gathered slightly all around. The centre front of the waist shows the duchess closing, with fastenings on both sides. A narrow roll collar of satin has a tie of the same material slipped under it. The long bishop sleeves are gathered into deep cuffs, which are finished with narrow turnovers to match the other trimmings. The pockets are a matter of choice.

The miss' or small woman's dress pattern No. 8746 is cut in three sizes—16, 18 and 20 years. Width at lower edge of skirt is 1¾ yards. As for the figure, the 16 year size requires 3¾ yards 36 inch or 2½ yards 54 inch material, with ⅝ yard 36 inch silk.

This Pattern Can Be Obtained From the Examiner Office on Payment of 15 Cents.

PARCELS FOR GERMANY.

The Newest Regulations Announced From Ottawa.

New regulations governing the sending of parcels from Canada to prisoners of war in Germany have been issued by the Post Office Department in accordance with methods adopted by the British War Office.

The new scheme is known as "personal parcel scheme for prisoners of war other than officers," and provides as follows:

1. Any of the articles noted below may be included: Pipe, sponge, pencils, tooth powder, pomade, cap badge and badges of rank, shaving brush, safety razor, mohair boot laces, candies (8 ozs.); medal ribbons, brass polish, mittens (one pair a quarter), muffler (one each year), shaving soap (one stick a quarter), health salts, insecticide powder, braces and belts (provided they are made of webbing and include no rubber or leather), comb, hair brushes, tooth brushes, buttons, chess, draughts, dominoes and cloth brushes.

2. The personal parcel may be sent once a quarter only. The maximum weight is 11 pounds. It is advised that such parcels should not weigh less than three pounds, so as to minimize the risk of loss in the post.

3. The personal parcel must be packed and despatched through the post office by the friend or relative of the prisoner, who received the coupon mentioned below, and the coupon must be affixed to the parcel.

4. A supply of coupons will be issued (a) for prisoners of war belonging to the Canadian forces by the Prisoners of War Department, Canadian Red Cross Society, 14 Cockspur street, London, S.W.; (b) for civilian prisoners of war and prisoners of war belonging to the Imperial and allied forces by the Central Prisoners of War Committee, 4 Thurloe Place, London, S.W.; (c) applications should be made for these coupons immediately.

5. The next-of-kin has the right to the coupon or to designate the person to whom it is to be given.

6. Relatives should we warned that the inclusion in the parcel of any article not mentioned in the above list may entail the confiscation of the parcel.

The above regulations are an amendment to those issued by the Department, dated November, 1917, and published in the December supplement to the Postal Guide, in so far as parcels intended for prisoners of war other than officers are concerned.

The postmaster is informed that these parcels, which will be addressed direct to the prisoner of war, must bear a coupon, otherwise they are not to be accepted. The coupon in question bears a ring printed in blue, inside of which are the words "Prisoners' Personal Parcel."

The Indian and the Caribou.

Since the introduction of firearms the Indian has lost much of his old hunting lore. A snare is almost a thing of the past, but is still occasionally used when ammunition is scarce. It is no hard matter to kill caribou in the open country, for the rolling hills usually give ample cover for a stalk, and even on flat ground they are easily approached at a run as they will almost invariably circle head to wind and give the hunter a chance to cut them off. But it is with the spear that the vast slaughter in the summer is annually made. The best swimming places are known and carefully watched, and woe betide a herd of caribou if once surrounded in a lake by the small hunting canoes. One thrust of the spear high up in the loins and ranging forward, does the work. There is no idea of sparing life, no matter what the age or sex of the victim may be: the lake is red with blood and covered with sometimes several hundred carcasses, of which fully one-half are thrown away as not fat enough to be eaten by men who may be starving in a month. Surely this would exterminate the game, but, if one demonstrates with the Indians at the waste, the ready answer comes: "Our fathers did this and have taught us to do the same; they did not kill of the caribou, and after we are gone there will be plenty for our children."

The caribou supplies the Indian with nearly all the necessities of life: it gives him food, clothing, house and the equivalent of money to spend at the fort. He leaves the trading post, after one of his yearly visits with a supply of ammunition, tea and tobacco, a blanket or two, and if he has made a good season's hunt, is perhaps lucky enough to have taken one of the company's duffel capotes (about the best form of great coat that I have ever seen.) He has a wife and family waiting for him somewhere on the shore of the big lake where fish are plentiful, expecting a gaudy dress, a shawl, or a string of beads from the fort, but relying entirely on the caribou for maintenance during the awful cold of the coming winter.—Warburton Pike in "The Barren Ground of Northern Canada."

England Is Now Shaken By Serious Controversy Between Two Old Rivals

IT is not often the fortune of a newspaperman to gain such fame as Col. Repington, and the affair of the London Post has attracted attention in all parts of the world, even in the critical days of a great war. Col. Repington, who wrote the article complained of, and Mr. H. A. Gwynne, the editor of the Post, who after the censor had objected to the article, made some slight changes and published it, have been fined $500, and have thus become sufficiently familiar with the Defence of the Realms Act to speak of it as Dora. Nevertheless, we are likely to hear more from the Post, its editor and its military critic. The Post is not to be confounded with such a newspaper as the News or the Chronicle. It is a fine old Tory newspaper, and even more than the Times, has been considered the organ of the aristocracy of the British Isles. It cannot be suspected of pacifism; it cannot be accused of lack of determination to fight the war through to the end. Its course has no doubt been dictated by the strongest patriotism, and while it may have violated a law of the land, its influence has not been impaired on that account.

What Col. Repington told the British public through the Post was that for the first time in the history of the war a British force on the Western front had been placed under the command of a commander who was not British. In the case of Salonica, of course, British troops have been operating or failing to operate under a French general for a long time. In the earlier days of the war Joffre was generalissimo, and Sir John French was under him. But Gen. Haig has not been under any other general; nor is he now, but the Versailles Conference determined upon the policy of having available a certain number of British troops, as well as French troops, to be moved to any part of the front, any part of the world, where the Allied War Council thought fit to move them. Gen. Robertson objected to this arrangement, and while Col. Repington is an admirer of Gen. Robertson, it is not plain, from cabled despatches, that he objected to the creation of this special body of troops. His offence was that he told the world of one of the decisions at the conference, and thus brought himself into the clutches of the law. Of course, there is more behind than meets the eye or is likely to meet it in the immediate future.

Perhaps it is safe to say that the important thing behind it is that Lord Northcliffe and Col Repington have conflicting ideas as to how the war should be conducted, that Lord Northcliffe has now come to the conclusion that Lloyd George is doing well, whereas Repington never had the opinion, declared it more than once when he was the expert on the Times, and left the Times after Northcliffe and Lloyd George had come to an agreement. It is a fair assumption that until lately Col. Repington directed the military policy of the Times. It was Repington who took his courage in his hands in the early days of the war, and exposed the shortage of high explosive shells on the Western front. It may have been Repington, who worked under Kitchener, who inspired the Times to demand that Kitchener be made Secretary of War.

Col. Repington is probably the most respected of war critics writing in the English language. He is not a journalist who has made a specialty of military affairs. He is a soldier, and a distinguished soldier. He saw service in Afghanistan and Burma. In 1898, as a colonel, he was mentioned in despatches from the Sudan. He fought against the Boers and won his C.M.G., and was military attache at Brussels and The Hague, and later on became attached to the Times as military correspondent. When he held this post he was also invited by the Government to edit a Military Review, an official publication, fostered by Lord Haldane. On one occasion there was a short but somewhat acrimonious debate in Parliament concerning the dual position that Col. Repington occupied. As a member of the War Office and editor of the Review he came naturally into the possession of information that other journalists were denied, and it was alleged that this gave him an unfair advantage in his role as military correspondent of the Times. At the time of the debate, however, it seemed to be generally admitted that he was an authority upon military matters. Lord Haldane said that if the best man in England was to be had for the purposes of the War Office Repington was the inevitable man.

A tribute from Haldane is not exactly something that a man would care to frame and hang over the kitchen sink. Nevertheless, apart from Haldane's affinity with Germany he did some good work at the War Office, and it is no reflection upon Repington that he approved of Haldane's scheme for army reform. Though rebuked in stinging words by the Bow Street magistrate, no doubt Col. Repington and Mr. Gwynne are easy in their conscience. The former has no doubt the idea that civilians are meddling too much in affairs that are purely military, and that Lord Northcliffe is afflicted with a disease that cost Caesar his life. The motives of a newspaper owner when he sets out to control a Government are not necessarily less open to suspicion than the motives of a contractor or promoter on a similar errand, and nothing would so quickly destroy public confidence in Lloyd George as the belief that he was under the influence of a newspaper or a thousand newspapers.

IN THE WEST INDIES.

Increased Population Largely Due to Immigration.

The character of the population of the British West Indies is rapidly changing through the addition to the long-established mixed races of numbers of natives of India and of the East Indies. In Trinidad and British Guiana the increase of population in recent years has been caused almost wholly by immigration from India. In British Guiana the census of 1911 showed 126,517 of East Indian origin in a total of 296,041. Trinidad, with a total population of 333,552, had 108,606 of East Indian origin, and in other islands the proportion of that element is increasing to a degree that is likely to place it in the majority at some time in the future. Nearly all the East Indians come out under contract with the West Indian Governments as indentured laborers to work on the sugar and cacao plantations. Their contracts bind them for five years, for they are also required to remain in the colonies for another five, during which they are free to take up land or to work for anyone whom they please to work for. As a body they have gained a reputation for industry and thrift. During the period of indenture many of them save enough money to buy land, and the number of them who own land grows steadily. The common procedure is to buy a few acres of forest land from the Government, clear it and plant it with cacao or cocoanut trees, and use the spaces between the trees for "ground provisions." When the trees begin to bear, in five or six years' time, this little property makes the owner independent.—Family Herald.

Licorice Root.

Licorice root is found in various parts of the province of Cape of Good Hope. After its introduction there a number of farmers planted it and then, probably on account of the lack of a market, neglected it. Later it so spread in certain localities as to become a pest difficult to eradicate. Now, its usefulness has been recognized and the diggers pay two cents a pound for the privilege of digging it.

Palpaitation of the Heart and Nerve Troubles
WERE CURED BY
Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills

When the heart begins to beat irregularly or intermittently, palpitate and throb, skip beats, beat fast for a time, then so slow as to seem almost to stop, it causes great anxiety and alarm and the least excitement or exertion seems to affect it.

Many people are kept in a state of morbid fear of death, become weak, worn and miserable through this unnatural action of the heart.

To all sufferers from heart troubles we would advise the use of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, which by their action in strengthening the heart and regulating the beat remove all the distressing conditions, and impart vigor and vitality to the system.

Mrs. Thomas Davidson, Mount Brydges, Ont., writes: "I have been a great sufferer in the past with nerve troubles and palpitation of the heart. I tried several remedies, but without any good results. My son came in one day and advised me to take Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. After using one and a half boxes, I am fully recovered, and am in a perfect state of health, thanks to your valuable medicine."

HOW ABOUT MUSKRAT PIE?

Some People Still Have Prejudice Against It.

The suggestion in a Western paper that "muskrats would be a solution of the national food problem," an association of trappers standing sponsor for it, is not likely to be received with enthusiasm, although the trappers say that "a million pounds of good meat is annually going to waste in Ontario.

The assertion that the muskrat is a "clean animal, living on clean vegetable food and when properly prepared can scarcely be distinguished from chicken," one has no reason to question; but that will not remove the prejudice. In sections of lowland Virginia and perhaps in a few other parts of the South the little beast is said to be considered a delicacy. "Living on the shores of lakes and rivers, swimming and diving with facility, feeding on the roots, stems and leaves of water plants, or on fruits and vegetables which grow near the margin of the streams it inhabits," the flesh of the creature ought to be palatable and, considered dispassionately, should arouse no disgust.

Nevertheless, a muskrat is a muskrat. That there are people so silly that they will not eat the legs of the frogs inhabiting our ponds is a fact, and we can think of no way of disposing of it. Living in the highly developed civilization of South Carolina's coast towns and cities are persons who should know better, that protest against the 'possum, and we have seen rare specimens of upcountrymen who object to the oyster. Many excellent women of social experience and polish are so crude that they flatly refuse to taste of the flesh of the rabbit and the squirrel. We have heard ignorant persons slander the squirrel as itself a rat, which merely proves that the squirrel has no monopoly of nuttiness. Throughout Canada there is a profoundly stupid antagonism to the edible snail, but we entertain the hope that this will begin to disappear with the return of our boys from France.

The trush is that comparatively few persons endeavor to live up to the lessons of common sense revealed to St. Peter in the vision at Joppe. That overmuch veracity of statement remains in the proverb about the difference in taste is a misfortune of the moderns, but when the world shall be safe for democracy, perhaps the remonstrance that now arises unbidden against muskrat pie will be silenced.

The British Line Advanced Slightly During The Night

General Foch Threatens To Develop Counter-Attack

Russian Officers Blew Up Three Large Naval Vessels

THE BRITISH OFFICIAL

Germans Are Nibbling at the Allied Line in an Effort to Find a Weak Spot—Another Heavy Attack in Prospect

WAR SUMMARY

Canadian Press Despatch:

LONDON, April 8.—The British official statement says: "We advanced our line slightly during the night on the south bank of the Somme, east of Vaire Sous Corbie. North of the Somme a few prisoners and machine guns were captured by us in the neighbourhood of Neuville Vitasse. The enemy's artillery has shown increased activity during the night on the whole British battle front. Heavy hostile gas shelling has taken place also between Lens and the Labassee Canal and east of Armentieres.

WAR SUMMARY.

NEW YORK, April 8.— Associated Press war summary to-day says: Checked at most points along the front from Arras to Coucy, north of Soissons the Germans are nibbling at the Allied line in an effort to find a weak spot. So far the enemy has been repulsed along the western leg of the elbow salient. In Chauny-Couey-Lafere triangle along the Oise, on the extreme east end of the south front of the battle line, the French have retired to higher ground.

Another Attack.

Correspondents at the British front in France says the signs are that the Germans are getting ready to launch another heavy attack on a long front in an endeavour to reach Amiens. The French and British aviators have brought down thirty-one enemy machines, while Berlin reports the destruction of eighteen Entente airplanes. From Arras to the Somme the British line still stands as it did ten days ago. Immediately south of the Somme there has been only local fighting, with no change in the position of the battle front.

Canadian Press Despatch.

NEW YORK, April 8.—According to a cable received here twenty-five divisions (280,000) of the ever decreasing Teuton enemy forces have been sacrificed since Thursday in the French portion of the battle front alone, in attempts to reach Amiens. An American official with the French army has estimated that there have been at least three hundred thousand in the German army on the western front killed, wounded and missing in the present new drive.

German Guns Active.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FRANCE, April 8.—(8 a.m. Monday).—Intense artillery work has been proceeding at various points along the British battle front throughout the night and this morning. North of the River Scarpe and south of the Somme river, German guns are continuing an unceasing heavy bombardment such as heretofore has indicated an impending attack.

LIVE STOCK MARKET

Toronto, April 8. — Trade was slow this morning and prices steady. The tendency of hogs was weaker. Receipts, 158 cars, 3080 cattle, 392 calves, 1688 hogs, 26 sheep. Export cattle, $12 to $13; export bulls, $9 to $10.50; butchers' cattle, $10.75 to $11.75; butchers' cows, $9 to $10.25; butchers' bulls, $8.75 to $9; feeding steers, $8.50 to $10.25; sheep ewes, $13 to $15; lambs, 10.25 to $20.50; hogs fed and watered, $20.50 to $21; calves, $15 to $17.

ON ALBERTA FARMS

All Applications for Labour Have Been Filled.

CALGARY, April 8.— That there is no farm labour shortage in the southern part of Alberta is indicated by the fact that to date every application for farm help has been supplied by the Alberta Provincial Labour Bureau, established here recently. There have been 750 farm labourers supplied by this Bureau to date. The wages paid are from $60 to $70 per month.

THE SITUATION PROVES THAT HINDENBURG IS COMMANDED TO FORCE ISSUE THIS YEAR

American Forces Will Aid Foch and Haig to Outmanoeuvre the Prussian War Lords--Captured German Officers Maintain the Offensive Will Be Continued

(United Press Service.)
(By William Philip Simms.)

Ten O'clock Despatch.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, April 8.—President Wilson's decision to hasten support for the Allied troops is not an instant too soon. Every American fighter is golden now. Daily the facts grow, proving undoubtedly that Hindenburg is commanded to force the issue as rapidly as possible to end the war this year. Thus, the President is materially aiding Foch and Haig to outmanoeuvre the Prussian war lords.

DESPERATE GAMBLERS.

German prisoners sullenly and obstinately insist that the offensive cannot be stopped. Captured officers doggedly maintain the offensive will be continued, with short pauses to freshen up man-handled divisions and bring up guns until the war is won. They talk and behave like desperate gamblers, staking all on one play. They try to appear indifferent, but their eyes are gaunt and feverish and their voices are hollow.

DOUBT THE OUTCOME.

Ordinarily prisoners openly doubt the outcome, but, like the officers, all say the fighting will not stop until the end. Some believe the battle will burst anew on the same front. Others think it will switch elsewhere. All agree that peace must result, some way, somehow, so far as Germany is concerned.

When in Switzerland, I heard the Kaiser could muster 2210 divisions (2,520,000 men) on the west front. Personally, I consider the number about correct. Ninety divisions already have appeared in the line. About 120 are still available by switching tired troops to quiet sectors.

BOYS ARE INCLUDED.

The prisoners include boys and overaged men. Hindenburg has hurriedly recalled recently exempted men. Prisoners agree that German-Austrian internal conditions are frightful, weaklings and the scrapings of humanity serving in some capacity in the ranks.

Jockeying continues on the battle front. Wherever the Germans occupy low ground they make local attacks to win the ridges and other advantageous "kick off" positions. Such was the motive for the Arras-Vimy Ridge and the drive for Bucquoy, where they wanted the high ground around Bucquoy, Hebuterne and Auchonvilers.

The enemy is striving for the hills west of the Ancre Valley, back of Albert and among the rivers converging on Amiens. The fighting hereabouts and to the southward is "on the cards."

CAVALRY IN ACTION.

In all this the cavalry, who have been waiting two years, had their longed-for chance with their sabres, galloping down upon advancing infantry, cutting up panic-stricken columns and holding bridge-heads. Further chances for the horsemen probably are coming.

The anniversary of America's entrance into the war was toasted throughout the British army, with generous speeches, commenting on the material and historical importance of the event.

War News Is Withheld From The German Troops

All Soldiers' Correspondence Has Been Suspended — Twenty-five Enemy Divisions Sacrificed.

SECOND MAIN OFFENSIVE

(United Press Service.)
(By Henry Wood.)

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES IN THE FIELD, April 8. — Twenty-five divisions (260,000 men) of the ever-increasing enemy reserves have been sacrificed since Thursday before the French portion of the battle front alone.

Half of these reserve divisions were expended in an attempted encirclement of Amiens from the south, while the remainder were sacrificed in small local attacks where, owing to French pressure, the Germans were compelled to attack to improve their positions.

Conserving Forces.

A few French divisions sufficed to defeat the entire twenty-five German divisions The French consistently are employing the minimum forces necessary, insuring ample reserves to meet the second main offensive elsewhere and for the Allies' counter offensive.

The Germans have brought up trench mortars, which so far have been ineffective owing to their inability to follow up the infantry since March 24.

German officers have been forbidden to read the war communique to the troops and all soldiers' correspondence has been suspended.

SPECIAL SERVICES IN GEORGE STREET METHODIST CHURCH

George Street Methodist Church enters to-night upon a short series of special services. Meetings will be held every night except Saturday, beginning at even-forty-five o'clock with a song service. "BRITAIN IS LAVISHLY GIVING HER BLOOD."

Canadian Press:

LONDON, April 8.— The Daily Mail says: "In these hours of trial Great Britain feels the real meaning of American sympathy and aid. She is heavily engaged on many fronts and in many different ways, and on each front and in each sphere she is lavishly giving her blood."

THIS PROVINCE FURNISHES THE BULK OF DIVORCE BUSINESS

Twenty-nine Applications to Be Heard by the Greybeards in the Senate

THE GORDON CASE

Special to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, April 8.—Ontario continues to furnish parliament with the bulk of its divorce business. There are now twenty-nine applications before the Senate, and of these nineteen, or 65 per cent., are from Ontario, including seven from Toronto. There are six from west of this province and four from Quebec. Two of the applications are returned soldiers.

The 1918 list of divorce bills is so long that some are not likely to be reached if the session proves as short as expected. First on the list is the notorious Gordon case, which makes its third appearance, having been thrown out in the Commons last year after bitter criticism of both petitioner and respondent. The twenty-nine cases for this session compare with eighteen applications in 1917, of which sixteen were granted.

COURSES FOR GIRL FARMERS

Farmeresses Will Have to Learn How to Do a Day's Work Before Breakfast—Big Enrollment

INSTRUCTION WORK

Special to The Examiner:

TORONTO, April 8.—Arrangements for the course in agriculture for women at the Ontario Agricultural College are now completed and applications are teeming into the Ontario Government Employment Bureau. The course, which will start on May first, will last three weeks, and during that time the women will be given instruction in the care and picking of fruit, and pruning of trees, planning and fixing of vegetable gardens and the growing of vegetables, instruction in dairy work the care and use of cream separators and milking machines, handling of milk and milking, field husbandry and care of poultry and stock.

Early Rising.

The women will also be taught the farm custom of early rising, for the course is to include early work, such as feeding of stock and milking. The course is to be made as practical as possible, and it is expected that it will be of great benefit to the future farmeresses.

The course of instruction, which is arranged by the Department of Agriculture, is free, including free transportation to any place within the province. The girls will live at the men's dormitory (which will be vacated by that time), and the board for the three weeks will cost but $15. The girls will be expected to provide themselves with suitable uniforms. A large cow-breakfast hat will be part of their costume. Only one hundred girls will be able to take the course and they will be chosen from applicants throughout the province. Already over 700 women have expressed their desire to help on the farms this summer.

A Summer Paradise

A handsome booklet artistically printed and illustrated, has just been issued by the Grand Trunk Railway telling of the beauties of the "Lake of Bays" district in the Highlands of Ontario. The concise description given and the interesting pictures reproduced from direct photographs tell the story of a very charming resort that is reached through Huntsville. Now is the time to think of your summer vacation. Take a free trip, a mental little journey through the "Lake of Bays" by asking for this handsome publication. Take the journey some evening after supper with your wife and children, then slam the door on the doctor for 1918 by taking your family on a real journey through this ideal summer playground.

A postal card to C. E. Horning, Union Station, Toronto, will promptly bring a copy of the booklet.

THE BRITISH COUNTERED

The British Guns Tore Gaps in the Enemy Lines and Frustrated Efforts to Advance

HEAVY CASUALTIES

(By Wm. Philip Simms).
(United Press Service).

2.30 p.m. Despatch:

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FRANCE, April 8.—British guns pulverized German attempts to better their positions south of Bucquoy on Sunday, and tore such gaps in their lines that they abandoned their efforts.

The Germans made a local attack in Hangard Wood (west of Demuin), but the British immediately countered and retained most of the wood, capturing prisoners and machine guns and inflicting heavy casualties on the enemy.

EMPEROR WILLIAM INSPECTED BIG GUN

NEW WEAPON LOOKS LIKE A BIG CRAY CRANE.

AMSTERDAM, April 8.—Emperor William, on March 23rd, inspected the gun with which the Germans are bombarding Paris, says Karl Rosner, war correspondent of the Lokal Anzeiger of Berlin. It looks more like an enormous gray crane than a real gun, and can throw a shell for a distance of 130 kilometres (80.6 miles). Firing a shorter distance than that on March 23rd, he adds, it required exactly 183 seconds for a shell to reach Paris.

AMERICAN RED CROSS SOCIETY SHOWS ITS APPRECIATION.

Canadian Press Despatch:

TORONTO, April 8.—Lt.-Col. Noel Marshall, of the Canadian Red Cross Society, arrived from Washington today with a cheque for $500,000 in his pocket, a gift from the American Red Cross to the Canadian Red Cross Society, in appreciation of what Canadian people have done in the war. Col. Marshall was invited to Washington to the headquarters of the American Red Cross to tell the officials about the work which has been accomplished by the Canadian Red Cross. Before he left the Colonel was handed by Mr. Henry P. Davison, chairman of the War Council, American National Red Cross, a cheque and the letter accompanied by a resolution from the National Headquarters of the American Red Cross.

General Foch Threatens Hindenburg's New Line And May Separate Two Armies

French Commander May Be Given Opportunity to Overwhelm Germans by a Stroke of Genius.

NEW CONCENTRATION

(United Press Service.)
(By J. W. T. Mason.)

New York, April 8 — General Foch is threatening to develop a counter-attack against Von Hindenburg's southern flank, in the area where the newly extended German front joins the southwestern corner of the old Hindenburg line.

This is the reason why the Germans have begun their sudden activity along the Oise. There is no certainty for Hindenburg that General Foch will start a major attack in that region, but the threat has unquestionably been made, probably by a new concentration of a considerable force of allied troops. Hindenburg's present movements in the Oise district are in reality defensive measures to secure local positions of tactical value and to feel out General Foch's strength.

A SIMILAR THREAT.

The situation facing Hindenburg in this area contains the same threat to his own armies that he imposed on the allies during his advance through Picardy. The main strategic purpose of the German drive was to separate the British and the French armies at their point of contact, and to roll up the British right wing, and throwing the whole British line into a disorganized mass. This plan failed, but in attempting it, Hindenburg moved his southern flank so far to the west that it has become what is for tactical purposes a unit by itself.

A DISTINCT UNIT.

Just as the French and British forces were distinct units during the battle of Picardy, so now the new southern front of the Germans is distinct from the old southern front which it joins near the Oise. New supply routes have undoubtedly been organized and the lines of communication cannot be the same. If therefore General Foch can cut the German southern flank where the old and new lines unite he will have severed Hindenburg's armies exactly as Hindenburg hoped to isolate the British from the French.

NEW GERMAN FRONT.

The newly won German front would thereupon be in the same peril of annihilation that Hindenburg hoped to impose upon Field Marshal Haig's line. This is the chief danger now threatening the Germans. The mere possibility of such a disaster is sufficient to exert a profound influence on Hindenburg's plans. He cannot continue to slaughter his man power much longer for offensive objectives. Any weakening of the German Oise line for adventures farther west may give to General Foch an opportunity to overwhelm Hindenburg by a stroke of genius.

DOOM OF MILITARY POWER IN GERMANY

Canadian Press:

LONDON, April 8.—The doom of military power in Germany was pronounced by President Wilson in his speech at Baltimore, says the Morning Post. Amid the stress and suspense of the great conflict now raging on the western front, we can assure our American friends that their brave and simple declarations are inexpressibly encouraging. They look upon the war from a point of view which, after nearly four years of stupifying vicissitude, we have lost.

GERMANY IS NOT EVACUATING THE OCCUPIED TERRITORY

Enemy is Holding Territory Occupied Since the Russian Peace Treaty Was Signed

SOVIET FORCES RESIST

(United Press Service.)
(By Joseph Shaplen.)

Petrograd, April 8. — A representative of the Soviet Commissaries declared that not only is Germany not evacuating territories occupied before the signing of the Brest-Litovsk Treaty, but is holding those occupied since.

Ukro-German troops have occupied Ekaterinovslav after a severe battle, the Soviet forces resisting desperately.

Ekaterinovslav is 120 miles northeast of Odessa and 125 miles south and west of Charkoff.

RUSSIAN OFFICERS BLEW UP SHIPS

Would Not Surrender Them to German Attacking Force

Special to The Examiner:

WASHINGTON, April 8.— Rather than surrender to an attacking German force, including two dreadnoughts, Russian officers blew up three large naval vessels, their command in southern Finnish waters, according to Swedish press reports, officially cabled to the State Department to-day.

...AN UNFRUITFUL DEBATE.

...he debate in the House of Com...ns over the Quebec question, ap...ently failed to accomplish any...g, but to furnish an opportuni... for a number of the members to ... off steam." As far as the two ... questions about which the people ... the Dominion are interested, i.e., ... case of Henri Bourassa, and the ...essity of speeding up the ques... of the Military Service Act in ...bec, were concerned, little pro...s is indicated.

...rue, Sir Robert Borden outlined ... order-in-Council which permits of ... drafting of any man of military ... regardless of his class, who is im...ated in rioting, but as Mr. H. H. ...vens, of Vancouver, lucidly point... out, this measure may make sol...rs out of rioters, but what is re...ed is a remedy to get soldiers out ... the Appeal Courts. This is the ...x of the whole matter. The Pre... admitted that there were 30,000 ...eals in Quebec Province, and ...ged the inquiry of Col. Currie as ...he truth of the report that so far ... 600 of these appeals had reach... the Central Appeal Judge. No ...der that Col. Currie should re... "Six months after the passage of the law only 1500 men can be secured in the Province of Quebec. I leave to members of the House how many years it will take to secure the balance."

There was nothing in the Premier's address to indicate how the Government proposes to improve the condition of affairs in Quebec so that that province under the Military Service Act, may contribute something like its proper share to the Canadian army. Private members on the Government side who took part in the debate, laid the blame for the poor results so far obtained by the Act, on the doorstep of Hon. Chas. Doherty, the Minister of Justice. Mr. Stevens bluntly remarked that he did not think the Military Service Act would be successfully administered so long as it was placed under the Justice Department of the Government, which he characterized as an embalming emporium.

"We cannot say for one moment by the widest stretch of imagination that the Minister of Justice, or his Department, has enforced the Act with any degree of expedition," was another sally from the lips of the Conservative-Unionist from Vancouver.

Col. J. A. Currie, Government member for East Simcoe, who instigated the debate, delivered a striking indictment of the operations of the Act. He is quoted as saying:

"Everybody in the corridors knew that it was a joke, that the law which was brought down was not the law which was really required, but it was the law, and as such it was shot full of holes. The enforcement of the Act was virtually left to the lawyers and judges and officials. If they did not wish to enforce it rigidly, every man in the county could avoid coming under its provisions. Why was the law formed in that way? I will tell you why. There was intense opposition to the law on the part of our friends from Quebec, and on the part of members from that Province within the ranks of the Conservative party. There was a constant agitation and struggle as to keep down the Act so that it might be delayed, or that the war might end."

Lloyd George has asked Canada to reinforce her troops with as little delay as possible. The Premier's speech failed to show any plan for carrying out the request, so far as Quebec is concerned.

As for Bourassa and Lavergne, they are apparently going to be allowed a free hand. Although members on both sides of the House suggested that they should be interned, Sir Robert Borden contented himself with remarking that the Government's general principle had been not to interfere with the right of free speech unless it was absolutely necessary by reason of a great emergency, which means that Bourassa will continue to pubilsh seditious articles alongside the columns of Government advertising in Le Devoir.

THE PREMIER'S FIGURES.

The statement made by Sir Robert Borden on Friday night, that since October 1st last, 50,000 men had joined the Canadian colours, is being used by papers supporting the Government as the basis for some neat camouflaging operations. Some of them go so far as to say that already half the men called for under the Military Service Act have been put into uniform. But they forget to mention that of the 50,000 men, 18,000 were recruits secured in the United States through the medium of the British-Canadian Recruiting Mission, and that of the remaining 32,000, many have been placed in lower categories than A since being called out, and are not fit to act as reinforcements for the firing line, while the total also includes men of B and C categories who have reported for service as well as the men who have been allowed leave of absence and cannot be considered as immediate reinforcements.

AMERICA'S PART.

Coming on the anniversary of the entrance of the United States into the war the stirring declaration of Secretary, of the Treasury, McAdoo, that "it must be by American force and allied force destroying German force, that will bring the only kind of peace worth having" has an especial significance. The peace feelers sent out by Austria-Hungary during the past few days are brushed aside by Secretary McAdoo's statement that there will be no peace until America has achieved a victory for the principles for which she fights, and that she will fight until doomsday to get that kind of peace.

The time is rapidly coming when America's strength will be felt on the battlefields of Europe. Some times some Canadians are inclined to be critical of the war efforts of our neighbours, and disappointed perhaps because their fighting forces have not got into action sooner, but the past year has been one of extensive preparation in the face of great difficulties on the part of the United States. And now Lloyd George wires from France that during the next few weeks America will give the Prussian millitary junta the surprise of their lives.

More and more in the days to come will the United States assistance be appreciated.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

"We will come in as many millions as are needed" is the cheerful message from United States Ambassador Page.

Back up the troops by substituting fish for meat, vegetables for bread, fruit for pastry, dripping for butter—the foods we ought to use for the foods the soldiers need.

A New York department store is advertising silk stockings at $95 a pair. Any woman who would pay so much money for a pair of stockings in a time like the present should be interned, and with a long skirt on at that, declares the Indianapolis News.

An Old Tin Road

THERE is, perhaps, nothing more despised or ignored than the superannuated tin can. It forms the unlovely accompaniment of the typical western town in the States. In almost every latitude and longitude of civilization, it lies neglected by many an unsightly dump, unless rescued by errant Tom Sawyers. Sometimes, however, it rises to an evanescent dignity. The coolie has been known to gather it in as a capital finger bowl, and African potentates are said to have worn it as a cap of state on occasions of solemn function. But until the outset of the war, the tin can rarely lost its intrinsic character as an "unconsidered trifle." Then "Tommy" took it affectionately from the scrap heap and fashioned it deftly into improvised bombs. But that was a wasteful process, shameful for these model days of conservation. It is with a sigh of relief, therefore that one turns from these vicissitudes of the humble tin can to the newer and more permanent dignity which has been conferred upon the metal from which it is made. For the British Government, by a stroke of the pen, has placed tin in the aristocratic class with its former superiors, copper and steel, and from now on, the world probably will know it as a war metal.

The Greeks called tin "hermes," and that is the starting point of the adventures of tin, as far as this account is concerned. For anyone who reads his Herodotus knows that the Greeks were exceedingly envious of the Phoenician merchant sailors, the possessors of tin for the making of bronze. The metal was constantly being shipped to Tyre and Sidon from the region of the Pillars of Hercules, the modern Gibraltar. That sorry jade, Dame Rumor, was exasperatingly indefinite when the Greeks endeavored to locate the precious mines. First they were on the Continent of Atlantis, then in the archipelago of Cassiterides, and then on the mysterious island, to the north, "where the swans sang," which was none other than Albion. The Greeks finally set sail themselves in order to put an end forever to the trade monopoly of the Phoenicians. Whether or no they unmasked this ancient trade secret is beside the mark. Suffice it that when accurate history dawned with the landing of Caesar in Britain, the tin mines of Cornwall had for centuries exported their precious ware, by Dover and Marseilles, to the East, for the fashioning alike, it is thought, of the swords of the Greeks or the ornaments of the Temple of Solomon.

He who would desire to reconstitute the old Tin Road of the Cornishmen, as it runs from near Land's End to Dover, might try in vain to find any trace, farther west than Stonehenge, of the primitive track which wild beasts la . out before the footsteps of men made of it a permanent way. The modern highway has replaced it. But the Tin Road exists, nevertheless, in spots, for England places the seal of veneration upon its ancient ways. But only here and there, on the South Downs of Surrey and Kent, is it possible to picture it as the track which the prehistoric Cornishmen travelled with their pack mules. Modern usage and nomenclature are deceiving. With iconoclastic indifference to tradition, the medieval pilgrims who for centuries tramped from Winchester to the shrine of the martyred archbishop, Thomas a' Beckett, at Canterbury, Cathedral, coolly appropriated the Tin Road, lined it with shrines, chapels, and hospices for rest, and its time-honored usages were forgotten.

Between Guildford and Oxford and Wrotham is the real happy hunting ground of the lover of the old Tin Road. Here it runs, half way up the chalk slopes, in narrow strips of sward or as a beaten path between the hedges. It is hardly wide enough for two to pass. Invisible to the distant observer except for the lining of hedge, of ancient yews, of hollies or of oaks, it looks furtively toward the southern sun, skirting for miles a well defined ridge, a bridle path of the ages, more ancient than the buffalo trace of the Canadian prairies, and far more sacred. Through its thicket screen, one catches noble glimpses of valley and rolling weald, of meadows and trim farms, and the winding course of the Medway.

The road was never paved or crowned or channelled, and the plough often obliterated it. But it is one of the most ancient relics of England's ancient days. It is the true primal trail, and the oldest, perhaps, of all the trade routes of the world. The lover of the Tin Road, however, must beware that he be not deceived. There are those who, knowing nothing of tin and the youth of the world, will assure him that this is the Pilgrim's Way brought into fashion by the penitent Henry when, landing at Southampton, he walked all the way to the noble fane of Canterbury. But the feet of the pilgrims had a straight and true path trodden for them by Cornish tin miners and their pack mules centuries before such comparatively modern happenings as Plantagenet vagaries with obstreperous archbishops.

FATALISM AMONG TOMMIES.

Mascots and Luck-bringers In the Armies.

The feeling of fatalism is strong among soldiers. Many hold the opinion that "if the bullet is not made for you, you won't be hit." One soldier boasts that he knows he will come through the war all right, because during his latest battle a large piece of shrapnel on which he found his own initial fell at his feet.

"It was made for me, all right," he said, "but it missed the mark, so nothing else can kill me."

Mascots and luck-bringers of various sorts are numerous in all the armies of to-day. They are of great variety, although perhaps tiny rabbits and black cats made of "lucky" metal are encountered more frequently than anything else. Probably in most cases the lucky charm which a soldier carries is something sent him by his womenfolk in the homeland—a thimble, a ring, or a child's trinket of some kind that has been passed down in the family as a luck-bringer.

Among soldiers' superstitions, of which the British soldier has his full share, one of the most characteristic is connected with the number three.

"The third time is never the same," is a proverb among the Irish troops. "The third time of anything is fatal," is a common expression among the English country battalions. Soldiers have been known to refuse to take their third leave, feeling certain that it will be their last. A soldier's third wound is said to be the one which must be most carefully attended to. A development of this same superstition prohibits the lighting of three cigarettes with one match.

Odd numbers, according to the British Tommy, are more likely to be unlucky than even ones, and thirteen is no worse than nine. Friday as an unlucky day has been dethroned, and there is no particular bad luck connected with any day of the week in Tommy's estimation. Sunday, however, is pre-eminently a lucky day for battles.

The lucky flower, by common consent, is white heather, and a piece properly tucked away inside the hatband is supposed to save the wearer from a fatal wound.

Some regiments regard certain decorations and medals as unlucky, not to the wearer, but to the regiment in general. One very well-known battation objects strongly every time one of its number is awarded the Military Cross.

As regimental pets, black cats are regarded as the luckiest possession a detachment can have, and the arrival of a stray animal of this color at a gun-pit or dugout is an event of great importance. Everyone is bound to be lucky for some hours at least. To meet a black cat while marching up to the trenches puts every member of the company in the happiest humor. On the other hand, a black magpie flying across the line of march is a bad omen. To hear the cuckoo calling before breakfast is another bad omen.

To Catch Tax Dodgers.

Uncle Sam has evolved a scheme to trip up income tax dodgers. Blank forms are distributed to individuals and firms on which they must report every payment of $800 or more made during 1917 to any person or corporation.

Heavy Demand For Mill Feeds

Few Changes in the Grocery Market During the Week

The following comment on the market situation as regards food stuffs appeared in Canadian Grocer this week.

Further shipments of strawberries reaching the market during the week have served to lower prices somewhat. Supplies of boxed apples are in fair condition and the good demand continues The first shipment of California Valencia oranges has arrived and although high in price, it is intimated the primary markets are slightly easier which may mean later shipments will be somewhat lower

A fresh car of tomatoes is in and prices range from $6.50 to $7.00 per case, a considerable decline over last week's figure. California celery is practically done and Florida is being offered at $3.00 per case with a tendency toward higher levels. Onions, beets and turnips are all slightly easier.

Little change is apparent in package goods or cereals. Rolled oats in bags has declined in some quarters in a slightly easier market. Other lines remain unchanged. The demand for mill feeds continues heavy.

MAPLE SYRUP.

The first shipment of new maple syrup has reached the market and prices are slightly higher than those formerly ruling. Orders are being booked against further arrivals. Difficulty in transportation is still being felt in getting shipments of molasses through.

Receipts of rices show some improvement and an advance in fancy Honduras to 13c per pound in full bag lots has been made in some quarters. All shipments of lima beans have been placed under an embargo by the United States Government, pending a survey of available supplies for their use. The new regulations providing for inspection of Indian rices for acid content has placed the possibility of further shipments in an uncertain light.

Nuts are being firmly held and shipments of shelled almonds and walnuts have been received. A shipment of Spanish peanuts is reported coming. The sugar situation shows some slight improvement in the matter of receipts, but by no means sufficient to relieve the shortage materially. Teas and coffees continue to move out in good volume and prices held unchanged. Matches, waxed paper, peanut butter and cocoanut all underwent revision upwards.

Hardware And Metal Markets

Further declines in turpentine have occurred following the weaker tone of the primary market, 62c. to 67c. per gallon now being quoted. Reports from the States indicate a possible withdrawal of coastwise shipping for government use and this will affect supplies of turpentine reaching Canada. Present stocks are ample for the demand but the future contains an element of uncertainty.

Linseed oil has held in a very steady market during the week. Supplies of seed coming through during the past couple of weeks are practically nil and stocks of oil are becoming increasingly scarce. Some improvement in movement of seed is hoped for on the opening of navigation. Orders for oil for delivery during the next couple of weeks are being accepted in some quarters where shipments are en route. Orders for mixed paint are going forward freely.

In at least one of the United States the acreage devoted to broom corn is to be restricted and should other State food administrators rule similarly a heavy shortage is expected to result. This will enhance values to a point where brooms would be prohibitive from the average housekeeper's standpoint and the question of a substitute will more than likely engage the attention of manufacturers.

A slightly easier tone is evident in the lead market and quotations are from 1-4c. to 1-2c. lower per pound than formerly ruling. The position of tin remains rather acute and stocks held locally are gradually being cleaned up. Little disposition to offer stocks at any lower prices is evident.

Crude oil is reported as likely to go higher and this will affect refined still further. A shortage in fuel oil exists at present.

Included in the list of lines to advance is a 20 p.c. jump in one line of revolvers and shotguns. All lines of game traps are also higher, a 10 per cent. increase having been put into effect. Lamp and stove wick, metal polish fibreware and woodenware, pails and tubs, wrenches, drawknives and lock washers are all included in the list of goods to follow the upward trend of prices. — "Hardware and Metal."

THE LANDLORDS ARE BOOSTING THE RENTS

Rents Up $12 a Year—Taxes Just $2 More.

TORONTO, April 8.—Property owners are putting up rents as a result of the high tax rate and it is alleged that they are being boosted to an extent that is not justified by the increase in the taxes.

Mayor Church has received a copy of a letter sent by a firm of solicitors to a woman raising her rent from $15 to $16 a month. The increase in the rent amounts to $12 a year. The property is assessed from $561, on which the taxes amounted last year to $14.50, and this year they will be $2 more, the landlord receiving a profit of $10 a year in consequence of the rate going up.

W. T. Trenholme of Montreal reports the arrival of a chestnut filly foal. The foal is out of the mare Sans Coeuer and by im orted Malamont.

Rising Costs Attack Profits

More Than Ever Before Merchants Must Guard Every Cent of Profit That They Legitimately Earn!

Merchants to-day are face to face with several difficult problems, the most important of which is the rising cost of commodities.

In many instances these rising costs are hard to pass on to the customer.

Consequently the merchant's margin of profit is greatly imperilled.

Alert merchants find the use of a National Cash Register helps greatly in solving this serious problem.

It safeguards every cent of profit that they can make.

It conserves their profit by preventing losses, eliminating mistakes in change, by recording all charge transactions.

It reduces overhead by making clerks more efficient, speeding up store service, reducing the number of clerks required and the deliveries to be made.

It relieves the merchant of details and worry, giving him more time to consider his purchasing and market problems.

Any merchant who is finding his profits reduced even despite increased volume of trade, will find N.C.R. booklets full of helpful suggestions. They are gladly sent free for the asking.

THAT ANCIENT COLONY

NEWFOUNDLAND STILL PREFERS TO STAND ISOLATED.

This Portion of the British Overseas Dominions Would Be a Valuable Addition to Canada, But the Citizens Are Bitterly Opposed to Idea of Entering Confederation.

A MEMBER of the Newfoundland Cabinet is suing for libel because he has been accused of working for confederation with Canada. Not so very long ago Hon. T. P. McGrath, of Newfoundland, outlined to the Canadian Club of Toronto a number of reasons why the ancient colony was never likely to enter the Dominion. The case, which he made out, was apparently so complete that his hearers went away thinking that the thing they desired was unattainable. Yet the inclusion of the island as the tenth province of the Dominion has been thought by many to have entered the realm of practical politics. The war has removed mountains of difficulty. It has taught the Dominion and the island that their interests are identical and their future safety a matter of mutual concern.

There seems to be no sound reason why the legislatures and electors of the two countries should not ratify the consolidation of all British North America. Newfoundland may be described as the cork of the St. Lawrence. Stretching across the mouth of the Gulf of that name, it is separated by only 60 miles of water from Cape Breton, and by a narrower strip from the Labrador coast. Only six hours from Sydney by steamer it reaches out into the Atlantic to within 1,640 miles of the Irish coast. Many hundreds of miles nearer to Europe than any other portion of the Western Hemisphere, and blocking the front door of the Dominion, its strategic importance is readily appreciated. It is said that but for the strength of the British navy the German fleets would have established a naval base in the splendid land-locked harbor of St. John's, and destroyed Canadian commerce from this vantage point. The Krupp people got much of the iron ore for their guns from the Wabana mines, and long before the war they had important Newfoundland plans in their possession.

About 400 miles long by 300 broad, the island has an area of 46,000 square miles. Its traditions date back past the Cabots, who "discovered" it in 1497 for Henry VII. of England, to the Basque fishermen of the fourteenth century, and even to the Norsemen, who are said to have sailed down the North American coast in the tenth century. In 1713 the Treaty of Utrecht confirmed the British in their right of possession, the island became a province in 1728, and in 1832 secured its first legislature, which now consists of a House of Assembly of 36 members, elected on a manhood suffrage register, and a Legislative Council appointed by the Government of the day. By the Anglo-French convention of 1904 France renounced her exclusive fishing rights on the west shore, while the ancient fisheries dispute with the United States was largely settled by a reference to The Hague Tribunal in 1910. The cordial relations of Great Britain with France removed one obstacle to the island's progress, and there is no doubt that as a province of the Dominion Newfoundland would have stronger backing than heretofore in any possible recrudescence of misunderstandings with the United States.

The inclusion of Newfoundland would add about 250,000 to the population of the Dominion. One-sixth of the inhabitants reside in the picturesque capital, St. John's, whose steep streets rise above a magnificent cliff-enclosed harbor, and smell unto heaven of fish, seal oil, and whale blubber. The wireless telegraph station on Signal Hill above the city is the nearest to Europe of all North American stations. A steam railway, 640 miles in length, crosses the island from Port aux Basques (opposite Sydney, Cape Breton) to St. John's and Placentia, and Glasgow-built steamers serve the extensive fishing population scattered in villages along the deeply-indented triangular coast line.

The Newfoundland cod fisheries are perhaps the richest in the world, the exports of fish and fish products amounting to nearly $9,000,000 in 1911. The whale and seal industries yield between them $500,000 per annum. Lord Northcliffe's paper mills $2,250,000, agriculture $2,500,000, the copper mines $250,000, and the iron mines $2,500,000, most of the ore being mined by the Dominion Iron & Coal Co., and the Nova Scotia Steel & Coal Co. For the year 1911 the total foreign trade was $25,359,657, imports exceeding exports by nearly $2,000,000. Of the imports, consisting largely of foodstuffs, textiles and hardware, Canada furnished $4,607,000, the United Kingdom $3,092,000, and the United States $4,943,000. Fiscal union with Canada would throw most of this trade to this country. The colony's chief customers are the United Kingdom, Canada, Brazil, Portugal, Spain, Italy and the British West Indies. The Government revenue, in 1911, was $3,527,000, offset by expenditures of $3,254,000. The population is for the most part composed of 82,000 Roman Catholics, 78,000 Anglicans, and 68,000 Methodists, the other denominations being only slightly represented. The educational system is hampered by the fact that it is denominational and supported by state grants to the different religious bodies. Under the stimulus of the Canadian National policy the rich natural resources of the ancient colony could be rapidly developed. The island as a whole should benefit greatly as part and parcel of the powerful Canadian federation. The inclusion of Newfoundland would happily settle the long dispute over the Labrador boundary.

Over 800 trainers and drivers of harness horses have been licensed by the Victoria Trotting Association of Australia.

PRIVATE ALBERT NICHOLLS HAS BEEN WOUNDED A FOURTH TIME

Went Over With 21st Battalion and Has Been in Many Engagements —Now in Birmingham Hospital, Wounded in Left Foot.

PTE. ALBERT NICHOLLS
Peterborough member of the 21st Battalion, who has been wounded for the fourth time.

PETERBOROUGH CASUALTIES

Officially reported wounded for the fourth time since he first went into action with the 21st Battalion, Private Albert Nicholls was received at the 1st Southern General Hospital, Birmingham, on April 3rd with a gunshot wound in his left foot. He is the son of Mr. A. Nicholls, 64 Aylmer street, who is the organist and choir leader at the Park street Baptist church. Private Nicholls has been through a lot of hot fighting with the old 21st. He was wounded at St. Eloi, at the Somme and in another engagement, each time returning from the hospital to his regiment. It is believed that his recent injury was received in the Lens sector, where the Canadians have been turning back the enemy's assaults.

CAPTAIN FRANK SAWERS.

Word has been received from Ottawa that Acting Captain Frank Sawers was admitted to No. 2 British Red Cross Hospital, Rouen, France, on April 1. Further particulars state that the wound was a gunshot in the head.

Captain Sawers, whose parents reside at 298 Brock Street, enlisted in the Fort Garry Horse at Winnipeg, and went overseas with the First Contingent. He was employed in the Bank of Montreal in that city. He was later transferred to the Royal Canadian Dragoons, and made commander of the Trench Mortar Battery of the Canadian Cavalry Brigade.

PTE. HERBERT W. HARTSHORN.

Mrs. Sarah Hartshorn, 485 Patterson Street, received official word from Ottawa this morning morning that her son, Pte. Herbert Walter Hartshorn, is officially reported admitted to the 1st General Hospital, Liverpool, on April 1st, suffering from gunshot wounds and a fractured left thigh. Pte. Hartshorn went overseas as Company Sergeant-Major of A Company of the 93rd Battalion, and reverted to the ranks to go to France in a draft of the 2nd Battalion. Before joining the 93rd he was a member of the 57th Regiment Peterborough Rangers.

PTE. J. L. BROOKS.

Pte. J. L. Brooks, who enlisted here early in 1915 with B Squadron, 8th C.M.R., is officially reported wounded. Pte. Brooks, who was a telegrapher by occupation, went overseas with the 8th, and was transferred to the Canadian cavalry. He has evidently been wounded during the operations south of the Somme, when the Canadian cavalry so greatly distinguished itself. His relatives live in Omemee.

MAJOR NORDHEIMER KILLED IN ACTION

Personal friends in the city of Major Albert Victor Seymour Nordheimer, of the Nordheimer Music Co., among them being Mr. Frank Whitehouse, will regret to learn that his relatives have received notice of his being killed in action on March 30th.

The late Major Nordheimer was well-known. He was a graduate of Upper Canada College and the Royal Military College, Kingston. About seven years in command at Stanley Barracks, Toronto, he left to take up active business with the Nordheimer Music Company, and was West on business when the war broke out. Major Nordheimer wired his services, and was accepted. The late officer twice reverted to get to the front, finding it necessary to drop back to the rank of captain to get over to England, which he did in September of 1916. While in England, he reverted to lieutenant to get to France, and it was while attached to the cavalry unit in France that he was killed in action.

WANT ADMINISTRATION OF MILITARY SERVICE ACT SPEEDED UP.

(Special to Examiner.)

Ottawa, April 8. — There is a well-defined rumour in circulation to-day to the effect that the resignation from the Cabinet of Hon. C. J. Doherty, Minister of Justice, is in the hands of the Prime Minister. It is stated that the difficulties of Mr. Doherty's position, especially as the administrator of the Military Service Act, have been increasingly emphasized of recent days. Government supporters did not scruple on Friday to strongly criticize the administration of the Act, and to hint that it should be placed in other hands.

REV. JOHN GRAHAM IN CITY YESTERDAY

Preached at George Street and Trinity Churches.

Enthusiastic welcomes at Trinity and George Street churches were accorded to Rev. John Graham, D.D., General Secretary of Educational Work in the Methodist Church. In speaking at Trinity Church in the evening, Mr. Graham impressed upon the congregation the necessity of education for the spreading of democracy illustrating his point by the turmoil in Russia in which country eighty-two per cent. of the people are ignorant and uneducated. Had the people been enlightened one of the most disastrous uprisings in the world's history would have been averted. In conclusion Mr. Graham spoke of the loyalty of the Church.

The Music.

The music in the evening at Trinity was especially good. "The Prodigal Son's Return" by the male quartette, Messrs. Ridyard, Baldry, Wright and Hartshorn was a musical treat of great merit, also the anthem, "Hark, Hark, My Soul," which was rendered by the choir in a manner reflecting credit upon the training and talent of the members. Miss Rathbone won her way into the hearts of the congregation by a splendidly rendered solo.

School Opened This Morning

A Change in the Teaching Staff.

With the opening of the Public Schools this morning, Inspector Mowat reports a very satisfactory attendance, the pupils turning out to resume their spring term almost to a student.

At the Collegiate a more or less satisfactory response to the opening was made, a number of the students being from out of town and unable to make connections for the first day of school.

Change in Staff.

The only change in staff for the spring term was at the Central School, where Miss Gladys Moore, of Peterborough, will take the position left vacant by Mrs. Ruth Hamilton, who has gone to Sunderland to join Captain Hamilton, who returns presently to Canada.

UNDERWRITERS WILL HOLD A DINNER.

The underwriters of Peterboro met Saturday evening with President Sedgwick in the chair. It was decided to have a dinner on Friday, April 19th at the Empress Hotel. The meeting was most enthusiastic. The discussion was very instructive to the underwriters and life insurance men.

The matter of uniting with the Board of Trade was enthusiastically received. To create more enthusiasm a meeting will henceforth be held every month. It was also decided to put on a drive for new members.

AVIATORS COMING HOME.

TORONTO, April 8.— Advices from offices of the Royal Air Service here Fort Worth, Texas, to the headquarter state that Major Ballard, O. C., with the two hundred or more aviators under him constituting the school of aerial gunnery are now on their northward way and by mid-week will be established at the new Beamsville aerodrome. Two wings for Camps Borden and Deseronto are following almost immediately, and the remainder of the aerial corps which has been doing winter instructional work in Texas will return to the Ontario camps ten days hence.

PAPER COLLECTION ON WEDNESDAY BY ASHBURNHAM LADIES

Citizens are reminded of the collection of waste paper on Wednesday by the Women's Patriotic League of Ashburnham. The proceeds will be devoted to the patriotic work carried on by the league.

It is hoped that there will be a generous response to this collection, and that the paper will be tied in packages and put out on verandahs early on Wednesday morning. The Ashburnham ladies have made a fine record of patriotic work since their organization and the money realized in the collection of paper has been a great help.

MASONS PLAN TO ERECT A FOUR STOREY BUILDING

Rebuilding of the Masonic Hall is Being Delayed Until a Definite Decision Is Arrived At

The rebuilding of the Masonic Hall destroyed by fire this winter, is delayed as definite plans as to whether the old building will be propped up and remodelled or a separate structure erected have not been settled.

It is the intention of the Masonic building committee, however, to erect a four-storey building in the centre of the city which will stand alone and be used for Masonic purposes only. This plan, which is being contemplated at present if carried out, will mean the expenditure of about $75,000.

A RESOLUTION OF PROTEST

MEETING OF THE MINISTERIAL ASSOCIATION HELD THIS MORNING.

The Peterborough Ministerial Association met this morning in the Y. M. C. A. An interesting paper on "Christian Ministry" was read by Rev. J. P. Wilson, D.D., Pastor of Trinity Methodist Church.

The following resolution was also passed and will be forwarded to the Board of License Commissioners:

"Having learned that a person not a resident of this city and whose reputation is not known in the locality has made application for the position of liquor vendor here, we desire to protest against the appointment of any stranger to the position, believing that a reputable person well known locally could and should be secured for this work."

NINE-HOUR DAY AT PETER HAMILTON CO.

To the list of factories that have granted the nine-hour day to their employees should be added the Peter Hamilton Company, who reduced their working day from ten to nine hours on Monday, April 1st. The list, as it stands, now is: The Canadian General Electric Co., The De Laval Co., The Peterborough Lock Works, The Peter Hamilton Co., The Bonner-Worth Company, The Colonial Weaving Co.

GERMAN EDITOR SUICIDES.

LONDON, April 8.—Suicide in prison at Munich of Kurt Eisner, formerly editor of the Socialist newspaper Vorwaerts of Berlin, is reported in an Exchange Telegraph despatch from Copenhagen. Herr Eisner was arrested in Munich last February for having taken a leading part in the strike movement at that time, and was charged with high treason.

Permission To Issue Bridge Bonds Not Yet Granted

The advances in the price of cement and other material that have soared since the ratepayers voted $280,000 for the Hunter and London Street bridges will probably bring the total cost of this work to a sum that will exceed the estimate. This is more than a probability, City Engineer Parsons stated to-day, but he did not expect that the excess would be serious. In any event, before the preliminary work on the overhead bridge the Government's permission for the flotation of the bridge debentures must be obtained. They will be limited to the $280,000 fixed in the by-law, and any surplus expended must be raised subsequently.

Mr. Parsons favours the extension of the approach on this side of the river to a point near Queen Street, instead of at Sheridan Street. This, he has stated, will avoid the descent from Queen to Sheridan Streets, and would place the bridge level practically in alignment with the Hunter Street grade.

MRS. WIGGS.

"Mrs. Wiggs," "Lovey Mary," "Miss Hazy" and all the other well known characters of Alice Hegan Rice's famous book, "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," were seen at the Grand on Saturday in the United Producing Company's presentation of the dramatized version of the familiar story. Mary B. Hurst idd splendid work in the title role, making the part of Mrs. Wiggs an outstanding one. Her optimistic sallies were delivered in a convincing manner. Grace Leith created much amusement by her work as "Miss Hazy," and William Lenox was very funny in the comedy role of Mr. Stubbins. The whole production kept the audience thoroughly entertained.

COUNTY ROAD SYSTEM AND CONSOLIDATED RURAL SCHOOLS

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—In an editorial of a local newspaper, referring to "two separate distinctions that the County of Peterborough enjoys," namely, NOT having adopted the County Road System "that works so satisfactorily in other Counties," also HAVING the leading advocate of Consolidated Rural Schools, in the person of Mr. R. Lees, Inspector of Public Schools.

In taking an extract from Mr. Lees' article in the Farm and Dairy, that refers to Consolidated Schools and Good Roads, the writer would lead you to believe that Mr. Lees was advocating County Road System, whereas the part taken from Mr. Lees' article does not in any way refer to County Roads, nor do I think for one moment that Mr. Lees would attempt to be dictatorial to the County Council in such a scheme. Good roads would certainly be conducive to the operating of Consolidated Rural Schools, but the County Road System would not be beneficial to more than 12 per cent. of those attending such schools as county roads run from one centre to another and children attending school live on all roads and side lines. The County of Peterborough stands alone to-day minus adoption of County Road System, but unless the Government passes legislation establishing such system inside of ten years the County will not be alone as a result of others abandoning it.

The County of Peterborough to-day spends about $25,000 in all, on roads, (that is) statue labor, grants or expenditures by the Townships, grants by the County, and the paying off of debentures by the County for such purpose.

It has been suggested and recommended that 140 miles be designated as County Roads, being the main roads from the City to Chemong Lakefield, Warsaw, Norwood, Keene, Springville Havelock, etc. The The Muncipal Advisor in a letter to a local paper, sets out the fact that $3000 a mile would construct a fairly good County Road, which means $420,000, to construct, and the County's share 60 per cent., means $252,000, or $20,160 a year to pay off debentures for such work or build 7 miles a year taking 20 years to build. Then comes the maintenance, which, under the most reasonable calculation, knowing that City Autoists would make a New York Broadway of such roads would mean $150. per mile a year maintenance, or $21,000 in a short time for maintenance and the County's share 80 per cent. means $16,800 more. Add for construction each year $20,160 to maintenance, $16,800 means $37,400 for the county eventually to raise each year or in other words, 4 mills on the dollar.

Compare $25,000 expended as at present over the whole County to $37,400 expended on 12 per cent. of the roads of the County and enjoyed by only 12 per cent. of the rural ratepayers. Besides, you must add them altogether for all roads would have to be kept up. It has been stated that marketing would be assisted as a result of County Roads System adoption and operation.

There are on'y 20 per cent. of the farmers attend market and one-half of them come in on the trains with baskets under the seat. The farmer of Ontario draws very little grain to market and the same thing prevails in marketing his grain as prevails in marketing his cheese, beef, bacon, eggs, butter, etc. namely from 2 to 6 miles generally to the nearest station for loading; and how many railway stations would there be on County Roads, the same question as to Consolidated Schools, "Cross Road Schools," "Churches," picnic grounds cheese factories, etc., or how much of the County Roads would the team that gathers milk in the morning or the mail route man travel over or how much of the County Road system would the heavy threshing tractor that threshes the grain and fills the silos pass over.

Supposing all the farmers had autos for pleasure and auto trucks for business, only 12 per cent. of them would be in a position to use County Roads.

One County adopted and organized County system last year and expended $2000, of that $1500 went to pay the Road Superintendent.

Another County adopted and organized last year and in a few months the Superintendent resigned from failure to get help.

Another County is asking for legislation to tax land where County Roads run 2 cents a foot extra tax or on an average of $58.00 to the 100 acres frontage tax.

The reason, the Reeve states, is that there is now $845,000 debenture debt on such County due to County Road System and the maintenance is so heavy that the last resort to meet it is frontage tax.

Leading roads are used by Urban Autoists for 90 per cent. of their country travel and 75 per cent. of the Urbanites have no autos, hence great strain is put upon County roads by 25 per cent. of the Urbanites at the expenses as shown above, to the farmer.

Auto License money might be expended on leading roads without much burden to the farmer, if the license money say, $15,000, paid by the City and County together with $5000 from the County and $5,000 from the Townships through which such roads run, then 40 er cent. or $10,000, added by the Government would make $35,000, to be expended on the main roads from Centre to Centre, as I said, without extra burden to the farmer.

Referring to the above figures $37400, the County's share under County Road system, the construction being per year, $20.160.

Govt. share of that 40 per cent., ...	$8064.00
The maintenance being per year, $16800.
Government share 20 per cent.	3360.00
Making outside assistance so much held out to the farmers as an inducement to adopt County Road system	$11424.00
Or nearly $4000.00 less than paid to the Govt. by way of auto licenses.
Referring to the suggested way the County at large pays	$5000.00
The Township through which those roads run	5000.00
Auto license refund	16,000.00
Govt. 40 per cent of both . .	10,000.00
	$35,000.00

Real outside assistance to the extent of $10,000, and a report of such work could be made to the Government by Mr. Henry Moore of Dunmer, Colonization Road Supt., or supervision by him of such work under direction of the County Council, cou'd obtain, when Mr. Moore's experience and knowledge of road construction is an evidence of efficiency.

According as the auto licenses increase expenditure would increase pro rata.

Until this war is over the furnishing of men and supplies should be the all important matter, after which the ratepayers would be in a better position to consider other questions.

Respectfully yours,
ED. M. ELLIOTT.

MRS. ROWE GAINS ALMOST 50 POUNDS

Lost Nearly 100 Pounds After Operation—Tanlac Builds Her Up Again

"When my wife came home from the hospital she weighed little more than a hundred pounds, but Tanlac has built her up till she now weighs a hundred and fifty," was the remarkable statement made recently by Harry Rowe, of 65 McCaul street, Toronto.

"Two years ago," he continued, "when my wife left here for England, she seemed to be a strong and healthy woman and weighed two hundred pounds. Two months later she was operated on for appendicitis, and the shock seemed to break her all up. A month later when she returned to Canada she had fallen off till she was but a shadow of her former self. She had no appetite, and the little she forced down soured and formed gas that made her miserable most all the time. She was very bilious too, and complained of an awful pain in her side. Two operations weakened her so much that she spent much of her time in bed and was unable even when she was up to do anything about the house. She tried to find relief from her sufferings by taking all kinds of preparations, but got worse instead of better.

"One of my friends who had taken Tanlac praised it so much that I got my wife to try it. She has taken three bottles so far and her appetite has improved so much she can eat anything she wants and says she is never troubled with sour stomach or gas any more. She never complains of that pain in her side that worried her so, she is fast regaining her former strength and weight and says she feels better and stronger than she has in a long time.

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd., in Havelock by A. C. Denike, in Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co., Ltd., in Fowler's Corners by W. A. Hunter, in Gelert by A. J. Scott, in Westwood by G. Pringle & Son.

Large Collection At Murray Street

BUILDING FUND DEBT REDUCED BY $1,640.

The announcement was made a week ago at Murray Street Church that the semi-annual offering toward the building debt would be taken yesterday. Envelopes were circulated for the reception of the gifts, and the entire service of yesterday was in keeping with the purpose of the congregation. The communion service filled the centre block of seats in the front and back of the Church. The sermon was based on Paul's words to the Corinthians: "Every man, according as he purposeth in his heart, so let him give, not grudgingly, nor of necessity for God loveth a cheerful giver."

The solo of the morning was "Cast thy bread upon the water, Shout for Joy to See it Go."

When the burdened plates were carried to the Treasurer's room, at the close of the service, there were found to be $1,640 in this special offering, and the Treasurer reported that it had in no sense interfered with the usual offering of the people.

Pollyanna

Anticipation runs high concerning "Pollyanna," read and beloved by thousands, which comes to the Grand on Saturday matinee and night, as a vivid, magnetic, human personality in the glad-hearted comedy produced by Klaw and Erlanger and George C. Tyler. The story of how Pollyanna played her glad game in a New England community is full of comedy and romance, aglow with optimism and the joy of living. Catherine Chisholm Cushing, who wrote successful comedies for May Irwin, Henrietta Crosman, and Billie Burke, has well preserved the spirit of Eleanor H. Porter's stories, read—so the publishers estimate—by some ten million people. The original cast comes from a record run at the Broad Street Theatre, Philadelphia, and several months at the Hudson Theatre, New York, and includes players of distinction such as Patrica Collinge, Oswald Yorke., Beatrice Morgan, Joseph Jefferson, Helen Weathersby, M. id Hosford, Stephen Davis, Mattie Ferguson, Glenn Hunter, Harry Barfoot and Selma Hall.

A GERMAN LYNCHED.

St. Louis, Mo., April 5. — Robert V. Prager, a German-born Socialist, was dragged from the basement of the Collinsville, Ill., city hall, twelve miles from St. Louis, last night by the leaders of a mob of from 300 to 400 men, marched barefooted to a point one half mile outside of the Collinsville limits, and lynched. He was accused of having made disloyal remarks to Marysville, Ill., miners.

His capture by the crowd and the lynching came after he had been hidden by the Collinsville police among a lot of tiling in the basement of the city hall, while Mayor Siegel made a speech to the mob from the steps of the city hall, pleading with his hearers to give the prisoner the right of trial. The police previously had rushed the mob and captured Prager while he was being marched through the main street of the city, with an American flag tied about him.

The fixed fine of $4.60 was paid this morning by each of the following victims of C.P.R. Detective George Greenham's swoop for trespassers — J. D. Lundy, Mrs. K. Denoon, Ed. Mahoney Russel' Lockie, Isaac Hammond, Camillo Greco, George Sexsmith, Alfred Helson, Matthew Hiscox, Vincent Scully Fred Seymour, P. Graham and Josiah Robinson.

The detective's annual visitation has aroused a great deal of resentment among persons who realize the C.P.R.'s purpose, but who feel that some milder method might be followed.

EMBARGO ON CATTLE SHIPMENTS

EFFECT WILL BE SERIOUS TO THE CATTLE TRADE.

(Special to Examiner.)

Toronto, April 8.—Persistent reports prevail at the Union Stock Yards to-day that it is proposed to put an embargo on cattle shipments from Canada to the United States. April 15th is mentioned as the date it is decided to put the embargo into effect. Up to a late hour this afternoon confirmation of the report was not obtainable.

The effect of the embargo would be serious to the cattle trade particularly as related to "feeders," all of which have to be sold in Canada.

FREIGHT CONGESTION IS GETTING WORSE.

The tie-up of freight in Ontario seems to be reaching serious proportions. In Toronto the goods are piled sky-high and much of it is outside in rain or shine, covered only with cloth, so a traveller reports. Even in Peterboro the freight is the maximum that can be handled by the present staffs of the two express companies.

One reason for this abnormal amount of freight seems to be the increasing amoun of incoming fruit, and the heavy liquor shipments of the past few weeks.

HOUSE WAS PARTLY DESTROYED

Over-heated Stove Set Fire to Summer Kitchen

The Fire Department responded to an urgent call from outside the city limits yesterday morning at 11.45 to the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Wallwork, 112 Weston avenue.

The occupants of the house had left the house, Mr. Wallwork to go to church and Mrs. Wallwork on an errand. On returning Mrs. Wallwork found the summer kitchen blazing, set on fire by an overheated stove. The fire department was 'phoned for, and with the use of the chemical engine, succeeded in keeping the flames from spreading to the house. The damage to the house was about $300, to the contents $50.

Historic Necklace.

Great interest has been aroused, says the London Times, by the announcement that an historic pearl necklace, made up of single beautiful pearls is, now being brought together by the Collections Committee of the British Red Cross.

It is believed by the originator of the idea that this Red Cross pearl necklace will string together beautiful pearls freely given by women of all the overseas dominions and many allied countries. It is intended to have a golden book of the women who give one pearl or more to this war necklace, in which each name shall be printed, and this book will be presented to the Imperial War Museum as a record of this special effort on the part of the women of the British Empire and the allied countries.

A Radio School.

A radio school for the merchant marine has been established at Boston, through the initiative of Radio Inspector Arthur Batheller, and with the active aid of Mr. W. Butterworth, assistant radio inspector. Several offices and firms have helped in equipping this free school, which was so urgently needed for training wireless operators to serve on America's new fleet of merchant vessels. The classes meet three evenings a week, and there are already 40 pupils.

OUR BARREN LAND.

Traveller Tells of Experiences In Northern Canada.

In his new book, "The Barren Ground of Northern Canada," Warburton Pike, one of the first who ventured into the Barren Grounds, concedes to his guide, King Beaulieu, remarkable expertness in the art of travel with canoes or dog sledges, and vouches for his courage and readiness in emergencies. They were in search of caribou, and Mr. Pike speaks of the advantage of taking women on a hunting trip. The guide's wife and daughter were well up in the household duties of the country.

If we killed anything, says Mr. Pike, we only had to cut up and cache the meat and the woman and small boys would carry it in. On returning to camp we could throw ourselves down on a pile of caribou skins and smoke our pipes in comfort, but the women's work was never finished. The rib bones have all to be picked out, and the plat cote hung up in the smoke to dry; the meat of haunches and shoulders must be cut up in thin strips for the same purpose and the bones have to be collected, pounded down, and boiled for the grease which is in such demand during the cold weather about to commence. But the greatest labor of all lies in dressing the skins, cutting off the hair, scraping away every particle of flesh and fat, and afterwards tanning them into soft leather for moccasins, which are themselves no easy task to make. Many skins, too, have to be made in to parchment or carefully cut into babiche for the lacing of snowshoes, and again, there are hair coats to be made for each member of the party. In an ordinary Indian lodge the women have to put up with ill-usage as well as hard work; but most of the half-breeds know enough to treat them fairly; and King, except in his moments of passion, when he did not stop at any cruelty, treated his women-kind very well.

The evenings were generally spent in long discussions over our pipes, for tobacco was still holding out, and the old man was keen to hear about the doings of the white man in the Grand Plays, as the half-breeds indefinitely term the whole of the outside world. The ignorance existing among these people is extraordinary, considering how much time they spend at the forts, and how many officers of the Hudson Bay Co. they have a chance to talk to, besides the missionaries of both faiths.

It is a different matter with the Indians, as they seldom come to the fort, and cannot hold much conversation with the whites without an interpreter. It was difficult, for instance, to persuade King that the Hudson Bay Co. does not rule the whole world, or that there are countries that have no fur-bearing animals, which in the north furnish the only means of making a living for the poor man. He was much interested in stories of the Queen although he could never believe that her Majesty held such a high rank as the governor of the company, and quite refused to acknowledge her as his sovereign. "No," he said, "she may be your Queen, as she gives you everything you want, good rifles and plenty of ammunition, and you say that you eat flour at every meal in your own country. If she were my Queen, surely she would send me sometimes half a sack of flour, a little tea, or perhaps a little sugar, and then I should say she was indeed my Queen. As it is I would rather believe Mr. Reid of Fort Province, who told me once that the earth went round and the sun stood still; but I myself have seen the sun rise in the morning and set at night for many years. It is wrong of you white men, who know how to read and write, to tell lies to poor men who live by the muzzle of their guns."

He criticized severely the habit of eating three regular meals a day, which he described as eating by the clock instead of by the stomach, a much more greedy habit than of gorging when meat is plentiful and starving at other times. On several occasions during our travels together I had reason to expostulate with him on the carelessness he displayed with provisions, but without making the least impression. "What is this improvidence?" he would say. "I do not like that word. When we have meat why should we not eat plein ventre to make up for the time when we are sure to starve again?" He could never realize that starvation might be partially avoided by a little care.

Starvation will always be one of the features of a hunter's life, owing to his own improvidence; his instinct is to camp close on the tracks of the caribou and move as they move; a permanent house and a winter's supply of meat are an abomination to him.

WHAT OTHER EDITORS SAY

A Difficult Question.

(London Advertiser.)

Mayor Church of Toronto is engaged in condemning the Union Government for various misdeeds. Does this show there is hope for the mayor or for the Government?

One More Smith.

(Providence Journal.)

A citizen of a neighbouring State whose name of Schmidt interfered with his business, according to his statement to a judge of the Superior Court, has been permitted to take the name of Smith instead. The Smith family has long been a little crowded, but probably there is room for one more.

A Pertinent Way.

(Kitchener Telegraph.)

Coal consumers are being advised to get in their next winter's coal supply. Those who have the ready cash will undoubtedly follow the advice without much delay, but how about the other fellow?

Probably Not.

(Rochester Express.)

The Kaiser says that he is ashamed of the fact that Ferdinand of Roumania is a Hohenzollern. Probably he is not half so ashamed of it as Ferdinand is.

What It Means.

(New York Tribune.)

"That means for them a share in the perils and the glory of the battle now raging—the greatest fought since the Marne. It means the planting of our standard alongside the standards of France and Great Britain in one of the critical efforts of Western civilization to stay the onrush of the German barbarism.

The People to Blame.

(Cincinnati Times-Star.)

When Dr. Charles M. Sheldon stopped in New York over night on his return from England, his hotel bill was more than twice what the best hotel in Liverpool charged him. On the wall of the room in the New York hotel was a printed notice inviting guests to bring complaints to the manager. Dr. Sheldon asked the manager why the charge was so high. "Because of the war," he said. "Yes," said the doctor, "but what is the real reason?" "Well," said the manager, frankly, "because the American people stand for it." This, by the way, is the real reason why we have so much profiteering in this country; the people submit. In this case the manager cut Dr. Sheldon's bill in two.

About Taxes.

(Montreal Herald.)

Before we complain louder of war taxes and the high cost of food and clothing, suppose for a change we read Benjamin Franklin's words: "We are taxed twice as much by our idleness, three times as much by our pride, and four times as much by our folly; and of these taxes the commissioners cannot ease us by allowing an abatement."

A Grand Reality.

(Chicago Tribune.)

One rational fact existed in all the unreality to which the English-speaking peoples had devoted themselves. That fact was the British navy. To-day it is the greatest protection which the English speaking peoples have. It is the dependable wall behind which the democracy in western Europe and in America can find safety.

If this did not exist, we were overrun, wiped from the earth as peoples who have institutions, free governments, and liberties. "Time is vital," and the only ready thing, fully competent for its work in the whole democratic world when time was called, was the British navy.

The U-Boat Figures.

The conspicuous figures in the British admiralty's statement are these:

Loss of ship tonnage through U-boat destruction and marine risk, in 1917, 6,723,623 tons World's output of new

The net average monthly loss was tonnage in 1917, 2,703,336. 335,023 tons.

Great Britain and America have just taken over a million tons of Dutch shipping. This tonnage, at the 1917 average of loss, will last just about three months. The first year of American ship building for war purposes is expected to turn out 4,000,000 tons, or, on a monthly average, just about the amount of the average losses of 1917. Besides, there will be the new tonnage turned out by Great Britain and others of tht anti-German nations.
